Hummel Rollers.

Finest Rollers Imported. To speak well of the Hummel is to gild refined gold. Testimonials from customers who say the Hummel is still singing as sweetly as when purchased four, five, six, and seven years ago. All Hummels have delightful deep, delicate bow roll, hollow roll, hollow bow roll, du pipe, hollow bell roll, grand round bass roll vibrating hollow roll, and charming water bubble roll; one price only, 12s. 6d.; no fancy prices; Hummel hens, 3s. each; a beautiful pair of Hummels for 15s. St. Andreasberg Rollers, 5s. and 7s. 6d. each. Hummel Schoolmasters, 20s. each, better than can be obtained elsewhere at treble the price. Thousands of testimonials have been published by me in CAGE BIRDS from satisfied customers. I guarantee strictly honourable trading and satisfaction to all.—Varney, sole proprietor and importer of this remarkable Roller Canary. Twenty years advertiser.—Varney, Stratford, London. "St. Mary Abbey, Mill Hill, December 1st, 1901. Received the Hummel; it sings beautifully indeed. It sings sweetly, and oh so softly, all day, and I cannot imagine any bird with a more lovely voice; he begins, even these dark mornings, at 7.30, under his serge cover, and sings till 6 o'clock. Although his song is so lovely, it is beautifully sweet, he has no shrill notes, and I am able to read through it. Miss F. Blockett. December 1st., Southfield, Poynton, Cheshire Received the Hummel, and am more than delighted with such superior song. W. Clover, to Varney, the largest importer of Rollers in London. January 8th, 1908. Summer-place, Billinghurst, Sussex. Please send 12 good Hummel Rollers. I have six of your Hummel Rollers; all perfect Rollers. J. Leyland. January 16th, Summer-place, Billinghurst, Sussex. I enclose cheque for the 12 Hummel Rollers. Am very pleased with them.—Mr. J. Leyland to Mr. Varney, Angel-lane, Stratford, London.

Birds arrived, are singing well.—R. M. Lee, 79, Mill Street, Crewe."—"Broom, Newton Mears, Glasgow.—The birds arrived in good condition: I am well pleased with such value.—J. Broom."—"2nd, 1907, 32, Euston Road, Darlington.—Bird to hand. I like the song wonderfully well, and thank you for your prompt delivery and attention to my instructions.—H. Hutchison."—Send all orders to Varney, Stratford, London.

of Roller fanciers is specially drawn to this advt., as never before in the history of the Roller Canary has such unprecedented value been offered at such low prices. I have just received an enormous consignment of Leipzig Rollers, all in superb song and condition. These I guarantee to be far and away better value for money than can be obtained elsewhere, and to prove this to your satisfaction, I ask you to try one of my Rollers on week's trial, and one from elsewhere at any higher price. Test them side by side, and if mine is not a far better bird, return it and I will refund all your money. Every cock sent out is guaranteed in full song day and gaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, soft roulades, water bubble runs, ding-ding-pipe, Nightingale, jug-jug, deep bass rolls, bell and harp notes, etc., etc., and are warranted to be entirely free from Tit-lark or any other harsh notes whatever; price 7/6 and 8/6 each; special Band masters, sold by others at 21/- each, my price 10/- each; Roller hens 2/6 each, 4/6 two. Grand lot extra loud free singing Hartz cocks, every one in full vigorous song and guaranteed to sing 20 hours, out of each 24; price 5/6 each, three 15/-; seven 31/6; Hartz hens 2/- each, 3/6 couple; Roller song cabinets, with folding doors made specially for my Rollers, 2/6 each; brass drawing room hanging cages, richly decorated with hand-painted flowers, fitted with ruby cut glass and opal feeders, etc., 5/-, 6/6, 7/6, and 10/- each. In this consignment I have also received a limited quantity of pure Seifert training birds, among them are birds that have actually won contests this season, price 15/-, 17/6 and 21/- each. These I guarantee to be pure Seifert blood, and to be far better birds than have ever before been placed on the English market by an importer, and am open to produce documentary evidence in proof of this assertion. Had I so wished I could have disposed of the whole of these Seifert Contest Birds at a big price immediately on their arrival, but I have imported them solely to further advertise the Leipzig strain of Rollers, and am therefore offering them at a price within reach of every working man. Roller breeders desirous of establishing a strain for winning next season will find this a unique opportunity of doing so at little cost. Seifert hens, same strain as cocks, 4/- each. No Seifert hens sold without cocks. Week's trial allowed at my risk as usual. Few more unsolicited testimonials given below; for others see last week's Cage Birds, or send furniture van for more. Please notice dates and full addresses with each. "7 Campbell Street, Rhos, Jan. 8.—Sir,—Schoolmaster arrived safe, and started to roll out its song within 15 minutes of arrival.—Yours, W. Price." "3, Cwmanne Terrace, Lampeter, Jan. 8. Sir,—Two years ago I had a Roller from you which commenced singing 10 minutes after arrival and has been singing ever since, even all through the moult. A friend of mine (Mr. Terwyn Davies) bought a Roller from you about a month ago, and he was such a beauty that I bought it off him next day. Please send me two Roller hens to match them.—Yours, E. Davies." "Longley House, Rochester, Jan. 8.—Sir,—Roller received safely Friday last, and is quite satisfactory.—Yours, V. Gordon Conway." "32, Portland Street, Leek, Jan. 12.—Sir,—Hartz cock arrived safe; he is a good loud songster; he seems never to be tired and will keep you alive.—Yours, W. Leedham." "55, Warner Street, Walthamstow, Jan. 12. Sir,—Canary arrived safe, and I am well pleased with same, and have instructed Editor to hand you deposit.—Yours, F. Ison." "Wakefield Road, Pontefract, Jan. 13. Sir,—Roller you sent is a fine bird, both in health and song, and am more than satisfied with it. Thanks for prompt attention. Please send another at 8/6.—Yours, J. Higgins." "Hawatha, Wallingford, Jan. 14. Sir,—Hon Canary arrived safe and seems well, and lively. I beg to thank you for prompt attention, and I shall always now come to you for anything I want.—Yours, R. Harvey." "5, First Cross Row, Ludworth, Jan. 14. Sir,—Received Roller, and am well pleased with it. It commenced singing same night. I shall give you another order shortly. Yours, A. Worthington." "Dawley, Salop, Jan. 15. Sir,—Roller arrived safe and in good condition. It is splendid to hear him singing for he has not rested since he came.—Yours, J. Bradburn." "9, South Street, Brighton, Jan. 16. Sir,—Birds arrived safe. The cock started singing immediately I put him in cage. I am quite satisfied with him, and shall recommend you to others.—Yours, B. Oakshott." "58, Main Street, Egremont, Jan. 16. Sir,—Bird arrived safe and in good condition. Thanks for quick dispatch.—Yours, J. Jenkinson." "31, Whittaker Street, Derby, Jan. 16. Sir, Roller arrived safe yesterday. I am very pleased with him. Just the bird and song I should have chosen myself, and is in every way equal to your advertisement. Will recommend your birds and promptness to my friends.—Yours, W. Barnett." "Aberlan, Jan. 17.—Sir,—Roller arrived safe at 4.30 p.m. I am very pleased with him; he was singing 10 minutes after being unpacked, and has such a soft sweet song.—Yours, T. White." "79, Peel Street, Crewe, Jan. 17, —Sir,—Please send two Roller hens. I gave ——— 10/6 for a pair of Hartz Rollers and the cock is not worth finding. I have bought better at 3/6.—Yours, W. Clarke." "Rhondda Cottage, Warren Road, Guildford, Jan. 18. Sir,—Please send three Hartz cocks; I have dealt with you on two other occasions, and always found you very straightforward.—Yours, T. Moore." Please note all these and hundreds of other unsolicited testimonials are preserved in their original envelopes, and are open for inspection any time. All Rollers sold by me are stamped on wing "Hans Wolter Leipzig," and as I am sole importer of this strain it naturally follows that if you would have the perfection of Roller song you must purchase from me, as no others can get one feather of this strain unless purchased from me. All are safely and warmly packed with food and water to last 48 hours free of charge, and sent on week's trial only, at my risk during whole time either on receipt of cash or Cage Birds deposit system, and money refunded in full if birds fail to realise your every expectation. All birds sent per British Rail carriage paid.

WHAT ARE FOR SALE?

All the following:—

NORWICH CRESTS and CRESTED BREDS, NORWICH PLAINHEADS, including some good evenly marked cocks, and hens, Yellows and Buffs; CINNAMONS, including Yorkshires, Norwich, Borders, also Cinnamon marked in Yorkshires and Norwich; LIZARDS, YORKSHIRES, SCOTCH FANCIES, DUTCH FRILLS, LANCASHIRES, HARTZ MOUNTAIN ROLLERS, Siskin Mules, Greenfinch Mules, Light and Dark Goldfinch Mules, Variegated and Dark Linnet Mules, Muling Goldfinches, Bullfinches, Linnets, Amazon Parrots, Budgerigars, Light and Dark Muling Hens.

WHO HAS SEEN THEM?

Ah, that is a very proper question, for we read a deal about inspection invited to so many "Largest Stocks" (sic). Well, it would puzzle me to tell you all who have seen them, but amongst others the following responsible, well-known gentlemen have (and if my statements are not correct let them be denounced as they deserve). F. Carl, Esq., of "Cage Birds," S. H. Lewer, Esq., J. Robson, Esq. (Judge and Reporting Critic), C. A. House, Esq. (Judge and Reporting Critic), G. E. Weston, Esq. (Judge and Reporting Critic), H. Wright, Esq. of "Bazaar Exchange & Mart." Representative of "Daily Mail," etc., etc.

Also to be seen, THOUSANDS of Testimonials bearing the Official Postmark of 1908. A few samples only are here given:—

Slades, St. Austell, Cornwall, Jan. 20, 1908.—I received both birds safe, and I think they are a marvel of cheapness; also the breeding cage and other articles which arrived safe.—G. Tambling to W. Rudd.

16, Wavendon Avenue, Chiswick, Jan. 27, 1908.—The two Yorkshire hens arrived this morning in good condition and are very fine and satisfactory.—J. T. Cowper to W. Rudd.

Seatown Place, Dundalk, Jan. 25, 1908.—Mule arrived in good form and singing well. I wish he had been here for our local show. Thanking you very much.—C. Turbill to W. Rudd.

Narberth, South Wales, Jan. 24, 1908.—Having now had the bird a week I wish to thank you for the same, and to say I am thoroughly satisfied with it. It is certainly equal to birds I have seen here costing much bigger sums.—H. Wilkin to W. Rudd.

87, Old Castle Road, Llanelly, Jan. 26, 1908.—Bird arrived safe in grand condition; thanks for same; he is a grand songster.—C. H. Burton to W. Rudd.

A perfect treat.

10, Munro Street, Fenhousemuir, Jan. 23, 1908.—Received your Amateurs' Guide all right; I consider it a perfect treat to amateurs.—P. B. Braidwood to W. Rudd.

Typica Cottage, Tymawr Road, Hopkinstoun, Jan. 25, 1908.—I am writing to acknowledge receipt of Yorkshire hen, and I am very pleased with it.—J. Marks to W. Rudd.

9, The Retreat, Thornton Heath, Jan. 27, 1908.—Please forward a bottle of Asthmarine. I had one bottle before which I used on a Canary that had not sung for years; the result was wonderful.—A. George to W. Rudd.

Athlone Grove, Armley, Leeds, Jan. 25, 1908.—The songster and other goods arrived safe, and I may say I am well satisfied. The bird is a splendid songster, quite a marvel in our district. The cage is very pretty, and is much admired.—J. W. South to W. Rudd.

46, King William Street, Greenwich, Jan. 28, 1908.—Received birds safe, for which I thank you very much for sending such fine birds. It is a good thing to know where to send to be treated fair.—J. E. Hughes to W. Rudd.

28, Bedford Place, Old Dover Road, Blackheath, Feb. 1, 1908.—Please send a bottle of Asthmarine; the last bottle caused a bird to sing that had not sung for two years.—W. Peck to W. Rudd.

Aire Street, South Bank, Jan. 22, 1908.—I received your letter and cheque and I wish to tender you my thanks for the most gentlemanly way you have treated me, and I can assure you that I shall do my level best to return your kindness by letting my friends know the straightforward way you conduct your business.—T. Slater to W. Rudd.

Remember, I can be found at Park Lane, as I neither buy nor sell under "bogus" names, how can you find people who do not exist, that is the trick of some of the phantom names—of course letters reach, that is another thing. Authors and Actors use professional names, that is all right, but if I asked you to believe I was someone else, that I think would be all wrong.

By Royal Letters Patent. If you have not seen a sketch of this Breeding Cage write me, I will send all particulars.

NEWBOTTLE.

Contest held at Sun Inn, Newbottle, when 29 birds sang for two valuable prizes given by Mr. R. Wood. The birds' singing was very moderate. There was a good muster of visitors. It was a pity, but the contest had to be postponed owing to the darkness. The finish will be on February 15th, when the following will compete: Messrs. R. Laidler (2), G. Voso (2), and J. Kirtley (1). Judge, Mr. J. Lowery. Timekeeper, Mr. W. Markham. Another contest will be held February 15th.—LINTIE.

THE PECKHAM BIRD CLUB.

The club held its annual supper on January 20th. After the "feast" there was a social, the ball being set rolling by Messrs. C. Crooks, Mitchel, Clark, Boyce, and Barnes. Mr. T. Rowley sang "All That's Glitters is Not Gold"; Mr. T. Mason, "The Old Brown Jug"; Mr. Church, "As the Ship Went Out." The sons of old Jack Briley, of Chaffinch fame, sang songs which caused much laughter. The night finished up with a vote of thanks to all. Linnet handicaps are held weekly.—C. CROOKS, Hon. Sec.

BLACKBURN AND DIS. L.S.A.

Mr. H Rothwell, of the Good Samaritan Inn, Grimshaw Park, Blackburn, has most generously presented the Association (which I may say, is about the largest L.S.A. in England), with a very beautiful silver cup, pedestal and globe, valued at ten guineas. The conditions are: 1st, for members only; 2nd, the member getting in the most time in all the season's club sings, to count once in the cup and hold the same until the following season; 3rd, to be won twice in succession, or three times in all. The Association also gives a valuable solid gold medal to the winner of the cup each season. Our members very greatly appreciate this generous gift. We are going "big guns" this season, as it is proposed to give a great All-England sing, with prizes the value of £10 downwards, of which, more anon Anyone wishing to compete for the cup must become a member on or before the 20th of the present month.—JOHN SHEFFIELD, Hon. Sec.

BEGINNERS: You MUST read the ANNUAL.

CLUB REPORTS.

RUTHERGLEN AND DISTRICT O.A.

A meeting was held on January 21st, Mr. Manson, Vice-President, in the chair. Messrs. Boyd and Bowman audited the treasurer's book, and the year's transactions showed a balance in hand of £2 3s. 2½d. This was considered satisfactory. The following office-bearers were appointed:—Hon. President, Provost Johnstone; President, Mr. Wm. Moffatt, M.A.; Vice-Presidents, Messrs. J. J. Manson and T. A. Boyd; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. Frank Wilson, 9, Jedburgh-avenue; Committee, Messrs. J. Lappin, I. Hutchison, W. McAulay, R. Livingstone, and T. Joel. This was all the business. —FRANK WILSON.

CINNAMON MARKED YORKS. C.C.

A committee meeting was held on Feb. 1, at Gt. Horton, Mr. J. Greaves (President) in the chair. The Secretary reported having received a bronze medal from the Toronto C.B.A., and it was decided to give the medal to the next bird in Cinn.-marked classes at the Crystal Palace show. Two members were reported by the Y.C. for having borrowed and lent birds, and it was decided to suspend Messrs. Hall and Raynor until Dec. 21st, 1908. A suggestion from the Y.C.C. that our presentation of competition prizes should take place on the same evening as theirs, was discussed, and a small committee was appointed to meet the Y.C.C. and make final arrangements. Feb. 29th next, at 6.30 p.m. was suggested as the date and time. Other business was left over until the annual general meeting. —R GARNETT, Hon. Sec.

CHELTENHAM C.B.S.

The annual general meeting was held on January 22nd. The hon. sec. and treasurer presented the balance-sheet, which showed a balance on the right side. Mr. Grant proposed that it be passed, coupling with it a hearty vote of thanks to the hon. sec., Mr. A. S. Treasure, for the way he had carried out his duties; this was seconded by Mr. T. J. King, and carried unanimously. The retirement of the president, Mr. T. J. King, was received with regret, and a vote of thanks was accorded him for his services during the past three years. The society have been fortunate enough in getting Mr. W. W. Theobald, a gentleman who was a prominent exhibitor of Crests and Foreigners to fill the presidential chair for the ensuing year. The following officers were elected: Chairman, Mr. G. Grant; vice-chairman, Mr. J. Hands; hon. auctioneer, Mr. J. H. Boulter; hon. auditors, Messrs. T. J. King and J. H Boulter. The assistant hon. sec. Mr. T. N. King, and the hon. sec. and treasurer were both re-elected.

LEICESTER C.B.S.

The annual general meeting was held at headquarters, Hare and Pheasant Hotel, High-street, on January 22nd. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—Hon. President, Sir John Rolleston; Hon. Vice-Presidents, J. R. Macdonald, M.P., J. Furbee, Esq., J. T. Beggs, Esq., T. J. Thorneloe, Esq.; Hon. Solicitor, J. T. Hincks, Esq.; Hon. Auctioneer, J. H. Tricks, Esq.; Chairman, Mr. W. Stevens; Vice-Chairmen, Messrs. G. Edwards and E. B. Hunt; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. J. A. Tylor; Trustees, Messrs. Jos. Adams and W. Oakey; Committee, Messrs. J. W. Hutchison, T. Ride, T. West, A. Highton, G. Harrison, J. Heighton, J. Wood, and F. Archer; Auditors, Messrs. A. S. Lowe and E. Freer. A most successful balance-sheet was put before the meeting, and this it was seen, did great credit to the retiring secretary. Mr. Heighton, who, through business, was unable to continue in the post. The following were the awards for table show held January 22nd, judge, Mr. G. Lauder:—Open Class 1: 1, Stevens; 2, 3, Tyler; vhc, he, Heighton (J.); c, Moore. Class 2: 1, Claypole; 2, Stevens; 3, J. Heighton; vhc, Tyler; he, c, Moore. Novice Class 3: 1, Seal; 2, Burbridge. Novice Class 4: 1, 2, Dent; 3, Seal; vhc, Lemon; he, Burbridge.

MORRISTON AND DIST. C.B.S.

A most interesting evening was spent by the members at the Woodfield Coffee Tavern on January 25th. Mr. Harding Williams, one of the most noted Yorkshire fanciers in this district, demonstrated the art of washing cage birds. After Mr. Williams got over the process a lively discussion took place, in the course of which it was asked if the demonstrator usually used glycerine and borax in the water for washing birds. His reply was that he occasionally used the former, but never the latter, as the water of this district was so much softer, and any ingredient of that sort was unnecessary. Mr. E. M. Lucas said he always used borax when washing birds, as he found it very beneficial. Mr W. T. Kirby concurred with Mr. Evans, while other well-known exhibitors agreed with Mr. Williams. Messrs. T. Hopkins, W. R. Morgan, D. M. Powell, A. E. Taylor, D. Jeremy, and others took part in the discussion. It was also decided to hold a cold luncheon and a smoker, and I hope some of our local talent will assist us in having a miscellaneous concert on February 29th to celebrate the first annual show, which was a most successful one. I should like all exhibitors to note in their respective diaries this society's show next year, as we have in hand enough to pay their prize money next year. The last show passed without a hitch, and all birds were got safely away; all prize money was paid without cancelling any classes.—D. JEREMY, Sec.

JARROW AND HEBBURN AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

The final meeting for the year 1907 was held at headquarters, Lockhart's Cafe, Ormond-street, on January 17th. The balance-sheet was read by the secretary, Mr. J. T. Carrick. Mr. J. Campbell took the chair, and everything was stated to be very satisfactory for the past year. The late show was classed as a success, considering the number of shows being held on the same date, and also considering the depression of trade on Tyne-side. The following business was carried out: Election of officers, as follows—Chairman, Mr. J. McKenzie; vice-chairman, Mr. J. Summons; secretary, Mr. J. T. Carrick (re-elected), also treasurer, Mr. T. Pickett; auditors, Mr. R. Hutler, and Mr. F. Furlong; the following gentlemen were appointed as committee, Messrs. P. Donnelly, F. Furlong, J. Summons, and J. Campbell. The remaining officers were re-elected. The society then changed its name to Jarrow and Hebburn and Dist. C.B.I. Society, the meeting to be held on the second Wednesday in every month, instead of the first Wednesday. Our show date was fixed for October 22nd and 23rd, and the judges were nominated, but are not decided upon yet. The first feather show is to be held on June 13th. The secretary next gave his report on the late South Shields and Jarrow Combined show, held at Shields, and which was very satisfactory. This being the end of the business, the meeting closed, there being a good attendance.—J. T. CARRICK, Hon. Secretary.

METROPOLITAN ASSOCIATION C.M. AND H.B.

The annual general meeting was held at headquarters, Crown Hotel, Lavender Hill, S.W., on January 23rd. Mr. J. Nicholas, 91, Tyneham-road, Battersea, was nominated for membership. The balance-sheet for the past year, which was submitted, and unanimously adopted, shows cash balance in hand of 7s. 3½d., the assets of the society being £2 16s. 3½. The meeting was heartily congratulated on the successful year's working, with so small a subscription, viz., 2s. The election of officers was next proceeded with, and resulted as follows:—President, J. Tindall, Esq.; Vice-Presidents, Messrs. D. Mabey and C. A. House; Chairman, Mr. F. J. Martin; Treasurer, Mr. G. Saytch; Committee, Messrs. Cooper Bros., F. S. Matthes, W. McGregor, C. Mabey, E. A. Box, T. Wythe, G. Hartley, J. Best and W. Sawyer; Auditors, Messrs. A. E. Wilcox and E. Blum; Secretary (pro. tem.), Mr. A. J. Head, 471, Battersea Park-road, S.W.; Assistant Secretary, Mr. C. Peck. The fixing of dates for the young bird and annual shows was adjourned until next meeting. A vote of thanks to the chairman brought the meeting to a close. —A. J. HEAD, Hon. Sec.

LEWISHAM AND DIST. C.B.S.

A well-attended meeting was held on January 21st at the headquarters, The Roebuck Hotel, High-street. The balance-sheet for the two months in 1907 (the society only having been started in November) was submitted and duly passed, showing a balance in hand of the secretary of £1 16s. 6d., and this, after having purchased materials for staging, etc. Report sheet for members show held January 7th was also passed, showing a balance to the society's advantage of 11s. 4d. As no entrance fee was charged to visitors, the society is to be congratulated on the success of this first venture. Prize money and specials were afterwards presented to the winners by the chairman, Mr. E. S. Lugg, who officiated in the absence of the vice-president, Mr. W. T. Kinnear, who had promised to take the chair. Messrs. W. R. Wall and G. Stevens were duly elected members, after which officers for the present year were elected as follows:—President, Major Coates, who has accepted subject to a membership of fifty; Vice-Presidents, Councillors Clayton, Ball, Messrs. Colley, Kinnear, Biscoe, Sandiford, and the Rev. J. C. Morris; Committee, Messrs. Lugg (chairman), White (vice-chairman), Steed, Jordan, Phillip, Scott, Thomas, Sullivan, Butter, Bellinger, Wraight and Lucas (hon. secretary); Treasurer, Mr. F. W. Sullivan; Auditors, Messrs. Dowling and Botting. An excellent programme for the year was drawn up, full particulars of which will be announced in due course. The meeting closed with votes of thanks to chairman and secretary.—H. THOS. LUCAS, Hon. Sec.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

Annual general meeting, January 15th, at Headquarters. After the election of Mr. A. Head, the following candidates were nominated for membership: Mrs. F. Wyse, Mrs. W. Page, Messrs. A. J. Marley and W. Pile. Our advertisement in C.B. Annual, was ordered to be repeated. The result of ballot for council was Messrs. A. W. Curtis and W. Shepherd 42 votes, H. Davis 41, J. Pooley 39, A. W. Hart 38, W. Pratt and F. Easterling 35, P. G. Cooper and H. Offord 31, J. Burton 25, A. Lazarus and F. Curry 22 (Messrs. J. Rennie and H. Vickery withdrew, not being able to attend). The attendance list was read, and showed Mr. E. C. Offord had attended every meeting. The annual show balance-sheet, with a profit of 17s. 7½d. (10s. since received for tickets, etc.), was confirmed, also the annual balance-sheet, showing assets to the amount of £80 9s. 7d. The dates of the various shows were fixed as follows: Finch show, March 21st; young bird show, July 4th; and annual show, November 20th and 21st. It was decided to join the N.B.B. and M.C. in their annual outing if they proposed having one. An Essay Competition, entitled "Birds I have Kept," was confirmed, with a gold, silver, and bronze medal to the three winners. Mr. A. W. Curtis's amendment to Rule 13, was carried, also that of Mr. Wynn's, together with the new definition of a novice, as adopted by the delegates representing London societies. Miss Rose Shephard, and Mr. E. C. Offord were elected scrutineers for the year. A vote of thanks was given the past officers of the association. Special prizes for the pair show were given by Messrs. Crisp, Hart, Francis, Burn, Marley, and Miss Shephard.—V. WYNN, Hon. Sec.

WIBSEY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

The society held a very successful social evening on January 25th, when the members' show prizes for 1907 were presented to the winners. About 40 fanciers and friends sat down to a meat pie supper at the society's headquarters, "The Horse and Groom Inn," and full justice was done to the fare provided. When supper was over the party adjourned to the concert room, and music was the order of the evening. The secretary's report and balance-sheet were presented during the evening, and great satisfaction was expressed at the society's sound financial position. This is the first time for the last few years that the society has had a balance in hand, owing to heavy losses on open shows. The society has increased in membership from 19 to 39 during the year, and there is every prospect of a further increase during the current year. The members' shows have been an unqualified success during the year, there being 438 birds exhibited by 19 members at six shows, and the coffers of the society have been swelled to the extent of nearly £5 from this source. After songs had been given by Messrs. Rimington, Parker, Wright and Hollis, Mrs Ormondroyd, the hostess, presented the prizes to the winners, and expressed her pleasure at the splendid prizes which she had to distribute. She hoped that the prizes would be more in years to come, and that the society would continue in the present state of prosperity. Messrs. Baldwin and Burrow proposed and seconded a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Ormondroyd in a very appropriate manner, and the music was continued until the clock pointed to eleven all too soon, and the party broke up with the singing of the National Anthem, and with many expressions of pleasure at the very enjoyable evening spent. E. W. JOHNSON, Hon. Sec.

EALING, HANWELL AND DIS. F.S.

A capital meeting was held January 23rd, at Mission Hall, Church-road, Hanwell, Mr. Smales in the chair. In spite of the bad weather, a good number met to hear Mr. Bayliss' address on "Foods and Feeding," and a long discussion followed on the relative values of various foods and systems of feeding. A hearty vote of thanks was unanimously accorded to Mr. Bayliss for his instructive lecture, and the painstaking manner in which he answered the numerous and varied questions. The following fanciers have joined the society:—Mrs. Robinson (hon. member), and Messrs. Mallam, W. Turner, Hutt, Whitbread, Robson, Cook, Dingley Clayton.—W. BIRD, Hon. Sec.

HASTINGS UNITED C.B.S.

The annual meeting was held at Royal Oak Hotel, on January 16th. Mr. J. Stevens presided over a good attendance. The secretary, Mr. A. E. Golden, read the balance-sheet and report for the past year, the society's receipts totalling £54, 19s. 4d., and the expenditure £47 14s. 7d., leaving a balance in the society's favour of £7 4s. 9d. The report is as follows: During the past year we have had several interesting lectures given by our president, Mr. E. E. Clarke, our vice-president, and other friends of the society, but am sorry to say they were but poorly attended. Our first feather show was a decided success, nearly 100 birds being staged. The annual exhibition was held at the Central Hall on November 19th and 20th, and eclipsed all previous shows, the total number of birds shown being 527; Mr. J. H. Payne judged. The contest for the society's challenge cup resulted in a popular win for Messrs. Upton and Button, with a crested Canary. The committee take this opportunity of tendering their thanks to all those ladies and gentlemen who have so generously contributed to them in the past, and also hope to merit their patronage in the future. The officers for 1908 were elected as follows: President, E. E. Clarke, Esq.; vice-presidents, Harvey Du Cros, Esq., M.P., Messrs. J. Booby, J. Cockett, T. G. Coombs, T. T. Fox, T. Parkin, M.A., J.P., F.Z.S., A. Cleaver, E. P. Overton, and J. H. Bellamy; hon. treasurer, H. Godden; hon. auditors, Mr. J. Ashby and W. Ellis; hon. sec., A. E. Golden; assistant hon. sec., H. L. Harris; committee, Messrs. J. Stevens, R. Cragg, A. George, G. Barham, J. Dawson, H. Morris, G. Stubberfield, W. Upton, C. Nagel, W. Button, R. Harris, E. Daun, A. R. Mays, W. Jenner, S. Stevens. It was decided to hold the annual show first week in November, and election of judges and hall to take place on February 20th.

TORBAY O.S. (Paignton).

The annual meeting was held at Newman's room on January 20th, Mr. T. H. Veale presiding. A very satisfactory balance-sheet was accepted. Mr. H. Whitley was again elected president, Mr. W. J. Ham, vice-president; Mr. J. B. Eastley, hon. solicitor; Mr. G. L. B. Sharpe, treasurer; Mr. F. W. Puddicombe, auctioneer; and Mr. W. Drew, auditor. The committee was elected as follows:—Chairman, Mr. J. Webber; vice-chairman, Mr. J. Innes; Messrs. T. H. Veale, E. Parnell, C. Parnell, H. Daw, H. Fletcher, G. Mudge, T. Badcott, G. Heathman, J. Bastard, P. W. Mugford, W. Hodge, and J. Elliott. Mr. T. H. Veale could not see his way clear to continue as chairman as he was unable to give as much assistance this year as last, whereupon Mr. C. Parnell felt that without that help he would find it too difficult to continue as hon. sec. Mr. J. . Jeffery, Sartor House, Winnek-street, Paignton, was elected in the latter's place as secretary, while Mr. J. Jeffery, junr., was elected as assist. hon. sec. Both Messrs. Veale and Parnell accepted a vote of thanks, unanimously given to them, and expressed their willingness to serve on the committee and render all possible help in furthering the interests of the society. Votes of thanks were also given to the President, Vice-President, Hon. Solicitor, Hon. Treasurer, Hon. Auctioneer, Hon. Auditor, and several others. The annual open show was fixed for October 28th, both the Badminton and Public Halls being booked for the occasion. Other fixtures include a members' first feather show on 17th June next, while an important alteration was made in members' subscriptions—seniors reduced from 4s. to 3s., and juniors from 2s. to 1s. yearly.—J. N. JEFFERY, Hon. Sec.

BRADFORD EAST O.S.

The Society held its second annual general meeting on Jan. 14th at the headquarters, Park Chapel Schools, when about 34 members were present. Mr. G. R. Rushworth occupied the chair. The treasurer, Mr. J. Farrar, presented his report and balance sheet for the past year. This showed that the society had nearly doubled its balance of the previous year. The secretary then gave his report, and thanked all the members for their loyal support during the past year. On the occasion of our last annual meeting we had 30 members, and with the seven gentlemen who had been elected to membership, we had just doubled that number. The average attendance at all meetings throughout the year has been 28, a very good record, and I hope the members will show their appreciation of the Society's efforts by giving every support during the present year. The question as to whether we shall run an open show this year was left until the next meeting. The election of officers resulted in Mr. E. Suddards being again re-elected as President with a unanimous vote; Messrs. G. R. Rushworth, W. Cruise, H. Peacock and G. White as vice-presidents, Mr. H. Hill, secretary, with Mr. F. Gelder as assistant-secretary. Mr. J. Farrar was re-elected as treasurer, and Messrs. W. Laycock and A. Wilkinson as auditors. The balance sheet for our first annual tea and concert was also read, and resulted in a substantial profit, this along with the balance from the year's working, putting us in a sound financial condition. Since the meeting I have received from Mr. A Farrar a Gold Medal for the winner of most points in Novice Section this year. H. HILL, Secretary.

Kindly note that I have removed from 5, New Rowley Road, to 11, Firs Street, Dudley, writes Mr. J. J. Mullett, the secretary of the Dudley and Dis. C.B.S.

We have an open radius for membership, and specially invite outside fanciers to join writes Mr. J. Emmett, Secretary of the Warrington and Dis. C.B.S.

I should like to thank you for the grand report of our late open show at Walthamstow, writes Mr. F. H. E. Handscombe (Walthamstow).

The present is my first venture at the Crystal Palace, writes Mr. William Winnard (Carnarvon), and it is all through reading CAGE BIRDS, which I thoroughly enjoy.

Before your next issue appears, writes Mr. W. R. Eames, the hon. sec., all prize money in connection with the late Reigate Fanciers' Association, will have been paid.

Kindly note change of address from 4, Falmouth Avenue, Otley Road, to 112, Fitzroy Road, Barkerend Road, Bradford, writes Mr. F. Rhodes, Sec. City of Bradford O. S.

On and from February 10, writes Mr. A. Watson. Hon. Sec. of the Civil Service Fanciers' Association, my address will be 116, Maurice Avenue, Noel Park, Wood Green, London, N.

I had so many replies to my recent advertisement in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. J. Lewis (Ormskirk), that I could not possibly reply to all. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.

I have been elected Sec. of the Perth and District C.B.F.S., writes Mr. R. G. Challenger, and all correspondence should be sent to me at 13, School-street, Cymmer, Porth, Glamorganshire.

The date of our next show has been fixed for 17th October, writes Mr. J. Ford, Sec. of the Kelty and Blairadam F. S., and popular judges for all varieties have been selected. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.

I am a constant reader and subscriber to CAGE BIRDS, writes Miss A. Burrow (Malvern Wells), and find it a great boon. I wish I had taken it years ago. I have bought some splendid Snow Buntings through its columns.

Kindly thank those who replied to my advt. in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. C. Leventon (Melton Mowbray). They were too numerous to answer individually. Wishing your paper further success.

We hear from Mr. J. W. Cleminson, the secretary, that the Preston O.S. open show will be held on November 6th and 7th, the annual members' show on February 15th and the First Feather Show on July 11th.

We hear from Mr. D. A. Ogilvie, Sec. of the Blaydon on Tyne and Dis. C.B.S. that the annual open show will be held on November 6th and 7th. The judges will be Messrs. J. McLay (Kirkintilloch) and J. Wilcock (Bradford).

Will all members, writes Mr. H. Hill, Sec., Bradford (East) O.S., who intend going to the Crystal Palace on Saturday, February 8th, meet at the Midland Station under the clock, at 7.15 a.m., to catch 7.35 train.

Kindly state that I have so many replies in answer to my advert. in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. J. Logan (Dysart), that I cannot possibly reply to all. CAGE BIRDS is without doubt the paper to advertise in.

There are still a few special prizes to be sent out for our recent annual show, writes Mr. W. Pawley, secretary Plumstead and Woolwich C.B.S., which will be forwarded as soon as possible.

We hear from Mr. E. Nash (Cheshire), that he has purchased the whole of his brother's stock, including the winner which was advertised in the columns of CAGE BIRDS, and for which he received many applications.

Kindly thank, through your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, all who replied to my advt., writes Mr. R. Armstrong (Sunderland), as they are too many to answer myself. Wishing every success to your paper.

I had a good sale of my birds through your valuable paper CAGE BIRDS. The best papers I like on Fridays are CAGE BIRDS and "Poultry World." I wish them every success.—E. R. ROBERTS (Pennygroes).

We hear that Mr. W. P. Barnes of Grantham has been engaged to judge Norwich, Crests, Crestbreds, and Lizards, for the third year in succession at the Wallsend and Mid. Tyne Annual Show on Nov. 13 and 14 next.

Am sorry I could not answer all who replied to my advt. in CAGE BIRDS with reference to Blackbird and Thrush, writes Mr. J. Lay (Lowestoft). They are sold. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.

Mr. Anthony Hay, the Sec. of the Border Counties, Norwich and Cinnamon C. C., sends us a balance-sheet for the past year, which shows a balance in favour of the Club, and is highly satisfactory, and a credit to the Secretary.

I have sold my winning Greenie Bullie Hybrid to a prominent Welsh exhibitor, writes Mr. W. Sharp (Bathgate). I had over 20 replies from all parts for him, which shows the large circulation of your valuable journal, CAGE BIRDS.

We have received a copy of the Wombwell and District C.B.A's. balance-sheet for 1907 from the Sec. Mr. C. Gleadhall. It shows a balance on the right side of £1 14s. 1½d., which is a very creditable showing, and augurs well for the Society.

The balance sheet of the Torbay O.S., a copy of which we have received from the secretary, Mr. E. C. Parnell, shows a balance on the right side of £4 14s. This being a first year's result, the society is to be congratulated on the year's working.

Jarrow and Hebburn and District C.B.F.S. have now fixed their show dates, writes Mr. J. T. Carrick, the secretary. Open show November 27th, and 28th, judge, Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield). Members' First Feather Show, June 13th judge Mr. Maddison (Newcastle).

The balance sheet of the West Bromwich and Dis. C.B.S., a copy of which has been sent us by the sec., Mr. T. Duffield, shows this one-year old society to be in a flourishing condition. A cash balance of £4 0s. 6d. on the right side is very creditable.

We hear from Mr. T. Duffield, the hon. sec. of the West Bromwich and Dis. C.B.S., that on January 28th, the society made a present of a nicely engraved walking stick to both him and the assistant secretary, Mr. Jennings, as marks of the society's esteem.

I may say that never a day passes but what I receive orders from one part of the Kingdom or another in reply to my advt. in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. T. C. Crawball (Newcastle-on-Tyne). It speaks worlds for the circulation of your paper.

I am still receiving enquiries respecting the trio of Yorkshires advertised for sale in CAGE BIRDS a fortnight ago, writes Mr. E. Woodhead (West Hartlepool). Will you please state that same were sold immediately. Those whom I have not replied to, please accept thanks for enquiries.

Kindly thank through your most valuable paper CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. W. H. Platt (Bethnal Green, E.), all fanciers who answered my advt. in CAGE BIRDS re Norwich bens. I have now sold out and could have sold and exchanged twice as many. I therefore could not spare time to answer all.

Kindly thank, through CAGE BIRDS, all applicants for my Rollers in exchange for pair for Muling. I have had over 40 letters, etc., and cannot answer all. They came from all over the country, also Ireland. My birds were sold on the Saturday. Your paper has a splendid circulation.—W. M. CULLOCH (Hampstead).

The balance sheet of the Wimbledon and Dis. C.B.S., to hand from the hon. sec., Mr. W. H. Colman, shows that the past season has been the most successful the society has ever had; interesting and progressive work having been accomplished, while, despite a deficit on the annual show, the assets top the liabilities by £6 15s. 11d.

Through misplacing a word in my advert. in CAGE BIRDS last week, writes Mr. Matthews (Hyde), I seemed to leave some under the impression that I was giving up altogether. Such is not the case. As a matter of fact, owing to illness I had to dispose of my surplus stock. But I am well again now and customers will be welcomed as usual.

I exhibited at the recent Lancaster show, writes Mr. J. Walsh (Blackburn), and I was very pleased with the manner in which the show was carried out. My birds arrived back early the following morning and by the first post on the second morning after the show my prize-money and spls arrived. This is, I think, very good and reflects great credit on the officials.

Not Feather Curling.

Lanarkshire fanciers, like most other "young people," delight in the rejuvenating and healthy exercise of skating. We are told by one of our Scottish correspondents that not even the delights of the show room kept them off the ice, for on the occasion of Douglas Show, when the district was "clad in winter garment," snow lying to a depth of six inches upon the ground, with a keen frost prevailing, and the lochs in the neighbourhood safely coated with ice, the jolly fanciers, instead of viewing the feather, were busy at "the roaring game of curling."

Will you please inform fanciers who have entrusted me with their orders, writes Mr. J. W. Ward, that through the serious illness and death of my mother I have not been able to execute all their orders, as I have had to suspend all business for a short time. All orders, however, will have been executed by the time this appears in print, and I hope fanciers will accept this explanation.

By an unfortunate misunderstanding, the 1907 balance sheet of the Lancashire Canary Association was last week spoken of as that of the Rochdale Good Intent C.B.S. The newly-elected secretary, Mr. W. Adams, resides at 17, Baron Street, Rochdale, and will be pleased to hear from lovers of the "giant" Canary, who would like to support this specialist society. Members are asked to note that subscriptions are now due.

The members of the Blackburn District Linnet Singing Association have cause for self-congratulation. A very beautiful silver cup, value ten guineas, has been presented to the club by Mr. H. Rothwell, of the Good Samaritan Inn, Grimshaw Park. It is to be held for the year by the members counting the most time in all the season's club sings, and to be won twice in succession, or three times in all, before becoming the absolute property of anyone. New members entering during the present month will be eligible to compete.

The Lowestoft and Dis. C.B.S. at their last general meeting, writes Mr. W. Nichols, Sec., passed a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. J. E. Reeves, of Canning Town, for his kindness in helping the committee at the last annual show, in erecting the staging and in doing his best on both days to make it the success it was. We congratulate the Dulwich and Peckham Cage Bird Society in having such a good fancier in their list of members and we are looking forward to seeing him again at our First Feather Show.

I was pleasantly surprised on receiving my copy of CAGE BIRDS last week, writes Mr. C. Fisher (Glossop) to see the photo of my Horticultural Hall winner on the front page. The photo, I must say, does both you and the bird full justice. I regret to inform you, however, that he will not be at the Palace show, as he dropped in the soft moult on his return from Westminster, as also did my Broken Cap Silver and two other of my best team. I have therefore only been able to enter two for the big show. Being an old and regular reader of your valuable paper CAGE BIRDS, which I have always found a great help, I wish it every success.

The recent Dudley Show was the finest ever held in Dudley, writes "One who was there," both for numbers and quality. The judge said the Hybrid Section was one of the best staged this season. The British classes also had got some grand specimens in them, in fact all the classes had keen competition. Everything was in good order, with all birds staged nicely and comfortable, so that visitors could see same well, and they had catalogues with awards printed in them (not slips), ready for sale by 5 o'clock on the first day (in two hours from the time the judge had finished). What told against the officials was the lack of gate money, for want of visitors, but maybe time will mend this, as the show gets better known. It deserves every support.

Yorkshires at the Palace.

In our last week's review of the entries at the Crystal Palace Show, by some unfortunate chance, the figures for the Yorkshire section were omitted. There will be a grand display of the "birds of grace and beauty," some 450 of the breed being due to face the judges, which will be welcome news for the crowd of Yorkshire enthusiasts visiting the 'Glass House." All the champions will be on the benches.

MAKES BIRD BREEDING EASY.

This "BREEDING ROOM REGISTER & BIRD KEEPER'S ACCOUNT BOOK" (copyright) offers in a handy form a means of keeping—

A full record of the season's breeding experiences.
An account of every young bird reared, and how it was disposed of.
A register of one's doings at the shows (the most complete and useful yet devised).
A cash account for the year.
A profit and loss account of the season's proceedings, and a balance sheet showing how much one has invested in the hobby.

A series of Registers will thus furnish a concise record of the career of a fancier as a breeder and an exhibitor from year to year, or over any number of years.

Many useful Emergency and other Hints will also be found in its pages.

NEXT WEEK: SPECIAL

CRYSTAL PALACE SHOW NUMBER.

You must on no account miss the Charming Colored Plate.

AS is our custom, we shall next week issue a Special Crystal Palace Show Number of CAGE BIRDS, and with the kindly co-operation of readers, we look forward to making it at least as successful as any similar Special published in past years. A particularly charming colored plate has been prepared to go with this number, and the Great National Show will be found reported in every detail by the leading experts in the Fancy to-day. In view of the heavy work these gigantic numbers entail upon our printers and the staff of CAGE BIRDS, secretaries of societies, and contributors generally, will oblige by sending their announcements to reach us by Monday's post, February 10, at latest. Advertisers will doubtless not be slow to take advantage of the exceptionally wide circulation the Crystal Palace Number always achieves, and we earnestly impress upon them the necessity of sending in their announcements as early as possible, and in any case not later than first post next Tuesday, February 11. Advertisements may be banded in at our stall at the Crystal Palace Show, where we hope to meet many new friends as well as all the old ones who regularly visit this function. Don't forget to put your name and address in our Visitors' Book.

Starlings Commence Building.

I have under notice, writes Mr. D. Thomas (Portmadoc) a pair of Starlings which have paired and commenced building within a week. They have reared their broods in the same spot now for three years, but I have not noticed them building so early as this before.

Southern Norwich P.C.

Will members who have not yet posted their voting paper do so before annual general meeting, February 10th, at the Crystal Palace Show? All members who have won any special champion and Novice Section cups or cash specials, please attend to receive same at the annual meeting. All correspondence S.N.P.C. business to be addressed after Friday to F. S. Matthes, Great National Cage Bird Show, Crystal Palace.

Long-lived Ringdove.

Two ladies living at Thames Ditton are said to have recently lost a Ringdove which had attained a very old age. It flew into their house on Whit Sunday, 1880, from a house adjoining, in which it was hatched in the previous September. It remained with them and grew very tame and attached to the ladies. Its last moult was not completed as soon as usual, and its feet seemed to give way, so that it was seldom in its cage, but about in the room or nestling on its mistresses. It died on December 20, 1907, being then twenty-eight years and three months old.

OBITUARY.

MR. BASSETT (Devonport).

I am very sorry to have to inform you, writes Mr. W. Gouldson, a member of the Western Counties O.S., of the death of Mr. Bassett, an old and respected fancier of Devonport.

The Canary's Cork Leg.

If a rose by any other name may smell as sweet, says a writer in the "Birmingham Daily Mail," so, I suppose, a Canary with a cork leg may sing as merrily. Anyway, a gentleman at Ashted has a Canary which possesses an artificial cork leg, and it trills as gaily as ever. The bird, it appears, recently broke one of its legs by getting it entangled in a part of its cage, and being a renowned songster its owner went to considerable trouble to provide it with a more or less satisactory substitute for its broken limb. First of all he tried a wooden substitute, but that did not answer expectations, and now he has made a cork leg, which suits admirably.

Another Sex Problem.

This more-or-less truthful story is retailed by Mr. F. G. Aflalo, the well-known naturalist. A man desirous of breeding Canaries purchased a number, and then asked the man in the shop how he should tell the cock bird from the hen, as he wished to pair them off. "Oh," said the shopman, "that's quite easy. All you have to do is to feed them on mealworms. The cock bird eats only male worms, and the hen bird eats only female worms." "Yes, that's all very well," was the amateur's reply, "but how am I to tell which are the male worms and which are the female?" "Ah," said the bird-seller, "you must ask that somewhere where they keep worms. We only know about birds here!"

Defunct or Only Sleeping?

I notice in your columns of the last issue, writes Mr. A. G. Marshall (Morpeth), a note about Ashington Club taking the show date of the "defunct Morpeth Club." Truly the old Morpeth Society has been wound up, but there are still some good fanciers here whose enthusiasm is sure to assert itself in the near future. There is a movement on foot to reform the Morpeth Society, and ere your next issue is in circulation we will have had our inaugural meeting. The details of this meeting we will acquaint you of, and we trust we will be able to put our name before the fanciers of the North as a flourishing and progressive club, having liberal aims of encouragement to all lovers of cage birds. Personally I don't like the word "defunct" being applied to the fanciers of Morpeth and district. I prefer to think we are just turning over a new page. We are hoping to show ourselves alive in the near future. Trusting you will help us through your paper CAGE BIRDS, which proves itself, I think, the connecting link of all the fanciers in the British Isles.

Albino's Peculiar Capture.

A fine Albino cock Blackbird was caught a few days ago by some masons who were working in an outhouse adjoining a country mansion some three or four miles from Chard, writes Mr. S. Hayward. It was a very cold day, and the bird evidently owing to cold and want of food was driven into the outhouse. It was very tame and easily caught on the ground. The bird is a really handsome specimen, and is settling down to cage life quite contentedly. Its head is nearly all white, and the wings and breast mottled with white.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions or advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence to pay postage expenses, &c., otherwise their letters will not receive attention.

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

NOTE.—Readers are requested to carefully study past numbers and current issue before submitting questions. By doing so they may save trouble and unnecessary repetition.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. British Birds, Mules and Hybrids—C. E. Weston. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S., &c. Park and Lake Aviculture—Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. M.B.O.U., &c. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Grecns, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

A Variety of Questions.

New Reader.—1. For a recipe to make egg food that will keep good for some time, you should look through a few back numbers, where several recipes for egg-cake have been given. Or you can make an excellent and very convenient food by reducing to a powder a pound of maizena water biscuit, adding half a pound of preserved yolk of egg, and thoroughly mixing together. Store in glass jars, or wide-mouthed bottles, and it will keep good a long time. When required for use, take a sufficient quantity and slightly damp it with a few drops of water. 2. For the bird that bites its seed to pieces, and wastes it, see in the first place if the seed is sweet, and not musty or soiled by mice. If it is sweet, give the bird a piece of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea in its water for two days, and after that give five drops of tincture of gentian in the water every second day for a week. 3. Give the bird that sneezes and wheezes six drops of sweet spirits of nitre, in addition to the whisky and glycerine in the water for a few days, and see that it is kept fairly warm, and not exposed to any draught. The latter is probably the cause of its condition.

To Fix Nest Boxes.

J. Fletcher, Liscard.—If you mean the ordinary Canary nest-box, you will not want to fix any platform or anything at all to them. The birds will alight on the edge of the box. You will simply hang them on to nails driven in the wall at a convenient height for you to see in the nests without disturbing the birds. As you are going to allow the birds to fly loose, you need not remove the cocks when breeding, but do not have too many of them. Two cocks and six hens would be quite sufficient to start with. Of course, you must not put in the nest-boxes, nor mate the birds for a few weeks yet.

Breeding London Fancies.

"Quite a Novice."—As you have had no experience whatever in breeding Canaries, I cannot disguise from you the fact that you set yourself a most difficult task in attempting to breed London Fancies by crossing a Norwich cock with a London Fancy hen. It is quite possible to breed such a cross, and then by breeding back to the London Fancy to soon get the birds pure again. But such crosses always require much experience and skilful management to make them successful, so that a novice who has never bred birds must not expect too much. Anyway, by crossing the bird you have with a clean-bodied London Fancy hen, and then mating the cleanest-bodied cock back to the hen, and the cock that most nearly approaches the London Fancy standard, with a pure London hen, and then mating the best cock and hen from amongst these young cross-breds together, you would get a fair stock of useful birds for mating up the following season. The Norwich cock you could only use one year, but as you are going to breed on a fairly large scale. If you were quite sure of getting a London Fancy hen which was accustomed to conditions similar to those in your outdoor aviary, you could certainly breed these. But I doubt your doing so, and should advise you to accept unnecessary risks by breeding mules. In the aviary with birds flying loose, you could run two hens with one cock.

Hard to Kill.

"Silliw."—Your Belgian cock, which has had a very bad way since catching a chill in March, and failed to respond to any kind of treatment, whilst kept in a heated living room, and which has now, after being placed in a cold room, recovered both his voice and his spirits, unaided, should certainly be fit to breed with at the proper time. As you say he is quite healthy, and the shortness of breathing seems entirely gone, I would not hesitate to breed with him if he still remained sound and healthy, when the breeding season arrives. The probability is that your heated living-room is either draughty, or subject to great variations, which was the cause of the bird's illness when kept there.

Treatment for Diarrhœa.

E B.—If you are giving green food, discontinue it until the looseness is stopped, and be careful afterwards never to give any with the least suspicion of frost about it, or that is wet and sodden. Give first as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence in the water for one day, and afterwards give a piece of sulphate of iron as large as a good-sized hemp seed every second day for a week. Dissolve the iron in the water, of course.

A Record of Disaster.

Trumpeter.—Judging from your letter, you have already experienced a fair share of failure, and you now go and encourage a promising pair of birds to mate at this early season, in spite of all the warnings you have seen of late in CAGE BIRDS. Although I would not say you are doomed to another failure in this effort, I do say that you are very considerably reducing your chances of success. If the birds are kept in a warm kitchen, where it is not very cold at night, or early mornings, you may possibly succeed, but if the reverse is the case, I would advise you, even now, to take the cock away until a more favourable season. He ought not to have been introduced to the hen yet awhile. By putting the cock in the one half of a double breeding cage, occupied on the other side by a hen which is rather forward, is the surest way to excite the hen into full breeding condition.

Lice on Canary.

T B.—I suppose you mean the grey-coloured lice which live on the bird permanently, and not red mites, which only visit them to feed. If so, the quickest way to get rid of them would be to get someone competent to perform the task, to hand-wash the birds, and add a teaspoonful of spirits of camphor to the second and third basins of water. Whilst the birds are undergoing the process, paint the cage all over, inside and outside, with the spirits of camphor. If you cannot get them washed move them to clean cages for a few days, and give a tepid bath daily, in which a few drops of essence of quassia has been mixed. If they do not bathe, spray them daily, and keep them safe from chills until quite dry. Treat the cages vacated as mentioned above during the birds absence, and re-varnish if necessary.

Roller Not Moulted.

E Allsop.—I assume you are quite sure the bird has not moulted gradually by dropping its feathers very slowly. If not, it will doubtless drop into moult in a few weeks, when the weather begins to get milder. You can do no more than feed it on a good, wholesome diet, and keep its general health good for the present. Say, give as a staple food a mixture of two parts Canary, and one part summer rape, twice a week, a small piece of bread dipped in milk, and twice a week half a teaspoonful of maw seed. Keep warm, free from draughts and give ten drops of chemical food in its water once or twice a week.

Buying Birds to Breed.

Willie.—As you intend starting with two pairs, you should get a yellow and a buff in cocks, and the same in hens, instead of having two yellow cocks and two buff hens. You do not say whether you wish to breed clear or marked birds, but anyway, even if you are going in for clears, you should have at least one buff ticked, or lightly variegated. A rich, deep yellow cock—natural colour, if you please, here—and a ticked or variegated buff hen, for one pair; and a clear, or very slightly ticked buff cock, and a clear yellow hen, for the second pair should suit you well. If you take care to secure birds that are not closely related, even if they belong to the same strain, you could mate the young of these pairs together the following season. You would do well to procure a cock and two hens from one source, and the other cock from a different place, then you would have no difficulty in mating up your stock for the next two or three seasons, without seeking fresh blood if they appeared to fail as well. Mr. Weston would be pleased to advise you re the Goldfinch and Linnet when mated.

Sore Feet.

Novice.—The bird is probably an old one, in which case it will not resume its singing until the weather gets mild. You can relieve his sore feet considerably by bathing for a minute or two in a fairly strong warm solution of boracic acid—say, a teaspoonful of acid dissolved in four tablespoonfuls of hot water. After bathing, dry carefully, and anoint them sparingly with zinc ointment. Keep the cage floor and perches very clean.

Loose in Bowels.

J S.—You should not be giving bread and milk every day. If he refuses to eat seed, give only a very small piece of bread and milk, and gradually reduce the quantity, keeping him well supplied with good, sound, Canary at the same time to try to get him on to a seed diet. For the looseness, give a piece of sulphate of iron the size of a hemp seed in the water one day, next day give twenty drops of whisky and ten of glycerine, next day give pure water. Then repeat over again in the same order, and continue doing so for a fortnight, if necessary.

Canary Eating its Feathers.

G J Kingswood.—The best way to cure a Canary of plucking out its feathers and eating them is to discover the cause, if possible, and remove it. You do not say how the bird is fed, so I cannot tell whether that may have anything to do with it or not. The worrying attacks of insects are often the cause, so first examine the bird, and very carefully seek for these, and exterminate them if found. Give a tepid bath daily, in which a little essence of quassia is mixed. Feed on a plain, wholesome diet—three parts Canary to one part rape, with green food, and a bit of bread and milk twice a week. If you have Pipit Lately, give a mealworm each day for awhile. Give no hemp, linseed, or inga. For a week or so put a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea in its water every second day.

A Question of Peppers.

J Smith.—Almost any seedsman who deals in bird seeds and cage appliances now-a-days, knows what tasteless pepper is, and supplies it in the proper season. Ordinary chemists would not be likely to keep it, unless they combined a bird seed and food department with the ordinary business. You should ask your seed dealer for it, or obtain it of some dealer in our advertisement columns, where you may see dozens offering it for sale during the autumn months. I suppose you know that it is useless starting to give colour food now. It can only act upon the colour of the plumage during the moulting season, so you must wait till about the end of August before you begin giving colour food.

Septic Fever.

K.E.G.—It would be quite impossible to give you any fair idea of the origin and progress of this terrible disease in a reply of this kind. The very best thing you could do is to get Dr. R. H. Clarke's exhaustive handbook about it from this office (post free 7d.), and study its contents. There is absolutely no cure for the disease, and as it is frightfully infectious, you should not attempt to get any fresh stock for some time to come, and in the meantime carry out the most rigid plan of disinfection, as you will find laid out in Dr. Clarke's book. Cages and appliances that are not very valuable, it is much cheaper to burn at once. Disinfect room also, and even then it would be advisable not to start again in the same room if another can be used. You do not say what the book you have is titled. Perhaps Mr. House's Manual would suit you, or one of our handbooks on special breeds. Shall always be pleased to help you with advice.

Seed Samples.

"Fosseite."—Both samples of Canary seed are very good indeed, and cheap at the price you pay for them. There is very little to choose between them, but what advantage there is, is in favour of No. 2. No. 1 contains a good proportion of grains not quite so large as No. 2, but otherwise, both samples are about equal. The two samples of rape are very inferior. Both are mixtures, and appear to contain a large proportion of wild mustard. No. 1 is probably slightly soiled by mice, but is otherwise rather better than No. 2. Neither sample of rape is fit for feeding caged birds.

Norwich Still Coughs.

H.L.—Discontinue your present treatment, and give instead ten drops of glycerine and five each of syrup of squills and ipecacuanha wine in the drinking water every second day until the coughing has ceased.

What Book?

Novice.—Most handbooks, I think, describe the differences between the sexes of Canaries. You will find the question dealt with fully, and also illustrated, as well as it can be done on paper, in "Canary Breeding for Beginners," from this office, which will, as you are a novice, help you in many ways.

A Trio.

Sayn.—Hope I have got signature correct. The answer to your queries: 1, I consider good household bread two days old—or at that age when it will rub into fine crumbs easily, without getting clammy—preferable to biscuit for making egg food. It blends better with the egg, and forms a nice, moist food without the addition of water or any other moisture than that contained in the egg and the bread itself. 2. You do not give enough particulars for me to judge what may be wrong with the Yorkshire hen which mopes about the cage floor, yet eats and drinks well, and bathes, but breathes heavily. Having no more data to go on, I should say she was over-fat. Try giving her a limited diet, plenty of green food, and add as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence to the water every day for a week, and then every alternate day for another week. If not better then, write again, and give more particulars. 3. Yes, it will be quite safe to cover the floor of the large flight you have with sawdust, and stand pots of grit about the floor.

Ruffled Feathers.

Novice.—Very glad to hear the bird has now got rid of the asthma, after being removed to a cold room from the one in which a fire was kept only at intervals. The cold room is doubtless the cause of it not singing so much, and appearing a little ruffled. If it now keeps quite active and healthy, you need not worry over these symptoms, which will pass away as soon as the weather gets mild. Instead of giving the mixed seed, as you are now doing, give half a teaspoonful of hemp seed one day, and the same quantity of rape the next, and continue giving these on alternate days whilst the weather is very cold. Discontinue the maw seed, and add ten drops of chemical food to its water every alternate day for a week.

Not Well Yet.

Phyllis Yaldwyn.—Try giving twenty drops of whisky, ten of glycerine, and five of sweet spirits of nitre in the water every second day for a fortnight, and at the end of each week, give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence in the water for one day. Feed on Canary seed only, and continue to give the bread and milk as advised, but sprinkle it with soft sugar instead of maw seed, which may tempt the bird to eat it. Are you sure the bird is not a hen?

Breeding in Crystal Palace Aviary.

"Malvern Wells."—To reply to your four questions collectively, I do not think you would do very well in trying to breed with three pairs of Canaries partitioned off in the three compartments of a Crystal Palace aviary. I fear they would be too much exposed to outside disturbances to settle down seriously to housekeeping. Still, as you say your drawing-room is large and quiet, there is just the chance that you may succeed, especially if you cover the domes with cloth to ensure a little more privacy for the birds. It may be as well to cover the ends, too. The situation in a south window would only do for the purpose if it is quite free from draughts, and is shaded from the full rays of the sun during the daytime in summer. If not well shaded, a cage in such a position is subjected to very great differences of temperature by day and night. If you do make the attempt, you should not start for another month, at least. Keep the sexes out of sight of each other until nearly time to mate them together.

Keeping Birds Together.

Nutts.—Yes, you can quite safely introduce two cocks to breed with six hens in an aviary of the size you name. By so doing you will stock it to about the highest limit you should go for a start, as, if you have anything like a fair amount of success, this number of stock birds should quite fill your aviary to its utmost capacity before the breeding season is over, and overcrowding is to be strictly avoided.

Canary Panting.

W.M.—The Canary's trouble appears to be of digestive origin, although you should assure yourself it is not exposed to any draught or chills. In addition to its staple diet of Canary seed, give a small piece of bread and milk twice a week, and every second day for a week give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and six drops of lemon juice in its water. At the end of the first week, give ten drops of aromatic sulphuric acid in the water for two consecutive days. After that, give ten drops of chemical food every alternate day for a little longer, and repeat the same dose of acid once a week. Do not give apple until quite well again. I suppose you give it gritty sand in the cage. A cube of hard, common salt stuck in the wire for a few days for it to peck at would help to do it good.

Feeding a Singing Canary.

Beginner.—You are not by any means over-feeding your singing bird, if you give only the food you mention. On the other hand, you might feed a little more liberally, with advantage, except, perhaps, as regards the hemp seed, of which you give quite enough. In addition to the staple diet of Canary seed, give half a teaspoonful of rape seed twice a week; once it may be given dry, and the second time soaked or scalded; once a week give a similar quantity of hemp seed until the weather gets warm, and then stop it, and substitute a small piece of bread and milk instead, once a week also give a teaspoonful of hard-boiled yolk of egg mixed with bread crumbs, and every day when obtainable, and quite free from frost, a small spray of green food, and when this fails substitute a little sweet fruit of some kind. Supply gritty sand in cage regularly.

Breeding for Colour.

B.S.F.—I cannot gather from your letter whether you know the difference that exists between yellow and buff colour in Canaries. If not you should get CAGE BIRDS Annual, and read up the definitions of fanciers' terms. A yellow bird has the yellow colouring carried right to the tips of the web of the feathers, whereas a buff, although it should be just as decidedly yellow on the body of each feather, loses the colour at the extreme tips of the feathers, which are white, and give the bird the appearance of being yellow dusted over with white powder. From this you will be able to tell whether the two cocks you require mates for are yellows or buffs; you will see the powdery appearance on the yellow part of the plumage. As these are heavily variegated, you will require clear hens of the opposite colour to mate with them. Thus, if your birds are variegated buffs, you will require clear yellow hens to mate with them, and vice versa. Sorry, for obvious reasons, we cannot mention any particular dealer or fancier who would supply you with the birds. Any of our large advertisers would know what you require if you described your bird to them. Or you might consult the Breeder's Directory in CAGE BIRDS Annual, to see if there is any known breeder in your neighbourhood.

Norwich Hens.

H. Jones.—As far as I remember this case, the hens were suffering from the effects of over-feeding, and therefore the cure will be very slow. Continue to feed on the same lines as previously advised, with the exception that you might try cutting off all the little extras and give the Canary seed only, with an increased supply of green food every alternate week. Instead of giving the sulphate of soda now, give ten drops of syrup of buckthorn in the water one day, next day give five drops of aromatic sulphuric acid, the third day give pure water, and repeat this over and over again for a fortnight.

Two Mistakes.

B.D.—You have certainly made two serious mistakes with your birds; first, by putting cock and hen together at the end of December; and, secondly, by removing the cock, and giving the hen nesting material when you found she had commenced to lay. The best thing you could have done under the circumstances was to have left the birds together and let them go on nesting. The result might not have been quite what you wished, but that is only what it is now, and there was just a glimmer of hope that by keeping the birds warm and comfortable, the nesting might have gone on successfully. The best you can do now is to keep them apart, and out of sight of each other until the end of March, by which time they may be ready for mating again. The seed mixture you are giving is better suited for occasional use—say, once or twice a week—than as a staple food, and it is doubtless largely the cause of your birds being in such forward condition. It contains far too much linseed, millet, and inga, for regular use. See other other replies the last week or two for regular diet of Canaries. The cock bird will probably begin singing again now he is away from the hen.

Dressing for Inside Cages.

Robin Redbreast.—I would emphatically advise you not to use limewash for doing the inside of your cages. If you look up the Novice's page last week, you will find some pertinent remarks on this subject which will show you reasons for objecting to its use inside cages, and also where it may be very usefully employed. As regards using creosote on the wood, I do not think it would do any harm at all, provided you do not use it very strong, and allow the cage to stand in the open air a few days for some of the odour to pass off. The greatest objection to its use would be its powerful and not altogether agreeable smell, which might make your visits and duties in the room more of a task than a pleasure—a thing that should certainly be avoided as far as possible.

Colour Food Again.

C. Rawson.—As stated in another reply in this issue, you cannot expect to colour a bird's plumage by colour-feeding now. You must wait until the moult is about to commence. A very good, and generally useful "feed" is composed of twelve ounces best tasteless, red pepper, two ounces Natal pepper, and two ounces soft, moist sugar, well mixed together, and stored in glass jars with air-tight covers.

Canaries and Mules.

Perplexed.—To distinguish the sex of Canaries without hearing the cocks sing is a very difficult task for a beginner, and is no less difficult to describe in writing. The cock is more bold and jaunty, his "tweet" has a more defiant ring in it, his appearance generally is more commanding, the under-tail coverts are fuller, and form a more graceful curve with the lower part of the breast, and in clear birds the colour on the throat is generally deeper. All these points, however, are distinctly comparative, and often elusive. Catch the bird and blow aside the feathers of the abdomen, and the vent of the cock is more prominent and painted of a deeper tint than that of the hen, which is flatter and more expansive. 2. Your Mule breeding query should have been written on a separate sheet for our Mule expert. Of course, you could mate a hen Canary with a cock Linnet, and in doing so it is pretty safe to conclude that the great majority of young will be "Sparrows." It is as well to expect only these, and if anything better does turn up, why, then, so much the better; the surprise will be a pleasant one.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Pairing Matters.

Muler.—You will find hen Mules will accept the attention of male birds (whether other Mules, or of some distinct species) in the same manner as do other hen birds. The cock Mules will also mate with hen birds of any suitable kind, providing they will accept their attentions. In both cases, however, the eggs they lay, or the eggs they "sire," all prove unfertile—at least, I have never seen a Mule bred from a Mule, and do not know anyone who has. I did not always trouble to provide with a mate the hen Mules I intended using for foster-mothers. Give them a nest and some building material, and they will, when they feel they must (so to speak), put up a nest and commence to sit. It hurries them up, however, when one permits them the attentions of some high-conditioned, pushful mate bird. I always found hen Mules — most of mine were small to average-sized Goldie-Canaries — devoted mothers and excellent feeders. A lot of latitude is permissible in the changing of the eggs, etc. I have put eggs under a hen Mule which have hatched out after she has been sitting but three or four days, and she has fed and brought up the young quite as if that were the usual thing. They are not particular as regards sitting a day or two over time, either. Young, common German hen Canaries make good foster-mothers, too; likewise Border Fancy hens. You should let your cock Greenfinch and hen Canary strike up an acquaintanceship at once. This does not mean, of course, running them together with the idea of domestic duties beginning right away. The trouble when leaving the hen Canary and cock Finch together through the winter and onwards, is that she invariably goes to nest before the Finch is ready, when the result is clear eggs, and one nest wasted.

Thrush-Blackbird Hybrid.

W.J.W.—Paragraphs regularly appear in the lay press about the pairing of a cock Blackbird to a hen Thrush, invariably from those who do not know how closely some hen Blackbirds (probably young ones, say, a year old) resemble a dusky kind of Thrush. Or it is a melanistic Thrush (that is, one with its plumage more or less black), which gets the credit of being a "Blackbird-Thrush Hybrid." Several of the latter have been sent along to me as "certain" Hybrids; but certain structural peculiarities which distinguish the two species have always been against the contention of the sender of the freaks. I should say that you have got hold of a hen Blackbird which is rather browner and more mottled than usual. If its tail is still in, compare it for length with that of a Thrush and a Blackbird; also note whether it carries and flirts it like a Blackbird. If you then still feel in doubt, and like to send it for me to look at, I will give an opinion, after inspection, with pleasure.

Pairing up a Goldie.

Shelbourne.—It is no use pairing the Goldie and hen Canary up yet, especially seeing that the Finch is not house-moulted. As I am often pointing out, May is the earliest month (especially if we have cold, backward weather during the early spring), in which the Hybrid-breeder can hope to get full clutches. In a state of nature the Goldfinch is a late breeder, May being well turned ere he is far embarked upon domestic duties. Of course, we sometimes hear of Goldfinches kept in captivity (in, say, a heated living-room), and fed on stimulating seeds, fertilising eggs in February, or even January. The beginner is often misled by such reports. He forgets that breeders who perform feats of this kind rush at once into print to let us all know about it, and that the scores, maybe hundreds, who get clear eggs through their rashness in starting early, never say a single word about their failures—to shout in success and suffer in silence is very human. I should say the Norwich hen you describe will make a good mate for your Goldfinch. Let them get to know each other by sight, by all means, but don't put them together and give them a nest-pan just yet. Look out for early, tender dandelion leaves for the Finch.

Thrush and a Goldfinch.

H.J.B.—As regards the Thrush's leg, you really ought not to have let it remain in the state you describe for six months. The marvel is the bird still lives, and I think you will be very fortunate if you cure it. Get an ounce of boric acid from a chemist. Dissolve half a teaspoonful in a little boiling water, then fill up to half a pint so that it is then bearably warm. Steep the leg in this for a few minutes twice a day, afterwards drying gently in a soft cloth. Then anoint it gently but thoroughly with Zam-buk ointment. If you persevere for a few days, you will, I think, find good result. As regards the Goldfinch, it is not so much wrong food as keeping birds under wrong conditions that causes them to commence casting body feathers at the wrong season. I expect you have had the bird in a draught, say in a draughty corner of a window; or have been hanging it out of doors on bright but cold days, afterwards taking it back into a warmed room. If things of this kind are what you have been guilty of, avoid them in future, and all should be well. You might certainly do worse than try one of the "thing cures" for birds advertised in our medicine column.

Food for Buntings.

A Fearman. The only "stock mixture" you require for Buntings is plain Canary seed. Few will eat any quantity of other seeds, though, now and again small oats, wild seed mixture, rape, cracked hemp, coarse oatmeal, maw, and one or two other seeds will be picked over and a few eaten, but not sufficient to warrant their inclusion in a "stock mixture." To make up a little variety in the diet, it is best to give a feed of soaked ants' eggs frequently, and live insect food (mealworms, flies, secured gentles, small beetles and grubs generally) according to season. Fresh (wet) ants' eggs are relished exceedingly. "Ship" ants' eggs (get the best quality only) are well liked if soaked in a little new milk, drained on a cloth, and then given the birds. Many Finches, too, appreciate them when prepared in this way. It is well to mix a sprinkling of a good insectivorous food among the ants' eggs, gradually increasing the quantity, as in this way Buntings (other species, too) can be got to eat it readily; and it is very good for them. Green food these birds are not keen on, but you can always offer them a sprig of whatever you may happen to have in the place.

Concerning Linnets.

Doubtful.—Within quite recent numbers, I have given lengthy directions, both for sexing Linnets, and feeding them. The extent of the white on the flight feathers varies even in the male, but it is a pretty general rule with this sex that it extends right back to the quills, or very near it, whereas in the hen Linnet the edge only of the feather is white. If you get a bird with very little white showing on the outer flight feathers, and quite greyish-looking on the back and shoulders (wing butts) you can put it down as a certain hen, especially so if it has a heavily streaked (pencilled) breast. The cock has a nutty-brown back and shoulders, and is rarely heavily marked (that is, with long, thick dark streaks), on the breast. An excellent seed mixture now would be: Canary and teazle two pints each, summer rape and charlock one pint each, linseed half a pint. A pinch of maw, hemp, wild seed mixture, packet Finch mixture, etc., can be given frequently by way of a change.

"Denuded of Feathers."

Durban.—Really, the case, as stated by you, is extraordinary. I never heard anything like it. Seeing that it cannot be redmite, for you say you are "quite familiar with that evil," I am at a loss to locate the cause. I trust you are quite sure, however, that neither redmite nor bird-lice (a greyish, very active parasite, larger than the redmite) are at work. The latter, as a matter of fact, always result in ragged plumage, and even loss of plumage, when allowed to go unchecked. Assuming your statement to be well-founded, however, I should feed the bird plainly. Knock the linseed and niger out of his stock mixture, and give a little mixed maw, dandelion and thistle as a "tit-bit." Twice a week for a fortnight, dissolve as much sulphate of soda (get two ounces from a chemist) as will lie on a sixpence in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water; leave this on the cage for one day. Keep the bird in a clean, good sized cage, and every morning run him out into a small cage (a "hop" cage) and spray him lightly with lukewarm water turned just cloudy by the addition of a few drops of Sanitas cloudy ammonia. Don't drench him, and don't let any draughts get to him while he is wet—keep him cosy and warm, in fact. A course of this treatment should bring about an improvement in the Goldie's condition. Look out for young, early dandelion leaves for him.

A Mating Matter.

Milk Thistle.—It is highly probable that your two Greenfinches, seeing the friendly terms they are on, would nest in a good-sized cage, providing you put them in a quiet spot, and do not interfere with them over-much. You should install them in their new quarters right away. The deformed claw of the hen will hardly be likely to affect her breeding, though unfortunately you do not tell me what the malformation is like. It will be little use trying to mate her up now with a cock bird of another species, seeing how "chummy" she has got with the male of her own kind. It will be absolutely useless so long as the cock Greenie is anywhere within either her hearing or sight; the hen would probably "set about" the intruder promptly, and give him a very bad time.

Stock Mixture; & Sundry Things.

Try Again.—I will give you a stock mixture, with pleasure. But I suppose you know that this is a very expensive (because very wasteful) method of feeding a collection of Britishers in an aviary? The economical way is to give all the principal seeds (Canary, rape, teazle, sunflower, and hemp, for instance) in separate dishes, and make a mixture, or mixtures, of the others, and give them occasionally, by way of a treat. However, here you are: Canary and teazle three pints each, hemp, summer rape, charlock, and sunflower one pint each, linseed half a pint. Maw, niger, wild-seed mixture and the like can be given now and again, for variety. As the breeding season comes round, the thing to do is to look out for and gather and throw into the birds all the young, tender shoots of dandelion, and flowering and seeding heads, likewise flowering and seeding chickweed, groundsel and shepherd's purse that you can discover in your country walks, or in old, neglected garden-paths, or ground. Railway banks, facing south, are very favourable spots to search. I suppose you are aware that successful breeding results are not often realised among a crowd of mixed British birds—even in such a spacious indoor room as your own.

Doubtful Linnet Mules.

Tom.—It is almost impossible to explain on paper to a beginner how the sex of Linnet Mules may be told. If, however, your two birds have not yet given any sign of song, then you can bet your boots they are two hens. No self-respecting cock Linnet Mule would fail to sing at this time of the year, providing, of course, he enjoyed good health. Briefly put, the hen Linnet Mule is a quieter, more meek looking bird, and a uniform greyish-brown (almost grey) in colour, whereas the cock has all the life and go of the male Linnet, is a nice, warm (nutty) brown in body colour, and shows a flush of (Canary colour (that is, golden-yellow) about the throat face, and underparts. Feed your birds as advised an enquirer on Linnets this week, giving a few corns of hemp frequently. Mules will not breed (that is, produce young birds). See another reply appearing this week.

Wives for a Greenfinch.

Hibernian.—As regards accepting a plurality of wives, the Goldfinch is singularly open-minded (no pun intended), but because this is so in his case, you must not lightly assume it true of other Finches. The Linnet, for instance, if not exactly "faithful unto death," is at least faithful for a season, and will but seldom tolerate being run with a second hen. The disposition of the average Greenfinch is very similar, and he generally lets the second bride have unmistakable proof of his adherence to the principle of monogamy. And as a "flayed-alive" hen is neither use nor ornament, one has to hurry up to remove her. Your position, however, is different to that of the average breeder, who has to keep each couple in a cage (or compartment) to themselves. You have the cock Greenfinch and three hen Canaries together in a large flight cage, and they agree perfectly. If the cage is large enough to leave the four in for breeding purposes, the Greenie may quite likely accept the trio of wives without fuss. Anyway, if trouble arises you can easily deal with it; and the trouble is probably more likely to spring from the hens fighting one with the other. Birds differ so in disposition, and behave so differently even under practically similar conditions, that it is well-nigh impossible to forecast the result of any experiment with them. Sunflower seed is not "bad" for Canaries; it is a very good seed. Greenfinches are not "egg smashers" after the manner of the Goldie.

Mules and Mule-breeding.

Nourishing Pat.—On the cold food, on the bottle. 1. Mules are very quarrelsome and cold, and you will be foolish to try turning seven into a flight cage to moult and colour feed. Put each bird in a separate box-cage. You can't depend on them all dropping into moult at precisely the same time. 2. It is now safe to say that a hen Canary will not mate with a Goldfinch, so long as a cock Canary is being kept in the same room. At the same time, I am not going to dispute that it is better to have no cock Canaries within sight or hearing of one mother Finch. 3. Light Mules of any kind look at their best in a cage with the inside and wires enamelled a dark green (a shade with no blue in it). A dark-topque Siskin Mule I should personally show in a cage which had the wires and inside enamelled a very light blue. I agree with you that most judges won't look at hen light mules; but, then, so many good cock birds generally put in an appearance. A good, big, very lightly marked, yellow hen Mule however, should hold her own. I once myself exhibited a big 4 pointed yellow Goldie-Canary hen, with considerable success; at first glance she looked like a good-coloured buff cock. 4. The tin finger-drawer is useful and ingenious enough, but, to be candid, I should always prefer the white earthenware ones myself.

Brevities.

Linnets and Canaries (Constant Reader).—It will be much better to provide each couple with a separate cage, rather than to attempt to keep two cock Linnets and two hen Canaries in each cage. The latter procedure will bring you disaster, I am sure.

Skylark Not Singing (Elm).—You give no particulars likely to guide me in forming an opinion. The food you mention has a high reputation, though I have never personally used it. Does the bird seem in its usual good health, or does it mope about, looking listless and slack in feathers? Is it continually picking among its feathers and scratching itself? There must be some reason for the absence of song, but, of course, I can't guess at it.

Identity of Bird (Woodman).—You have a young cock Blackbird, undoubtedly. He will come jet-black on the breast at the next moult. I have frequently met cases where birds, taken young, have retained patches of nestling plumage until the second moult. Feed it well, and it will soon commence to sing out loudly.

Festered Claw (Mrs. Relas).—You must wash the foot well in nicely warm water, and then open the festered part on the claw with a needle, or sharp point of the blade of a penknife, gently pressing out all the matter. Afterwards wash out the place with more warm water (a few spots of Condy's Fluid in it, if possible, or other good safe disinfectant), and then anoint it freely with boracic ointment, which any chemist will supply. Repeat, or dress it again, if necessary.

A Red Blotch (G.W.T.).—I really couldn't say whether the "red blotch at the end of breast bone" spells enlargement of the liver or not. So long as your Goldie keeps well and cheerful, my advice to you is not to worry about it, perhaps it is only a birth-mark. Anyway, you do not say that it seems to be inconveniencing him. Stock mixture: teazle seed three pints, hemp two pints, canary one pint, linseed half-a-pint. Give a little maw and niger now and again as a treat.

Inflamed Eyes (W. Goode).—It is really too bad of you to have let the eyes remain inflamed for a month without treatment. Get a bottle of Condy's Fluid, stir a teaspoonful into a breakfast-cupful of water just nicely warm to the touch, and bathe the eyes gently twice daily (morning and evening) with this. Use a piece of surgical lint (from the chemist), or very soft old rag to do this with, and take care not to saturate the bird's plumage.

Canary Seed Samples (Noadvub).—Of the four samples of seed, I do not care for number 2. It is very small, and too many shades of colour, which points to it being a mixture of good and badly-ripened grains. No. 4 is also small, but looks plump and nice, and tastes well. No. 3 looks a very decent seed, clean and well-ripened, but just a trifle thin. No. 1 is a bold, even sample, but as it came along mixed with dirt (to say nothing of other seeds), I did not care to taste it.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S.

Grey Parrot Unwell.

Rector.—To cover immediate need, give half a teaspoonful of castor oil on a piece of sponge cake, or something similar that it will eat, and let me know how you have been dieting the bird, but if it is a case of paralysis, its condition is hopeless. Keep it warm and quiet, and food vessels within easy reach, offer it water three or four times a day that has been well coloured with Parrish's chemical food. Very probably constipation has started the trouble. The bowels should be kept moving freely, but not watery loose. Sorry I cannot help you further unless you can supply further details.

Java Not Renewing Feathers.

"Joey."—For one day make its drinking water just saline with Epsom salts, and for the next few weeks lightly colour its drinking water with Parrish's chemical food. I should advise caging it up separately and keeping it on a room in which a fire is continually burning, in some light and airy, but not draughty position. Diet: Canary, millet and spray millet, with a leaf of tender lettuce about twice a week, keep a piece of clean cuttlefish bone in its cage, and also scatter a few ants' eggs over the sand tray occasionally. These birds are very fond of spray millet, and picking the seeds out of same will supply very healthful exercise. If all goes well with the passing of the cold weather its plumage should be renewed. Hang a cocoanut shell husk in the top of its cage, and give it a little moss or hay, and it will make a snug roosting place with same.

A Moping Grey Parrot.

"Wagner."—Stop the bread sop at once, and diet the bird as under. Seed mixture: Two parts Canary, wheat, oats and dari, with one part each of hemp and sunflower seeds, mix well together, and keep a supply continuously in the cage; so at intervals (dari is nit dry), ripe fruit, nuts (shelled walnuts are best, and also economical, for there is no waste at all being to do), green food (leaf of fresh lettuce). As regards cuttlebone, the supply should be continuous. Do not on any account give tea, coffee or milk sloh or any kind of animal food. Spray or dab (use a camel-hair mop brush), the bird's nostrils two or three times a day with diluted glyco-thymoline, till the discharge ceases. It will do no harm if a bottle of the solution is swallowed. Cleanse the brush or spray, and use fresh solution for each application. Soak one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia into a piece of bread, let it remain in cage for one day and repeat this at intervals of two days to keep the bowels (or better, the watery loose). Also make the bird's drinking water the colour of pale port with Parrish's chemical food. If the trouble does not yield to above treatment, you had better write again, with fullest details, a fortnight hence.

An Indisposed Grey Parrot.

C.W.H.G.—Your bird has probably caught a chill, but indigestion is the main factor of the trouble, undoubtedly largely attributable to the husk diet. You must stop this as soon as possible, but not so as to let the bird really want for food. The proper diet is a seed mixture of Canary, oats, wheat, dari, hemp, sunflower seeds and oats; (two parts each of the three former and one part each of the two latter items. Well mix and always keep a supply in the cage. As the bird is accustomed to Indian corn, it will do no harm to add one part of same to the mixture. Supply in addition at intervals plain biscuit (dry), nuts (shelled walnuts are best), ripe fruit and green food. A clean piece of cuttlefish continually in the cage, and, of course, water regularly to drink. You had better give it one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia in drinking water, and repeat every other day for a week, unless its bowels should become watery loose. Spray or douche nostrils with diluted glyco-thymoline two or three times a day, and report progress in a week's time. But remedies will do no good unless you change its present unwholesome dietary. This you must do or the bird will surely die, though if, as appears probable, it is a strong specimen, it may linger some time. On the diet advised, a grey will thrive and keep in health, providing it is kept clean and is protected from draught.

Description of Amazons.

Enquirer.—Blackmed Amazon (Chrysotis diademata). The general body is green, many of the feathers being edged with dusky; forehead, crimson; lores, purplish-red; crown lilacine; nape and hind neck green, edges of the feathers pale lilacine; eye region, greenish-yellow; chin, vinous red; wings, green; base of secondaries, red, tips of same rich blue; primaries, black, with outer webs green at the base, and tipped with rich blue; tail green, with the bases of the inner webs of outer feathers red, and the tips yellowish-green; bill, dusky, upper mandible lighter than the lower and yellowish at base. Total length 14½ inches; tail, barely five inches. Habitat: Amazon Valley; very rare. Salvin's Amazon (Chrysotis salvini). This is very similar to diademata; in fact, differs only in the following points: Frontal band and lores, crimson; feathers of crown, nape and hind neck green, with lilacine edges; sides of face, greener and darker in hue; the under surface paler and suffused with yellow, slightly smaller than the Blademed, and it has a wider range, viz., Central America, Nicaragua, Panama and the Amazon Valley—very rare. There is another species very similar to both the above, the Lilacine Amazon (Chrysotis lilacina), but can readily be distinguished from either by its distinctly yellowish cheeks, deeper shade of lilac on the nape and hind neck, and the black edges of same; the loral streak also extends above and beyond the eye, where it is yellow and red, this extension is but narrow. Very rare.

Cages for Foreign Birds.

Tom D.—I cannot advise you to keep any foreign birds in your scullery; cold does not kill, but draughts will, and very soon, too, even when the birds are kept in a warm room. To avoid this danger as far as possible, I always advise the use of box-cages, that is, one wired at front only. A plain, neat cage of this type looks really well if stained black or mahogany outside, and distempered inside a pale sage-green. Budgerigars are hardy birds, and will do well in the cage you name, you could put in two pairs and hang up four cocoanut husks (no nesting material is required) up against top of cage, with opening facing the light, and as far apart as possible; put two right against the back of cage, and two well towards the front. White Java Sparrows would breed for you in a box-cage, say, 2½ feet by 12 inches by 18 inches high, with a nest in either corner. The same conditions would suit a pair of Zebrafinches, and the same would apply to either Ribbon Finches or Bengalese, all of which are easy to keep, and are also pretty, interesting, and not costly little birds. Note.—Only one pair must be kept in a cage for breeding purposes, and it is best to screen the nest-box with heather sprays or twiggy branchlets. Foreign birds do not bet with the same regularity as Canaries, often will waste the whole of the warm weather, and then bring off their broods quite late in the autumn.

Nest Box for Cockatiels.

E.F.E.—This is a very simple matter, the bottom of any nest-box must, however, be concave. It will not, however, be necessary to use the three-inch thick board; two inches will be ample, as 1½ or even 1 inch will be ample for the concavity, the main thing to keep in view being a gradual slope from all sides to a given centre. The boxes I use are 12 inches long by 8 in hes wide, and have barrel-like bottoms. Another method is to get a small box and screw half a cocoanut husk in one end of same, and pour cement to fill up level to edge of husk cavity; either answers their purpose admirably, but the first-named is the more easily kept clean. The nest-box is usually in a shocking condition after a brood of Cockatiels have flown; do not allow them to sit again till it has been cleaned out, if eggs are already laid, disturb the hen rapidly, clear out the box, replace the eggs, and in most instances as soon as you are out of the way, she will return to them, and continue incubation. Anyhow, the cleaning must be done; it is better to lose a clutch of eggs, than to have young hatched out on the filth of a former brood.

Keeping of a Pekin Nightingale.

H.B.—This is a Robin-like bird (really an Aecentor), its principal body colouring being olive-green, brighter on the head, throat, breast and eye region, rich yellow; beak, legs and feet, coral-red; the large wing feathers have their outer edges, orange-red. It is a bright, lively and beautiful bird, and ought not to be kept in a small cage, its cage should contain several natural perches so that it can expend some of its energy about same. It is a fine songster, though talent in this respect varies a good deal with different individuals, but a good one closely resembles the Blackcap. Diet: Some good, soft food mixture, several are advertised in our pages, ripe fruit, and a few live insects, pupæ, earwigs, smooth caterpillars, beetles, etc. If you cannot obtain these, three or four mealworms (obtainable from any bird dealer (see advertisers in our columns) daily. Of course, or advertisers in our columns) daily. Of course, gritty sand and water for drinking and bathing must be supplied. It will soon learn to take food from your fingers, and a fly round the room occasionally when it has become tame, will help to keep it healthy.

Foreign and British Together.

G.P.S.—(1) Yes, it is a dangerous mixture, and I cannot advise you to put the smaller Ornamental Foreign birds with them, but there are certainly some which could safely introduce with good prospect of successful result. (2) The only small species of successful result. (2) The only small species of successful result. (2) The only small species soft food, ripe fruit, and a few mealworms or other insects daily. Note: I fear you will have trouble with the Britishers amongst themselves as the breeding season comes on, and I certainly advise you if any of the larger ones become aggressive, then to give them their liberty. Cockatiels I have never found to harm even the smallest Warbills, and you will be charmed both with the Diamond Doves and Quails. Pile up a bunch of heather sprays, etc., in one corner as cover for the last-named.

Teaching Amazon to Talk.

E.W.—Keep the bird where it will hear plenty of conversation, also repeat words to it, and talk to it, both casually and by constant repetition persevere with it, and it is sure to pick up some of them, sooner or later. It should have a weekly bath, choose a warm, genial day for the purpose, and carefully keep it out of draught till dry. If it will not bathe, take the tray out of cage and spray the bird with chilled water. Parrots are very irregular, and the moult is very protracted, three different species of Parrots are moulting with me at the present time. The moult is always a drain on the system, and at this time I always give Parrish's chemical food in the drinking water, and if there is any tendency to constipation, a dose of Diuneford's magnesia or Epsom salts will give relief.

A Sick Parrot.

L. Freeman.—I am glad to note there is an improvement, and you must continue the treatment already advised. Slightly moisten with water a small crust of bread or piece of madeira cake, and dust it with flour of sulphur. Because a Parrot worries it is not right to let it share your meals, when, as often happens, what you are taking is very unwholesome and unproper for it; the difficulty is easily got over by having something of a proper nature to hand, and then letting the bird see you bite a little of it off, or the pretence of doing so, will soon satisfy it, this I know from experience; at any rate, you must keep to the diet prescribed, or the bird will not get well; you must not give it tea or milk, you are only aggravating the trouble and really killing the bird by kindness. Keep a piece of cuttlefish in the cage, and if there is any exsion from the nostrils, spray same with diluted glyco-thymoline, this will do no harm if a little is swallowed. I am of the opinion your bird will gradually mend, but in such a case recovery cannot be rapid.

The Sexing of Budgerigars.

H. W. Durham.—You have been correctly informed, the cere of the hen is brown, that of the male blue; during the winter (the off season), the cere of the hen is bluish, but when in breeding condition it is brown. You may possibly possess a true pair, as the hen, or supposed hen, may be immature, for I gather from yours the supposed cock chatters a lot more than the others, the hens can do their share of this, but they are much quieter than the males. You will be able to tell this quite easily about a month hence by their ceres, if they both remain blue, you may be pretty sure they are cocks, in that case write to some regular advertiser in CAGE BIRDS for two hens in breeding condition, and accept only those which have brown ceres.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

Black Stuff in Canary Seed (A. G. Marshall).—We print your remarks with pleasure. As regards the sample of "black stuff," we are afraid you omitted to enclose it, for we can find no trace of same.

Prize Drawing (W. Hussey).—If you do not mind us making the suggestion, we think it might be well, seeing that the date announced is quite a recent one, if you wrote direct to the promoters. Failing a reply, we shall then be pleased to give the matter publicity in our columns.

Negative (G. Bowler).—We have been so extremely busy, that to turn out every corner has not been possible, but rest assured that after the Palace Show number has appeared, we will proclaim a holiday, and spend it in a merry hunt after your missing negative.

Papers in Book Form (M. Staples Browne).—The papers you refer to are not published in book form, but we can in due course supply you with a bound volume of CAGE BIRDS which contains them.

Admission to Palace Show (W. Pawley).—There is no "second charge" for admission to the bird show. The usual charge for admission to the Crystal Palace covers the bird show as well.

Photograph (R. Bald).—Many thanks for photograph, which we shall hope to publish in the near future.

Seed Crusher (Geo. Stocks).—Several of the large advertisers of fanciers' specialities claim to have adjustable seed, etc., crushing mills, and if you drop them a postcard stating your requirements, you may be able to fill your want.

A Trip (Pompey).—We have made enquiries, but cannot obtain information of any trips on February 8th or 10th. At the head office, however, they told us it would be well to enquire at the local station. Probably, however, you have already done this.

A Book (Ecivon).—We do not know of any up-to-date book dealing with the subject you mention.

Letter of Importance (H. Radley).—Sorry, but we could not possibly publish such a letter as you send, knowing, as we do, absolutely nothing of the circumstances leading up to it. It might involve us in a collision with the law.

Birds Killed by a Cat (H. Sutton).—We are extremely sorry to hear of your loss, but we really cannot see our way to insert your letter. Cats will be cats where birds are concerned, and it behoves all bird-keepers to prevent them getting at their pets. And no doubt you will take steps to ensure this offending puss being quite inoffensive in the future (bury it deep).

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. J. North, 455, Oxford Road, Reading, will examine cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for a reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post-mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to J. North, with fee. Any sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Canary (C.W.B.S.).—Bird in very diseased condition, suggesting hereditary taint, or inefficient diet, or exercise. Liver softened, lungs ulcerated, spleen and kidneys inflamed. The cage occupied by this bird should be thoroughly disinfected.

Canary (J. Howie).—This prize-winning young hen might have continued her victorious career after death, if there were any prizes for the fattest carcase. Her death was caused by enlargement and softening of liver, feverishness and apoplexy.

Cinnamon Hen (E.M.B.).—Softening and enlargement of liver, with ulceration and inflammation, recently extending to lungs. Fruit or salad is suggested.

THE STANDARD LENGTH OF THE YORKSHIRE CANARY.

Some Opinions of Breeders and Exhibitors.

In my opinion the standard of 6¾ inches ought to be adhered to. I think very few of the present winning Yorkshires are over 6¾ inches; those that are over it are only a shade. The majority are under standard length that have been winning at Yorkshire Union shows this season. I think the judges have kept very near the mark. For myself, I should leave the present standard alone; if this is not done, I am afraid it will be worse for the Yorkshire fancy.

Skelmanthorpe. E. RADLEY.

Respecting the standard length of the Yorkshire canary, my opinion is that if a bird over 6¾ in. length is good in all other points, it should win, and I should give this bird the preference, as a good big bird takes more breeding than a little bird. Anyone can breed a good little one, but it takes a man with some skill to breed a good big one.

I have always found in my twenty years experience a greater demand for large birds than little birds, and I could always get double the amount for them as well.

Windmill. P. MASON.

Surely 6¾ inches is long enough for anyone, and there is no doubt the connoisseurs of the home county were beautifully gifted, when they drew the standard to that length, for, when one sees a good bird that length it makes one's heart swell and eyes glitter and inwardly say "Gad, but it's a reight un." Get one over that length, I find that though one likes the bird there is something about it which doesn't create that feeling. Though not feeling competent to join in, I admire those gentlemen who have brought the matter forward, and anxiously peruse our Fancy developer CAGE BIRDS, to see how much further they have got. For I think it is quite time something definite was done, as our standard bids us breed one thing and the judges ask for another, at least that is the experience of Swansea. HARRY CREBER.

I think we should take 6¾ inches as the ideal length of a Yorkie, and our judges should judge somewhere near this standard. But I would leave a little to the judge's discretion. In the North we know little or nothing about the 7¾ in. birds. I have never seen one, and in my judgment our Northern judges stick well to the standard. But the little experience I have had of Southern judges leads me to think some of them have gone a little mad over length, and neglect the other properties, putting some birds in whose qualification is merely length alone.

Heighington. G. W. CUTHBERTSON.

In reference to the length of the Yorkshire Canary. As a prominent breeder and exhibitor of this variety, I venture to give my opinion on the subject. I believe that the rule laid down by the Union should be strictly adhered to. It is a well known fact that the gems among the Yorkshires are the 6¾ inch, and not the 7 inch birds. I do not doubt but that there are a few good 7 inch ones, but they are rare. I think if we had more stock bird classes it would be much better, as the judges could then throw out birds for over length. It is hardly fair to a fancier who tries to keep to the proper standard length to be beaten by a stock bird. Suppose a man is competing for a cup or trophy; he puts his birds down as near standard length as possible, he takes a good run under the majority of judges, gets nicely to the front, and then, just at the last show or two, the big birds come in, and the result is that the man loses his cup. I say it is rather hard lines, and discourages a man. Let us by all means keep to the typical 6¾ inch bird for that grace and beauty, which are characteristic of the true Yorkie. If we get beyond the limit, it will mean ruin to the fancy sooner or later, as all true fanciers will agree.

Lidget Green. JAMES HARTLEY.

Our opinion is the 6¾ in standard is a nice length for a Yorkshire Canary, and ought to be adhered to as nearly as possible without the absurd idea of taking birds out of the cages and trying to measure them. Nobody can measure a bird in the hand as it stands in position on the perch; it is impossible to do it. If you could get a bird to stand in position whilst you placed a rule such as is used by the clog and boot maker for measuring the foot, then it would be possible to get a correct measurement, but in no other way; and I am afraid there would not be one of the disputed birds that would allow the process. One fancier says that they ought to be measured in the same manner as they weigh rabbits and small dogs. It is quite an easy matter to weigh rabbits and dogs, but not so easy to get the proper measurement of a Canary. He mentions a judge who would rather have one under the standard weight. If I am not mistaken, it is more difficult to breed these very small dogs and have everything else combined. Look how many you see running about that are overweight, and of no good. Now, in breeding the Yorkshire Canary, everyone knows there are any quantity of birds on the small side that would have been champions had they been a quarter of an inch longer. If judges went in for this sort of bird, as many would make us believe they ought to do, everyone could be breeding winners, and plenty of them. In our experience we find the good long flight and tail the most difficult to get; this is the bird we want and the bird that ought to do the winning; and I do not hesitate to say there are very few birds you find over the 6¾ in. that have all other properties combined. When you get a 7 in. bird or over, he is built accordingly, is too raking, and often bulky, and has not the sweet carriage of the 6¾ in. bird. A bird of standard length is what I term a fine specimen, and I have not seen any that have been winning around us that I term over standard length. At Great Horton Show, the winners in the stock bird class were larger than those in the ordinary classes. If stock bird classes were provided at all shows I think it would be a means of keeping the other classes within the standard much better than the measuring idea.

D. MALLINSON (Mallinson and Son).

Huddersfield.

In no rule does it state that the Yorkshire shall not exceed 6¾ in. I take it that it is left to the judge's discretion to award a prize either over or under the 6¾ in. if the bird is good in all other properties. True it is that birds have been winning over 7 in.; but where is the fancier that would not like to have them or breed some like them? I don't mean the coarse feathered birds that one generally breeds of that length, but birds that have splendid quality of feather. How is it that when we get Yorkshire judges to come south to adjudicate, birds of over 6¾ in. take premier honours? Is it because they are over length, or is it because they carry such other good qualities it is impossible for these judges to pass them? I should say alter the rule to read, "6¾ or not more than 7in." and compel judges to adhere to the standard of length. What is more, I would provide the right to appeal against the judge's decision by the paying of a small fee, say 2s. 6d., by the objector, which should be refunded if the objection is sustained. That would give the working man (the back-bone of the fancy), an opportunity of appealing, whereas he could not afford to plank down more. There should only one way of measuring. I think myself the fairest way is by holding the bird between the finger and thumb, across the neck and waist, and laying it on a rule, as then you can get one sixteenth. It is no use fixing a standard unless you can compel the judges to adhere to it. Therefore we should as exhibitors, have the right to appeal, for a small fee. That I believe, would keep the judge more to the standard. I have birds of 6¾ inches that have done a lot of winning. But the craze for big birds is such that it is better to keep them in your room. I asked a few exhibitors the cause, and the reply was: They are not large enough. If such is the fact (which speaks for itself), the sooner the limit of length is adopted, the better it will be for all breeders of that variety.

Fulham. F. EASTERLING.

The Secretary of the Yorkshire Union's Emphatic Views.

As regards the question of length of the Yorkshire Canary for exhibition purposes, I unhesitatingly admit myself a supporter of the standard as at present enjoined (I am afraid I cannot say enforced) by the Yorkshire Union and kindred societies. But when I admit so much I wish it to be clearly understood exactly what it is to which I extend my support—not a misapplied interpretation of standard No. 2 of the "Yorkshire Union Standards," but the real thing itself, viz., "That the Yorkshire Canary shall not exceed 6¾ inches in length." This standard is not the inflexible hard and fast rule which many would make it out to be. It certainly fixes a maximum length, but allows a very useful latitude in the other direction. I have been asked several times why I would exclude a 7 inch bird, and, at the same time, admit one measuring 6½ inches. Simply because the one comes within the standard and the other does not. Then, almost invariably, comes the question, "Why not then alter the standard and allow unlimited length?" On the answer to this question hangs the issue of the whole matter so far as my support of the standard is concerned. At the risk of being considered partial, I vote the true Yorkshire bird, the "King of the Fancy," in all matters pertaining to the beautiful perfection of shape, dignity of position, boldness and fearlessness of appearance, unexcelled quality of closely carried and silk-like feather—in fact the altogether lovely. To such a bird (and there are many of them), figuratively speaking, I raise my hat. And more, I am jealous of his reputation, hence my strenuous opposition to anything likely to injure it in any way. Consequently I am opposed to the maximum length in the standard being altered or abolished.

In the first place, if the length was altered, judges would find themselves in precisely the same predicament as now, and if abolished their already-too-numerous perplexities would have received an enormous addition. But say some, what would you do with the bird which exceeds standard length and is perfect in all other respects? I suppose we need not fear a time coming when any judge will seek the disgust of the entire fancy by measuring every bird which in his eye exceeds by one-thousandth of an inch the maximum standard length! The standard, I take it, was not fixed for any such purpose, but more with a view to arriving at some degree of uniformity, and preventing excess. I admit this allows a certain latitude for the particular views and fancies of the various judges, and, in my opinion, this is as it should be, for no sane person would require any man to judge the length of a bird within a hair's breadth, but when birds approaching 7½ inches are exhibited as "true specimens" of the Yorkshire, I think it is time to cry halt, and, in all such cases, without hesitation of any kind, I most unreservedly support that course of action adopted by Mr. House at Plymouth, viz.; passing the birds as being over length. Therefore my answer to the foregoing question, as touching what I prefer to call these very exceptional birds, must be that they be treated much in the same way as the evenly-marked specimens are in these parts to-day—shown in their proper class, or kept at home. Why? And what is their proper class?

Answering the last of these two questions first, I would say at once such a class as that at Great Horton Show on Jan. 24 and 25, viz., "Yorkshire Stock Bird, above 6¾ inches." And now for the first question. Why? To me this is by far the most important item in the whole discussion, and I am prepared to allow anything else I may pen to take a secondary position as against my answer to this question. In passing, I am sorry to have to admit that these Stock Bird Classes are not so numerous as many could wish, and speaking altogether in an unofficial sense, I trust the day is not far distant when the Yorkshire Union will insist upon a certain specified classification at all shows held under its rules, in addition, of course, to any special classes desired by the society holding the show, and I sincerely trust that this compulsory classification may be found to contain a class for the "Yorkshire Stock Bird, over 6¾ inches." Until such time the owner of the perfect-in-every-other-way, 7½ inch bird, must content himself by exhibiting it when and where such class is provided.

And now to the point. There are already sufficient "Stock Bird Classes" from which to draw a deduction. I suppose the most perfect specimens conforming with the required length are, as a rule, put down in these classes, and, perhaps, now and then we come across one of these wonderful 7½ inch exceptions. But let any unbiassed person who is qualified to judge a Yorkshire bird, apart from any question of standard length, take the whole class as it stands and compare with any of those classes in which the stern fight for the championship takes place, and what conclusion will he be forced to? He has before him the best of two kinds—the "standard" birds and the "over-standard" birds. The exceptions in each are ignored, or at any rate, not allowed to rule. Each class is taken as a whole, and not the individual components of either. Such comparison over, I would ask this competent judge, and I would likewise ask all who make this graceful bird their study and delight, if they are prepared for the change of model from the standard of to-day to that of the "Stock Bird Class?" I venture to predict that not many in the county of broad acres would consider the matter worthy of a moment's consideration. Still, unless they are wide awake it may concern them some day, and very vitally too. To my mind it follows as a natural consequence that the outcome of allowing an increase in, or the abolition of, the maximum standard length, can only be the substitution of such birds as at present delight our eyes and bring hope and encouragement to scores of fanciers, by a class of bird, which, however useful and necessary in its proper sphere, cannot by any stretch of imagination be considered as even approaching in beauty those lovely specimens which to-day grace our show benches. Such a policy as this change would call for is condemned by Yorkshiremen almost every day, though in many cases unwittingly and indirectly. Not once or twice, but hundreds of times, I have had it said to me, when being shown some of these 7½ inch stock birds, "You could not have better feather or nicer shape in a bird this size." I quite agree with the truth of this remark as applied to the majority of cases, and for that reason I am against any alteration of the standard which shall tend to this class of bird becoming the recognised type of a Yorkshire.

To-day our favourite is known throughout the Bird World as a bird combining type, quality and style in proportions bordering on, if not actually reaching, perfection, its beautiful feather, lovely carriage, fearless and soldier-like attitude, and, in fact, its general all-round excellence calling forth the admiration and unstinted praise of all who see it. Such is the result of wise foresight on the part of those who laid the foundations some years ago in the form of certain standards to regulate the various points in connection with this variety, and it behoves the fanciers of the present day to see that the advantages so gained are not lightly or thoughtlessly frittered away, and that there shall be no undue interference with or alteration of such of the standards as have carried the Yorkshire bird to the top of the tree and will maintain his position there. Undoubtedly such a standard is the one which reads:

THE YORKSHIRE CANARY SHALL NOT EXCEED 6¾ INCHES IN LENGTH.

GLASGOW AND DIS. DERBY S.F.A.

A meeting was held in Grand National Hall, Sorhals Cross, on January 28th, to consider balance-sheet for 1907 and elect office bearers for 1908. A large and enthusiastic number of members were present. After discussion the balance-sheet was adopted, on the motion of Mr. Andrew Jardine, seconded by Mr. George Fulton. The election of office bearers for 1908 resulted as follows:—President, J. M'Illwaine; vice-president, Mr. William McClure; secretary and treasurer, Mr. David Black, 2, Alexandria-terrace, Govan. The revision of rules was then proceeded with, and after a few alterations they were passed. It was agreed to hold our next Derby Show on September 12th. A hearty vote of thanks to the officials brought a very successful meeting to a close.—D. BLACK, Sec.

HEYWOOD AND DIS. C.B.S.

The first annual meeting was held on January 28th at the Central Dining Rooms, Mr. James Perry, president, in the chair. The auditors' report and balance-sheet were read, and were considered very satisfactory. The election of officers for the next 12 months then took place:—President, R. D. McMurdo; vice-president, J. W. Howarth; treasurer, R. Schofield; auditors, Lewis Mayes and John Ogden; committee, Wm. Riding, James Booth, Lewis Mayes, John Mooney, John Ogden, and James Perry; secretary, A. H. Meadowcroft; assist-secretary, Jesse Riding. In the absence of the president, Mr. McMurdo, Mr. J. W. Howarth, vice-president, took the chair. It was decided to hold a table show of pairs matched for breeding, to be followed by a supper and smoking concert at our next meeting, February 25th.—A. H. MEADOWCROFT, Hon. Sec.

LOWESTOFT AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Monthly meeting, held at the Fox and Hounds, Jan. 27, to elect officers for the coming year. The following gentlemen were voted on the committee: Messrs. Hart, Blackburn, Catchpole, Lay, Fitt, Wigg, Hatch, Smith, Mumford, Kirk, Larke, and Grimmers; Hon. Treasurer and Chairman, Mr. W. Lang; Vice-Chairman, Mr. R. Bagshaw; Hon. Secretary, Mr. W. Nichols. Six new members joined the ranks. It was arranged to hold a show on Feb. 3, in the club-room, for matched pairs of Norwich Plainheads, Crests, and Cinnamons (three champion classes, three novice classes). No member is to make more than two entries in each class. Entrance fee 3d. cage, and prize money on sliding scale. No member will be allowed to compete at this show unless his subscription be paid, and all paid-up members will be sent their club number to fasten on the show cage. Non-paid members can pay their subscription on night of show, and will then receive cage numbers. All fanciers in district heartily invited.—W. NICHOLS, Hon. Sec.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

Meeting at headquarters on January 27th, when 34 members, exclusive of friends, were present. The following members were nominated:—Mrs. Rowntree, Mrs. Pile, J. Warwick, and H. P. Morgan. The following were elected members:—Mrs. F. Wyse, Mrs. W. Page, and Mr. A. J. Marley. A letter without either address or sender's name was read, but was quickly disposed of by a unanimous vote that no anonymous communications whatever be taken notice of. Prize money and special prizes won at the recent pair show were awarded. In consequence of the Palace Show, etc., falling upon the date of the next meeting, it was decided to adjourn it. The chairman then called upon Mr. C. Gardner for his lecture, entitled "The Lessons of 1907 as they apply to the fancy." Before entering upon his subject Mr. Gardner expressed thanks to the members for their splendid generosity in contributing to his "Old Folks Fund." A very hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Gardner at the close, for his intensely interesting lecture, with a hope that he would be spared to again be amongst us another year.—VICTOR WYNN, Hon. Sec.

GRIMSBY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

The annual meeting was held on January 8th, when a fair muster put in an appearance. The usual business was gone through and the balance sheet was read, showing a balance in hand of £7 2s. 10½d. This augured well for the society, seeing it only commenced a year ago. We considered we had not stinted ourselves during the year and it was hoped this financial success would spur our members to greater efforts. The following officers were then elected: Chairman, Mr. Nightingale (quite an appropriate name for such an officer); Vice-chairman, Mr. R. Robinson; Treasurer, Mr. Shaw; Auditors, Messrs. Nightingale and Harding; Committee, Messrs. Clews, Metcalfe, F. Emerson, Clapham, Crowston, Dowie, Harding, Cotterill, Cartwright, Townsend. Mr. H. Emerson was re-appointed as Secretary. The rules were then re-considered. The first alteration is of the utmost importance, "That this society be called 'The Grimsby Ornithological Society,' and that all persons, at the discretion of the Society are eligible as members." We have therefore opened our society to everyone wishing to join. Several other rules were also altered. We enrolled ten new members. We have a new scheme to consider, concerning trophies among our members and have left this over till the next meeting. Next month we are to have a washing exhibition by Mr. A. Townsend, together with some interesting schemes to discuss.—H. EMERSON, Hon.

NATIONAL BRITISH BIRD AND MULE CLUB.

Committee meeting held at headquarters, 25, High Holborn, January 30th, 1908. Present: Mr. Robson (chairman), Messrs. Maxwell, Trower, Dobson, Silver, Goodchild, Dewhurst, Weston, Wyse, Plumbridge and Carr. The committee were notified that their bronze medal was superior in size and value to that offered in exchange by the Toronto Cage Bird Club. It was proposed by Mr. Maxwell, second by Mr. Trower, that a bronze instead of a silver be given in exchange. Letters were read from Messrs. Nichols, Mays, and Browning. Proposed by Mr. Weston, seconded by Mr. Silver, that the birds recently added to the club list be submitted (with an idea of getting the feeling of the members) at the annual general meeting. Proposed by Mr. Dewhurst, seconded by Mr. Trower, that a hearty vote of thanks be sent to Sir William Ingram, Bart., for his generous donation. The committee were notified that the club room would not be available on Thursday evenings for the use of the club. It was proposed by Mr. Trower, seconded by Mr. Dewhurst, that our meetings be held on the third Monday in each month. Proposed by Mr. Weston, seconded by Mr. Dewhurst, that the question of the classification of Albino and rare-feathered birds be discussed at the annual general meeting. Proposed by Mr Wyse, seconded by Mr Dewhurst, that the question of Hardbills being exhibited in plain uniform cages be discussed at annual general meeting. A hearty vote of thanks to the chairman concluded the meeting.—PLUMBRIDGE and CARR, Hon. Secs.

POTTERIES AND DISTRICT C.B.A.

The annual meeting was held on January 18th, when a very satisfactory report of the past year's working was read by the secretary, showing a balance in hand of over £2. The following officers were elected:—President, Mr. J. Edwards; vice presidents, Messrs. R. J. Hall, J. Rathbone, Goodall, Fitchford, and W. Roberts; chairman, Mr. T. Hawley; vice-chairman, Mr. T. Ibbs; secretary, Mr. J. Simcock; treasurer, Mr. Yates; auditors, Messrs. Birks and Roberts. Headquarters, Red Lion Hotel, Stoke-on-Trent. Meetings are first Saturday in the month at 8 p.m., and the subscription is 6s. per annum.—J. SIMCOCK, Sec.

ILFORD F.A.

Annual meeting held at 4, Cranbrook-road, Ilford, on January 28th. There were a good number of members present. It was suggested that the name of the Association should be altered to "The Essex Fur and Feather Society," and there is every likelihood of this new title being adopted. The membership is now open to the whole of Essex, and it is to be hoped this will be the means of bringing in many new members. The Association is fortunate in having a capable committee and officials, and if those interested in the breeding of cage birds throughout the county will support the Association, there is every prospect of its becoming a first-class society.—W. SIMMONDS, Hon. Sec., 27, Queen's Gardens, Ilford, Essex.

LANCASHIRE CANARY ASSOC.

Meeting at Rochdale on January 18th. A good number of members were present, and Mr. Nadin, the President, occupied the chair. The guarantees to Manchester and Littleboro' Societies were confirmed. The standard show cage question, along with the suggestion as to giving medals in place of guaranteeing classes are matters to be discussed more fully at the back end show in 1908. It was also resolved that secretary's report and balance-sheet be accepted, subject to auditing, which had been omitted on account of the amounts of guarantees at the above-mentioned shows coming in late. It was decided to ask Mr. Ackroyd, of Oldham, to again act as scrutineer in the election of officers for the present year. It was further resolved that Mr. Wm. Adams become secretary in place of the present acting secretary, Mr. S. M. Clayton, who is compelled, through pressure of business, to resign his post. A vote of thanks was recorded to the secretary for his past services, and this brought a very pleasant meeting to a close.

WALLSEND AND MID TYNE C.B.A.

The annual general meeting was held at the headquarters, Station Hotel, on the last meeting night of 1907. There was a good turn-out of members, and in the absence of our respected chairman, Mr. Macdonald, Mr. Wm. Ronald, vice-chairman, conducted the business. It is not often "Billy" gets a chance of showing his abilities as a chairman, as "Mac" is one of the ever-presents. The balance-sheet for the year was considered by all present to be very satisfactory, and showed an improvement on those of previous years, there being a nice balance carried forward. The nomination and election of office-bearers for 1908 was then proceeded with. All last year's officials were re-elected, with the exception of a little alteration on the committee. Alderman Matthew Murray (ex-Mayor) was re-elected president; vice-presidents en block from last year; Mr. John M. Macdonald, chairman; Mr. Wm. Ronald, vice-chairman; Mr. John Hyslop, treasurer; Mr. James Johnston, 60, Neptune-road, Wallsend, hon. sec.; Mr. John Cox, 21, East Bourne-avenue, Walker, assistant-secretary; committee, Messrs. Wm. Cockburn, Wm. McGinn, Ed. Langlands, John McQuinlan, Thos. Haikney, Fred. Reeves, Tom Hopkinson, John Evans, Wm. Simpson, John Heddon, Hugh McColl, Wm. Appleby, Nichol Hymers, Wm. Allison; auditors, Messrs. Robert Christer and David Hembrough. No less than fourteen new members were proposed at this meeting, and more to follow, which I think speaks well for the harmony that is in our society. The following is a list of the new members:—Messrs. John Ross, Robt. Ford, Percy Taylor, Jas. Haikney, Joseph Watson, Jas. Laws, F. W. Chapman, George W. Livermore, Robt. Hackworth, Harry Newton, George Greenwell, Thos. Parker, Geo. Lowery, Jas. King, Percy Main. The entrance fee is 1/- and 2/6 subscriptions; meetings on last Thursday of each month at 7.30 p.m. It was decided that the nest feather show be held on the first Saturday in June. The annual show was also fixed for November 13th and 14th. This being all the business, the meeting closed, Mr. Melville moving a vote of thanks to Mr. Ronald, which was suitably replied to.—JAS. JOHNSTON, Hon. Sec.

NORTHERN YORKSHIRE C.C.

The annual general meeting was held in Lockhart's Cocoa Rooms, 65, Grainger-street, Newcastle, on January 29th, Mr. J. R. Slack in the chair. Our president, Mr. G. W. Cuthbertson, and vice-president, Dr. C. Duncan O'Neal, were present. There was a fair attendance of members. The secretary's report was received and adopted. In it he stated that 33 members had been proposed, but only 22 had paid their subscriptions. This is the usual thing with specialist clubs, but it is hoped that those who do join in future will not do so in a half-hearted way, but will try their best to help the club by getting new members, and by providing keen competition for the various specials offered. The challenge cup, which was greatly admired, was won by Mr. Cuthbertson, and presented to him. He suitably replied, and the medals were presented as follows: Special for most points by three nominated birds at four shows, gold centre silver medal, G. W. Cuthbertson. Silver medal for best old bird at the following shows: Newcastle, Mr. Davison; South Shields, Mr. Cuthbertson; Blaydon, Mr. Carr; Gateshead, Mr. Grieve. For best young bird: Newcastle, Mr. Carr; South Shields, Mr. Cuthbertson; Blaydon, Mr. Ellwood; Gateshead, Mr. Grieve. Novice medals: Newcastle, Mr. Davison; South Shields, Mr. Steele; Blaydon, Mr. Crieve; Gateshead, Mr. Fletcher. The following are the officers for the current year:—President, G. W. Cuthbertson, Esq.; vice-presidents, Dr. C. Duncan O'Neal, W. J. Taylor, Esq., F. Pearce, Esq., F. T. Buckingham, Esq.; committee: Chairman, Mr. J. R. Slack; vice-chairman, Mr. J. Grieve, and Messrs. W. Cockburn, J. Davison, D. R. Kent, J. M. Walker, J. Harrison, Dr. O'Neal, W. J. Taylor, G. S. Ellwood, J. Shepherd, J. H. Leach, J. Carr, T. Steele; hon. sec. and treasurer, T. C. Crawhall, 121, St. George's-terrace, Newcastle-on-Tyne. The rules were passed as last year, except rule 5, to which was added "the committee have power to add to their number" and "that at committee meetings three shall form a quorum instead of five." The balance-sheet showed a balance of £1 2s. 6d. in hand. Mr. W. Mather was accepted as a new member. A reference by the president as to guaranteeing novice classes was left to the next meeting. Votes of thanks terminated the meeting, and the healthy and friendly spirit evinced augurs well for the future. Anyone wishing to become members should send names to me for proposal at next meeting.—T. C. CRAWHALL, Hon. Sec.

BORDER COUNTIES' NORWICH AND CINNAMON C.C.

All prizes won in connection with above club for the past season have been sent away to winners. Anyone not receiving same should please communicate with secretary at once. Mr. Grey, Morpeth, has received the Sandiford Cup from Mr. J. Sandiford, and is highly pleased with it, and the club is greatly indebted to Mr. Sandiford for such a handsome cup.—ANTHONY HAY, Secretary

LEYTON AND DISTRICT C.B.A.

The annual general meeting was held on January 6th, at headquarters. The balance-sheet for the year was read, and passed. The following members were duly elected officers for the ensuing year: President, T. H. Harrison, Esq.; Vice-President, T. J. Smith, Esq. and J. T. Clark, Esq.; Patrons, W. Bunce, Esq., W. E. Sharp, Esq., H. Eastwell, Esq.; Chairman, Mr. F. Williamson, Esq.; Vice-Chairman, Mr. C. Carr; Committee, Messrs. A. B. Forse, C. H. Cooper, A. J. Marley, A. Morris, J. A. Bartlett, E. Morris, F. R. E. Haudscombe, J. Roberts; Treasurer, Mr. H. Ovenden; Assist. Secretary, Mr. H. W. Burbidge; Auditors, Messrs. G. B. Leclair and F. G. Smith; Hon. Secretary, B. F. Forse, 31, Thornhill-road, Leyton.— B. F. FORSE.

CROOK ORIGINAL C.B.R. & P.S.

The general meeting was held last week in the club room of the Crown Hotel. Mr. H. Dixon presided over a capital attendance of fanciers. The secretary, Mr. A. Bowes, submitted the balance-sheet for the past year, which showed the society to be in a flourishing condition with a balance in hand of £15 12s. 1½d. The election of officers for the present year resulted as follows:—President, H. P. Douglas, Esq.; chairman of committee, Mr. H. Dixon; vice-chairman, Mr. W. J. Bird; treasurer, Mr. F. E. Rudkin; auditors, Messrs. F. Brown and J. Siddle; secretary, Mr. A. Bowes, 15, Wilson-street, Crook; assistant-secretary, Mr. F. Fox, with a good list of vice-presidents and a strong committee of 20. It was also decided to hold a table show on Saturday, February 22nd. The annual show was fixed for November 21st.—A. BOWES, Sec.

STOKE NEWINGTON F.A.

The annual general meeting was held at headquarters on January 22nd. Mr. W. Morris occupied the chair, and there was a record attendance of members. The report and balance-sheet were adopted. The election of officers and committee resulted as follows: Patrons, Ald. Francis Howse, J.P., T. Hart-Davies, Esq., M.P., Dr. T. Hoskin, J.P.; president, Raymond Green, Esq., J.P., L.C.C.; vice-presidents, R. Barlow, Esq., C. Fish, Esq., P. P. Harrower, Esq., H. A. Cooper-Bagley, Esq., W. H. Key, Esq., C.C., L.C.C., Dr. H. P. Miller and Rev. W. Ross; chairman, Mr. W. Morris; vice-chairman, Mr. E. G. Rhodes; committee, Messrs. H. A. C. Bagley, J. C. Spence, J. H. Fox, R. Ford, W. Lacey, J. Churchman, H. Dane, C. L. Hatchett, S. Hawkins and G. Soames; assist.-sec., G. Niblett; hon. sec. and treasurer, Geo. Dowden, 5, Walford-road, N.—Match pair show will be held on February 18th.—GEO. DOWDEN.

SALE OPEN O.S.

At the annual meeting, held at the Sale Hotel on January 13th, a presentation of a 400-day clock was made to the treasurer and host, Mr. J. Fletcher, as a token of appreciation for his great kindness to us during the past year. The secretary, Mr. G. F. Hardcastle, presented the balance-sheet duly audited, which showed a balance in bank and medals in hand of over £4. This was pronounced very encouraging for the first year. The following officers were re-elected unanimously:—W. J. Buckley, Esq., chairman; J. Fletcher, hon. treasurer; P. Edward Scarlett, hon. auctioneer; Jas. Tilam, assistant-secretary, A. Hanford, and A. T. Plant, jun., hon. auditors; and Geo. F. Hardcastle, hon. secretary. The following were elected on the committee for 1908:—Messrs. John Leigh, F. J. Field, C. H. Smith, W. Smith, Horace Whitney, J. Gray, Sam Hindley, W. Fildes, and J. Hurst. A vote of thanks was unanimously passed to all officers for their services during 1907. The following new members were proposed:—Messrs. John Harrop (Rusholme), W. Boswell (Moston), Jas. Spencer (Beswick), J. E. Davies (Stockport), Sam Cook (Newton Heath), W. Dooley (Moston), H. Jackson (Moston). It was unanimously decided that Mr. J. Raynes, secretary of the N.P.C., judge the table show of Norwich (eight classes), and also to give a lecture on same on January 28th, at 7.45 p.m. Gold-centre medal for most points.—G. F. HARDCASTLE, Hon. Sec.

LONDON AND COUNTIES A.C.B.

Third annual general meeting held January 20th, 1908. A good gathering of members attended at the headquarters, "The Bay Malton," Great Portland-street, W., and a most pleasant and enjoyable meeting was held. The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and signed as correct. Novice definition.—After discussion it was moved and resolved: "That the definition of a novice, as passed by the meeting of delegates, be adopted, subject to the addition of a clause after the words, 'three separate shows, etc.,' 'up to the date of entry.'" The report of the committee for the year 1907 was read and adopted, and the scrutineers having handed in the result of the voting for officers and committee for the ensuing year, the following results were declared:—President, Mr. F. W. Thorpe; hon. sec., Mr. R. J. Pretty; hon. treas., Mr. A. Williams; hon. assist-sec., Mr. A. Ransley; auditors, Messrs. P. Adamthwaite and H. J. Pearce; committee, Messrs. E. Pretty, Armstrong, Morrison, Shakespeare, Davis, F. Sparke, Wright, Hawes, Stacey, Goodall, A. Sparkes, H. E. Tringham, and all officers, ex officio members.

The President (Mr. Thorpe) then rose, and in very pleasant terms thanked the members for the honour they had conferred upon him in again electing him as president. He thanked the committee and officers for the manner in which they had steered the association through a very trying period, and particularly he thanked, on behalf of the members, Mr. R. J. Pretty, who in his capacity as hon. sec., had done much to keep the association well to the fore, and he was sure the members would join him in a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Pretty. (Loud applause.) Turning to the committee and officers for the year, he said he felt that the members had wisely elected a body of men, all of whom were much respected fanciers, who would do their best to maintain the prestige of the association in the coming year, and he congratulated them on their choice. With a committee of good men and true, and such zealous officers as Messrs. R. J. Pretty, Williams, and Ransley, and two very watchful auditors, he felt confident the members would be well served. He spoke at some length as to the support given to the shows last year, and pleaded with the members to give the association their fullest support during the coming year. He was afraid there was too much tendency nowadays to look for the honour of winning, but to gather show, not for the honour of winning, but to gather in as many "specials" as possible. Specials, in his opinion, were a curse alike to societies and their officials, and often tended to destroy the higher ideals of exhibiting in fanciers otherwise devoted to our fascinating hobby, but he confidently looked to the members to rally round and give this year's shows their hearty support, and he was sure the officers on their part would do their utmost to please everyone, if that sublime state was possible.

Mr. Edward Pretty rose to reply on behalf of the committee, and in a few well-chosen words thanked the President for his kind remarks. He said everyone would be delighted that Mr. Thorpe was still to be with them as their president, and, in his opinion, such an office could only be filled to the complete satisfaction of all by a gentleman, and he had no hesitation in saying that Mr. Thorpe was the very embodiment of what a gentleman should be, and he for one was certain that so long as they had a man of the calibre of their genial president at the head of affairs, the association was in a good way to prosper. Mr. R. J. Pretty gave a very spirited reply, and was in full sympathy with the remarks of the president as to "specials" given at shows. He caused much merriment by remarking that he well remembered that when the association was first formed, it was given two years to exist. That lease of life was happily passed, and, what was more, they seemed to be in a good way to prosper. The treasurer then made his report of the financial business for the year. In spite of increased expenditure, they had been able to meet all expenses and still have the gratifying amount of £2 16s. 4d. cash in hand. The President said he wished to thank the treasurer on behalf of the members. It was very reassuring to know that they had come out on the right side. Mr. Adamthwaite then moved: "That in future candidates seeking election should sign a form of application." After a prolonged discussion the motion was received and referred to the committee for report.

The following dates of shows were then decided upon, and judges were nominated, the final selection being left in the hands of the committee. British bird show, February 29th, 1908; young bird show, June 27th, 1908; annual show, November 6th and 7th, 1908; pair show (1909), January 23rd. A vote of thanks to the chair closed the meeting. Nominated judges, Messrs. Dobson, Shakespeare, House, Prior, Silk, Cook, Vale.—ADVT.

SWINDON AND DISTRICT C.B.A.

The first annual general meeting held January 1st in Chorus Room, Mechanics' Institution. There was a good muster of members. The secretary, Mr. J. Edmund, read a letter from the chairman, Mr. H. C. Sendell, regretting that his continued illness prevented his being present, the same reason also compelling him to tender his resignation of his position as chairman. Mr. W. Greenwood was then voted to the chair. The balance-sheet showed that the association now numbered 32 paid-up members, cash in hand being £5 3s. 4d. The officers for 1908 were elected as follows:—Mr. W. Greenwood (chairman), Messrs. H. C. Sendell, R. Sendell, J. Bywater, G. Leavers, T. Poole, J. Hopkins, C. Sprules, M. Bennett, W. Foster, J. Mackay (committee); Mr. F. Burson, Treasurer; Messrs. L. Dodson and E. W. Scaplehorn, auditors; Mr. E. Allsopp, secretary; and Mr. J. Edmund, assistant-secretary. A vote of thanks to the officers terminated the meeting.—E. ALLSOPP, Sec.

PORTOBELLO CAGE BIRD SOCIETY.

Annual general meeting held December 3rd. The report for season 1907 having been read, the meeting was congratulated on the success of the year, the balance in hand amounting to £6 10s. Office-bearers were elected for season 1908. Mr. W. R. Dunn, who has been president since the commencement of the society, still adhering to his statement that he wished to be relieved of the office, Mr. A. Matthew was unanimously elected in his place, Mr. Dunn agreeing to become vice-president. Treasurer, Mr. J. Wilson; joint secretaries, J. Leach and W. Leckie; auditors, T. Millar and J. Bell; committee, Messrs. J. Arthur, J. H. Buchan, J. Newlands, J. Hogg and T. Millar. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the retiring officials. Next show was fixed for Saturday, 7th November, 1908. At the monthly meeting on February 3rd, at 8.30 p.m., Mr. Dunn will give a washing exhibition, and any district fanciers anxious to be present will be made cordially welcome.—J. LEACH and W. LECKIE, Secs.

THE WESTERN COUNTIES C.S.

Annual meeting was held at Boro' Arms, Bank-street, on January 20th. The society now has a balance in hand of £47 3s. 10d., in addition to which, staging capable of exhibiting 1,000 cages has been purchased at a cost of £5 7s. 6d. This, together with nest feather challenge cups, value £6 6s., and challenge cups for open show, value £12, gives the society assets amounting to over £70. On the proposition of the vice-chairman, supported by many of the members, donations for their past services of £4 to the secretary, Mr. T. Pope, and £2 to the assistant-secretary, Mr. W. A. Dyer, were unanimously passed.—The following gentlemen were elected as officers and committee for the coming year:—Chairman, Mr. C. Dart; vice-chairman, Mr. W. G. French; hon. sec., Mr. T. Pope; hon. assist.-sec., Mr. W. A. Dyer; auditors, Messrs. H. A. Clear and W. Spillman; hon. solicitor, J. Shelby, Esq.; hon. auctioneer, H. Bishop, Esq.; committee, Messrs. C. Garland, C. Hoar, J. Ryder, J. Rowe, H. Farmer, W. Staples, L. S. B. Clark, G. Pridham, W. H. Tottle, C. Reed, S. Tucker, F. Snell, C. Jewell. Headquarters, Borough Restaurant, Bank-street, Plymouth. Meetings third Monday in each month. Annual general meeting third Monday in January. Entrance fee, 1/-; annual subscription, 5/-.—Hon. sec. and treas., THOS. POPE, 98, Embankment-road, Plymouth.

DULWICH ORNITHOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

Inaugural meeting at the Herne Hotel, Peckham Rye, S.E., when a very fair number of fanciers and friends attended to give the baby society a hearty send off. We start with 45 members. Mr. G. F. Woolhouse was elected to the chair, and dwelt at length on the policy to be laid down, and mentioned that the society was not to be run in opposition to any other in the immediate neighbourhood, but for the requirements of the local fanciers, and fanciers generally. The subscription was agreed to be 3s. per annum, with 1s. as entrance fee, but for fanciers joining before 31st March entrance fee omitted. The first Wednesday in each month was decided for committee meetings, and the third Wednesday for the monthly meetings. A letter was read from Mr. Bonar Law, M.P. for Dulwich, in which it stated that it gave him every pleasure to become the president of the society. Election of officers:—President, A. Bonar Law, Esq., M.P.; vice-presidents, Messrs. J. Pencock, F. H. Bussey, C. Pierson, J. Hogan, W. Morris, J. Robson, F. J. Green, D. Maley, Councillor G. Scott, and the Mayor of Camberwell; hon. treasurer, Mr. W. Goodwin; trustees, Messrs. G. Garlick and F. Fletcher; committee, Messrs. Woolhouse, Wall, S. T. Kent, Gain, Wilmot, Aldridge, Butt, Pocock, F. J. Waterman, and C. Maley; auditors, Messrs. W. Lovesey and E. Kates; hon. secretaries, Messrs. Rogers and Mazzone, 4, Rye Villas, St. Aidan's-rd., E. Dulwich, S.E.

CORRESPONDENCE.

PROPOSED CAGE BIRD CLUB FOR AYR AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—It has been proposed by a few fanciers here to form a cage-bird club. A meeting will be held in the Temperance Hall, New Bridge-street, on Monday, February 10th, at 7.30 p.m., for the purpose of forming the suggested club. All fanciers are invited, and it is hoped there will be a large attendance. ROBERT MCKAY.

51, Queen Street, Ayr.

THE GUISBOROUGH AND DIS. PRIORY C.B.S.

SIR, — I would be pleased if you would state in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, that a Cage Bird Society has been formed, and named "The Guisborough and District Priory Cage Bird Society." Members enrolled first meeting, twenty-two, including President, Mrs. Chaloner; Vice-President, Miss Chaloner; Chairman, Mr. J. G. Cook; Vice-Chairman, Mr. F. Jones; Treasurer, Mr. A. W. Knaggs; Secretaries, Messrs. Atkinson and Wilson, 80, Westgate, Guisborough, Yorks. A Members' pair class, A.V., and British Bird class will be held at next meeting, March 14th; judge Mr. G. Jobling. All fanciers are cordially invited. Subscriptions, 6d. per month. G. ATKINSON, Hon. Sec.

WITHHOLDING PRIZE MONEY AT ST. ALBAN'S SHOW.

SIR,—I was interested to see a letter in your columns re the withholding of prizes at St. Alban's. I must confess I was at first rather indignant about the same thing, as in the insectivorous class, won by my grey Wagtail, the first prize, according to the catalogue, was withheld, and my bird had a second prize card on his cage, the class numbering nine. However, evidently the St. Alban's bark is worse than its bite, for this morning I received postal orders for full first prize money and a first prize card, which is now affixed to my Wagtail's stock cage. I trust that this means that their finances have turned out satisfactorily, and that your injured correspondent has had equally straightforward treatment.

EGYPTIAN GEESE AT IPSWICH PARK.

SIR,—Knowing you are interested in all kinds of bird life, I venture to write you in reference to some Egyptian Geese which we have in our collection of Water Fowl and numerous other birds in the Public Park, Ipswich. This pair of Egyptian Geese brought off a brood of Goslings on January 10th, 1907, but unfortunately a lone Egyptian Gander found his way to the brood and commenced fighting, with the result that all the young were killed. In a short time the Goose laid eight eggs, and was allowed to sit on them for a fortnight, when they were taken away and placed under a hen. Eight Goslings were hatched. This system was carried out each time the Geese laid during the summer, the result being that Goose laid no less than seven sittings of eggs—63 in all. The last sitting she was allowed to hatch, no hen being available. They came off on December 6th, 1907, with ten goslings, but at the time of writing only one survived, having come through all the sharp weather just experienced. I think this well illustrates Mr. Finn's remarks on Fancy Water Fowl as being hardy and prolific, and also very pugnacious.

NORWICH CANARIES REARED BY WILD LINNETS.

SIR,—It will be interesting to your readers to know that I reared two exhibition Norwich Canaries in a wild Linnet's nest beside the main road recently. The hen Canary would not feed. The young were about 24 hours' old, and on looking in the nest I found them all nearly dead and quite cold. So I wrapped them in some cotton wool and put them in the oven, and after a while I looked at them and found that they were quite lively with their mouths open to be fed. I did not know hardly what to do, but I went up the road to find a nest, and found just what I wanted—a Linnet's nest. I destroyed some of the young Linnets and put my Canaries in, and to my surprise in a day or two they were covered with down as I call it. I left them there till they were 10 days' old, and then put one of them in a Canary's nest, and one in another to finish off. They are two of the healthiest birds I have got, and I value them at £3. If any other fancier has hens that will not feed, my advice is do not give up, but let them have a chance. If I could find enough Linnet's nests protected from vermin, I should never let the Canaries bring up their young, as these never look so healthy when reared inside as when reared in the open. Wishing CAGE BIRDS every success. H. JEFFERY.

RARE FEATHERED BIRDS AT THE SHOWS.

SIR,—It appears to me as an unprejudiced observer that Mr. Hay has some right on his side in objecting to his rare-feathered Greenfinch being wrong classed when entered in a Greenfinch class. I cannot understand how he could expect it to get in the tickets as against normal-feathered birds, but to wrong class it is quite a different matter. After all, a rare feathered Greenfinch is a Greenfinch, and unless the show rules say otherwise can only be entered in the Greenfinch class. I noticed a Pied Linnet at Battersea passed over in the A.O.V. class, and I think it was wrong-classed. If I am wrong, perhaps the secretary will say so. It seems to me that this correspondence emphasises the necessity for some proper arrangement for exhibiting interesting rare-feathered specimens in shows where they have not a definite class for these birds. Surely they might be allowed in the A.O.V. classes. Of course, Mr. Hay's complaint against the committee is all wrong. This is a matter for the judge, and him only, as things now stand.

W. A. ROUNTREE.

SIR,—Before this discussion is closed, may I touch upon one or two points which seem to have been overlooked? In the first place, Gateshead Show was held under the patronage of the National British Bird and Mule Club, consequently the judge had to be one of their members, and it was naturally expected of him that he would be guided by their lists and standards, in similar manner to any other specialist club judge officiating at a show where club specials, &c., are in competition. Secondly, the standards of the N.B.B. and M.C. make no allowance or provision for rare-feathered or albino birds, and, moreover, the question of these specimens was discussed by this Club some years, I understand, ago, when it was decided not to recognise such in competition with normal-feathered birds. In face of these facts it seems difficult to see how the Gateshead Committee can be considered responsible for the "wrong-classing" of the albino and rare-feathered specimens at their show, or how I myself, as judge, could possibly have admitted them into competition. That it is "hard lines" such attractive rarities should be barred from a show is no concern of mine, but I would point out that a Committee might frame a class to read: "A.O.S. British Bird, including albino and rare-feathered specimens," and thus cover them. I am very fond of a good albino, and there were two grand ones at Gateshead, a fine white Blackbird, and a fine white Yellowhammer, which I was extremely sorry to have to pass over, for better it would not be easy to find. I might merely have passed them by without comment (as many judges do). And in endeavouring to help exhibitors—giving them a hint to avoid wasting money in entry fees—I seem only to have landed into "trouble." "He that openeth wide his lips shall have destruction," saith the old proverb—if there be any of me left after this discussion is finished, I must write that on my judging books in future.

G. E. WESTON.

P.S.—I am glad to note that the N.B.B. and M.C. have decided to invite discussion on this question at their annual general meeting this Saturday (8th) at the Crystal Palace Show, and I hope a good number of British bird men will turn up thereat.

SIR.—As an exhibitor of British birds, I take a keen interest in these matters, and, although, perhaps, not having so much experience as the parties concerned, I should like to state my views. First of all, I think Mr. Hay was quite justified in entering his Rare-feathered Greenfinch in the "Greenfinch" Class, as there was no class for Rare-feathered birds. I think it will be admitted that even if it had been a pure white Greenfinch, it is still of that species of British bird, and, I think, should not have been wrong classed. The schedule simply says "Greenfinch," which, I suppose, means that species, and I am of the opinion that it should include all Greenfinches, whether black or white, or any other colour, in the absence of a separate class for such Rare-feathered birds, and provided the schedule does not debar them. However, as the standard colour for Greenfinches is "The Yellow to be bright and plentiful, the green, etc.," I think the judge would be quite right in putting such Rare-feathered birds behind others who have the standard colour. Had the schedule been marked (at the bottom of the British classes) "Rare-feathered birds excluded from the above classes," it would have debarred such birds as Mr. Hay's, and therefore it would have been in its wrong class, and I think this is the only way of solving the matter, unless fanciers who possess such novelties are wise, and keep such treasures at home unless there is a Rare-feathered class provided. But I still contend that, under the heading of the classification, Mr. Hay was quite justified in entering his bird in the "Greenfinch Class," but, other birds in the class having the standard points and colour, it was only right that it should have taken a back seat, but not be wrong-classed. Mr. Taylor said last week that "a specimen the colour of Mr. Hay's cannot be called green, and whilst it is a Greenfinch in one sense, yet it is not in another." Then, if it is not a Greenfinch in the other sense, what is it? I say it is a Greenfinch in all senses, although a bad colour for one. I suppose the schedule means "Greenfinch (species)." Had it been "Grass-green Greenfinches" then Mr. Hay could not have competed, as Mr. Taylor says that is the standard colour. Had Mr. Hay's Greenfinch been simply passed over instead of wrong-classed, I think it would have met the case. Of course, I may say I am not a judge of British birds, and hope I may not seem to be interfering where I have no business, but I only state my views in a friendly way, as the argument touches that part of the Fancy in which I am an ardent fancier.

P. C. FORSTER.

SIR,—It was never my intention to try and convince a man against his will, as Mr. Hay seems to think. He states that his bird was shown in the A.O.V. section in the Members' Classes; but this is a very different class (it was not marked wrong class there) to the class, viz., Greenfinch, where Mr. Weston marked it wrong class. Where the exhibit ought or ought not to compete is not what I wished to discuss with Mr. Hay. This I leave to more learned heads than mine. I simply wished to refute his statement made against our Committee, viz., that they had "grossly exceeded their duty." This, as I pointed out, was without foundation, and Mr. Hay has yet to show that he had any grounds for making any such statement. At that I leave it.

APPEAL FOR A FANCIER IN DISTRESS.

SIR,—Again I ask for a small space in CAGE BIRDS to acknowledge the receipt of £2 11s. from Mr. Easterling, collected by him on behalf of Mr. Benjamin Spiers, who had the misfortune to lose his sight, and has five young children dependent on him. I thank one and all for their kind support. Total to date, £6 19s. 10d.—GEORGE HENRY NEAL,

THE RECENT HUGGLESCOTE SHOW.

SIR,—Would you kindly publish this respecting the late show at Hugglescote. I was an exhibitor and a winner, and have never yet received a card or money. My bird came home in a faint condition the following night after eight o'clock. Trusting this may catch the eye of the Cage Bird Union. C. LEMON.

PROPOSED NEW SOCIETY FOR POPLAR.

SIR,—I was very pleased to read such a suggestion in your very valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS. As another young fancier, I feel that the formation of such a society would be welcomed in the Borough, and would provide what has, to my mind, been a long-felt want. I shall look forward to future issues of CAGE BIRDS to learn what other fanciers have to say to the above proposal.

ANOTHER WOULD-BE MEMBER.

SIR,—Reading CAGE BIRDS of the 1st inst., I was very pleased to see the little note on page 91, "Proposed New Society for Poplar." I would be a member and would get others, if we could only get a start with an experienced fancier. Wishing CAGE BIRDS further success. ANOTHER MEMBER.

THE BIRDS OF INDIA.

SIR,—I saw in CAGE BIRDS a short time ago a few notes about birds in India. I was in India about 12 years myself, and had in my possession a great variety of birds. Rock Parrots, Mango Parrots and small Parraquetes, also Minahs, Rock, Plain and Crested, and I never heard a bad talker among them. But it all depends how they are taught. Rock Parrots and Rock Minahs speak very plain and say a great number of words. For 13 months I was on the Himalayas and I never once saw a black Blackbird—they were all pied or white. Perhaps some of your readers can verify this. I saw a bird resembling a Robin also, but not of the red breast type, the cock being quite black, except under the tail where it was red, the hen bird being all brown. D. H.

ORANGE CATS AND CINNAMON CANARIES.

SIR,—I have been reading a report of the Cat Show at the Horticultural Hall, and that the aim of breeders is now for self-coloured cats without stripes, and that they have succeeded in breeding the stripes out of Blues and Orange coloured cats. I think this is an example of what Canary breeders should try for in Green and Cinnamon Canaries. The Cinnamon colour on wild caught British birds is pure and not with dark streaks—Cinnamon Siskins or Greenfinches are a self colour. Occasionally a "come-by-chance" Cinnamon is produced from a pair of Canaries showing no Cinnamon, and such a bird is a purer coloured Cinnamon than the present time exhibition birds. Variegated Cinnamon Canaries do not show any dark pencilling on the Cinnamon colour. At the last Palace Show I saw a few beautiful Green Canaries with but few dark streaks (or "pencilling") and naturally enough they did not have an award card. I do not think that pure self Greens or Cinnamons could be bred so large as the pencilled birds now shown; but why should a large bird be considered more valuable than a small one?

THE WORCESTER AND DIS. C.B.S.

SIR,—A Bird Fanciers' meeting was held on February 1st at the Black Horse Hotel, Lowesmoor, when a fairly good number of local bird fanciers attended for the purpose of forming a Cage Bird Society. Mr. W. Morgan, late Vice-President of the Potteries and Dist. C.B.S. was voted to take the chair. In a few well-chosen words he explained the object for which they had assembled. First, that the Society should be called the Worcester and District Cage Bird Society, which proposition was carried unanimously. The well-known local fancier, Mr. A. E. Bishop, was asked to act as Hon. Sec. for the first twelve months, which he kindly offered to do. After careful consideration, the subscription was fixed at 1s. entrance fee, and 4s. per annum, payable within the first six months. It was arranged to form, at the next meeting on February 13th, a Committee, rules, &c., when all bird fanciers will be cordially invited to help the working of a good society. A few exhibits will be staged for inspection. It is hoped a good number of new members will attend to make the meeting a great success. Mr. J. Summerhill has offered us five 5s. special prizes to be competed for at our first open show as a little encouragement. This being all the most important business a hearty vote of thanks to the Chairman brought to a close our first successful meeting.

A. E. BISHOP, Hon. Secretary.

USE OUR PICTURE POSTCARDS

A NEW SOCIETY FORMED IN DURHAM.

SIR,—I beg to announce that the inaugural meeting of a new Fanciers' Society was held on February 1st at Murton, S.O., county of Durham. There was a good attendance of local fanciers of the following varieties: Cage Birds, Poultry, Pigeons, and Rabbits. It was decided to name the Society "The Murton Fur and Feather Society," with a radius of three miles, the Miners' Hall to be the Headquarters. Mr. J. Vardy, 67, Alfred-street, Murton, S.O., was appointed Secretary, who appeals to the Secretaries of similar societies for a copy of their rules, in order that they may procure the best method of conducting their new Society to a successful issue. J. VARDY.

THE LONGTON AND DISTRICT CAGE BIRD SOCIETY.

SIR,—There was a very good attendance of fanciers at the Castle Inn, on February 3. We met with the object of forming a society for Cage Birds. It was resolved to call it The Longton and District Cage Bird Society. After some discussion is was agreed to make it open to all with an annual subscription of 6s. per year, or 6d. per month, all payments to be made before the Annual Show. Mr. E. Tams was voted to the chair and our host, Mr. Edwards, was elected Treasurer, and myself Hon. Sec. The next meeting will be held at the Castle Inn, High Street, on February 18, at 8.30 p.m., when rules, etc., will be drawn up. All fanciers are invited to attend.—T. J. SIERS, Hon. Sec.

A FEW WORDS TO ADVERTISERS.

SIR,—I should like to draw the attention of your advertisers to the inconvenience caused to rural customers by delay in despatching birds. Take my case as an example: I am three miles from the railway station, and when I send an order for birds I invariably ask that they shall be sent on a certain day, and if that is impossible to let me know in time to avoid a useless journey of six miles. Some advertisers are very considerate; others not so. Early in December I sent a P.O. to a large advertising firm in the Midlands for a bird which has not yet arrived, neither can I get any reply to my letters. This caused me several journeys to the station. Another instance: Birds sent a day later than requested. Result: Three journeys to station. One more: Birds sent a day in advance. Result: Birds were at the station 24 hours without food or water, and in a dying condition when fetched. Those people who have had similar fruitless journeys will readily understand my feelings, for there are not many of us who have the leisure to be running to the station day after day to see if our purchases have arrived. Surely postcards are cheap enough.

THE RARE REDPOLL-BULLFINCH HYBRID.

SIR,—I was nearly asking you, Mr. Editor, to alter the title of this controversy before publishing this letter. After reading Mr. Ward's contribution last week, I am beginning to think that the Redpoll-Bullie Hybrid is quite a common bird. Mr. Ward himself enumerates four of them, and two others I know of myself; and goodness knows how many more there are in the background waiting to be sprung upon us. Why, bless my soul, they are nearly as common as seven-inch Yorkshires! Even "Excelsior" will have to fight his battles on level terms soon; he won't have "rarity" to recommend him. Mr. Ward gives us a list of wins by the Redpoll-Bullie. They are chiefly 2nds, 3rds, and 4ths. Now, Mr. Ward's first wail was, why didn't the judges put him at the top? And my argument is that he isn't fit to go to the top in good company; he hasn't been there this season, either, under a good hybrid judge. Therefore, I begin to feel justified in my contention. I don't in the least want Mr. Ward to think I am running his bird down; on the contrary, I have a very high opinion of him. But, why doesn't he give the bird a chance? Why not let the bird develop instead of running up and down the country? Can a young Crest beat an old one? Can a young Norwich beat an old one? No; because they are short of substance and finish. In a British bird, or Hybrid, they are short of colour in addition. It's like putting a little lad in a ring to fight his father. Mr. Ward asks me a question, "Why did the Canary-Bullie, when very rare, even in his nest feather invariably lead the way?" I don't see how a bird could be exhibited during the show season in his nest feathers. But perhaps I don't catch Mr. Ward's meaning properly. Will he make it more clear, then I will give him my opinion?—T. JOHNSON.

SIR,—I beg to inform Mr. Jackson that my Greenie-Bullie Hybrid had the honour of beating Mr. Williams' Goldie-Bullie Hybrid, at the City of Glasgow Show, October 20th, 1905. The famous Goldie-Bullie was second on that occasion. W. SHARP.

THE STANDARD LENGTH OF THE YORKSHIRE CANARY.

SIR, I have no intention of indulging in a personal discussion on this matter. My object in writing my article was to remove certain misconceptions and errors which had arisen as to my judging at Plymouth, to vindicate my action, and to draw attention to the fact that in pushing the big birds to the front those so doing are acting in direct opposition to the standards of the Yorkshire Union, which standards have been adopted by each of the different Yorkshire Canary Clubs. Messrs. Bailey, Parrott, Dean, Walsh, and Melhuish all point out what is true that the standard says that the Yorkshire shall not exceed 6¾ inches. Messrs. Broome and Rennie should know that the standards do say, 'That the Yorkshire Canary shall not exceed 6¾ inches," but apparently they do not, and challenge me for proof. Mr. Broome even goes so far as to speak of me as one who "insinuates to bolster up his case." I have no need to "insinuate," and my case does not require to be "bolstered up." I spoke plainly without covert meaning, and my authority is to be found in the standards of the Yorkshire Union. Clause 2 reads, "That the Yorkshire Canary shall not exceed 6¾ inches." Clause 3 deals with the classification, and Clause 4 gives the scale of points. Had either Messrs. Broome or Rennie carefully read the standards which they as Secretaries of the S.Y.C.C. are supposed to uphold, they would never have written as they have done. These standards do forbid the exhibition of birds over 6¾ inches. During the time Mr. H. W. Naylor was Secretary of the Yorkshire Union he used every season to write to the judges engaged by the Union, calling their attention to the standards, and, every now and then, he used to send them a fresh copy of the standards. This has not been done of late years, and that may perhaps account for the fact that some judges have overlooked Clause 2. Mr. Broome thinks I have a lot to learn about Yorkshire Canaries, and it is possible I have. I am continually learning, and am always willing so to do. Yet, I must know a little about the breed, or else the Yorkshire Union would not have done me the honour of inviting me to judge one of its shows for seventeen years in succession. I am perfectly aware that my ideas of what constitutes an exhibition Yorkshire do not find favour with many Southern breeders, but my many friends in Yorkshire evidently think differently, or they would not, year by year, go to the expense of having me down amongst them. I quite agree with Messrs. Broome and Rennie that other judges do put birds to the front that exceed 6¾ inches, but that is no reason why I should follow their example. The standards of the Yorkshire Union are my guide, and not the actions of other judges. Messrs. B. and R. both introduce other names and birds into their letters, but I think it is wise not to deal with such. To do so might lead to personalities, and these I wish to avoid. My desire is to see the Yorkshire Canary judged to the standards of the Yorkshire Union. Mr. Broome asks if it is essential to judge to exact length 6¾ inches. No; it isn't. Birds may be less, but not more, as the standards say distinctly they "shall not exceed 6¾ inches." I never measure a bird when judging unless it strikes me as being abnormally long, and the two exhibits "passed" at Plymouth did so strike me, and subsequent measurement confirmed the fact that my eyes had not deceived me. In a matter of this character I know no man, I fight for principles, and principles only. The standards were compiled after much anxious thought, and with great care, by men who did know something about Yorkshire Canaries, as some of them had bred them for considerably over a quarter of a century. The 6¾ inches limit was imposed to prevent the large coarse birds winning, and for that reason should all who love the Yorkshire, and desire to see it kept as a bird of style and quality, keep as close to the standards as they possibly can. I should like some of the older breeders to give their opinions on this subject, such men as Messrs. John and Matt Broadley, W. Horsman, R. Suteliffe, J. Greaves, C. Murgatroyd, Ted Denton (the old-fashioned Windhill novice), Jos. Wilman, W. Millburn, John Dawson, Jim Overend, Jim Clark, Enoch Smith, John Haigh, Joe Exley, J. S. Clarkson, Luther Varley, J. Lodge, J. Thornton, and last, but not least, he who at Horton is known as "Jack o' Nancy." Few of these will be known to Southern fanciers, but they are well-known in the Bradford, Halifax, Huddersfield and Shipley districts. They are all Yorkshiremen, and have almost from their birth been in a "birdy" atmosphere. I have purposely refrained from mentioning any gentlemen who are All England judges. Judging from their letters, Messrs. Broome and Rennie seem to think that in the future the big birds will wax stronger and stronger, and that birds of standard length will not stand much chance upon the show bench. I cannot agree with them, because if it is so then it will mean that the judges who accept appointments at shows under the rules and standards of the Yorkshire Union will be false to their trust, and this I do not believe they will be. Big birds may occasionally win, but the breeders of Yorkshire, I am convinced, will never allow the judges to get very far away from the standards. If those gentlemen in the south who are so fond of the big birds want to test them properly, why don't they send them up north? They would then find if the Yorkshire judges really appreciate birds of standard length, or those which are over. One thing is certain, it is a well-known fact amongst Yorkshire fanciers that if they are selling a show bird to a southern fancier, it is useless sending a bird which would, and could, win in Yorkshire. The southern fanciers want a lot for their money, ignoring the fact that the standards of the Yorkshire Union do say "that the Yorkshire Canary shall not exceed 6¾ inches."

C. A. HOUSE.

SIR,—I shall be glad if Mr. House will inform me on which page in Y.C.C. or S.Y.C.C. Rule Book he read that the Yorkshire "shall not exceed 6¾ inches." I have carefully read both books and fail to find such a statement. Surely, he has misread the rules, or he is juggling with the truth. Under Scale of Points in the Y.C.C. and S.Y.C.C. rule book it states: "Length 6¾ inches, with corresponding symmetrical proportions, 10 points." The only reasonable construction one can attach to such wording is that if a Yorkshire be under or over 6¾ inches it shall have points deducted. That Mr. House exceeded his duty in passing the long birds at Plymouth is the candid opinion of—W. G. ELSMORE.

RECORD EGG LAYING.

SIR,—Seeing in CAGE BIRDS that several gentlemen have had eggs from Canaries already, I am writing to tell you that I had two eggs hatched on January 26th. Both are doing well, and it is quite open for anyone to come and see them. Another hen starts sitting to-day. H. STELLER.

A VERY AFFECTIONATE PARROT.

SIR,—About the year 1864 or '65 I was a soldier of the Royal Artillery stationed at Dinapoor, India, and a comrade of mine in the same battery had a Parrot of the Ring-neck sort. We called it a Mango Parrot; it was not a Rock Parrot, but one of the largest of the Plain Parrots and was, without any exceptions, the plainest speaker I ever heard in my life. It would be a difficult task to find one that could say as much or speak so plainly. One day a general officer came round to inspect us, and among the officers who accompanied him was a staff officer of Engineers acting as aide-de-camp. On his passing, Polly shouted, "Twig his heels." The staff officer inquired who owned the bird, and my comrade told him it was his. He inquired if he would sell it, and the man said yes, if he got 30 rupees or £3 for it. The bargain was struck, and the man was instructed when and where to deliver it, which he did. But for three months the bird never spoke a word. One day the man met the officer and asked him how the bird was getting on, when he got an uncomplimentary reply. High words passed between them and the money was demanded back. My comrade, in turn, said he regretted his parting with the pet, and had used the money or otherwise, would willingly refund it. He told the officer that he would go to his house and prove his innocence of being a rogue, if he would permit him. An appointment was made, and my comrade went to his house and was introduced as the "Scoundrel who exchanged the Parrots." Being highly indignant, he walked up to the Parrot cage and opened the door, when out came Polly, calling him all the endearing names it could think of, kissing and feeding him in every conceivable place and talking all the time. Of course an apology was at once offered to the man, and the owner of the bird and all who were present, with tears in their eyes, said that two such loving friends should never have been parted. The bird was forthwith presented to the man, who walked away with it perched on his shoulder, the cage in his hand and the bird talking all along the road. They were followed by crowds of people and being safely landed in his old quarters I don't think the Parrot ceased talking for some days after. I can vouch for the truth of this, and the owner of the bird is still alive and if he sees this he will also vouch for it.

SERGEANT DAN.

THE MISSING SHOW AT DEWSBURY.

SIR,—Re the above, I sent P.O. value 4s. 6d. for three entries, and I received a postcard from the promoter saying that the show was postponed until the 17th, entries practically nil. I wrote for my money back, for I was showing at Brighouse on that date. I then received another card saying that the show was cancelled, so I again wrote for my money back. But up to the time of writing I have received no word at all. But a friend of mine, Mr. M. Peel, got his money back and a letter stating that the promoter had discharged all his debts. I hope he will just look his books up; then, I think, he will find that at least he has not paid my money. LUTHER DYSON.

SCOTCH FANCY CANARIES AT THE CITY OF GLASGOW SHOW.

SIR,—The Scotch Fancy Canary grew apace under the wing of the City Show until a President arose who did not appreciate the Scotch Fancy. If the Scotch Fancy is to regain its position, we want a President that will uphold the breed. I am not clear as to Mr. Jardine's views, and, at the outset, it might be well that he should declare himself through your columns on his attitude to the Scotch Fancy Canary, and whether he would be prepared to support a proposal to give more substantial prize money in order to encourage its exhibition. Say, 30s., 25s., 20s., 15s., 10s., and 5s. This may be a bit extravagant, but something of the kind is needed. What do your correspondents say?—A SCOTCH FANCIER.

A RIFT IN THE LUTE AT DULWICH.

SIR,—I was very much surprised to read a paragraph in last week's CAGE BIRDS to the effect that it had been decided to form a new society for Dulwich, "to meet the requirements of the locality." Have the gentlemen concerned in this new venture overlooked the fact that birdy enthusiasts in the district are already amply catered for by the Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S.? This up-to-date and progressive Club has been in existence some five years, and, included on its roll of 150 odd members, are many of the most practical men in the Fancy. A goodly array of cups, bowls, and medals are given each year for competition, whilst interesting lectures and debates are also held from time to time during the season. Hence, I would ask, Sir, why the need for a new Society in this district? I hope fanciers in Dulwich will remain loyal to the old Club that has stood the test of time, and thus help the Society to once again secure the confidence of the Fancy which it so highly prized prior to the late show. LOCAL FANCIER.

SIR,—We owe so much of our past success to your very valued and much appreciated assistance, that I almost fear to ask for any further favours. I trust, however, that you will kindly grant me a little space in which to state that the Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S. is in no way whatever connected with any kindred organisation in Dulwich. This explanation would not perhaps be necessary but for the fact that some fanciers might possibly confuse this old original Club with a new Society, which I note by your columns last week, is in course of formation in the district. Fanciers will have seen from the report which you published of the proceedings at the recent special general meeting that great efforts are being put forth by the members of the Dulwich and Peckham Club to regain the prominent position in the Fancy which it undoubtedly held prior to the late regrettable show. With this end in view, the headquarters have been changed, and the work of the Club will henceforth be conducted from the more central and commodious premises. The personnel of the Society has also been very materially altered, and many of the new officials are themselves well known breeders and exhibitors, whose names will at once command the confidence of fanciers throughout the country. They will see to it that no such unfortunate hitch occurs at any future show as that associated with the last open exhibition. The Committee have decided that on February 20th next they will hold a "house warming" at their new headquarters, the Montpelier, Choumert Road, Peckham. Several gentlemen have promised to provide a really high-class entertainment, and ladies will be specially invited. Several influential gentlemen in the Fancy have promised to attend, including Messrs. R. L. Crisp and J. Ruben. It is hoped members will take this opportunity of being present, and become acquainted with the new home, which has many advantages. The Pair Show will not be held this year, thus "house-warming" taking its place. I would therefore, Sir, appeal to all interested in our hobby within a radius of ten miles to place themselves in communication with me at 209 Crystal Palace Road, East Dulwich.

A. W. HODSON, Hon. Secretary.

OUR GREAT BIRTHDAY NUMBER.

A Few More Opinions from Readers.

Very pleased with the Birthday Number and lovely plates.—G. Street (Highgate).

I was highly delighted with the Birthday Number.—H. E. Parrott (Woybridge).

The Birthday Number was a treat. Mr. Goodchild's "Popular Parrots" beats everything. —D. Thomas (Portmadoc).

Every success to CAGE BIRDS; long may it reign. Your Birthday Number was the best yet.—C. Corston (Gateshead).

I think the Birthday Number a regular "knock-out." This is the general opinion here in Exeter.—J. Rushmere (Exeter).

I would like to congratulate you on the Birthday Number; I was very much pleased with it.—Thos. H. Brooks (Elton).

I think your Birthday Number, with its beautiful coloured plates, was marvellous for the price.—Edgar Verity (Halifax).

When I received my Birthday Number, it was one of those surprises you give us from time to time.—Lance Hall (Sec. Newfield S.O., Co. Durham).

The Birthday Number was a great production. The coloured plates were fine, whilst the art supplement contained many interesting items. —C. Houlton (St. Helens).

I wish CAGE BIRDS every success. Again the Birthday Number was splendid, and your coloured plates are a credit to the artists Messrs. Goodchild and Norman.—A. SOMERS (Newcastle-on-Tyne).

Allow me to congratulate you on the Birthday Number. I think the plates are beautiful. Many happy returns of the day to CAGE BIRDS—a most interesting and instructive paper.—Mrs. C. W. Marshall (Sheffield).

Your Birthday Number is excellent. The three plates are very good, far and away the best I have ever seen. I think you beat all former records, and wish you further success. —Greenhorn (Mid-Calder).

It is with great pleasure that I pen these few lines to congratulate you on such a grand Birthday Number of CAGE BIRDS; also on the most useful articles it contains, and the beautiful plates.—Albert Burtenshaw (Worthing).

I have been a reader of CAGE BIRDS and have taken it in from the first, but I could do with a "Birthday Number" coming oftener. Wishing CAGE BIRDS every success.—J. Richardson, Sec. of the Birkenhead Canary Fanciers' Association.

The Birthday Number is well worth the money. The plate of the Crest Canary alone is worth 3d.; it is a splendid production. The more one looks at the plates, the more life-like they look. May success crown the coming year. —W. H. Hitchingham (Barnsley).

I was most delighted with your Birthday Number. It reflects great credit on your artists, Messrs. Goodchild and Norman, and the management of CAGE BIRDS in giving your readers such a grand threepenny worth. Wishing you every success in the future.—F. H. E. Handscombe (Walthamstow).

Allow me to congratulate you on the superexcellence of the Birthday Number, especially the coloured supplement. They are a complete masterpiece, more particularly Mr. Goodchild's fine plate. The Amazon Parrot represented therein is the best production on paper I have ever seen, and is unsurpassable by any living subject.—F. W. Lane (Belfast).

Allow me to compliment you on the way in which you celebrated the birthday of CAGE BIRDS. I consider the Starling is about the best picture in the matter of detail of colouring I have ever seen. Mr. Goodchild's plate, "Popular Parrots," too, is a splendid piece of work. —T. Wilson (Fulham, S.W.).

I must thank you for the life-like production of my buff Norwich in your grand Birthday Number. There is no doubt the thanks of the whole cage-bird fancy are due to you for giving them the opportunity of procuring at so small a cost so stupendous a number as the Birthday Number.—A. Grey (Morpeth).

Allow me to add one more drop in the ocean of praise of your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS. As an old breeder and keeper of birds for 20 years, I have taken in all and sundry of the Fancy papers as they have come (and, alas, some gone!), but CAGE BIRDS is the best of all of them, week in and week out, whilst each Birthday Number fairly out-does its predecessor.—R. J. SKELTON, (Dorking).

Please accept my hearty congratulations for your Birthday Number. It was simply superb. I have not finished enjoying it yet. Although being a breeder of Canaries and a British bird fancier for a good number of years, I am only a recent reader of your paper. I see what I have lost. The like of your Birthday Number I never saw in my life. Wishing CAGE BIRDS every success.—Wm. Hardie (Dumbarton).

I was very pleased with the picture of the Ring-necked Parrakeet in Mr. Goodchild's excellent plate, writes Mr. G. W. Ballington (Cresswell). I was wanting to see one, in order to compare it with the one I have. I was recommended to show it and I got 1st at Matlock (open), 2nd at Newark, he at Ilkeston, 1st and special at Cresswell and 2nd at Calow. I have been a reader of CAGE BIRDS for 12 months and I got my first bird through an advertisement in CAGE BIRDS. Wishing it success.

Have you given the notice respecting CAGE BIRDS' ANNUAL for 1908 your attention?

THE SHOWS.

WINCHESTER & DIS. F.F. & C.A.

A table show was held at the Westgate Assembly Room, on January 29th and was very well attended, considerable interest being manifested. Between seventy and eighty birds were sent, many of them being of high-class quality. These were judged by Mr. W. Waters. Mr. Huntley showed his well-known Mule, "The Star of Winchester," winner of many prizes. A paper dealing with the difficulties of Hybrid breeding was read by Mr. Huntley. A cage-bird judging competition was won by Mr. A. W. Timms. There was a very good attendance, and the room proved to be an excellent one for the show, being nicely warmed. The arrangements were carried out by a committee and the indefatigable hon. secretary, Mr. H. F. Savage.

WELSH GAGE BIRD CLUB.

This show was held at the Court Room, Workmen's Institute, Mountain Ash, on January 30th. The room is most suitable in every respect for such an exhibition, and the members of the Welsh Cage Bird Club may well congratulate themselves on selecting Mountain Ash as the place for holding their first members' show. A more experienced and up-to-date body of fanciers it would be hard to find in the Principality, and everything passed off without the least hitch. The schedule was a credit to those who were responsible for its arrangement, and the entry good, considering the short time allowed for working up the show. The chief item in connection with the show was the drawing competitions, confined to local school children. The work turned out by the children seemed to take all visitors to the show by great surprise. In the class for any age, the entries totalled 51, and in the class for scholars not exceeding 12 years of age, the entries totalled 36. The judge of the drawing competitions was Mr. E. Jenkins, whose selections seemed to be well received, both by the children and visitors to the show. Judging by the way this competition has been taken up, it would seem that it is one of the best possible side issues to a cage bird show. All the schools here are so interested, that the drawing of birds is fast becoming a speciality in the schools. The winning drawings were taken from plates issued by the Fancy Press, and the successful competitors were all either children of fanciers, or closely related to fanciers. The cage birds were judged by Mr. E. G Danger, and his awards were generally well received. Secretary and manager, T. L. Castree. The special prize winners were Messrs. J. Pritchard, D. H. Tedstone, F. J. Eynor, Lewis and Dymond, G. Gregory, D. Jones, J. H. Jones, D. Jenkins, H. W. Sheldon, D. L. Eynon, W. J. Card, Lewis and Dymond, M. Evans, H. Rodwick, J. Jeffereys, T. L. Castree, B. Davies.

DUDLEY.

The first show in connection with this new flourishing society, was held January 29th and 30th, in the Crown Hotel Assembly Room. This is one of the finest rooms in the Midlands, being nicely heated, both by fires and hot water, and lighted at night by the electric light, so that the exhibits had every comfort bestowed on them. Entries turned up well in all sections, averaging ten per class throughout, which put the officials on good terms with themselves. We cannot speak too highly of the management, as all of them, from the chairman downwards, worked like Trojans for the well-being of the exhibits. The Chairman is Mr. A. Weeks, and the Vice-Chairman Mr. J. Watchorn. Treasurer, Mr. W. H. Bill; committee, Messrs. Raybould, Fallows, Dudley, Jennings, Capewell, Hingley, Pearcey, Frost, Russon and Jones. The Secretaries are Messrs. J. G. Leech, J. Mullett, and W. H. Bill, to whom very great credit is undoubtedly due. All birds were attended to as they arrived, and were staged in good time. Cards, too, were very quickly put up. In every class winners at recent shows had to stand cardless, as competition was very keen. Yorkshires came up well, and over seventy were staged in the five classes provided. The special for best Yorks in show went to Mr. Howes, with a clinking variegated yell. The Crests were a very fine lot indeed, Mr. Rose winning first with a beauty. Crest-breds, although lacking in quantity, were good in quality; the winning bird of Mr. King's was one of the best seen for many a day. The Hybrids were very hot indeed, and, as the judge remarked, they were the finest lot seen out this show season. Mr. Ward's noted Redpoll-Bullie gained chief honours in one class, and Mr. Lawrence's Canary-Bullie in the other, both birds being of exceptional merit. The British birds were very fine indeed. In the small Softbills, Mr. Hingley's Treecreeper was a gem of the first water; in the larger class Mr. Chick's well-known Chough got first. There were no less than 19 Goldfinches staged, and two sets of winners could have been easily chosen. Bullfinches made a grand display, Mr. Jupe winning with a beauty. The foreign classes contained some choice birds, and we were very sorry indeed to see Mr. Williams' noted "King Bird of Paradise" wrong classed, as, in the opinion of the judge, it should have been shown in the class "smaller than a Cockatiel." Mr. Robson judged.

Critique.

CRESTS: 1, Rose, very nice grey Crest, fine length of feather, good body and substance; 2, Ingram, good, even-marked dark Crest, well radiated; 3, King, we liked much, very fine, velny feather, comes well over beak, staged to perfection; 4, Russon, very nice, even-marked, good quality feather; vhc, Edwards; hc, Mrs. Mullet; c, Watchorn, very fine class indeed. CREST-BRED: 1, spl, King, very massive skulled Green, marvel for size, good quality and quantity of head feather, wins easy; 2, Rose, variegated, nice, lovely cushioned head, abundance of feather; 3, Edwards, very nice bird indeed; 4, Russon, variegated buff, rare length of head feather, nicely groomed; r, Watchorn. CINN. (3): 1, 2, Exton, two grand birds, little to choose between them, the buff getting the priority; 3, Russon, nice pencilled buff of good size. NOR. YELL. CL., ETC. LAISTERDYKE B.F.A.

The final members' show, in connection with the medal competition, was held on February 1st. Competition was very keen, some well-known winners being staged. Mr. R. Carr judged to everybody's satisfaction. Mr. W. Morcment gained first prize medal, Mr. L. Casey second, and Mr. W. Swaine third.

SALE OPEN O.S.

On January 27, we held the first of our season's table shows, which was devoted entirely to the Norwich Plainhead. Mr. J. Raynes, Secretary of the N.P.C., judged and the following is a list of his awards.

CL. YELL. CK. (2): 1, Smith; 2, Irlam. BUFF (2): 1, Smith; 2, Morgan. TICK. YELL. (2): 1, Fildes; 2, Irlam. BUFF (4): 1, Smith; 2, 4, Hardcastle; 3, Irlam. YELL. HEN (8): 1, Smith; 2, Morgan; 3, vhc, c, Hardcastle; 4, Field; hc, Irlam. BUFF (8): 1, 2, c, Hardcastle; 3, Field; 4, Irlam; vhc, Field; hc, Morgan. YELL. UNFLI. Hardcastle won the gold centre medal for most points in the eight classes, counting 49 points, Mr. J. Irlam running up with 29 points. Mr. Raynes afterwards gave a paper on the Norwich Plainhead, which was listened to with great attention. Several questions were asked and Mr. Raynes suitably replied, the discussion proving very interesting.—GEO. F. HARDCASTLE, Hon. Sec.

THORNTON HEATH.

The cage bird section of the show of the Thornton Heath Fanciers' Association, held at the Public Hall, on January 29th and 30th, was, unfortunately, very poorly supported, four classes out of the ten scheduled being cancelled, and two others amalgamated. The cause was said to be owing to the show not being held under C.B.U. licence. Only twenty-four entries were received, but amongst the exhibits were several very nice birds, notably the winning Linnet, Goldfinch, and Mule. The birds were nicely staged, and the whole of the arrangements ably carried out by the committee, of which Mr. F. Phelps is chairman, and Mr. E. Jeffries, vice-chairman. Messrs. Bensley and Knott made a brace of courteous and hardworking officials, and everything went smoothly and well. Mr. R. E. Spinner made the awards, and fault-finding was scarce.

NORWICH YELL AND BUFF: Both cancelled. CREST, ETC. (4): 1, 2, vhc, Scott, wing and eye marked, crest-hred, capital shape and width, good frontal, and nice feather, 2nd clear body Crest, nice centre and droop, on the small side.—YORKS. MULE (6): 1, 3, Gunnell, 1st Redpoll-Greenfinch, very close and smart in feather, shows the cross well, 3rd pretty little Siskin-Canary, nice colour, feather and marking; 2, Tanner, Linnet-Greenfinch, nice feather and markings. A.O.V. (amalgamated with Siskin, etc.) (5): 1, 2, vhc, hc, c, Gunnell, large, shapely, well-marked, nice coloured Linnet, 2nd very pretty, well-marked Siskin, nice colour, vhc good coloured Yellowhunting. SELL. 15/-, and GIFT, cancelled.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

The annual members' pair show was held at the Church Institute, Paddington-street, on January 25th, and proved a great success. Entries totalled 158, or three less than last year, which constituted a record. The reputation for the strength of the Plainhead breeders was well maintained, there being no less than 35 pairs in the three classes; but they were once more outnumbered by the Yorkshires, which numbered 38 pairs in three classes. Crests and Crestbreds totalled 21 in two classes, and these were birds of great merit and quite a feature of the show. the winning pair belonging to Mr. J. Pooley. They secured the lovely oil painting presented by Mr. J. A. Marley. The Crested hen, indeed, was admitted by one of the greatest authorities in that variety to be the best out this season. If only a quarter of the 35 pairs for producing hybride are successful, we shall see some rare crosses; but if a guess might bo hazarded, disappointment looms ahead. The Association's 12 cups and other trophies were on view in a large glass case, and were the object of much admiration. Mr. A. W. Curtis, in the absence of the secretary, carried out the secretarial duties with conspicuous ability, and was ably supported hy Messrs. F. Turner, F. Wyse, E. C. Offord, A. W. Hart, and W. Shepherd. The hall was kept at a nice temperature, and the day was bright and dry. The judge, Mr. J. S. Clarke, gave the greatest satisfaction. Points specials were won by Messrs. W. Page (cup), J. Buckman, A. Head, J. Pooley, H. Dickinson, G. Menhenett, S. Wynn, G. Saytch, Dr. Rountree, J. Goodall, Cooper Bros., and F. J. Martin.

KEIGHLEY.

The show of the Keighley and Dis. C.B.S. took place on February 1st, in the Holycroft Council School—a good room, with plenty of light and ample accommodation for visitors. Twenty classes were scheduled and 237 entries were obtained. One class was cancelled and three were reduced to half prize money. This is the last show held under the rules of the Yorkshire Union, being the 18th of the series, and the society will no doubt be at some loss financially with their venture. Next year, however, they will be a little earlier, and it is to be hoped they will be better patronised. The management is in good hands. The Secretary, Mr. Wm. Wright, had all things well in hand, and received capable assistance from Mr. W. H. Barry, the president, Messrs. Booth, Holmes and White, vice-presidents, Messrs. Heaton, Morris and Shackleton as stewards, and Mr G. Crowther, treasurer. Mr. J. Wilcock (Eccleshill) officiated as judge, and his awards gave general satisfaction.

HOUSE'S

CANARY MANUAL

Price ONE SHILLING. Post Free 1/2.

Superbly illustrated by the Champion Canary Artist Mr. H. NORMAN EVERY BIRD DEPICTED IS A VERITABLE MODEL, and shows the breeder what to aim for. Some idea of the popularity of this Practical Manual may be gathered from the fact that under the title of "The British Canary," it has passed its Third Edition, entering upon a Fourth Edition of 5,000 copies under the new title of "HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL."

MR. HOUSE has thoroughly revised and brought this work up-to-date and incorporated a chapter on the "Roller or Singing Canary."

FANCIERS' FESTIVITIES.

Bradford East O.S.

The Society held its first annual tea and concert, in connection with the distribution of prizes, at Park Chapel Schools, on January 7th, when about 180 sat down to an excellent tea. A grand concert was afterwards presided over by Mr. W. Cruise (vice-president). The following artistes rendered a capital programme of music:—Mrs. Wilson Laycock (soprano), Miss Hilda Slater (contralto), Mr. Morris Speight (tenor), Mr. Edgar Jowett (solo violinist), Mrs. Harry Noble (elocutionist), Mr. Ben Brown (humourist), and Miss Alice M. Cruise (accompanist). During the interval Mrs. E. Suddards (the wife of the president), presented the prizes to the members who had been successful at the five shows held during the year. The following were the winners (in the champion section) of the gold medals and other prizes: Messrs. Cruise, Farrar, Cowgill, Rushworth, Hill, Gelder, and Mann; and (in the novice section) Messrs. Stables, White, Northrop, Priestly, Laycock, Peacock, Chapman and Bateman, and Wilkinson Bros; in the extra novice section the winners were Messrs. Lowes, Stobart, and Walker. The competition has been decidedly keen throughout, and no less than three of the prizes were decided at the last show by one point. The entries, too, have been very large, 473 birds having been staged in the competitions. The last show was a record for the society, there being 134 entries. A vote of thanks to Mrs. Suddards for her kindness, was proposed by Messrs. Cruise and Rushworth. After the prizes had been distributed the chairman called upon the secretary, Mr. H. Hill, to make a presentation on behalf of the society of an enlarged framed photo of the members, to the president, Mr. E. Suddards. Mr. Hill said that they had much to be thankful for; the society had achieved a performance in its first year that every member ought to be proud of. This tea and concert was to celebrate the first milestone in its history, and he had no hesitation in saying that each would be able to look back upon 1907 as a red-letter year, and one in which much good work was accomplished. By each one putting his shoulder to the wheel the society had been successful all along the line. In making the presentation to Mr. Suddards he could say, without fear of contradiction, that a large amount of the success was due to the keen interest taken by that gentleman in the work; he was one of those quiet workers who get through a great amount of work without outsiders getting to know of it, and the members had not been slow to appreciate it. It was their desire that he would accept this present as a mark of the esteem in which he was held by them. Mr. Hill also hoped that the president and his good wife would long be spared to look upon the present as a memento of the society's first annual gathering. Mr. Suddards responded in a few well-chosen remarks, and thanked the members for their great kindness. The programme was then continued with enthusiasm to the end. A vote of thanks to the ladies who had helped with the tea was proposed by Mr. Suddards, seconded by Mr. R. Halliday, and supported by Mr. H. Hill. Mr. H. J. Chittenden proposed a vote of thanks to the artistes who had provided the evening's entertainment, which everybody thoroughly enjoyed; Mr. W. A. Cowgill seconded with a very appropriate little speech. After a vote of thanks to the trustees for their kindness in lending the schools, proposed by the secretary and seconded by Mr. G. White, the concert terminated, the audience singing "God Save the King." Mr. Fred Hammond, sec. to the Yorkshire Union of C.B.S., was also present at the tea.

Newcastle-on-Tyne C.B.S.

Members and friends of the Newcastle C.B.S. held a most enjoyable social in the Co-operative Hall, on January 8th. Although so soon after the holidays, and in spite of the fact that some of the members had been indulging in a visit to the Scottish National (one of the latter was absent; had he not recovered from the effects of the Scottish "National" beverage?"), there were 112 present. All seemed to enjoy themselves. The social commenced with a concert to which the following ladies and gentlemen contributed songs and recitations: Miss Currah, Miss Crosby, Mrs. Crawhall, Messrs. Thompson and Ewbank (bass), T. Robson and Prest (tenors), Walton, Wire, Evans, and Fitzpatrick (comic). Our chairman, Mr. Currah, treated us to two of his humorous recitations, and made us "crack our sides" at the dilemma in which Georgie Ramshaw found himself when he "could not remember what he had forgotten," to say nothing of "Billy's plight when his friend Markie asked him to shoot his bull for him." How he succeeded we had better not mention. After the concert we had supper, which was provided for us by the Co-operative Society, and the thanks of the club are due to Mr. Irwin and his staff of assistants for their able management of the excellent repast we enjoyed, and for the capable manner in which they provided for the increased number present (we only estimated about 80). After supper there was some dancing in the Hall; for those who did not dance there were cards, draughts, and dominoes. It was not till one o'clock that we decided to go home, and one and all seemed to have thoroughly enjoyed themselves. A brisk walk over the moor in enjoyable company blew away the cobwebs, and we returned to our homes and to sleep and dream of our next annual social. Mr. Crawhall had the arrangement of concert, and Mr. Bertram acted as M.C. for the dancing.—TYNESIDER.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

AT last the shows are over—that is, so far as those held under the Yorkshire Union are concerned—and I suppose both exhibits and exhibitors will need a good rest, which they well deserve. Eighteen shows, held week after week, call for a big amount of stamina in both birds and fanciers, and the shows held at the tail end also require a little cash in the bank to provide for possible—or can we say probable?—failures. Keighley were in the unfortunate position of being last show, and did not get the number of entries they deserved. But they have many stout-hearted fanciers amongst them, and will come up smiling another year. Buck up, Keighley, it will be a long time before you are last again.

THE visitors included Mr. E. Bleasdale, of Urmston, near Manchester, who, taking advantage of a temporary respite from his duties, ran over to have a peep at his favourite variety, the Yorkshire. The big teams of Messrs. Bailey and Swanger, and Shackleton, also Mr. Wilcock (who was judging) were absent. Probably they were undergoing special treatment in readiness for the Palace Show. Speaking of the Palace reminds me that any fancier who is paying a visit to the show will be welcomed by Mr. H. H. Towers, who has made special arrangements for saloons by the train leaving Bradford (Midland) on Friday midnight.

I HAVE heard a whisper that a movement is on foot to hold all the prize distributions and socials of the Yorkshire Union and the various specialist clubs (Y.C.C., C.M.Y. C.C. and Bradford and County B.B. and M.C.) on one and the same evening, and should rumour, that proverbial "lying jade," this time prove true, fanciers and friends interested can assure themselves that it will be a splendid affair, and well worth a visit from anyone who can spare the time, and has the inclination. Last year there were three separate socials, and as there are now the British men to reckon with, there would be four evenings needed, and where one fancier is a member of all, the thing begins to pall a little. So many would welcome a real good evening to get amongst the whole of the birdy men of the West Riding. The idea is good, and I hope the affair does take place as suggested.

RUMOUR has also been busy in another direction, and that is that the British fanciers outside Bradford and District have got it into their heads that the Bradford and County B.B. and M.C. is worked in conjunction with, and under the sway of, the Yorkshire Union. Nothing could be further from the mark. It has nothing whatever to do with the Yorkshire Union (except, of course, where the patronage is given to a show held under Y.U. rules), but is run strictly in its own interests by its own members. I am sure the Secretary and Committee will, and do, extend the heartiest invitation to fanciers outside Bradford to join its ranks.—"STRAIGHT-UN."

A Winner of Many Prizes.

Allow me to thank you for the pleasing and life-like picture of my Ortolan Bunting, first at Bournemouth, which appeared in CAGE BIRDS last week, writes Mr. R. Carter (East Dulwich). The Bunting was one of a few winners I had the gratification of moulting out in this my second year of British bird keeping. In addition to the win recorded above, it was second at Westminster, Bromley, Tonbridge, and Lewisham, etc. I may say that I purchased it through an advertisement in CAGE BIRDS last summer from an old West-country exhibitor, Mr. Mitchell, together with a Starling, first at Portsmouth, etc., and a Tree Pipit, second at Southend and Plumstead, 1st at Lewisham, etc. I find that Buntings are easily provided for—little else is required than a supply of good Canary seed and two or three mealworms a day.

A CUP OF BEEF TEA FOR A 1d.

With Double the Usual Nourishment.

A short time back, in an English Court of Justice, some of the most eminent Analytical Chemists in England made sworn statements that a cup of Beef Tea made from a 1d. tablet of Ju-Vis contained double the nutriment contained in a cup of Beef Tea made of best known makes of Extract of Meat, according to the directions given. Such exceptional quality at so low a price will undoubtedly appeal to everybody. Ju-Vis is guaranteed to be made solely from Extract of Beef and Gelatine, with valuable vegetable properties added, the vegetable much improving the flavour.

If you are not already using Ju-Vis, you should certainly send to your Grocer for some 1d. tablets without delay. They are such a boon for Soups, Gravies, Joints, Hashes and Stews, and once you have tried Ju-Vis you will certainly never be without it again.

The Novices' Notebook.

This page will consist of topical hints, addressed chiefly to beginners, concerning every branch of the hobby of bird-keeping, and the notes will be contributed from time to time by various leading experts.

Redmite Remedies.

Now that the annual clean-up will be getting to be the topic of the moment, it may, perhaps, be useful to pass in review a few of the remedies suggested from time to time to do battle against redmite, and each, of course, being firmly believed in as an infallible panacea by its own particular supporters. To remove redmite, where they are known to exist by painting over their harbours with various fluids is the simplest thing in creation. But the chances are that the pest merely migrates from the temporarily untenable position to more favourable quarters in another part of the cage, or the room. To make any position permanently distasteful to them is quite another matter, and to a great extent appears as futile as hunting for the chimerical philosopher's stone. Yet this is what is often claimed for some of these suggested remedies.

To mention the most recent introduction first, we may refer to the plan lately put forward of washing the inside of the cages over with "blue copperas." This chemical is variously known as sulphate of copper, bluestone, bluestone vitriol, and, perhaps, a few others. It is very poisonous, and was used years ago—it may still be used—by farmers as a dressing for the grain before it was sown, for various purposes, but chiefly, I believe, it was to poison the vermin or birds that robbed the seed-bed. It is also an active principle in washes to kill American blight on trees, and other insect pests, and in a more diluted form is used to spray over fields to destroy that baneful weed, charlock, so that its deleterious effect must extend to plant as well as insect life.

Of course, all this has little to do with cage birds, but it is useful as showing the poisonous nature of the stuff, and the care that must be used in employing it in any way in the insides of cages. I have little doubt it may be very destructive to redmite, or grey lice at the time it is used, and if it is used simply as a wash before paint or distemper is applied, and the cages rinsed afterwards with clean water, probably no harm will result. But the novice must not be tempted to add it to the final dressing of whiting or distemper, or he may find later on that his birds die off mysteriously.

Many birds have a habit, particularly at the commencement of the breeding season, of pecking off and eating the plaster from the backs and sides of the cages, so one can readily imagine what would be the cause of these deaths if the plaster on the cages was impregnated with a strong poison.

Cresylic Acid.

Still keeping to the farmer's friends, I may mention this substance, although, not having the reference by me, I am not sure whether I have spelt it correctly. Neither can I say definitely whether this is merely a technical name, but I have no distinct knowledge of having seen it listed in the ordinary druggist's lists. It is said to be an active principle in "dips" used by farmers for dipping sheep, and, consequently, one would naturally expect it to be of service in destroying insect pests.

The makers of one of the sanitary distempers often advertised in our columns say a certain proportion of it is in their ordinary make of distemper, and supply distemper to order, only guaranteed to contain ½ per cent. of the acid, which is said to be harmless to bird life. If that is so, it would doubtless form a very convenient dressing for destroying what insects were about when it was applied. But its effect must be lost sooner or later—perhaps sooner—as I have myself known mite to be re-established in a cage in a comparatively short time after doing them with the ordinary strength of distemper. Perhaps some chemist reader would favour us with the properties of this acid, and at what strength it would be likely to prove harmful to bird life. Also what permanent effects it would have in preventing insects harbouring on any surface where it had been applied.

A Doubtful Application.

Another compound for mixing with whiting to prevent the encroachment of mites which was once given as a valuable secret by an old Yorkshire breeder to a novice just beginning in the Fancy, was to mix a little alum in the whitewash which was to be applied to the inside of the cage. This was claimed to be an infallible preventive. What its value is I never put to any strict test, not caring to risk using a powerful astringent of this kind in breeding cages where the hens would have every opportunity for swallowing portions of the plaster containing it. Visions of egg-binding, and similar troubles—rightly or wrongly I never stopped to enquire—were too fearsome bogies for me to invite the realities by such means. I can, therefore, only give the hint for what it may be worth.

Salt and Disinfectants.

A less harmful substance for a similar purpose is common salt. Even if the chips of plaster were eaten, they would prove beneficial rather than otherwise, as the quantity of salt thus consumed would be very small indeed, even if a large proportion was added to the whitewash; and not sufficient to set up any serious trouble. Indeed, I have known many fanciers who were in the habit of giving the breeding hens a cube of common salt to peck at in the early part of the season under the impression that it prevented egg-binding.

Whatever it may do in this direction, there are times when it is apt to set up bowel troubles when eaten freely, and some will eat it freely and appear to relish it. Whether it has any detrimental effect on mites I will not say at present, though when I put it to a partial test (it was in small singing cages), the cages certainly appeared to be rather free from mite attacks. I did not, however, put it to an exhaustive or methodical test.

Finally, most of the proprietary disinfectants are recommended from time to time as preventives, both to use for washing out the cages prior to doing them with the whitewash or distemper, and for mixing with the final dressing to secure a more permanent effect. Doubtless, of these articles, one is about as good as another.

Other Insecticides.

These are more suitable for applying with a small brush to the joints of the doors, sand trays, ends of perches, and so forth, at frequent intervals, to prevent the mites getting a firm foothold, so to speak. For cleanliness, harmlessness, and excellence of effect, I have never found anything to surpass a fairly strong solution of camphor in mothylated spirit, and few things to equal it. The smell goes in a minute or two, and the effect lasts hours, or days. The camphor, I believe, is most fatal to red mite and lice, and the spirit carries it deeply into their haunts.

To see the mites scurrying pell mell out of a tiny crack, for minutes after the brush has been applied, shows how deeply it—and the mite, too—penetrates. Carbolic fluid is used in the same way; also fir tree oil. Paraffin is also employed, but the effect is nothing like as good, and the smell—well, anyone knows what this is.

Turpentine is often advised for the purpose, but I have a lively recollection of a time when I wanted a few mites to remain for a short time on one particular spot whilst I photographed them, and of painting all round the spot with a liberal supply of turpentine. The mites only laughed at the ruse, and wandered about the turpentine-moistened surface with the greatest unconcern. This fact, in combination with its fragrance, (?) does not commend it to me as an application for cages.

Pyrethrum powder may be useful enough to dust the nests with, provided it is fresh and genuine, but as a destroyer of mites I have a poor opinion of it, for the simple reason that the mites won't stay amongst it, and it cannot follow them into their stronghold.

Two More Suggestions.

Before quite dismissing this mighty—or rather, I mean "mitey," but the difference after all, is merely one of cause and effect—question, I will mention two more suggestions which have been put forward as preventatives, though I must say I cannot criticise their true value from personal experience. The first is to hang a small bag of sulphur in each cage. I can understand that the insect pests, either mite or lice, may not harbour in or upon the bags, but I fail to see in what way the presence of the sulphur would have the slightest effect upon them in any other part of the cage. Its effect, if any, must be limited to the one spot upon which the sulphur hangs.

The second suggestion came through a correspondent, and related to the painting of the inside of the cages with creosote. This powerful smelling drug must, one would imagine, keep any self-respecting insect pest at bay. Whether its effect would be to kill them, I do not presume to say, not having tried it; and on the other hand, having seen something of the red mites' utter indifference to a few other supposed remedies. In any case, there are two points which would need to be considered in connection with its odour. First, if used in any appreciable strength, it would, unless its odour is much less permanent than I think it is, be apt to make the room anything but a pleasant place to abide in. And in the second place, the question would arise whether the odour would not be injurious to the birds? Used as an inhalation, it is very useful to give relief in bronchial troubles in the human subject, and I have seen it well spoken of by those who should be able to appreciate it at its proper value, as having a good effect upon asthma in cage birds when used as an inhalation. Therefore, it must possess the power of exercising some appreciable effect upon the living organism, and one is forced to enquire whether its continual presence would be beneficial, or would become ultimately harmful?

After Septic Fever.

It may be a fitting place to follow up the notes on ordinary cleaning and disinfection with some special notes concerning the manner of dealing with cages and appliances after a known attack of septic fever. The average person rarely gets a sufficient and proper estimate of the need for the most drastic treatment after a case of this terribly infectious disease.

No ordinary amount of disiufection is likely to prove successful in assuring immunity from future outbreaks. In all cases where the cages are of the ordinary type and quality, or in any way worn, it will be far the best and cheapest plan in the end to break them up and burn them altogether. Although this may appear very drastic advice to a working man, who has perhaps only just suffered the loss of a valuable stock of birds, it is the very best advice that can be given him, whatever else may be urged to the contrary.

Do it with Method.

We have already pressed the point of using definite method in all such operations, and here method is trebly essential to success. If you break up a stock of cages to destroy them through this cause, and do not immediately finish the destruction, there is a serious risk of the material lying about in contact with other things which may eventually be brought in turn into touch with the new cages or appliances, which will form the nucleus of the future stock. These may well be the means of transferring the germ of the disease from the condemned appliances to the new ones, and thus provide the hidden means for a fresh outbreak.

If the outbreak has been serious, and the stock kept in a room by itself, the best time to carry out this destructive campaign would be simultaneously with the annual turn-out, as already described. Isolate any stock that might have recovered in clean new quarters, and be careful to hold no communication of any kind with these birds, nor allow anything or anyone to pass between them and the infected articles. Get someone specially to look after them for the time being. Then destroy all that you intend destroying out of the room at once.

Next close up all outlets for air as far as possible, so as to make the room airtight; or nearly so, get a shovelful of hot glowing embers from the kitchen, and place in an old bucket, or similar receptacle, stand it on a course of bricks in the centre of the room, throw on a pound of sulphur, and make your exit, sealing the the door behind you, and leaving all alone until the next day. This is rather to add to the thoroughness of the work of disinfection that follows, than as an attack on the fever germs themselves. The process costs very little, and doubtless adds considerably to the efficiency of the work.

Then to Proceed.

I have hitherto been assuming that the walls of the room are not papered, and so I will digress for a moment just to say that if the contrary is the case, the paper should certainly be stripped off and burnt prior to igniting the sulphur. When the room is opened, it should be well aired to disperse the fumes of the sulphur, and then washed over with a strong disinfectant and germicide, and afterwards limewashed. The process described for ordinary cleaning may be carried out now, with the difference that if one is sufficiently careful in handling a powerful poison, the best wash for walls, staging, and any fixtures before lime-washing, will be a solution of corrosive sublimate. This should be procured from a chemist, who should be asked to supply a solution of the proper strength for the purpose, to ensure the destruction of the disease germs. He will not fail to caution anyone respecting its use, and will also tell how to apply it, though this is easy, as it may be brushed liberally about the walls and fixtures, and even the floor, with an ordinary distemper brush, just as one applies whitewash or distemper.

Given the necessary care and precaution to avoid accidents, this is about the best possible way of treating the walls to disinfect them, as this preparation is most destructive to the germs of disease. But care is required, as it is also a very powerful poison. Two or three applications may be made at intervals of a few hours, or a day, as it may best suit the convenience of the worker, and when this is completed, two coats of hot lime-wash will make the room as innocent of the taint of septic fever as it was before the outbreak. Where Black is White.

A friend of mine in Yorkshire, says a writer in a daily contemporary, states that the white Blackbird is by no means a rara avis in his part of the world. At Fangfoss, near York, he says, white and pied Blackbirds are common in the woods. He has not seen them anywhere else, but is under the impression that, by a process of natural selection, like has sought like, and that as the result, little Fangfoss has among its feathered choristers a pied colony such as is not to be found in any other part of the world.

Something You Can't Do.

Having built our aviaries, and laid in a good stock of food, the next thing obviously is to get the birds. In the first place, decide what you will go in for; you probably have some particular fancy, stick to it. Remember you can't, with the best will in the world, keep everything; nor even can the Zoo! I should counsel a beginner to commence with something inexpensive, as if it should "depart this life," the shock will not be so painful, either to his feelings or his purse. I said inexpensive of set purpose. I don't like the word "common" as applied to birds. Some of my readers will remember how Sir Walter Scott's daughter once spoke in his hearing of something she could not endure, because it was so common. My dear, replied her father, you spoke like a very young lady. Nothing that is common, except wickedness, can deserve to be spoken of with contempt. When you have lived to my years, you will be disposed to agree with me in thanking God that nothing really worth living for or caring about in the world is uncommon.

I often remember those wise words, and thank God that there are so many beautiful birds that are within the reach of the humblest. A rare bird is always a very expensive bird to buy, and if it should die, although, of course, as a shopkeeper at Filey once said to me, anent a poor young lady visitor who was drowned, and whose body was subsequently recovered, "Eh, but its nice to have a corpse," still, I fancy your joy will be tempered with grief, as you remember the cost. No doubt, as an old farmer's wife said to me, referring to her favourite old Rouen drake, which had died, "He'll make a lovely skin"; but some of us want more than a skin, no matter how beautiful.

Situated as we are, perhaps it is doubtful how far we shall conduce to happiness or usefulness by intensifying beyond a certain point the vividness of recollection. Themistocles held the art of oblivion in higher esteem than the art of memory. Man has been sympathetically described as an animal who weeps and makes others to weep, and most of us have some day to weep when we remember Zion. In most lives, there is something it is wiser to forget—much unwisdom, many disappointments, partings, lost opportunities! Nowhere is this more so than in bird life. When I remember my many acts of folly, my bitter disappointments, lost opportunities—and bitter partings, I could fill a whole book of remembrance.

I think my experience has been rather like that of Koko, in Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado," who, with a view of becoming perfect as an executioner, was going to begin with a guinea pig, and work his way through to a second trombone.

Climb There.

I have in my time kept probably as many and as rare birds as most people, but what I wish to impress upon my readers is this. I did not begin too high up. In this world there's nothing certain but Death and Taxes, as the saying is; and therefore, for a novice to buy, say, Gouldian Finches, is the height of folly. Many and many a time after buying some rare and expensive bird, I have wished that I had listened to the prophecies of my domestic Cassandra. Still, there are times, after you have gained experience, mind, when you must never hesitate. If a rarity is offered you, buy it immediately; for do we not all remember the Irishman's reply to the Englishman, who witlessly asked him, "Pat, if the devil came by, do you think he'd take me or you?" The labourer never hesitated in his reply. "He'd take me, your honour." "Why do you say that?" "Oh, he would" says he, "because he's sure of your honour at any time."

Now, what puzzles the beginner is where to get his birds. Setting aside for the moment private advertisements, I must say I like the wholesale importer. He has a far bigger choice of birds. If you are going in for certain varieties, tell one, and he will keep you informed of fresh arrivals. In thinking whether you can afford a bird or no, it doesn't do to have too much conscience. I have given my conscience in this respect so many nasty knocks, that it has ceased to hold intercourse with me! If you want a bird badly make the inward monster stop jerking the reins. The dealer will always gladly second your efforts. It's a tribute to our higher nature that we cannot see a beautiful thing anywhere, without wanting to draw near, to see, to touch, to possess it. In buying rare birds, you can't be too rapid in making your decision, or else assuredly another steppeth down before you. If you receive a telegram offering a rare bird, reply at once—and think about how you will pay for it afterwards, for, remember, a similar wire has gone to twenty other likely victims, and, perhaps, there is only one pair of birds, and you can't all have them.

For the Brave and the Fair.

Then, for the brave and adventurous, there is Club Row, now known by the more elegant name of Sclater-street, Shoreditch. I was once solemnly taken to task for advising anyone, ladies especially, to go there. I can assure my readers they will be perfectly safe. I have been there at all hours, and nobody tried to kill me!

The sending of birds on approval to known customers is a most estimable advantage to purchasers. The dealer gets rid of them far more rapidly; and it is to his obvious interest to do the best by them. He has a large body of eager and wealthy clients always, like the Athenians of old, eager for some new thing, ready to kill each other to get it; and, best of all, willing to pay handsomely "to best" some hated rival. The cunning dealer knows this, and so plays off one victim against another. I once knew three rare Tanagers sold to three separate and enthusiastic amateurs, as the "one and only one that had arrived." Of course, when the three friends met and compared notes, there were ructions, but, as the dealer told me, with a sly wink, "I was out when they called."

Sometimes great rarities are offered in the papers, and often by strange names. I once got hold of a Parrot Finch for a few shillings, described as a little green bird with a red head, and another time, it is many years ago, I was lucky enough to get a pair of Turquoisines for £2. I wish I could to-day. Lots of people bring over rare birds privately, or friends do for them, of which they don't in the least know the names, and sell them for a trifle.

I have found the big dealers I have dealt with good in trying to supply any given bird. They don't pretend to know everything, and are quite ready to take a hint from one who knows. I remember years ago that I wanted to get a hen Mocking bird, and one most generously sent me about twenty to pick from; and it was only one hen that I could discover in all the crowd. Now, that was what I call helping on science. In books nothing was said about how to tell a hen Mocking Bird. I only discovered by most careful observation. The hen has a green eye; the cock a gravel one; but how could I have found this out but for this dealer's kindness?

If you buy birds off brother aviculturists, you will probably have to pay more for them, but, of course, they will be acclimatised, and you can't expect to get such at the same price as newly-imported stuff; though I have met those that did, and who wrote quite indignantly that they could buy such and such a bird at so much from a dealer's list. I bid them go and do so. When you have purchased your birds, put them for a few days in a big box cage. It is a fatal error to turn them straight out into a big aviary, as not only do they seem to catch cold, but they do not seem able to find the food, till often it is too late. I suppose they are frightened at their new neighbours, and strange surroundings. I always hang the cage up on the wall of the compartment they are to occupy, and let them look around for a few days, before I turn them loose. Be careful also to see that their feet are clean and in good order, and if the claws are long and overgrown, be sure and cut them. Also pull out all broken flights and tails, and let these grow before you release them. It will only take about a month. Nothing looks worse than a ragged, shabby bird, shuffling about the floor and making frantic efforts to reach a branch.

In beginning don't be too ambitious. Buy something fairly hardy. Remember that you are preparing for no mere transitory display. You do not want birds that appear, as St. James says, "for a little while and then vanish away." You want something that will live. You don't want to say of your birds what Solomon said of the sluggard. "I went by, and lo! he was gone, I sought him, but his place could nowhere be found."

The One-legged Bird.

A lady who is in the habit of feeding the birds in her garden told me that for four years a Sparrow with only one leg has been one of a party of birds, chiefly Greenfinches. The Greenfinches always wage war, but are evidently too courteous to molest one too unequally provided in limbs to defend itself. Taken from "The Band of Mercy."—Sent by E. T. Wills, age 13, 10, Ashburnham-road, Northampton.

*A Mischievous Magpie.

A friend of mine had a saucy Magpie, which used to come to our school. When we went out to drill, he would come. When the schoolmaster used to say "Halt," he would imitate him. When the children used to cough he would do the same. He used to hide anything he could get hold of. Nuts he was very fond of, and would get them under his claws to crack them. When we were in school he would get on the window ledge to try to get in. He was a very saucy bird, but at last poor "Frank" was drowned. Sent by Tom Cook, West-street, Pembridge. Age 11 years.

* he Bullfinch Came Home

Father having a large workroom, set up a Greenfinch and a Bullfinch hen in a cage to see if they would lay any eggs, feeding them on the best of seed we could get, and different kinds of wild seed which could be gathered for them. The Greenfinch was quite ready to build a nest, but the Bullfinch would not finish the nest. Father, thinking the hen was not the right sort for nesting decided to let her go, so he took the bird out of the cage, opened the window, which was three storeys high, and let the bird fly out of his hand. It returned quickly to the window sill, hopping about quite happy. As soon as the Greenfinch missed the hen it called all the time. Forty minutes later the Bullfinch hen entered the room and my father closed the window.—MAY BEADNALL (age 13), 7, Albany Street, Middlesboro'-on-Tees.

Our Jack.

Jack was a fine healthy Jackdaw. I had it when it was about one month old, having bought it of a friend of mine. As he was passing through Belmont Woods he heard a slight creaking of the branches, as if something was falling. To his surprise he saw a young Jackdaw lying on the ground apparently dead. But as he picked it up it snapped at his finger. When I bought it I kept it in a basket till it became finger-tame, when I frequently let him loose in the garden.

Jack would perch himself on the topmost branch of a grapevine and shout. He always had a troop of Sparrows around him, as if Jack were the choirmaster and the Sparrows the choir. He would sit in the corner of the house on dull days, but on sunny days he was out of doors bellowing "Jack." I had him 5 years.—Arthur Wicks (aged 12 years), 141, Mason's Avenue, Wealdstone.

I have not missed a single issue of CAGE BIRDS since it came into existence, writes Mr. J. A. Stewart (Glasgow). I wish it continued success.

I have read CAGE BIRDS ever since its first issue, writes Mr. James Alexander (Lilliesleaf, N.B.). Allow me to wish it every success during the new year.

I have been a reader of CAGE BIRDS for some considerable time, and find it the best paper for the Fancy, and advise all novices to read it, writes Mr. J. Sharp (Ossett).

After thoroughly studying your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. E. Fenton (London S.W.), I have given a few of my previous numbers away to friends, some of whom are now regular readers.

BEGINNERS; You MUST read the ANNUAL.

The Management of Belgian and Scotch Fancy Canaries.

By THOMAS SMITH.

I have visited bird-rooms where the bottoms of the cages did not appear to have been cleaned out for a fortnight or a month, this creating a disagreeable smell. I am a strong believer in keeping the cages sweet and healthy, and this can best be done by having the bottom scraped every day, and by scattering fresh sand thereon. The trouble is well repaid, if for nothing else other than to see how the birds take to the floor of the cage and eagerly pick the sand. They are deprived of this when the excrement is allowed to accumulate for days and weeks.

If the cages are cleaned daily the birds become accustomed to it, and even in the incubating season they are not disturbed by it. A hen will leave her eggs or young for a few minutes during the operation, but immediately the cage is replaced she will return to her charges. So that the breeding or rearing need not suffer at all.

Where vacancies by death or other causes occur, no time should be lost in securing a replacement, for as the year advances stock is more difficult to pick up, especially in the Scotch Fancy section. And the difficulty is even greater with Belgians. It may be necessary to try breeder after breeder before a suitable replacement can be secured. But it is important to maintain the stud. The want of a cock bird or of a hen may mean a dozen less young ones in the season, which is a consideration. These are days when high prices are being paid and received for really first-class Scotch Fancy and Belgian Canaries, and there is every reason to believe that prices will even advance. And there is nothing to prevent anyone, even a beginner who perseveres, in course of time turning out stock of a kind that will be in great demand.

The Benefits of In-breeding.

In-breeding judiciously will help desirable points, and on that account is not to be despised. The first-class Scotch Fancy has a larger family than the Belgian, and may be considered freer than the Belgian from unwitting in-breeding, but it is sufficiently limited to admit of the assumption that in-breeding does exist where it is not suspected. In securing good qualities care must be taken to steer clear of in-born weaknesses, as where these are on both sides, the young may have transmitted to them a double share, and in that case the radiant excellencies secured by the in-breeding may be rendered worthless through the defects transmitted.

Where in-breeding is resorted to the greatest care has to be exercised, so as to get all the good qualities and avoid those that are likely to be a drawback. A fancier working with his own stock, or a strain he knows thoroughly, should have a fairly good idea of what will help and what will hinder. Where in-breeding is indulged in a full record should also be kept, so that the extent of the in-breeding may be exactly known. Strength and health should should be maintained at all costs.

Spring Cleaning a Necessity.

February is the month for spring cleaning. Nests and unused cages have been laid aside for months, and together with the walls of the room, and with the shelves, have doubtless become coated with dirt. To put everything in order the walls, ceiling and shelves must be thoroughly cleaned, but before doing so, the birds should be removed to safe quarters.

The first thing to do is to fumigate the apartment with burning sulphur, shutting the door, and closing all openings. This will exterminate all the small insects which may be about the room, cages, etc. It is most important to commence breeding operations without a single Red Mite, or kindred enemy in the vicinity. This can only be accomplished by going into the cleansing with a determination to do the work thoroughly; half measures will lead to sad disasters in the height of the season, and ultimate loss here as everywhere. The first trouble is the least and fanciers should use every available means to rid out all vermin.

A capital plan is to run the birds into spare cages, and give the breeding cages a thorough washing with moderately hot water and soap, into which carbolic fluid of some kind should be put. Every corner should be cleared out, and the wires burnished with a steel burnisher so as to remove all objectionable matter. In short everything possible should be done to kill microbes. After the cages have been cleaned, I should recommend that the seams and corners in the cage be painted with Jeyes' fluid in its full strength; in my experience there is nothing better for finally banishing Red Mites and other pests.

In washing cages care should be taken not to spoil the wood work, paint or varnish. Boiling water should not be used; many a good cage which would have lasted for years has been rendered useless by the application of water too hot. The object, to destroy Red Mites, could have been attained by the use of carbolic fluid. Cages should be well rinsed in clean cold water, and carefully dried with a cloth. They should be put upside down, minus the seed boxes, etc., and left over night. In this way all damp will disappear, and the cages will be ready the next day for being retouched up with spirit varnish. The nest board should undergo the same process.

Nests and their Renovation.

Some fanciers put by the nests to be used the following season, but I do not approve of that. At the end of a season it is preferable to burn the old nests, and get a new lot at the start of the new breeding season. A splendid nest can be made from list plaiding with the usual nest blocks; or the nests can be purchased complete at seed and bird shops. They should be of medium size, and stiff in the rim to ensure the nest keeping in its place in the nest board.

Eggs and young birds are frequently lost through Red Mites and other insects. Many years ago I was induced to paint the outside of the nest with Jeyes' disinfectant fluid in full strength and my experience was and always has been that the Red Mites do not harbour about the nests. This enables the hen to hatch and rear the young in peace, which has a great deal to do with successful breeding.

It is wise to have a few spare nests in case anything should go wrong with the ordinary nests. The Jeyes' disinfectant should be applied before the nests are placed into the cages. And having a strong smell, it should be allowed to pass away before the young appear, otherwise it would sicken them. I never personally got satisfactory results from insect powders.

Nest Boards and Nesting Materials.

For Scotch Fancy and Belgian Canaries in the way of nestboards, nothing equals the ordinary platform with one or two holes to fit the nests neatly. This, so that they may not be upset by a playful male, while the hen is away from the eggs or young; resulting as this often does in either being destroyed. A fairly broad platform with only one hole is without doubt the best. Should a very young bird happen to be pulled out by the hen (a very common experience) it would not get beyond the board, and could be easily discerned by a casual glance; thus saving injury which it would sustain by falling on to the bottom of the cage. Many young are lost in that manner. I never had satisfaction in using brackets; they are not so safe as platforms. By having duplicate platforms they can be changed and kept clean, sweet and tidy. It is worth the trouble, and helps to keep the old and young in health—a matter of very great importance to breeders.

The choice of nesting materials plays a far more important part than is generally supposed in bringing the pair into a forward condition. There are many kinds of building materials, such as cow hair, moss, etc. Moss is as suitable as any; the pair take a special delight in rushing about with it. In the spring of the year, particularly after a wet season, it gets into a dirty condition, and should be well washed in tepid water, and spread out to dry, before being placed at the disposal of the builders.

This requires work and time, hence my bringing in the preparation for February. It is a mistake to leave over everything until actually required, as this entails rush and a lack of that order which should prevail in a properly regulated aviary.

To reduce the chance of having soft or shell-less eggs, cuttlefish should be fixed into all the breeding cages in a place where it will be perfectly clean. The birds pick well at it freely in the course of a few days. After being supplied, it will be observed to have been completely rounded, the sharp edges being removed. It assists in shelling eggs, and as it otherwise helps to keep the birds in a healthy state, I recommend cuttlefish being available for the entire year.

Mortar from an old building is often used in its place, but cuttlefish is preferable, it being cheap, and easily obtained, and usually to be had from bird and seed shops.

Looking after Condition.

At no period of the year is it so imperative to look daily at the condition of the stock than in the months of February and March. Those birds which apparently are healthy and vigorous give little concern, and do not require the same care; still they should be carefully examined daily to see that normal condition is maintained. Birds are so constituted that even the healthiest may break down at any moment. Fanciers know what a break-down at the start of the breeding season may mean, probably the loss of a pair which is a sad disappointment indeed, not to mention the difference which it may make in the financial balance.

Birds in backward order should be specially treated. Over anxiety and being too generous may do far more harm than good, and it is wise not to be too anxious, but to bring the backward into better condition gradually. That can best be done by giving a little egg food twice a week, mixing eight or ten drops of the best olive oil into the food. The birds may not care for it at first, but they will come to like it. Clear out everything from the egg pan. Should the weather be open, and free from frost, dandelion roots may be gathered, and put into a basin of tepid water, afterwards being thoroughly washed, and fixed into the wires of the cages. The roots ought to be removed daily, and should not be supplied in a tainted state; they speedily become tainted when kept in water, so that it is absolutely necessary to keep up a fresh supply. Nothing in the early months of the year can excel wholesome fresh dandelion roots, the birds partake freely of them, and it is these which will bring them into splendid condition.

Parrish's chemical food is also helpful, and may be given either in the egg food or in the water. In the former case four or six drops may be mixed with the egg food. In the latter add just sufficient to colour the water. Various tonics are prescribed in the columns of CAGE BIRDS, and as no hard and fast rule can be observed (there being divers ills) these columns should be consulted every week, and where doubt exists, submit details of the trouble to your guide.

It may not be generally known, but it would be well to record that where there is special urgency, and the correspondent cannot wait till the next issue of CAGE BIRDS' advice can be got by direct letter. See directions in each issue.

Just a line to thank you for your valuable CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. W. Shorter (Highgate). I have been a constant reader for three years and I find it so useful that I would not on any account be without it.

CAGE BIRDS has helped me very much in my business owing to the good plates and sketches that are given with it, writes Mr. H. T. Gibsone (Croydon). My work is that of a taxidermist, and you will therefore understand what a benefit CAGE BIRDS has been to me in helping me to set the birds up properly.

ILLUSTRATED IDEAS

Under this heading we shall illustrate weekly some ideas useful to the bird-keeper. Readers are invited to send us particulars of any novel and practical appliance of use in our hobby, either in cage, bird-room or aviary, with a rough sketch of same where possible. Every "Illustrated Idea" used in this column will entitle the sender thereof to a postal order for two shillings and sixpence.

A MEALWORM HOLDER.

Sent by J. S. Cooper, Wellington Street, Matlock, Derbyshire.

I enclose a rough sketch of holder for mealworms, which I find is very useful. No. 1, shown below, is not in use; No. 2 is charged with worms, which you pass through between wires of cage up to bow, and these turn down flat to cross-bar or rail of cage. I find this much better and not so dangerous as pinning them to the perch, as the birds sometimes pull pins out on to cage floor when they have stripped the worms off, and then they are dangerous. In addition, your pin is lost next time you go round with your worms. This is the time when you get the benefit of a wire-holder, which is simple and easy to make. Get a piece of ordinary cage-bird wire, 16 gauge, and twist round a wood peg ⅛in. in diameter, to get the bow. Then reduce the end with a small saw file to go through worms. You then want a pair of small round-nosed pliers to get the bends, and twist to receive sharp point when charged with worms.—J. S. COOPER.

HOW TO CONVERT A BOX FLIGHT CAGE INTO A BREEDING CAGE.

Sent by H. G. York, 23a, Lidfield Road, Newington Green, N.

To those of limited means and who cannot afford a stock of various cages for their pets, but who possess a box flight cage, the following will be found of use. Make a box of thin wood, without a lid and bottom, five inches square and five inches deep. Cut out of one side a hole just large enough to admit a round nest pan, the ridge of which will prevent it slipping right through (see figure). Now cut a piece of wood, or, if you can manage it, a framed piece of glass, to fit in back of box. Hinge same on; that is the door. Most box cages have a door at the side; take that off. If it has not one, cut a hole large enough to allow of the birds getting through into the nest box. Now join the box on to your cage. There is your breeding-cage ready for business. A good way to join it so as to make it easily removable is to cut a strip of wood about six inches long; lay this across top of both nest box and cage, and screw on. Place a perch in your cage near the entrance of box, and your birds will be hopping in and out all day like mine are doing.—H. G. YORK.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

The Keeping of Small Foreign Birds in Living-room Aviaries.

By R. S. BERRY.

Having kept a few of the smaller foreign birds in an aviary situated on a table in a kitchen window, perhaps a few notes might induce others, who, like myself, have not the convenience for an outdoor aviary, neither have a room to devote entirely to birds, to try this method of housing a interesting group of birds, and noting their peculiarities and characteristics.

A Matter of Interest.

Of course I am not advocating attempts to breed under such conditions, but what is interesting is to note the changes that take place in the plumage of many of our feathered pets from other climes, and also to make a point of ascertaining what in the way of seed, fruit or greenstuff each bird or variety of birds is particularly partial to; by studying these things to be able to keep them in the best possible condition, and thereby derive the maximum of pleasure from their engaging ways. If people would only experiment more in this direction, and not be content to abide by hard and fast rules, they would keep their birds in much better health.

It is impossible to say with any accuracy, for instance, that a "Bishop" is particularly fond of one thing and a Cordon Bleu of another, for while it may be so in a few instances, a great deal depends upon the individual bird, for what dainties some may like above all others, other birds of the same species will be quite indifferent to.

As regards cages. We hear much said against the all-wired cages, but they are about the only suitable ones for the position indicated. To avoid a draught, I place a piece of cardboard or brown paper across that end of the cage between the window and the door of the room. It can be placed in any other position for the same purpose, as the birds do not like a current of air passing through the cage, and it is not at all good for them. If the cage is being made, the ends might be made of wood, and the top, back, and the front only wired.

Some Cage Fittings.

I make a point of placing the perches so that the droppings will not fall on the other birds, or into the water or seed. My seed-drawers run along the bottom of the cage from front to back at either end, and are both divided into two parts, one of which I always fill with the best white millet, another with Spanish Canary, and the remaining one with mixed seed. I always take care to put the same seed into the same spaces, as I can then more easily observe which is partaken of most by any one bird.

The bottom of the cage should be kept strewn with coarse sand, and should be cleaned out frequently, especially in the summer time, say, twice a week. Cuttlefish I supply between the wires at the ends of some of the perches. For bathing purposes, I hang on the middle door a good-sized bath, in summer filled with absolutely cold water, and in winter with lukewarm water. By hanging the bath on the centre door the seed is not so apt to get wet as if hung on a door near the end. During the warmer months, I usually give a bath every day, from about twelve o'clock until two, unless the day be exceptionally dull, in which case I withhold it altogether. In winter, about twice a week will be found quite sufficient. I also add a little quassia solution to the bath occasionally as a preventative against that pest, red-mite. Where a group of birds is kept together it is seldom if ever one has to resort to spraying, as the backward birds soon learn to look forward to the bath, when they see the more bold ones enjoying it.

In addition to the seed diet already mentioned, I like to supply the birds with plenty of ripe fruit, such as banana, apple, etc. For green stuff, I prefer a bunch of waving grass with a small sod of short green grass, or chickweed, some small leaves of watercress, or on rare occasions some lettuce. This latter commodity I have not much faith in, although I know many other fanciers are of quite a different opinion. I had almost forgotten to mention the value of providing spray millet. I often think that this prevents the birds from plucking one another, as they will search the sprays long after they are denuded of the seed. Then, also, I must not forget to mention the good which insect food will do these birds: that is, live insects or their larvæ. I have found a large moth to work wonders with an Orange Bishop a bit out of sorts. It ate some by holding the end of the body in its mouth and drawing out the contents after having first killed the moth by a sharp blow with its beak.

Birdy Temperaments.

I find most of the small foreigners enjoy being out of doors during warm weather, and it cannot fail to do them a vast amount of good if discretion is used. Of course, if troubled with cats, some precautions would be needed. As I am not worried in this direction, I leave someone who is, to suggest a safe-guard. When speaking of perches, I forgot to mention that they are all of different thicknesses, some round and others flat. By thus varying the perches, I do not think the birds are so liable to cramp in the feet.

My birds usually agree very well, and I notice that when any squabbling does occur it is not caused by the larger birds with the most formidable beaks, but usually by birds of the smaller waxbill tribe. I have a Crimson Eared Waxbill (Cordon Bleu) which is especially troublesome. It has taken a dislike to a Black-headed Mannikin, and I am afraid it will end in its getting solitary confinement for a week to see if that will cure it of its quarrelsome tactics. For birds that are in low condition a piece of stale sponge-cake soaked in sherry is very beneficial, or a little egg-food.

In conclusion, I would just say that because I write these lines, I do not wish to pose as an authority; I am only a beginner and what I have written are only observations I have made myself in conjunction with what I have learned by reading articles by persons who can claim to be authorities on the subject, and by carefully reading the "Replies to correspondents" column of our valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, which I wish the success it deserves.

The Gulls on Walney Island.

The Gulls upon Walney Island are protected by the farmer in return for the good they do by clearing his land of grubs and worms. Unfortunately they have many enemies and it is reported that in one year only about 20 young ones were reared from over 200 pairs of birds. The eggs were mostly taken by trespassers and other enemies.

Birds of Paradise at the Zoo.

For the first time in the history of the London Zoo two female examples of the great Bird of Paradise are on view. All the other specimens obtained by the authorities have been males. Imported into Europe last year the birds have lived in the aviaries of Sir Wm. Ingram, at Monte Carlo. That gentleman has now presented them to the Zoo. During the long train journey they were induced to take food, with the result that on arrival they were quite lively. The collection of Birds of Paradise now in the Zoo is considered the finest ever brought together.

The Singing Season.

Although yesterday was a cold, frosty morning, with the ground as hard as a rock, yet a Song Thrush was singing from the top of a tall elm, as though winter was already past. There is no denying, that the Thrush is one of our best, and most constant songsters. In this matter he leaves the big Missel Thrush a long way behind, for although this latter bird sings when the elements are not at all conducive to bird music, yet it is only just previous to the nesting period that this bold fellow sings so lustily. His singing at that time is so fierce, so vehement, that one cannot but notice it; it is an added charm to the countryside at a time when every day brings its addition to the beauties of the coming spring. But we never by any chance fail to notice the bold Storm Cock. Year after year the incident occurs. The big lusty bird perched high up in the topmost branches of the tree, day after day shouts his somewhat discordant notes. Hail, rain, or sunshine are all alike to him, the more inclement the weather, the more he sings. Without doubt, it was this member of the Thrush family that the poet had in his mind, when he said, "And thro' wild March, the Throstle calls."

Why is it the Blackbirds are so late in singing, compared with the Thrushes? They are big birds, feeding upon practically the same food, roaming together, frequenting the same meadows, the same hedgerows, the same gardens, in fact, almost living the same life. And yet Thrushes commence to warble directly the moulting sickness has passed, and sing more or less throughout the winter. We have heard many this season, but never a note from the Blackbird, and it will possibly be another month, before the rich melodious notes of the Ouzel are mingled with ... it is still winter, ... along the hedgerows that bid us hope for brighter times. The pointed buds of the ash have a plump full look about them, and the brambles show rich bright green at the joints, where the old discoloured leaves of last summer hang fluttering in the wind. Like us, they are waiting, waiting for the bright sunshine and the warm spring rains. And so are the noisy Rooks; these can now be heard a long way from the Rookery, where a lot of birds are gathered together. The noise is almost deafening. Although there is something very picturesque about a Rookery, with the sight of the busy birds flying in and out of the trees, it cannot be very pleasant to have them in the trees quite close to one's house. From now to the end of March they will be quite noisy. There is really no other word for it. Whatever they can have to say to each other all day long is a puzzle; possibly some of it is meant for Rook song. It is a curious kind of song, as we judge bird music, but there can be no doubt that every bird has a song of some kind, and there is no reason why the Rook should be an exception. We do not credit the Tit family with much in the way of music, but we yesterday heard a Greater Tit sing quite equal to, or, if anything, a superior song to that of a Chaffinch, about thirty yards away. To show how differently we look upon these matters (where we have no mechanical measure or standard, but only our senses to guide us) a book upon "Nature's Songsters" does not include any of the Tit family, but makes much of the Chaffinch. Again, a certain writer mentions the Blackbird as "a vulgar cackling nuisance," whereas the bird was a favourite of Jeffries, Tennyson, and others.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

A Dangerous Nesting Site.

An old nest of the Skylark almost intact was recently seen actually touching one of the sleepers of the railway. If one watches a sleeper while a train is passing it will be seen that as each wheel goes over, the sleeper moves considerably. One can imagine the plucky hen-bird sitting tightly upon her treasures while the rushing train passes over her and the very foundations of the nest move. This would be bad enough during the daylight, but at night it would be dreadful. The wonder is that the eggs were hatched at all in such a position, but they were, and the young were seen about between the rails for several days, the old birds constantly feeding them.

The Green Woodpecker.

The Green Woodpecker is the commonest of the British species, and yet strange to say is almost unknown in Scotland and Ireland. It is a fine large bird with a scarlet crown and grass-green plumage, with a patch of bright yellow at the root of the tail. Woodpeckers are rather shy birds, and one has some difficulty in observing their ways, although in the springtime their cry is frequently heard in the wood, and by careful stalking it is occasionally possible to get a good sight of them. There are some three hundred species throughout the world. They occur almost everywhere, excepting in the Australian region, and in Madagascar. The generality of them have attractive plumage in which black and white, and many colours are fine in contrasting one with the other.

Nesting of Buntings.

Yellow Buntings never appear to increase, although they commence to breed in the month of April, and eggs may be found as late as September. Who or what are their enemies? Do they on account of their colour, and their habit of sitting so conspicuously upon the topmost spray of the hedgerow, run more than the ordinary risk incidental to bird life? Whatever is the cause, we never see a big gathering of them. We do occasionally run against a flock of twenty or thirty birds, but these are generally spread over a considerable area. Certainly they are not very gregarious, but that is all the more reason why they should be seen oftener than they are. Although I am out and about I don't think I have seen one now for a fortnight, a fact which hardly applies to any other common resident bird.

The Feeding Lapwing.

The Peewits or Lapwings are dainty feeders, although to a casual observer the birds appear to be always eating. Yet this is not the case; they have a nervous habit of pecking ... especially if they think they are observed. This peculiarity is evident in the young at quite an early age. If one is caught, and then put down again, it will run a short distance, and commence pecking about in just the same manner as the old birds.

The Range of Magpies.

The Magpie is a persecuted bird in Britain on account of its pilfering habits and the damage it does to game in the breeding season. There are very few places where this beautiful bird can be observed at large. This is to be deplored, as few of our birds show such lovely contrast in plumage. In Ireland it fortunately appears to be slightly increasing. The country being more thinly populated gives it a chance to rear its young with greater security. It is a curious fact (of which we have proof), that this bird was not known in the Sister Isle until about 1670, when some escaped from a wreck upon the coast, and established themselves in the country. In some European countries Magpies are still tolerated and somewhat encouraged, as they were in England in times past.

PRACTICAL HANDBOOKS FOR BIRD LOVERS.

"AVIARIES, BIRD ROOMS and CAGES," their Construction and Management.

By H. NORMAN. Copiously illustrated with both Photographs and Sketches, Bound in Cloth and Gilt, 2/3 Post Free. This volume, the latest of "Cage Birds" publications, is absolutely unique in its design. The information given in it is on sound practical lines, and all fanciers whether large or small will find it most helpful in the housing and management of their feathered pets.

"HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL."

By C. A. HOUSE. Post Free, 1/2, Cloth Bound, 2/2. (Fourth Edition of "The British Canary"). This thoroughly practical book, the latest edition of which has been re-written by the Author. Superbly illustrated by the Champion Canary Artist, Mr. H. NORMAN. EVERY BIRD DEPICTED IS A VERITABLE MODEL, and shows the breeder what to aim for. Some idea of the popularity of this Practical Manual may be gathered from the fact that under the title of "The British Canary," it has passed its third Edition entering upon a Fourth Edition of 5,000 copies under the new title of "HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL." Mr. HOUSE has thoroughly revised and brought this work up-to-date and incorporated a chapter on the "Roller or Singing Canary."

"CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS."

By CLAUDE ST. JOHN. Post Free, 7d.; Cloth Bound, 1/2.
An exceptionally helpful, intensely practical and instructive handbook for beginners and tyros at canary breeding. It is profusely illustrated and contains innumerable hints helpful to all young bird keepers. In this handbook the reader is taken from the pairing up of the stock to the placing of the young birds on the show bench. It is equally applicable to the fancier with one or a dozen pairs.

"THE STANDARD WORK."

"YORKSHIRE CANARIES: How to Breed Manage and Exhibit."

Price, Post Free, 1/2, Cloth bound 2/2.

By H. W. BATTYE, President of the Yorkshire Union, and deals fully with the Yorkshire Canary and its sub-varieties, should be in the hands of every breeder. It gives the fullest instruction upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, Exhibiting, and how to treat both in health and disease. Illustrated by Messrs. H. Norman and A. J. Simpson. Among its most useful contents will be found a chapter on "Dont's." This of itself is worth the price charged.

"THE HYGIENE OF BIRD-KEEPING."

By Dr. CRESWELL, M.D. Post Free, 1/1.

"SEPTIC FEVER OR CANARY PLAGUE."

By R. H. CLARKE, M.D., M.A. Post Free, 7d.
A very useful booklet on this subject, which should be found in every bird-lover's library. Dr. Clarke has given the subject of this book very special study.

All about the "NORWICH PLAINHEAD CANARY."

By Mr. J. H. PAYNE. 1d.; Post Free, 1½d.
A Lecture reprinted from "Cage Birds," delivered by this leading judge and expert before the London and Provincial Ornithological Society, and pronounced by all experts to be a most valuable pamphlet.

ALWAYS USE OUR DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor for the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Unerossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—Three Words a Penny up to eighteen words, MINIMUM Fourpence. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Fourpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

THE MOST CRITICAL TIME

in a BIRD'S EXISTENCE is the BREEDING SEASON.

Breeding taxes the strength most severely. Unless the birds are strong, vigorous, and free from Disease, breeding will reduce them to a ball of feathers. Their offspring will be of no use, and therefore it will be a waste of time and money.

PANPASSINA.

Prevents and cures asthma, wheezing, loss of song, etc., takes the birds easily through their moult, and is an excellent winter stimulant. This speciality has built up a lasting reputation entirely on its own merits, invariably effecting a cure after every other remedy has failed. In tins, 7d. and 1/2, free. No bird room complete without it.—W. J. Hammond, 19, Anstey-rd., Coldharbour-lane, Camberwell, London, S.E.

BURROW'S LUNG TONIC.

Every man to his trade. Having worked with chemicals all my life, and being a well-known breeder and exhibitor myself, I have found this tonic successful in saving the life of many of our feather pets. It has had public test, and is used and recommended by all our leading fanciers for curing cold, wheezing, loss of voice, and asthma. It has been successful where others have failed. No bird room is complete without this wonderful tonic. Sent post free to any address, 7½d. and 1/- bottle; awarded two gold medals and five diplomas Crystal Palace.—Note address, Geo. MATTHEWS, LINNET KING.

Gentlemen, I am patronised by all the leading Exhibitors, Mulebreeders, Contest singers in England, and if you want the best selected British obtainable at working-men's prices, place your orders with me, as my stock is acknowledged the finest and largest in England by every Fancier who goes through my aviaries. Call and select your own; if too far away, send your money to the Editor, and your order to me, and pay when you are perfectly satisfied, and then place my special birds against any you have bought, and if not better at less price, all you got to do is to return them and have your money back. Gentlemen, I don't talk of nothing, but of nearly 100 dozen, so don't be misled and gulled by misleading advertisements when you can have any variety from me on approval; all I ask is one trial order, as it is impossible to get the same class of British birds at the price. Everybody has a cordial invitation through my aviaries, the largest in England, but see the champions first and then see mine, and you will never be more satisfied who keeps the largest stock and the best. If you want the best team possible, send at once; I have a grand lot of big, fine, healthy Linnets with nut-brown backs; well pencilled grand Norwich type, 2s. each; also a few of my large, giant, massive Linnets in perfect show condition, 3s. and 3s. 6d.; impossible to get better. I have also a grand lot well caged on song for Mulebreeding, with blood-red breast, deep nutbrown backs, giants, 2s. 6d. each. I have a grand lot of fierce contest birds in full song; been taught and trained under my old noted Cheshire Champions since August; fierce singers, 2s. each, with beautiful singing cage, instruction how to feed, also packet of special seed; 3s. lot. I have about a dozen extra grand songsters, 3s. 6d. each, also a grand selection of Twites; good large birds, well pencilled, nice thigh markings, deep chestnut colour, 1s. and 1s. 6d.; also a few specials as large as Linnets, fit for the keenest competition, 2s. each, bargains; Goldfinches, Goldfinches. Real Peartree Finches, with deep square scarlet blaze, well-buttoned and moned, nicely tanned, 4s. each; also a few specials for keen competition, 4s. 6d. and 5s. each; impossible to get English Goldfinches better. I have a few large Goldfinches for Mulebreeding, 4s. each. Bullfinches, Bullfinches. Real beauties ready for show, 2s. 6d. each. Yellow-backed Greenfinches as large as Thrushes, 1s. 6d. each; extra special large selected Bramblefinches, with good dark heads, well-speckled, nice thigh markings, well-tanned, 1s. 6d., also a few ready to win, 2s. 6d.; impossible to get same at the price; over 200 in stock. I have a few well-paired large Linnet and Norwich Canaries ready for muling, 4s. 6d.; and a few well-paired Goldfinches and Canaries, 6s. 6d.; a few paired for hybrid breeding; Bullfinch and Greenfinch, 3s.; Twite and Redpoll, 2s. 6d., or any other variety you require. Remember size and colour is what is wanted. Read what others say. From Twni Gasworks, Pontypool, Monmouthshire:—February 8th, Sir,—I got the Linnet safe; he is the best Linnet ever I had; he started singing the next day; I have kept Linnets for forty years, sir, and kept them twenty years in the Army, and this is the master of all. I have had it as a Champion, and a better Linnet for song cannot be got on this earth; money won't buy it, so use this as you like. —From Mr. Chick to the real Linnet King." From 13, Prospect Place, Keighley, Yorkshire:—February 10th. "Sir,—Send me another of your fierce singing Linnets; the other I got from you is a grand songster, and well satisfied." From Mr. Thompson to the Linnet King. From 20, Techinnack Terrace, Penzance, Cornwall:—February 10th,—"I received the team of British safe. Goldfinch Linnet Bullfinch; I am more than pleased with them; I have written to the Editor to forward your cash, 10s. 6d." From C. Bodemar to Matthews, birdcatcher. Gentlemen, does this speak of satisfaction; if not, call and read hundreds like these. All my birds are sent on seven days' approval; cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit; so state your wants to Matthews, birdcatcher, 44, George Street, Hyde, Cheshire.

HARRY ALLEN,
THE ORIGINAL LINNET KING.

Champion of all champions, patronised by all the leading exhibitors, Mule breeders and contest slugers. I have the finest strain in the world bar none. If you doubt my word look up back numbers of CAGE BIRDS, and see the prizes I have won and winners I have supplied. Gentlemen, beware of spurious imitations, they will not give you satisfaction. Mine never fail to please. Please remember when buying birds from me you are buying from one who thoroughly understands just what you require and not from one who copies advts., and sends anything out. I guarantee you a song any time of the day or night. Pay me a visit and hear my birds sing in your own hand. I mean what I say. I have won all England contests at Leeds, Bradford, Batley, Morley, Newtown, etc. I should like to see the prizes the other so-called champions have one. Don't be led astray, but buy from one who has proved himself a champion. I have the largest and finest Linnets ever heard. Big, fine cock Linnets, well pencilled, good nutty brown, very tame, 1/6 and 2/- each; extra picked birds, 2/6 each. A few extraordinary fine show specimens, real gems, 3/6 each; large giant Linnets, picked, specially for muling, 2/6 each; remember Sergeant Smith, of Leeds, bought three of these kind which bred and reared over 60 Mules, cock Linnets, singing beautifully in singing cage, a packet of my special mixture and instructions how to feed, 3/6 lot; all taught by my champion. Look for imitations. House-moulted Linnets in full song, specially trained by myself and ready for contests, 10/6 and 15/6 each, with cage. Cock Bullfinches with broad, black cap, good wing bars, etc., in excellent feather, singing day and gas light, 3/- and 3/6 each; hens are mulers, 1/6 and 2/- each; giant cock Greenfinches, like paint, real gems, 1/- and 1/6 each; Redpolls, Chaffinches, Larks, all in song, and fit for show, 1/- each. I have a few matched pairs, sure Mule breeders that will give satisfaction and prove a success to every purchaser. House-moulted Bramblefinch and hen Bullfinch 7/6; ditto and hen Canary 7/6; cock Linnet and Canary 4/6; cock Greenfinch and Canary 3/6; ditto and hen Bullfinch 3/6; house-moulted cock Goldfinch and hen Canary, bred Mules last year in excellent breeding condition, only 12/6; splendid typical, long, leggy Yorkshire cock Canaries, standard length, in full song, 8/6, 10/6, and 12/6 each; hens 3/6, 4/6, 5/6 each; pairs matched by an expert to breed winners, 12/6, 15/6 and £1. I have the finest collections of birds ever seen in any bird-rooms, contradictions defied. Having sold out of my book of secrets a few weeks ago, I had to have printed another thousand. Send P.O. 1/6 for one post free. All fanciers' should have one. It tells you how to moult. How to train for contests. How to make birds sing at one another with their wings down. What to do with birds off-song. The cause of soft moult and how to avoid it. Worth pounds to novices. Four packets of my special mixture 1/-. 28, Bay-street, Port Glasgow. Sir, received Linnet safe; he is a beauty; shall recommend you. A. McAleese to H. Allen, Linnet King. 43, Flush Heckmondwike. Sir, received Linnet and Bullfinch safe; am well pleased with them. S. Smith to H. Allen. 10, Munro-street, Stenhousemuir. Thanks for your honesty. G. Braidwood to H. Allen, 8, Paxton-st., Ferryhill, Durham. Sir, arrived home safe with bird; he is a picture. T. Burrell to H. Allen, Linnet King. Low Main-street, Dalmellington. Sir, I won 2nd prize with Greenfinch. I have had many offers for him. I told the fanciers' here that he was one of Harry Allen's 1/- worth. I am sure you will receive word from some fanciers' here. T. Hodge, to H. Allen, king of all bird kings. I have hundreds of testimonials. All my birds are on 7 day's approval; cash or deposit; no waiting; state wants; send your orders to the largest aviaries in England; pantomime talk of Leeds. "I will meet you at Harry Allen's Bird Stall in the Market, on Saturday night." Everybody welcome to hear the champion Linnet of the world. See singing results.—Harry Allen, Bird Specialist, City Aviaries, Beckett-street, Leeds.

Thousands of testimonials have been published by me in CAGE BIRDS from satisfied customers. I guarantee strictly honourable trading and satisfaction to all.—Varney, sole proprietor and importer of this remarkable Roller Canary. Twenty years advertiser.—Varney, Stratford, London.—St. Mary Abbey, Mill Hill, December 1st, 1901. Received the Hummel; it sings beautifully indeed. It sings sweetly, and oh so softly, all day, and I cannot imagine any bird with a more lovely voice; he begins, even these dark mornings, at 7.30, under his serge cover, and sings till 6 o'clock. Although his song is so lovely, it is beautifully sweet, he has no shrill notes, and I am able to read through it. Miss F. Blockett. December 1st., Southfelt, Poynton, Cheshire Received the Hummel, and am more than delighted with such superior song. W. Glover, to Varney, the largest importer of Rollers in London. January 8th, 1908, Sumner-place, Billinghurst, Sussex. Please send 12 good Hummel Rollers. I have six of your Hummel Rollers; all perfect Rollers. J. Leyland. January 16th, Sumner-place, Billinghurst, Sussex. I enclose cheque for the 12 Hummel Rollers. Am very pleased with them.—Mr. J. Leyland to Mr. Varney, Angel-lane, Stratford, London.

Pure Hartz Rollers.

Direct importer. The finest Seiferts strain from Germany, with pure Nightingale, Woodlark, Titlark, Waterbubble, and bell notes; marvellous songsters; 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/ each; on approval. Now, hurry your orders up for first choice. Hens, same strain, 2/- and 2/6. Wholesalers, write for terms. Hartz cocks, 6/-, two 11/-; hens, 1/9 each. Just a few testimonials picked from hundreds. These have come from birds I have sent hundreds of miles from Preston. Mrs. Downs, Chelmsford Road, Dublin, writes, Oct. 30th, 1907—"Thanks for the beautiful Roller. He arrived safely about 11 today, none the worse for the journey. He is a beautiful colour, and has a lovely voice. I like him well; he is singing over my head this moment. I want a nice cage for him; send on price of one." Mr. Glenny, Bachelors' Walk, Dublin, Oct., 1907—"Sir, am pleased with Roller, which arrived safe. He is singing continually night and day since he arrived. Scores of testimonials like this. If above not proof enough, send for catalogue and scores more testimonials. Mr. J. Patterson, Cork, Ireland—"Sir, I think it only right you should know that the Roller you sent me won the All Ireland Roller Singing Contest, held here November 8th and 9th." Mr. McConnodall, Greenock, Scotland—"Sir, received Roller and box cage safe; he was singing half an hour after I got him. He is the best songster I ever had. The cage is most suitable." Mr. H. Brooks, Wakefield, Yorks.—Sir, the Hartz Roller to hand. He is a splendid bird and sang under three minutes after caged. He sings in the gaslight; first thing in the morning. I have given twice as much for German Rollers not half as good as this from you." Proper singing Roller box cages, 1/6; enamelled inside and out, inlaid fronts, sand drawers; beauties, 1/10 each; approval with any; established 1879.

It's just as true to-day as ever.

That I possess the largest and best varied collection of Canaries in the world. It is utterly impossible for any person to stock such a collection, or I might honestly say, anything approaching it, where the output is not enormous. As to value for money, that is the main point, and my great forte. Whatever the price you pay, I endeavour to give the utmost possible, and if I cannot purchase right, who can? I never have resource to advertising for odd job lots, they are not in my line. I can show you an Exhibition every day—yet I can find good, healthy, properly matched Birds for the humblest circumstanced Amateur, and I give him just as much careful attention on an 8 6 pair as the largest orders receive. Why not? I give my whole heart to this thing and nothing else—and I absolutely take pleasure in doing my very level best for one and all, but I do not promise pounds for shillings, nor anything similarly impossible.

Crested Cocks. 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, 40/-, 60/- upwards. Crested Hens. 5/6, 7/6 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, to 60/- upwards Crested-bred Cocks. Clear Yellow. 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, 40/- Clear Buff, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 20/-, 30/- Ticked or Variegated, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/- Crested-bred Hens. Ticked or Variegated, 4/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/- upwards. Clear, 8/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- 30/-, 40/-, 50/- Green. 5/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/- 30/- Pairs Matched for Crest Breeding, one Crested and one Crested Bred 12/6. 15/-, 23/-, 30/-, 40/-, 60/-, 100/- per pair.

Free Illustrated PRICE LIST & CATALOGUE.

Remember, I can be found at Park Lane, as I neither buy nor sell under "bogus" names, how can you find people who do not exist, that is the trick of some of the phantom names—of course letters reach, that is another thing. Authors and Actors use professional names, that is all right, but if I asked you to believe I was someone else, that I think would be all wrong.

By Royal Letters Patent. If you have not seen a sketch of this Breeding Cage write me, I will send all particulars.

BOOKLET FREE.

Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all times to send my Parrots on four weeks' trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way I can supply grey talkers, not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my Booklet, entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial, at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

PARROT PROBLEM

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle," now containing 168 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four week's trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us, and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard.

LOWTON.

We opened the Shepherd's Inn Linnet Club on February 8th with a contest, and a good supper supplied by Mr. J. Boydell, who also gave us a copper kettle for the best bird. There were 37 birds, which sang, Mr. Howard, a novice, won the kettle. The other prize-winners were P. O'Neil, 2nd; G. Cowley, 3rd; J. Hatton, 4th; J. Bromilow, 5th; and J. Prescot 6th. After the contest Mr. J. W. Jones took the chair, and we spent a pleasant evening with songs given by Messrs. J. Pennington, H. Wood, F. Boydell, L. Jones, H. O'Neil, and D. Millington. We are having open contests every fortnight from February 8th, for time singing, and are hoping to have a good entry; quality contests also.—W. E. WILCOX, Secretary.

LEWISHAM AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

A goodly number of fanciers and friends attended to view an interesting bird-washing competition held on February 4th, at headquarters, The Roebuck Hotel, Lewisham. The competition was divided into two sections—champions and novices. In the champion section, Mr. E. S. Lugg won first prize his bird coming out in fine condition and being put through in a very quick and expert manner. Mr. F. W. Sullivan won second, running Mr. Lugg very close indeed; in fact, there was very little to choose between the condition of 1st and 2nd at the close. Mr. E. Steed won 3rd, his bird looking in fine condition when thoroughly dry. In the novice section Mr. F. C. Austin scored an easy 1st, his bird not being unduly tried and looking really fit after its tubbing. Mr. A. Scott took 2nd, his bird being well handled and washed; but he was longer in the performance, and the bird seemed slightly more exhausted. Mr. G. H. Phillips won 3rd. The judges were Messrs. Allen, Bellinger, and Edwards. Prizes were kindly given by Messrs. Hyde and Co., Ltd., and consisted of packets of their well-known seeds and Hartz Mountain bread, which were much appreciated by the winners. Schedule for pairs stock show on March 3rd was then drawn up, and on the proposition of Mr. Steed, a subscription list was opened for the purchase of a silver cup for competition in the society, 15 of the members present promising amounts towards same.—H. THOS. LUCAS, Hon. Sec.

CLUB REPORTS.

COVENTRY GODIVA C.B.S.

A general meeting was held on Feb. 3rd. The balance sheet of the show was read and confirmed. It showed the exhibition to have been a great success, especially seeing it was our first attempt at an open show. We finished up with a good balance in hand after meeting all expenses.—W. H. BRAY, Sec.

GREAT HORTON O.S.

A general meeting was held on February 8th. The balance-sheets for the past year and of the open show held on January 24th and 25th were unanimously adopted. The election of officers also took place, the most notable changes being that Mr. J. Mann was elected president, Mr. J. Holroyd secretary, and Mr. F. Hammond delegate, with Messrs Blakey and Simonett. Everything passed off satisfactorily.—J. HOLROYD, Secretary.

BURY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

The annual show was held on February 4th at the house of one of the members, Mr. Lord, Bridge Inn, Bury Bridge. A good number of fanciers and friends sat down to a hot-pot. In the course of the evening the company were entertained by the following artistes:—Messrs. Thomas Downs, T. Bowden, John Lord, A. Armstead, and T. Beesley. Mr. T. Hamilton was the accompanist. The chairman, Mr. J. R. Greenwood, presided. A vote of thanks to the vocalists was moved by Mr. Hall, and seconded by Mr. Brierley, and the host was thanked on the motion of Mr. G. Waring, seconded by Mr. W. Bentley.—J. E. HOLDEN, Assist.-Sec.

DARLINGTON C.B.S.

A pair show was held on February 5th at the club-house, and there was a large attendance of members and friends. Mr. A. Wash (Middlesborough) judged, and his awards met with approval. Entries came up well, and some good birds were staged. YORKS.—1 and 2, H. Carter; 3 and vhc, J. G. Stephenson; 4, W. Underwood. NOR.—1, M. Corner; 2 and 3, Holland; 4 and c, Allan and Richmond; vhc, Crosling; hc, Hy Carter. A.O.V. CAN.—1, R. Todd, Cinnamons; 2, Rutherford, Crest and C.B.; 3, W. Underwood, Green Borders. CAN. MULING PAIRS.—1, Rutherford; 2, Crosling; 3, Reeks; 4, R. Todd and Son; vhc, Hildon; hc, P. Carter; c, Stephenson. HYB. PAIR.—1 and 2, R. Todd and Son, Greenfinch and Bullie; 2, Linnet and Bullie; 3, Reeks, Redpoll and Bullie; 4, Rutherford, Greenie Bullie; vhc, Hildon,—E. BRUNSKILL, Secretary.

GRIMSBY O.S.

A special meeting was held at Grimsby on February 3rd to discuss the position of the club, owing to several of its most prominent members recently elected on the committee at the annual meeting, having tendered their resignations. These gentlemen have, during the past year, rendered valuable services to the society. After some discussion it was resolved, considering all circumstances, that the minutes of the recent annual meeting be rescinded. The election of a new list of officers for the ensuing year was then proceeded with, and resulted as follows:—Chairman, Mr. Stubbs; vice-chairman, Mr. R. Robinson; hon. secs., Messrs. W. H. Moore, jnn., and T. Crowston; hon. treasurer, Mr. H. Harding; committee, Messrs. A. Townsend, Metcalf, J. Cotterill, Clapham, W. H. Moore, sen., Geo. Dowie, Cartwright, Nightingale, Good, Way, Drayton and Pett; auditors, Messrs. Metcalf and Cotterill; hon. auctioneer, Mr. Harness. The balance-sheet of the society shows a profit of about £7 on the past season's working. The society decided that its membership roll should be open to all fanciers witbin the county of Lincolnshire.—H. HARDING.

INVERNESS O.A.

The annual general meeting was held in the Crown Mission Hall, Washington Court, on January 22nd. There was a large attendance of members and fanciers, and among them a number of new faces. Mr. Alex. Sanderson (president) presided. The secretary read the financial statement for the year, which showed a creditable balance, and which was also approved of. The election of office bearers was then proceeded with. The patrons were re-elected, and also the other hon. office bearers. Mr. Alex. Sanderson, the retiring president, intimated that he would not seek re-election, as he considered the honour should go round, and Mr. George Mackenzie was accordingly elected to that position for the ensuing year. Mr. E. Todd, jun., was elected vice-president, and Mr. Alex. Urquhart, who has for a considerable number of years performed the duties of secretary and treasurer with much acceptance and success, was re-elected secretary. The managing committee was then elected, all of them being well known and respected fanciers, so that the affairs of the association should be well looked after. An "at home" was held on February 5th, with a view to bringing the many novice fanciers in the town into contact with the members. On the motion of Mr. Sanderson, a vote of thanks was accorded to the auditors, Messrs. Jas. R. Craik and G. Macdonald, and, on the motion of Mr. J. Mackenzie, seconded by Mr. Craik, a similar vote was accorded Mr. Sanderson for his conduct in the chair that night, and for the businesslike way in which he had conducted the various committee meetings.

SOUTH WEST LONDON C.B.S.

On January 30th, at the Plough Hotel, Clapham Junction, the society had a special evening devoted to a table show and judging competition, confined to novices and amateurs, in the Yorkshire section. Unfortunately, it turned out a very wet and miserable night, and consequently several members were absent. However, there were about 13 Yorkshire birds or more staged, and eight competitors out of a goodly number of members present, all, of course, being in the highest expectation of placing the birds in the same position as the judge. Messrs. Cooper Bros. very kindly gave a nice silver and gold centre medal for 1st prize, and a silver one for second, and two shillings were given from the funds for third prize. Mr. Cooper first judged the birds, taking notes of each of his awards. Then followed the novices and amateurs, the results being that one of them, Mr. Graham, placed the first and second the same as the judge. Mr. Palmer placed his first the same as the judge, and it therefore resolved itself into who won the most points nearest the judge. Mr. Graham, first; Mr. Pocock, second; Mr. Palmer, third. The secretary then presented the prizes to the three respective winners. This over, Mr. Cooper next went into details as to why he placed the birds in their various positions. It also went to show how individual opinions differed amongst themselves. If that is so in a small table show, what must be the difficulty for a judge to officiate where there are 20 to 30 in a class? After many questions had been answered by Mr. Cooper, it was proposed, seconded, and carried that a hearty vote of thanks be accorded to Messrs. Cooper Bros., and a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman closed the meeting.—LILLEY, Secretary.

BLAYDON-ON-TYNE & D'ST. C.B.S

Usual monthly meeting, held on Feb. 1st, Mr. J. Hands in the chair. Secretary read correspondence re judges, and the election resulted in J. McLay, of Kirkintilloch, and J. Wilcock, of Bradford, being appointed as judges for our next annual exhibition on Nov. 6th and 7th. Four new members were enrolled. We have never failed to pay full members' prize money after meeting all other obligations, and with a balance to spare.—D. A. OGILVIE, Hon. Sec.

ROTHERHAM C.B.S.

The annual meeting was held at College Inn, on February 1st, when there was a good attendance of members. The chief business was the election of officers, which resulted as follows:—President, Dr. Wood; committee, Ducker, Greenfield, Turner, Bagnell, Oakes, Woodhouse, Stringer, Webster, Brotherton; chairman, R. Thompson; treasurer, G. Knowles. We received three new members in Messrs. B. Bailey, J. Smith, and that well-known Norwich breeder, Joe Webster, late of Nottingham. We are holding a stock show on February 15th at the Star Inn, Masbro; the judge is Mr. J. Webster, and the committee hope members will give a record entry. Birds to be staged at three o'clock.—J. C. HAYES, Secretary.

EDINBURGH ORNITHOLOGICAL O.S.

The Society met in Buchanan's Hotel, 114, High Street, Honorary President, John McLellan in the chair. The following gentlemen accepted office:—Honorary vice-president, Mr. D. Martin; hon. secretary and treasurer, Mr. William Thornton, jun., 192. Dalkeith Road; auditors, Captain J. Philp and Mr. Wm. Stewart. It was decided that the office bearers select a large committee, also a good list of judges to be approved and voted on at next meeting. Classification and prize-list for show to be held on December 12th and 13th, 1908, was fixed. Secretaries please note date of show, and avoid clashing of dates. A large attendance is requested at next meeting. This being all the business, the meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the President.—J. DRYSDALE, Acting Secretary.

LANCASTER AND DIS. C.B.S.

The annual meeting was held at the Market Hall Coffee Tavern, on February 5th. There were a good number of members present. The annual balance sheet was read, and after some discussion this was passed. It showed a loss of £6 10s. 11d. on the year's working. Mr. S. Mulliner, who has filled the office of chairman for many years, gave notice at the November meeting that he wished to resign the position at the end of the financial year. It was proposed and seconded that he be asked to become an honorary member for life, and this was carried unanimously. The following members were elected as officers for the ensuing year: Chairman, Mr. R. Mason; vice-chairman, Mr. C. Cafferty, senr.; treasurer, Mr. T. Swainson; assistant hon. sec., Mr. A. Harper; hon. secs., C. Cafferty, jun., 40, Primrose Street, Primrose; committee, Messrs. T. Fisher, J. W. Hinde, J. Haythornthwaite and Son, J. Mulliner, W. Pennington, W. Walley, and Wilkinson. It was decided to hold the monthly meetings on the first Saturday evening in each month. All enquiries regarding the Society should be made to the hon. sec. C. Cafferty junr.

PORTOBELLO C.B.S.

A general meeting was held on February 3rd. Business was hurried through, as the vice-president (Mr. Dunn) had promised to give an exhibition in washing Canaries. After business the President (Mr. Matthew) called upon Mr. Dunn to fulfil his promise, which he did in A1 style. Mr. Dunn proceeded at once with what turned out to be a buff Norwich hen. Mr. Dunn had invited members to bring the dirtiest birds they could find to be washed, a request which was granted by one member at least, who brought three birds that had been in an outdoor aviary all winter, so Mr. Dunn got what he asked for. He handled the birds in a masterly fashion, commencing with tail, flights, and back; then the underparts, leaving the head till last. He gave the younger fanciers many hints, which will no doubt prove very useful. After quickly dispatching two birds to the drying cage, Mr. Dunn invited any member present to try his hand on one of the remaining birds. This was taken advantage of by two less experienced fanciers, with fairly good results. Mr. Dunn then terminated his interesting exhibition by washing a crested cock, and this, too, he handled as only an experienced fancier can. Mr. Matthew, president, kindly lent his drying cage for the occasion, but, unfortunately, the lamp which heats a hot water tank beneath the cage had been overlooked rather too long, and, consequently, the desired heat was not obtained for some time. A hearty vote of thanks was then given to Mr. Dunn for his kindness, this being his second visit to instruct members in the art of washing birds. Mr. Dunn suitably responded, and a very pleasant and instructive entertainment was brought to a close.—J. LEACH and W. LECKIE, Hon. Secs.

CAMBRIDGE C.B.S.

The annual business meeting took place on January 29th at their headquarters in Guildhall-street, when there was a good attendance of members. Mr. A. V. Brooks (chairman) presided. In presenting his sixth annual report and balance-sheet, the hon. secretary, Mr. T. S. Moore, spoke in eulogistic terms of the manner in which the committee and members generally had supported him during the past year, and he was happy to say that success had crowned their efforts. The annual show, held in November, proved an unqualified success, both financially and numerically, no fewer than 633 entries being received, and the show, beyond all question, was the finest collection of cage birds that had ever been seen here. The balance-sheet showed that the society had in hand the substantial sum of £13 12s. 2½d.—The acceptance of the report and balance-sheet was moved by Mr. Gawthrope, seconded by Mr. Bainbridge, and carried unanimously. The following officers and committee were then elected for the ensuing year:—Chairman, Mr. A. V. Brooks; vice-chairman, Mr. F. Doggett; secretary, Mr. T. S. Moore, 126, Newmarket-road; assistant-secretary, Mr. J. J. Gifford; auditors, Messrs. Edwards and Rogers; committee, Messrs. Linsey, McQuarrie, King, Gawthrope, Bateman, Bye, Stiles, Dean, and Young. It was proposed that a two-day show be held in November, and after some discussion as to the wisdom of departing from the one-day fixture, the motion was eventually carried, the majority of the members present being of opinion that the society was now strong enough to carry out the show on a larger scale. It was also decided to remove the headquarters to the Forester, Burleigh-street, and that the monthly meetings take place on the first Wednesday of each month, instead of the last, as formerly. A hearty vote of thanks to the retiring officials and committee terminated the proceedings.—T. S. MOORE, Sec.

WALKLEY & DIS. AMATEUR C.B.S.

A special meeting was held on February 6th at the White Horse Inn, Creswick Street, for the purpose of hearing a lecture on the "Breeding and Rearing of Canaries," by Councillor F. Hemming. Mr. T. Ridal was in the chair. That the lecture was thoroughly enjoyed was quite evident, as everyone present was very attentive. Mr. Hemming strongly advocated judicious inbreeding, and it is his firm opinion, he said, that this is the royal road to success. He gave very good advice on the care and feeding of young birds. Other most practical and useful knowledge appertaining to general management was given. The meeting was then thrown open for questions, which were promptly and satisfactorily answered. On the meeting terminating, a hearty vote of thanks was accorded the lecturer by acclamation.—C. W. MARSHALL.

BELGRAVE (Leics.) & DIST. F.S.

The first annual meeting was held at headquarters, New Inn, Loughborough-road, on Feb. 4th. The auditors' report and balance-sheet were passed, and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, A. W. Emms, Esq.; Vice-Presidents, Messrs. H. Burgess and C. Fowler; Chairman, Mr. W. Hurst; Vice-Chairman, Mr. W. Thompson; Committee, Messrs. J. Burgess, J. Agar, H. Cook, C. Hubbard, A. Costello, G. Heare; Auditors, Messrs. W. Howgill and E. Kirk; Secretary, W. Riley, Assistant Secretary, Mr. W. Read. A table show of cage birds was held, judge Mr. W. Jodd. Result: 1st and 3rd, W. Hurst; 2nd T. Coddington. We invite any fancier to join, who is not a member of any other society.—W. H. RILEY, Sec.

KILMARNOCK C.B.F.C.

The annual general meeting was held on February 6th in the Temperance Hall, Mr. Wm. Guthrie, President, in the chair. The first business was the adoption of the balance-sheet for 1907, which shows a cash balance in hand of £7 5s. 4d. A vote of thanks was then accorded to the office bearers for their services during the past year. The following were elected for 1908:—President, Mr. W. Guthrie; vice-presidents, Messrs. John Noble and Andrew Mackie; committee, Messrs. J. Johnstone, Wm. Watson, G. Adamson, A. Bowie, J. Cram, J. Murdoch, H. Train, A. Gardner, and G. Blair; auditors, John Latta and Wm. Cowan. It was also agreed to have a series of lectures for the benefit of young members. This being all the business, a very enjoyable meeting terminated with a vote of thanks to the chairman.—R. McCAW, Secretary.

ORMSKIRK AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

A bird-washing competition was the principal business at the monthly meeting of the above society, held at headquarters on February 3rd, when there was an excellent attendance of members. The competitors set about their work in real earnest, and the "tubbing" process showed signs of being accomplished in record time with one exception, and that was in the case of an "animal" which proved to be a "jibber." It was consequently put out of the money. The judge (Mr. Thos. Johnson, sen.) made his awards as follows:—1st prize, Mr. G. J. Johnson; 2nd, Mr. Joseph Lewis; 3rd, Mr. John Field. The last-named gentleman would undoubtedly have obtained the premier award had not the judge mistaken a slight eye mark for a part that had been overlooked in washing. Four new fanciers were enrolled, adding to an already strong membership. Definite arrangements were made for the table show next month.—T. H. TIFFEN, hon. sec.

BRADFORD (East) O.S.

Through the liberality of our president (Mr. E. Suddards) we have been able to arrange a splendid list of prizes for our members to compete for at the five members' shows to be held this year. At the last meeting, held on February 4th, Mr. W. Cruise in the chair, Mr. Suddards kindly gave two gold medals for the winner of most points in the champion and novice sections, besides a donation towards the special prize fund. He also promised to give 10s. to the novice member scoring most points in the Yorkshire Union novice classes during the next winter's shows—a novel feature, which should prove of immense benefit to the societies holding open shows in the Union. It will also encourage novice exhibitors to bring their birds out. Mr. Suddards' idea is one that will readily recommend itself to all who have the welfare of the Yorkshire canary at heart. Mr. J. Stobart kindly promised to give a prize for the winner of second most points. Mr. A. Farrar has also given us another gold medal and a fancy alarm clock to swell the list of members specials, thereby repeating his generous offer of last year. A silver-plated tea-pot and several other valuable prizes were promised, and every member is entitled to compete for these, providing he keeps to the rule re subscription. The question as to whether we should have an open show this year was brought up, and it was eventually decided to run one. Although this may seem rather venturesome for a society only in its infancy, we feel confident of success, if the large number of fanciers in and around Bradford will rally round, and give us their support. Four gentlemen were elected to membership, this making the total 64.—H. HILL, Secretary.

NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE C.B.S.

Monthly meeting was held on Feb. 6th, at headquarters, Lockhart's, 65, Grainger-street, when there was a record turn-up of members and new members, 72 all told. Mr. J. Currah, chairman, presided, and put everybody in a good humour. The fixing of the date of our annual show was proceeded with. It was decided to have it on October 23rd and 24th. Mr. Slack proposed that we nominate judges and have a special meeting on Feb. 13th to make a final selection, having obtained these gentlemen's terms. It was proposed and carried that we engage the Cambridge Drill Hall for our next annual show, and it was also decided to keep the show open until 10 o'clock on the Friday night, so as to give the tradespeople a chance of paying us a visit. It was proposed and seconded that we have a first feather show, the date to be fixed later. Mr. Crawhall, secretary for the late social, gave a report of same, which showed after everything was paid a balance of a few shillings. Mr. Shepherd moved that the best thanks of the society be given to Mr. Crawhall for the able manner in which he carried out his duties as secretary. Sixteen new members were enrolled at this meeting, making twenty-four this year. "Let 'em all come!" The following are the names of the new members: Miss M. Marshall (the first lady to join our ranks), Messrs. T. Taylor, R. Lowery, Coltman, Park, R. Richardson, E. Elliott, Wylam, G. Reid, Vanner, W. Mackenzie, Petterson, T. N. Heslop, W. Coxon, H. Bailey, J. Scott, J. Bean, T. W. Gillinder, Robson, J. Waugh, and P. Brown. We have no limit as to distance and we invite fanciers to join us, especially "novices," who are well catered for.—Messrs. W. CURRY and J. G. HUTCHINSON, Secretaries.

CITY OF GLASGOW O.A.

The committee held a meeting on Feb. 6, Mr. A. Jardine presiding. A letter received from Mrs Cleminson, Preston, was read, thanking the society for the very handsome way he had been treated in the loss of his bird at our late show. Mr. Muir then brought up his appointment as Norwich Secretary, and expressed his desire to retire. After a good deal of consideration it was decided to accept Mr. Muir's resignation, with much regret, and to ask Mr. John Young to act. It was decided to hold the annual smoking concert on the first Friday of April. A vote of thanks to the chairman brought the meeting to a close.—A. MACDONALD, Sec.

PLUMSTEAD & WOOLWICH C.B.S.

The annual general meeting was held on January 23rd at headquarters, Holy Trinity Schools. It was a foggy night, which no doubt affected the attendance. A report from the secretary was given, which revealed a satisfactory state of affairs. A large number of complimentary letters were received, and several of which came from exhibitors at the open show. It was decided that in future the society shall be known as "The Plumstead and Woolwich Cage Bird Society," membership open to the United Kingdom. The following officers were then elected for the ensuing year: President, Rev. Geo. J. Bayley; chairman, Mr. E. Meades; vice-chairman, Mr. A. Best; treasurer, Mr. J. J. Collins, M.B.D.A., committee, Messrs. Allison, Hawkes, Borlase, C. Wood, Palmer and Putner; auditors, Messrs. Scott and Jones; hon. secretaries, Messrs. Pawley and Newnham, 18, Olven-road, Plumstead. One new member was elected. A Pair and British Show will be held on February 20th. Novices, who will be well looked after, are specially invited to become members.—W. PAWLEY, Sec.

CITY OF HULL C.B.S.

The first of a series of monthly members' shows was held at the headquarters, Oddfellows' Hall, Charlotte Street, on February 3rd. Some splendid pairs of birds were on view. There are two silver cups to be competed for, and points count at all shows throughout the year. Mr. Pepper, holder of the champion cup, scored well again for cup points. Messrs. Perkins and Spruit judged, and their task was not made easier by reason of a crowded room. CREST, Etc.—1, 2, 3, vhc, Calam. NOR. (16), 1, 2, 3, vhc, hc, Pepper; c, Barwick. YORKS—1, 2, Brumby. A.O.V.—1, Perkins. NOVICE NOR. (12).—1, Longhorn; 2, H. C. Oliver, 3, vhc, Russell; c, Riley. YORKS. (17).—1, 2, Stamford; 3, vhc, Parkes; c, Burell. A.O.V.—1, Whitesides. A.V. for CAN. MULE.—1, 2, Perkins; 3, Riley. HYB. PAIRS.—1, Perkins; 2, vhc, Riley; 3, hc, c, Pepper.

The meeting proper was held in an adjoining room. The balance-sheet for 1907 was presented by the secretary, and after discussion was passed. The following is the list of members' shows for 1908:—British birds, March 2nd; judge, Mr. Geo. Harland. Nest feather show, May 4th; judge, Mr. T. Perkins. Nest feather show on June 1st; judge, Mr. H. E. Stubbs (Grimsby). Half-day nest feather show, July 11th; judges, Messrs. W. Clews (Grimsby) and Medley (Hull); and full day show, December 26th (Boxing Day).—F. H. STAMFORD, Minute Secretary.

DULWICH O.S.

At the last committee meeting, held on Feb. 3, at headquarters, Herne Tavern, Forest Hill-road, S.E., the rules of the society were compiled, and the programmes for the year were arranged as follows:—Feb. 20th, Pair Show, Headquarters; March, "Management of Canaries during the Breeding Season," by Mr. G. F. Woolhouse; April, "Norwich Canary," by Mr. W. Morris; May, "Birds I require on the Show Bench," by a well-known Judge; June, Young Bird Show; July, "Birds I Have Kept," by Mr. T. W. Butt; Aug., Discussion on Moulting and Colour-feeding; Sept., Table Show of British and Foreign Birds and Hybrids; Oct., A, Washing Exhibition, B, Judging Competition (prizes to be competed for); Nov., Annual Show (open), Imperial Hall, East Dulwich, S.E.; Dec., Concert and Presentation of Prizes. Two country rambles will be arranged in May and September, the former will be in Kent and the latter in Surrey. Many new members were enrolled, and also many proposed for next meeting. We feel confident we have room for our new society and should like to call special attention to the fact that no entrance fee is required for members who join before March 31st inst. Membership is open to the United Kingdom; fee, 3/- per annum. Many prizes of exceptional value have been already promised for competition at various shows by well-known local gentlemen. To provide adequately for breeders and lovers of birds no expense is being spared.—A. E. ROGERS and C. L. S. MAZZONI, Hon. Secs.

WIMBLEDON AND DIST. C.B.S.

The annual general meeting was held at Mr. Johnston's Rooms, 6, The Broadway, on February 3rd, when Mr. W. H. Stoakley presided over a very considerable attendance. The report and balance-sheet were then submitted, the former stating that the committee considered the past year had been one of the most successful the society had yet had, and the latter showing a very satisfactory balance to carry forward of £6 15s. 11d. The chairman then presented a gold-centre medal which he had given for the most points gained at the judging competitions, held periodically by the society, to Mr. W. H. Colman, who took it with 48 points, the next highest being Mr. H. Smith, with 37. In connection with the election of officers, the chairman had to announce the resignation of the esteemed honorary secretary, Mr. Colman, who had been compelled to resign on account of business. Mr. Colman, he said, had always had the interests of the society at heart, and had performed his duties in the most business like, conscientious, and praiseworthy manner. He was sure they would all greatly regret that he had been compelled to resign, and would wish to accord him by acclamation a vote of thanks for the valuable services he had rendered. Mr. Colman, in reply to the vote, said no one could regret more than he that he had to leave the society, with which he had been connected since its formation, and in which he should always take an interest. He had been very pleased indeed to do what he had done during the three years in which he had been secretary, and he might say his work had been made much easier because of the excellent committee he had had to work with. The officers were elected as follows:—President, Mr. F. Piper; vice-presidents, Messrs. G. J. Warley, E. J. Lamb, and H. W. Birch; chairman, Mr. W. H. Stoakley; secretary and treasurer (pro. tem.), Mr. H. Smith; committee, Messrs. J. Carson, F. Day, E. W. Dell, A. H. Dyke, G. Griffiths, P. Rorke, and E. J. Whittome. A judging competition of British birds then took place, the final judge being Mr. A. H. Dyke. Points gained: Mr. S. Jordan, 14; Mr. G. Griffiths, 10; Mr. E. W. Dell, 9; Messrs. E. J. Whittome and G. J. Warley, 8 each; Messrs. G. Wyatt, H. Smith, J. Carson, A. A. Tutty, F. P. Pound, H. Brooks, and Mr. F. Day, 6 each; Mr. R. McLaughlin, 5; Messrs. F. Piper and A. Lupton, 3 each; and Messrs. W. H. Colman and P. Rorke, nil. A vote of thanks to the chairman, and he Mr. Dyke for acting as final judge, ended the meeting.

WHERE IS THE EXHIBITION NORWICH PLAINHEAD?

Among the six Norwich Canaries shown on this plate lies hidden one first-class exhibition specimen. Particulars of two Prize Competitions for readers who can unravel the puzzle as to which parts go to make up this exhibition bird will be found on page 153 this week.

The Green Canary.

By J. W. METCALFE.

Colour, an Important Point.

The Greens (unlike some other varieties) improve in colour as they grow older, or should do if you avoid Cinnamon blood. I know there will be a good many fanciers who will differ with me over this point. We have had some strong arguments over it in Liverpool, but the most successful Green Canary men are against it, so I think that is proof enough. I will admit they come out a good colour the first year on the ground colour, but just look at the wings. You will there find the bronziness which is the greatest detriment to a good Green. Do the Yorkshire fanciers go to the Cinnamon mark for their colour? I say, No; they go to the Cinnamon for their quality of feather. Do the Norwich fanciers go to the Cinnamon for their cock? They introduce heavily green-marked Norwich. A young Green has no chance along side of an old one for colour; but a man who breeds for colour knows his bird will improve every year. When one goes to buy his first Greens and wants all young birds, he cannot expect to get them a good grass green, like he would get in older birds.

Supposing you have a successful first year with your stock, and you have the good luck to breed a winner or two. Don't stop at one winner and think you have got at the top; you may easily come down at the next show, as perhaps it won't suit the next judge and you will be dissappointed. Don't hesitate in calling in a good authority in this variety, and asking him to pick out your best birds for show and stock. You may think you can do this without outside help; that is where many a fancier has made a mistake. He certainly does it to the best of his ability, but it would have been better to have had an older fancier's advice. Many a novice has sold a bird cheap, thinking it was of no use to him at the time, and afterwards he would have been pleased to have got it back at four times the amount.

The Faking Question.

Perhaps it's only right, while I am on this subject, to say a word on the so-called "Faking Question," in connection with square feathers. A man, before he rushes into print and condemns the whole of the Green Canary fanciers, should have had at some time or the other, some slight experience in breeding Greens. He could then speak on a subject that he knew something about.

I think the most unfortunate and uncalled-for action that has happened in cage bird keeping of late years was the disqualification for square feathers last year which made every Green Canary fancier in Great Britain, stand out as a rogue and a faker amongst the general body of breeders and exhibitors of Canaries and cage birds. If those gentlemen who started this "square feather" trouble, could only have foreseen the mistake they were making (seeing the trouble it has brought on the Greens), they would have been the first to have admitted their mistake. However, I hope we shall never see the same blunder made again.

A breeder of Greens cannot help getting these square feathers. Whether they are hereditary or come through a bad moult, he gets them at some time or another. They do not add to the beauty of the Green Canary. Far from it; but when a fancier gets a good show bird, and through no fault of his own, it contracts square feathers from some unknown cause, it seems a shame that it has to stay at home for fear of being disqualified. Some fanciers tell us not to breed with these square-feathered birds, and so save any further trouble with them.

But show me the fancier who would cast aside a good bird which has taken years to produce, for the fads of a few who have had no experience in breeding Greens. If the judges won't have these square-feathered specimens, let them put them down, the exhibitors will soon get tired of sending out for nothing. If one judge overlooks them, let the others do the same. It would be better all round. If there were faking over these feathers, there is plenty of rivalry in the Fancy in Liverpool to stop it. I may seem to be a bit outspoken over this question, but I am only voicing the feelings of ninety-nine per cent. of the Green Canary breeders. I shall take the Norwich Green as my next subject.

Chapter III.—The Norwich Green.

If ever there were an opening in any branch of the Canary Fancy for a fancier to take up and soon win his way to the top of the tree, it is in the Norwich Greens. New men come to the front every year in this variety, and the winners are fairly distributed.

I cannot pass over the time when Mr. Tom Ryno took all before him, and held the Green Norwich in his hands for over four years—a thing which I do not think will happen again. I sincerely hope it will not, because it does the Fancy no good when one man holds all the reins. Truly, there was not the competition in those days there is at present, and still there is great room for improvement.

There are not many good typical, and at the same time, well-coloured Norwich Greens being shown now, and that is why I say there is a grand opening for someone. Mr. Deacon, of Liverpool, is showing some grand birds of type and colour, and I am sure no Norwich breeder will contradict me when I say that Mr. Deacon holds the finest team of Norwich Greens that were ever in the hands of one man, taking into consideration the type and colour that are wanted at the present time.

A Difficulty and a Way Out.

I should advise anyone who is thinking of taking up the Norwich Greens to go in for four pairs, if his pocket will allow him to do so. Taking No. 1 and 2 pairs: naturally the majority of fanciers would advise getting a self-yellow cock and a self-buff hen. So would I if they could be got, but the Green men know it is next door to impossible to get a good yellow Green cock fit for stock purposes in Liverpool without paying a fabulous price for him. I want to show you a way out of this difficulty. Get in touch with a reliable man and get two self yellow hens, or two hens with just foul tails or foul in wing. Don't be put off with fair birds; get the best, for they will pay you.

For these two hens, I want you to get two heavily marked buff cocks of the present day type. Let them be massive in skull, because you will find your hens deficient in good head properties. I don't believe a bird should always win because it has a grand head and fails in other properties, but I will admit that a good head hides a deal of faults. Never mind how good a bird is, if it has a small head it gets put down. So you want to breed what the majority of judges are favouring. You can readily get the above cocks from a good-class Norwich breeder. I have seen many a good heavily marked bird out of the tickets that would have been a "Jew's eye" in a Green Norwich breeder's room. So keep a look out for these heavily marked birds.

No. 3 pair: You want a good coloured self-buff cock and a slightly foul yellow hen. There are plenty of grand buff cocks which you can get at fairly reasonable prices. You might not find them quite up to expectation in type, but they are grand coloured birds and this is what you want in this pair, because the selfs from the pair will go nicely with the selfs or the heaviest marks from 1 and 2 pairs.

You want this pair entirely for colour, so see that you get colour above everything else. You will find it most prominent at the cheeks, butts of wings and rumps. Avoid the birds that are too dark on their back; this comes from the Cinnamon, and will go darker every year, and will blot out all traces of green colour on the bird. You can pair self to self from any of the above pairs, without being afraid of getting the youngsters too dark, because they are bred light on one side, and this trace will keep cropping up.

THE BLACK-FACED SUGAR BIRD.

A rare and beautiful foreign bird shown at the Crystal Palace Exhibition by Mr. S. M. Townsend. It secured third prize in a strong class.

You may with every confidence pair the most heavily marked birds together, because I believe by pairing these they become nearer to selfs every year, and you may have the good fortune to breed a good self or two from these heavily marks. But be careful when you pair these selfs up again; don't pair either to a bird that is too light, or you will undo what it has taken two years to do. You may have to wait a year before your stock are eligible to go in Green classes, but when they do go in you will see a wonderful difference in type in your birds, to what is being shown to-day, bred direct from Greens. That is, of course, if you get the right stock, as I illustrate.

The lightly marked birds you can easily dispose of to a clear Norwich Fancier.

For Improving Type.

The fourth pair you must have of extraordinary type, quality and size, both to be heavily marked. The youngsters from this pair will come in handy for further improving your stock in type, which you might find lacking, especially if they follow the self birds you originally bought.

Naturally fanciers will wonder why I am introducing so much light blood; the reason is this: our judges are going in for type with fairly decent colour, and I say, if you want to win, you must put down what that particular judge likes, or you may as well keep your birds at home. You must study the judges. Some like large birds, others small birds of good quality. Should you not know what particular bird a man goes in for, if you enter four birds, send two small and two large ones, and you will not be far off the mark.

The only bird I know of that seemed to suit all judges, was Mr. Wm. Thompson's buff Green Norwich, exhibited nine times in one season. It took seven firsts and two seconds. But it does not fall to everyone's luck to breed birds like this one.

I think I have laid down the lines for the foundation of a good strain of Yorkshire and Norwich Greens, and with careful selection of the first stock, I don't think a fancier who takes up the Green variety will go wrong.

On General Management.

Taking the room first: get one with plenty of light if possible. I do not care how the windows are situated from any point of the compass, as long as I get good light, because I think light is life to a Canary. Put Canaries in a dark corner and you will soon notice they will go lumpy.

Having selected your room, always keep in the centre of it a bucket filled with a disinfectant of some kind. I do not care what brand you get as long as it is a strong one. This will always guarantee a nice smell in your room, as well as keep down any disease. Throw your egg drawers, drinkers, etc., into it every week, and give them a good washing. It also acts well in washing perches, and will kill the red mite that frequent them.

When selecting cages always get them so that you can use them to breed in. A handy size is 18 inches long, 15 inches deep and 11 inches back to front. Get your small flights twice as long as above, so that when you have got your stock of cages together they will look even, not as you see in some rooms, all sizes. This looks anything but creditable to the owner. If you have room and can afford it, get a large flight to run your stock hens into. It will also do well to throw your stock in previous to the moulting season. I have found a big flight a good remedy for a young bird with bad wing carriage.

Use all earthenware drinkers and egg dishes. Glass looks very nice and clean, but glass vessels soon crack if you wash them in hot water. Paint your cages with a good washable distemper, using any colour you fancy.

Throw all your hens into the flights until the second week in March, and then put them into the cages that they are going to breed in. Always give them a fortnight by themselves and keep them in the same cages for the three rounds of eggs; they do better in one cage than when shifted about. The cocks will be by themselves until you pair up, which should not be before the last week in March, and only then if the weather looks like keeping up well.

From now until you pair up, give your hens plenty of inga seed. This will keep them from egg-binding. I have given my hens inga seed three times a week, and I have had only one case of egg-binding, and this hen I bought in April. It is the general rule to keep the hens back as regards condition when the breeding season is near, but I keep my hens up to concert pitch all through the winter and spring, for as soon as you get a snap of cold or damp weather, down go the hens, while the cocks are singing as lustily as ever. So I think it pays to feed your hens well.

Matched for Breeding.

Taking it for granted your birds are in good condition at the end of March, hang the cock for a few days in a Yorkshire show cage in front of the hen you want him to pair up to. This will save a lot of fighting when they are put together, and they will commence their duties sooner. Previous to pairing up, cut a little of the feathers away from and around the vent of each bird: this will help to fertilize the eggs. You cannot say how soon the hen will lay. I have had them lay in a week, and they have sometimes taken a month, but should it be the latter, don't separate them, except the hen looks bad. Let them go their own sweet way; nature will help them.

Hints for the Breeding Season.

By J. PATTERSON.

Some Tips from an Old Hand to the Young Beginner.

In about another week she may be expected to lay again. Then you should treat her in exactly the same manner as before. Set her, and if the young are on the perch remove them along with the cock into a cage of the samo size; and with the Border Fancy Canary, never forget to have an old nest in one of the platform holes for any that may not be so forward and may need a rest. They either go into the nest, or into a corner at the bottom of the cage. If they take to the latter they will always be dirty.

You will now find the need of a good feeding cock, whether separated or not, as the hen when once set down, seems to think her duty to the young is finished, and leaves nearly all the feeding to the cock bird. Some cocks are but poor feeders, and cannot finish off a brood by themselves; and in that case they should never be separated from the hen, or the young may die for the want of proper attention. I think they sometimes seem to know that their mother has the softest heart, and chirp and worry her until she does feed them whenever she happens to leave her eggs. And anyone who studies their movements must see for themselves that they are a great worry and annoyance, and in most instances spoil the clutch of eggs, she is sitting on. In such cases they should never be left with her, unless the cock proves a failure.

Where the cock is not a good feeder and the hen plucks the feathers out of the young, it is the best plan to put them in a small nursery cage. This should be hung on to the front of the breeding cage with a spar running along the front, so that the young may be fed by the hen through the wires. These wires should be bent back a little opposite the end of the spar in the parent's cage, so that they may get their heads through to feed the young.

It will also be found in some instances that a hen will not feed her young. This arises from various causes, but mostly from a very nervous temperament, and such birds should be as little disturbed as possible. If at any time you need to handle them, you must speak kindly to them, and tempt them by a fresh leaf of green food. If you are not satisfied with the amount of food the young are getting, assist the hens last thing at night by giving the young a good feed by hand. Chew a little egg food well and let it remain in your mouth long enough to have mixed with the saliva. Then take the nest and young ones out and hold in the left hand. Take the food out of your mouth and place on the left thumb, and with a quill or a sharp-pointed piece of wood try and feed them by putting a little on the point, and dropping it into their mouth when they open it. This is a tiresome job where you have to continue long, and I would never advise it all through, as the chicks so fed are nearly always small, puny and abject-looking. But I have saved many nests of young by feeding them for the first three or four nights.

My reason for advocating feeding at night is, firstly, that they are much stronger in the morning and more able to hold up their heads when their mother rises for her breakfast, and by their holding up their heads they remind her that they want to be fed also. Secondly, a hen never fails to return quickly to her nest at night-time when disturbed; if you were to disturb her in the day time she might not return until her young are chilled through.

If she fails to feed them with your help, you must place them under some other hen who may have some young of about the same age. First mark them, as stated, or you may have a nest of eggs clear or addled.

When the young are 30 days' old they will be able to feed themselves, and may be removed from their parents' care. Continue to give them the same feeding as they were receiving from their mother, until they are between six and seven week's old and then gradually wean them off the egg food, and substitute seed, scalded at first, and afterwards slightly crushed.

Another point which may perplex you, is that of young ones being thrown over the nest. You must keep a watchful eye on the bottom of the cage for the first four days, and if you find one has been thrown over replace it if lively under the hen. If, however, it seems to all outward appearance dead, take it as gently as you can into the palm of your hand, and blow your warm breath upon it, well under the wing; keep blowing for a few minutes and you may be astonished to see some slight symptoms of returning life. After it begins to wriggle about replace it under its mother, and the next time you see it you may not know it from its nest mates.

The same may be applied to eggs. The hen may rise and leave the eggs just previous to being hatched. Although she may have left them for an hour and although they may be cold to touch, if placed under another hen they will hatch out all safe and will possibly survive.

Some Hints on Using Egg Food.

When you have finally put your birds together, give them egg food on alternate days, and, if you have not an egg mill (there are many on the market), get an old fig or cigar box, or you can make one yourself by cutting four pieces of wood, one inch thick, five inches long, and two broad. Nail them together into a square, and you will have made a handy frame measuring five inches one way and three the other, inside measurements. Get from some plumber a piece of perforated zinc to the above measurement, and fasten it down with small carpet tacks. Then select from some old box a piece of deal containing a large round knot. Cut exactly at the end of knot, with a small saw; then, at the other end, about six inches above, cut it through. Now take your knife and smooth it off round the knot; then cut out the handle to hold by. You have now formed a rare spatula to press the egg through the sieve. The knot, being hard, wears longer, looks better, and is easily cleaned; and moreover, does not make such a scraping sound as an iron one sold for this purpose.

Feed on the same lines until the hen is set, then cut down the egg food and rape to once a week each, until the thirteenth day (or the night before the young are due to hatch), then give her a good supply of egg food in the earthenware drawer, also a little hemp seed cracked slightly by rolling a bottle over it. Most seed mills, unless set solely for hemp seed, crush it and mix both kernel and husk together, and leave it more liable to get stale than when only slightly cracked. After the young are hatched, you must give the egg food fresh thrice every day, also hemp seed, and increase the supply as the size and age of brood call for it, being careful to leave none stale or sour in the drawers. The latter should be cleaned out every time you put in fresh, and scalded in warm water every other day, so they may be always sweet and clean.

Remove, whenever occasion allows you, all the stale egg thrown out on cage bottom. Especially must you do this when once the young are able to leave the nest, and are running about the bottom, as young birds are like children, always trying everything in their mouths, and I have no doubt they are pleased in their own little way with anything, although stale and not very agreeable to their tastes, simply for the novelty of having picked it up themselves. Such stale food partaken of by them thoroughly upsets their stomachs, and often ultimately results in their death. The same remarks apply to decayed green food, which must also be removed whenever convenient.

Green Food, and How to Use it.

The most suitable green food I find to be watercress, then dandelion, then lettuce, and until the season advances to give us the seeded chick weed, mouse-ear, and plantain, we must be content with the leaves of the three former. I therefor give the first, until about the second week in April, when the young leaves of the dandelion are nice and green, and very much relished by the old birds. It should be in nice condition when the first brood of young makes its appearance. I find young birds thrive very strongly on dandelion. Both this and watercress must be washed by running some cold water over it in case there is any frost on it, which is very injurious to both young and old birds.

I continue with the dandelion as long as I can find it fresh and tender. Afterwards use the lettuce, which I have always sown, and large enough to use when the dandelion fails me. And, when out for a walk, either Sunday or Saturday, after the various seeded herbs are ripe, I never return unless with a supply that will serve my stock for a few days. Another good plan to ensure a fair supply is to keep on friendly agreement with your boys, if you are blessed with any; if not, there are always plenty to be hired very cheaply. Encourage them with you when out for a walk, and, as at this time there are always plenty of wild birds' nests in the hedgerows and fields, give them all the information they ask concerning them; also, let them see the kind of seeds you want, and you may be astonished to find a good supply awaiting you every night you come home.

Some fanciers do not give green food for the first three days of the chick's life. I never form any hard and fast rule, but only pay attention how each hen feeds her young, and also the state of her droppings. Then you can form a fair idea where it has to be restricted. I have found some hens would not feed until they got green food, so I think where anyone makes this a hard and fast rule, they must lose many a nest which they might have saved with its use. I also keep giving it to the young, after they leave their parents—only in more limited quantity, and being more careful to remove any left—until they start to moult. I know however, some breeders will not agree with me here.

I think I have now touched on the general run of disappointments, at least the largest of them. You must do according to your own discretion in minor events. Spend a few minutes amongst your birds, and by a process of reasoning you will fathom their cause; and I have no doubt if you put your mind firmly to it, you will always find a remedy.

Scarcity of Hen Blackbirds.

I have lately been closely watching the Blackbirds visiting the garden, and notice that although we have several day after day, they are all male birds. Is it possible that the hens have migrated, or are they more shy than their partners, and so keep to the hedgerows and open fields? When out for a good long ramble yesterday, through parts where these birds were plentiful, we only saw one hen bird, and that was in a garden attached to a small cottage in quite a lonely district.—H.N.

HOW TO JOIN TWO BOARDS FOR A CAGE BACK.

Sent by John Gillott, 46 Hut, Dinnington Main Colliery, Near Rotherham, Yorks.

I was in a friend's house recently, and saw he was a bit bothered about joining two boards together with glue for a cage-back. I told him how I join them, and thinking it may be useful to some more fanciers, I send the idea to you. One piece of wood 2ft. long and 1in. square, and two more short pieces, 2in. long and 1in. wide by ⅜in. thick; two further pieces ⅜in. square tapered off one way for wedges are all that are required. The illustrations are sufficiently self-explanatory. The method is a cheap and easy one, and ensures good work. JOHN GILLOTT.

A SUGGESTION FOR A SAFETY SHOW-CAGE.

Sent by C. H. Lower Chesham, Bury.

(Will C. H. send his full name and address.)

In reference to safety show-cage I herewith forward an idea which I think would be a surprise to the bird-stealer. When he sees a cage such as I suggest he will have a hard nut to crack, or rather to unscrew, before his efforts are rewarded. What is required to complete this design I shall try to explain. You first of all will require a steel rod about one-eighth inch in diameter to reach from front to back of cage, and turned at the end, as seen in illustration. Next get two screw-eyes; these must be screwed on the ends of cage door—inside, of course. Then drill a little hole in back of cage opposite the eyes in cage door, so that the rod will come about a quarter of an inch through. The rod must be threaded at the end for a little nut to be screwed on, by which the rod is tightened up, and your bird is safe. By this device the thief will have to go round to the back of the cage; he will also need a key to fit the nut. He would be easily detected, as anyone with common-sense would know that he would not go there to look at the birds. C. H.

The Art of Cage-Making.

By A. W. CURTIS.

In order to get the right article when purchasing new tools, the wisest course is to have them from a first-class tool-shop. Don't on any account buy new tools at those establishments suggested for the purchase of second-hand ones, as new tools sold at such places are often of an inferior quality and practically useless. On the other hand, the old tools are often those that have been disposed of by mechanics in distressed circumstances, and can be frequently found in good working order.

Fanciers buying new or second-hand tools bearing the names of makers such as Buck, Marples, Moseley, Nurse, or Sorby will not go far wrong, providing the would-be purchaser exercises a little judgment in his selection of the second-hand article, for there is a vast difference between good, workable tools and those already worn out, and therefore useless.

On the Use of Planes.

Before starting out to purchase your kit it would be best to get some friend in the wood-working line to consent to accompany you, to select the articles you require, as a practical man can tell almost at a glance if the tools are likely to be of any use to you.

A good plane should have a double iron (see Fig. 18), whereas common planes, as a rule, are provided with a single iron, as shown in Fig 19. Fig. 20 shows cutting iron with top iron removed, this being necessary before the former can be sharpened.

Before explaining how to sharpen an iron, it will be as well to instruct those who don't already know as to the correct way to draw, or remove, the iron from a plane. First of all take the jack-plane in your left hand, placing your thumb in the mouth and your fingers down the side and under the face of the plane; keep the end of your thumb below the wedge, and allow it to rest on top of iron. Take the hammer in your right hand and give your plane a sharp blow or two at the spot indicated in Fig. 21. You will find this loosens the wedge sufficiently to enable you to remove it and the iron from the plane.

Fig. 22 illustrates where to use the hammer on a smoothing plane when drawing an iron. The thumb on left hand should be placed in the mouth of plane in just the same position as that described in the case of the jack-plane. The object of this is to prevent the iron jumping out too suddenly. When drawing a smoothing-plane iron take care to always strike the back end of plane which is behind the iron; and on no account use the hammer in front, as you would for jack-plane. Having succeeded in drawing your wedge and iron, lay the former on the bench face-side upwards. Next lay your plane-iron flat down on the wedge, with cutting end towards thick end of wedge, and head of screw uppermost, and then take your wide-pointed screwdriver and insert it in the cut of screw. Turn your screw towards your left, and when loose enough you can remove the top iron and leave the other, with slot in it, ready for sharpening.

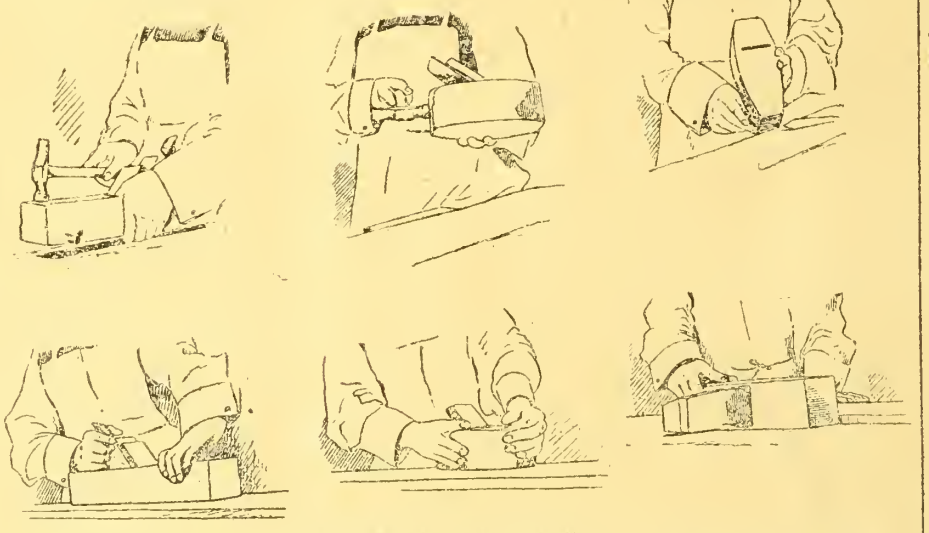
To sharpen an iron properly will require a little practice and a certain amount of patience, and unless your oilstone is in pretty good order, you are not likely to be very successful. Your oilstone should have a nice, level surface. Naturally you will expect this in a new stone, but very often a second-hand one that has had some wear will be found anything but level and true. This difficulty can be easily overcome by placing one or two handfuls of silver sand and water on a York stone pavement and rubbing your oilstone backwards and forwards face-downwards in the sand and water. Don't be afraid of a little elbow-grease, as the stone, being of a hard nature, will require pressure, especially if the oilstone is very bad. Take a look at your stone occasionally to see how you are progressing, and when you find the holes have disappeared, you can say your work is finished. Be careful to wash off all sand that may have adhered to sides of stone during rubbing down process. When clean and dry, a few drops of neat's-foot oil, or a few drops of sweet or salad oil should be dropped upon the stone, when it will be ready for use.



THE USE OF THE PLANE.

Fig. 21, Removing iron from jack plane. Fig. 22, ditto from smoothing plane. Fig. 24, Setting the iron. Fig. 25, Correct way to hold jack plane. Fig. 26, ditto smoothing plane. Fig. 27, Shooting edge of board.

How to Sharpen Plane-irons.

Now take the cutting-iron in your hand and place it on the stone as shown in Fig. 23. See that you get the bevelled side towards you, facing your body, as it were. Don't hold your iron too upright, but let the top lay over well towards your body. A good plan will be for a novice to note how much his iron is out of upright when in its proper position in the plane. It will be necessary to keep it even more on the slant when sharpening than when in the plane, otherwise you will soon have your iron thick where it is wanted to be thin. The thinner you keep your iron the less often it will require to be ground.

When you have your iron on the stone in the position shown, press it fairly hard on the stone, then rub it backwards and forwards, taking care not to push it or draw it off the stone, for by doing this you are likely to gap your iron. When you think you have rubbed long enough, turn your iron over and lay the face quite flat on the stone, and give it a gentle rub or two just to take off the rough edge. By passing the tip of your finger or thumb (lightly) along the edge (just as you would try the edge of a knife), you will be able to tell when your iron is sharp enough. If edge is not keen, go through the same motions as before, until you have satisfied yourself that you have the edge required. Then take some shavings or a piece of rag and wipe the black oil off your iron, or it may spoil your work.

Now put your top iron on and slide it towards sharpened edge of cutting-iron, until you can see about one-sixteenth of an inch of your cutting-iron left. Then tighten up screw as much as possible with the finger and thumb, so as to prevent top iron slipping out of position when laying them down on the wedge, as in the first instance. Then take the screwdriver and tighten the screw, being careful this time to turn screw towards your right.

Now pick up your irons and look at them as described. If you find top iron is too near edge of cutting-iron, take the hammer and give the top end of cutting-iron a light knock or two; this will draw your top iron back as far as you like. If, on the other hand, your cutting-iron projects too far beyond your top iron, knock your top iron down by hitting on top edge of screw-head which holds your irons together.

Re-fitting Plane-irons.

The next thing is to return your iron to the plane; this should be done as shown in Fig. 24. Take the plane in your left hand and the irons in your right, holding the plane in the position shown. Look down face of plane, and then push the irons up until you can just see the very smallest particle of edge peeping through mouth of plane. Place the left-hand thumb in mouth of plane (low enough down to keep clear of wedge) and press iron towards back of plane, keeping it in that position until you have pushed in wedge to hold it there. Then take a hammer and tighten your wedge; don't overdo it, or you will have to do a lot of hammering when you want to withdraw it again.

If when beginning to plane you find there is too much iron out, give a light tap with the hammer at the same spot as you would to draw an iron. If there is not sufficient iron out, lightly hit the top of cutting-iron which stands above the plane wedge. Fig 25 shows the right way to hold a jack-plane, and Fig. 26 the correct way to hold a smoothing-plane.

*A Blind Canary.

My father keeps birds, and I am a great lover of them. A few years ago, we had a blind, yellow Yorkshire Canary. This Canary would perch on one's finger and would whistle as hard as it could. Some would wonder how it got to its water and seed. It used to run its beak along the wires until it got to the seed or water hole. One day, my mother was giving it some seed and forgot to shut the door. However, the bird got out, and wherever it got to we do not know. We never saw any feathers about, so we could not accuse the cat. I am sending drawings of two birds, a Hawfinch and a Crest Canary.—F. E. Kemp. 270, Girlington Road, Bradford, Yorks.

*A Captive Starling.

Not long ago two Starlings built their nest in the trunk of a tree that had been cut down some time previously. There was a small cavity on the top of this trunk, into which the nest was built; the eggs were hatched. A little later the fledglings were all able to leave the nest but one, and by the time it was ready to fly small twigs had grown over the nest in such a manner that the young bird was a captive. The opening was just large enough for its head to get out. For weeks the old birds fed it and took care of it as best they could, until some workmen who came to remove the trunk found the poor little prisoner and set it free. It was fat and healthy, and almost full grown. The old birds flew about during the liberating process, screaming with delight. One wonders how long these faithful creatures would have gone on feeding their unfortunate offspring.—Sent by James Stewart (age 15), Annette Street, Crosshill, Glasgow.

*An Artful Magpie.

Mrs. Lee describes an artful trick which a Magpie, kept in the family of Mr. Ranson, was observed to play. A toll-gate stood near, and he was fond of watching the movements of the toll-keeper's wife. When he observed her to be employed in making pastry, he would perch upon the gate, and would suddenly cry out, "Gate ahoy!" If the husband was absent, as was frequently the case, the wife would hurry out to open the gate. Magpie would then slip in and snatch a bill-full of the pie-crust, chattering over it on the roof of the gate-house, with the greatest glee. Taken from the book of Animal Stories. Sent by Elliott Tilley (age 11), 84, Station Road, Gorsty Hill, near Halesowen.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

THE Palace Show is now a thing of the past, and once again a magnificent entry has been accorded to the management. The Yorkshire classes were exceedingly well patronised, and the White Rose, as of yore, has captured practically all the spoil, once more upholding the prestige of the county. The "long" birds of the South do not seem to have made much impression on the judges, quality, the predominant feature of the Yorkshire, again "holding the fort."

GREAT HORTON O.S. held the first of their members' shows for season 1908 on Saturday last, and a nice entry was obtained, seventy birds facing Mr. J. Hartley, the elected judge. A schedule of eight shows is being issued, the last on the list being held on Boxing Day, and all shows are to count for the valuable specials offered for the season's competitions. British, etc., are also provided for, one class at each of the next six shows, and three classes at the Boxing Day show, each section, Hardbill, Softbill and Mule or Hybrid having equal turns in the run for prizes.

SINCE the close of the shows the secretaries of the various societies have been busy counting up the points and sorting out the winners of the several competitions, and probably all, or nearly all, of the lists of fortunate ones will be published in the columns of this issue.

IN last week's notes mention was made of a proposal being on foot for the prize distributions of the four societies whose headquarters are at Bradford (the Yorkshire Union; Y.C.C., C.M.Y.C., and British Bird, etc., Clubs) being held on one and the same evening, and I am pleased to learn that the arrangements are making headway. The date will probably be February 29th, and all fanciers and friends can assure themselves of a hearty welcome and a pleasant evening amongst the birdy men.

THE report of the secretary of the Bradford and County British Bird and Mule Club, Mr. W. R. Myers, at their recent committee meeting, was quite an interesting one. The members have put down a good percentage of the birds at the shows held under the club's patronage, and have captured a good many of the prizes. In the open section, the winners of special prizes for points gained throughout the season are:—1st, Mr. E. Mason, Windhill; 2nd, Mr. J. Edmondson, Allerton; 3rd, Mr. Inman, Bradford; 4th, Mr. W. A. Cowgill, Bradford; 5th, Mr. T. Boyle, York. Novice Section: Mr. D. Duncan, jun., Harrogate, is the leader, Messrs. Dean and Jowett, Great Horton, second; Mr. T. Wood, Allerton, third; and Mr. W. R. Myers, Bradford, fourth.

STRAIGHT 'UN."

It was my getting hold of a specimen copy of Cage Birds, writes Mr. G. J. Ellis (Fulham), that induced me to start keeping birds as a hobby three years ago. But owing to a change of occupation, I am now forced to give them up, as I am out from early morning to late at night, and have no time to see to them, although I shall still remain a reader of your bright interesting paper. And wish Cage Birds continued success.

The Novices' Notebook.

This page will consist of topical hints, addressed chiefly to beginners, concerning every branch of the hobby of bird-keeping, and the notes will be contributed from time to time by various leading experts.

The Cages.

Although we have consistently advised the complete destruction of the cages infected with the disease, there are sure to be cases where one thinks such treatment too drastic, or where the cages are considered too good to be thus disposed of. For such, we can only hope that the work of disinfection will be as successful as it is thorough. The same mode of procedure as given for cages before will do, but in this case again the solution of corrosive sublimate should be used to wash out the cages prior to distempering. Give three coats to each cage and brush it all over inside and outside. Then before applying the distemper, well wash over the cages with pure water, lest any appreciable quantity of poisonous substance should get worked up into the distemper for the birds to peck off and consume.

All Other Appliances.

Wooden nest-boxes, being cheap, should be burnt unconditionally. Seed-boxes may also be dealt with in a similar way, as they are by no means expensive to buy, and any handy person can easily make them for himself. The rest, large as well as small, that are in any way portable enough to be so treated, should be boiled as before explained, but in this case keep them boiling at least twenty minutes, after which, if sufficient precautions have been taken to provide against contact with any of the contaminated articles, there will be a very fair chance of starting afresh without any further trouble from the disease.

When the Cleaning is Done.

We have all doubtless heard enough of this cleaning topic for the present. Its vital importance, which cannot be gainsaid, is the only—yet a sufficient—excuse for so much being said. But now we may assume that all this work has been completed, or at least that the end of it all is within view, and that we may turn attention to the birds themselves.

When the birds are returned to their usual quarters in the room, it is best to place the hens in the position they are intended to occupy for the breeding season. From this it will be seen that we prefer introducing the cock to the hen, and not the reverse method. By placing the hens in the breeding-cages now it gives them time to become familiar with their surroundings before they are paired, and this will indirectly serve another useful purpose, or rather several, which will appear presently. The cocks will be best kept out of sight of the hens, especially if either sex is in fresh condition, as to be within sight as well as earshot of each other will invariably prove a stimulus to their sexual instincts, and aid in bringing them forward more rapidly than would otherwise be the case.

If there is no other convenience for them, they may be kept in the upper or lower tiers of cages, in the same stack as the hens. At a pinch, where double breeding-cages are used, the cock may be kept in one compartment and the hen in the other, provided the solid sliding partition is kept in place, and the small wired space at the bottom of the partition is covered over.

The Feathered Audit.

Such a thing as a yearly audit of one's live stock may not appear of much use. But it is as a convenient term to describe the debit and credit of one's stock of live birds, as against the convenience for housing them and their probable offspring later in the season, rather than in its usually understood sense, that it is used here; and the method just mentioned of drafting the hens into their breeding quarters is a great help in showing the breeder at a glance what his space and other conveniences are likely to accommodate. This done, it is very advisable to clear out at once all that are not required. To keep them a few weeks longer is simply allowing them to soil clean cages for no good or useful purpose. It is a wise policy to aim at keeping one's available accommodation a little in excess of the stock kept, instead of trying to crowd as many birds as possible into the space at disposal. Now, in carrying out this kind of audit, do not forget to provide for the increase.

What to Provide for.

In estimating for this increase, one cannot be expected to have sufficient foresight to get anywhere near the exact truth. There may be only a mere doubling of the stock at the commencement, and although that would be but a very poor season, it still means requiring sparo accommodation when you begin for just as many birds as you put up to breed. On the other hand, trebling the stock twice over is, with a fair amount of luck, quite a possible event, and not a record breaking one, either. But to take a fair average which any beginner might hope to secure, one may reasonably calculate on each pair of stock birds rearing four young. On this basis a breeding stock of, say, ten pairs will rear a motley crowd of no less than forty young, so that it must be readily seen that if no provision is made for spare accommodation at the beginning of the year, there will be a shocking amount of overcrowding before the season is over, and one ceases to wonder at a Nemesis arising in the shape of infectious disease to carry off the congested population, or at insect pests becoming a real menace to its health and well-being.

Take Note of Condition.

While engaged in this distribution of the birds, it is a good plan to pass them all through the hands. As a rule I am by no means partial to handling the birds more than is absolutely necessary, but it is very useful at times, as handling them reveals the condition of the body infinitely better than any amount of looking at them as they hop about the cages. It may be that an apparently fair-conditioned bird is in reality getting quite emaciated when one examines it in the hands. Therefore, every bird should be thus examined about this time, and the stock mentally sorted out into three rough classes. The first should be the birds that are in a plump, but not fat, condition, with nice, firm, muscular breasts. These will be in fine, hard condition, so let well alone. The second class will consist of those specimens which are thin and emaciated, with sharp, prominent breastbones. If they appear bright and healthy, all that is necessary is to feed them a little more generously on fat-forming foods for the next few weeks in order to make them more plump. In doing this, do not omit to add a little saline aperient to the drinking water once or twice a week whilst they are being fed up.

Next will come the class of birds with large, full, and flabby breasts, with bloated, stodgy abdomens, and large flakes of coarse fat to be seen lying along the flanks. The birds will probably be too fat to do much good in the breeding cage until they are reduced.

Reducing the Birds.

But do not adopt any drastic purging treatment, as is sometimes advised for such birds. Reduce their proportion of fat-forming foods to a minimum, and let them subsist mainly upon plain Canary seed and green food or fruit. If the latter is given to any appreciable extent, see that it is of a soft, juicy nature—grapes, oranges, and the like. The reason for this should be obvious. Apple, carrot (though not a fruit, this generally fills the same purpose), and banana, are in reality nourishing foods in themselves, and if partaken of liberally a bird might easily subsist on these alone. Keep them fairly loose in the bowels by small and frequent doses of saline aperient, with now and then a dose of twelve drops of syrup of buckthorn, and at the same time alternate the doses of laxative medicine with ten-drop doses of aromatic sulphuric acid to tone up the digestive organs. Give this about twice a week. Allow plenty of space for exercise. Lastly, be careful not to reduce the birds too much. Remember that you want the birds to be in a plump condition when starting to breed, but any suspicion of fatness or flabbiness is to be avoided, if possible. Nice plump breasts, just, as it were, on the border of laying on superfluous fat, but still firm and muscular, is the prime condition for starting to breed upon.

Trimming Birds up for Breeding.

It will also save time and trouble, as well as the necessity of catching the birds again later on, to do any necessary trimming which the birds may require at this time prior to breeding. In a general way very little trimming is necessary, in my opinion, and that only exists in very profuse and densely feathered varieties. Lancashires, Crests, and Crest-breds and similar breeds may require just the flowing tips of the flank feathers, and in some specimens, the lower tail coverts shortening a little, but I am no advocate of disfiguring the birds by close trimming, and do not believe such trimming is really necessary.

Crested birds, especially those with long, flowing, large crests, which partly obstruct the sight, should have the sides of the crest snipped off to above the upper margin of the eye, in such a way as to give the birds the fullest benefit of the light. This, of course, is a rather serious disfigurement, but it may be done neatly so that the unsightly effect is reduced to a minimum, and there is the probability that the effect of giving the birds unobstructed vision for a few months in each year serves a useful purpose in helping the birds to retain their sight for a longer period than they otherwise would.

Points to be dealt with.

Finally, the beak and claws are points of some importance in more senses than one. They will frequently be found much overgrown, particularly in birds past the second moult, and even in last season's birds the claws often have points as sharp as pins, although the claws themselves are quite short, and in no way overgrown. These sharp points are a decided menace to the safety of the eggs when the birds are breeding, and are frequently the cause of the eggs being "pin-holed" or pierced with small holes during the period of incubation quite accidentally and without malice on the part of the birds. To cut them is quite a simple matter, if you get a very small pair of scissors. A pair of sharp nail-scissors are excellent for the purpose. Do not, however, try to do it with a pair of large, clumsy scissors, as it is most difficult under such circumstances to avoid taking off just a little too much, and great care is required to avoid snipping off a claw and part of another toe at one snip.

To do it properly, take the beak first if it has a sharp point on the upper mandible projecting a little way beyond the extreme tip of the lower mandible. Hold the bird in the left hand, place the first joint of the forefinger underneath the beak, so that the lower mandible rests just on, or in, the bend of the joint, then place the thumb firmly on the front part of the top of the head. This will keep the beak closed, and held firmly in position on the forefinger. Now slide the nail-scissors over the sharp point on the upper mandible until you feel them touch the tip of the lower mandible, and snip off what is between the blades. To finish neatly, wipe the side of the scissors, which is furnished with a small file, across each side of the tip of the beak to remove the sharp edge which may be left after cutting. The mandibles will now be found to fit nicely, and if these instructions are carefully carried out, you will never cut a beak close enough to cause bleeding, and the whole operation is absolutely painless—as painless, in fact, as cutting your own finger-nail.

Still, the necessity for cutting birds' beaks can be almost entirely avoided by keeping them always provided with a piece of cuttlefish to peck at. Do not expect to see a large piece come off. The tip of what appeared to be a vastly overgrown beak is but a tiny morsel when cut off.

Trimming the Claws.

Having trimmed the beak, turn the bird round and lay it with its back on the palm and its head towards the wrist. Hold it firmly with the three fingers across its breast, and keep the thumb and forefinger at liberty. With the thumb and forefinger of the right hand withdraw one foot at a time and place it in position between the thumb and forefinger of the left hand, so that the whole foot is held securely with only one claw at a time—the one that is to be trimmed—projecting from the fingers' tips. Hold the claw in front of a strong light, and you will clearly see how far the blood circulates down the claw. If the feet are washed clean to begin with, it will help you to see more clearly how far the "quick" of the claw extends. Cut them off to within about a sixteenth of an inch of where the "quick" appears to end, not nearer, or it will make them bleed. Wipe the cut edge off with the file, as before, and treat each claw in the same way.

In the case of young birds with pin-like points on the claws which are not really overgrown, do not cut them at all. You cannot take off even what seems to be a microscopical portion with scissors without causing them to bleed a little, and it is not necessary to cut them. It is sufficient to blunt them by just gently wiping the file on the scissors across the ends of them, or drawing them across a small flat piece of pumice-stone, or even a small piece of very fine sand-paper, folded into two or three thicknesses, so that the claw can be wiped gently across the flat surface. The whole operation will take far less time than it takes to read this description.

To Settle down for Business.

The birds after this stage will be in the best possible condition for settling down to the serious business of the year without any further disturbance at all, beyond being put together at the proper time. No further handling need be attempted, and it is a decided advantage to get all the work over now, as the birds have still plenty of time to get over the disturbance and become perfectly accustomed to the new order of things.

MAKES BIRD BREEDING EASY.

This "BREEDING ROOM REGISTER & BIRD KEEPER'S ACCOUNT BOOK' (copyright) offers in a handy form a means of keeping—

- The complete pedigree and description of every bird in one's room.
- A full record of the season's breeding experiences
- An account of every young bird reared, and how it was disposed of.
- A register of one's doings at the shows (the most complete and useful yet devised).
- A cash account for the year.
- A profit and loss account of the season's proceedings, and a balance sheet showing how much one has invested in the hobby.

A series of Registers will thus furnish a concise record of the career of a fancier as a breeder and an exhibitor from year to year, or over any number of years.

Many useful Emergency and other Hints will also be found in its pages.

Tits in the Orchard.

The whole family of Tits are exceptionally fond of the orchards; some say they do considerable damage, destroying the buds and fruit. Of this I am not quite convinced; that the Tits will eat buds there is not a shadow of a doubt, nor that they will also devour hundreds of insects. And one is inclined to think it is the insect life that attracts them to the fruit trees the whole year round, for they are quite as frequently seen there during the winter, when neither fruit nor bud is there to destroy as at any other time. It will be seen that it is the old lichen-covered trunks, with the rugged bark that receives most of their attention, and this is the place where the insects hide.—H.N.

The Housing and Keeping of Foreign Birds in Captivity.

By WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

The Abyssinian Black-Headed Canary or Siskin (Chrysomitris Nigriceps). — This species (Serinus nigriceps of Capt. Shelley "Birds of Africa") is very abundant throughout the cultivated districts of the Abyssinian region.

Adult male: Head and throat, black; upper surface, except the mantle, olive-yellow; mantle, brown with yellow margins to each feather; rump, yellow; wings, black, with coverts more or less edged and tipped with yellow, forming a double wing bar; tail feathers black, narrowly edged with yellow; under-surface of body, yellow suffused with greenish on the sides and flanks; beak, legs, and feet, blackish. Total length, 5in., tail 2in.

Adult female: Much duller in colour, upper surface, deep brown, streaked with darker brown; head, brown; throat, dusky; under-surface, pale yellow; sides of body and flanks, washed brownish, and the latter streaked with blackish.

Ruppell's Masked Canary or Siskin (Chrysomitris Citrinelloides). — Another Abyssinian species, found in the Highlands and Kilima-Ujaro in Eastern Africa.

Adult male: Upper surface, yellowish-green, streaked with black; wings and tail black, more or less edged with greenish, yellow and ashy; lores, sides of face, cheeks and chin, dusky green; sides of neck, back of crown and throat, bright yellow, the latter streaked with black; centre of abdomen also bright yellow; remainder of under-surface, yellowish-green; beak, horn colour; lower mandible pale brown; legs and feet, blackish brown. Total length, 4½in. tail 1¾.

The Cape or Totta Siskin (Chrysomitris Totta).—According to the late Dr. Stark, this is the only South African representative of this genus, and that it is of somewhat local distribution—abundant in some localities, absent from others equally well adapted to its habits. It mostly frequents bush-covered hillsides, and appears to prefer hilly to level ground. Its food consists of small seeds, buds of trees and insects. The nest is placed in a bush usually 2 to 4ft. above the ground, and is built of grass stems, rootlets, and fine twigs, lined with down and sometimes a few hairs. The eggs are 4 or 5 in number, pale bluish-green, sparsely spotted with reddish-brown.

Adult male: The upper surface is chocolate brown, streaked with darker brown; rump, yellowish; upper tail coverts paler brown; wings and tail, brown, with white terminal edges to the flights and tail feathers; crown of head and sides of face, dull olive-yellow, the latter tinged with ashy; throat and under-surface of body, olive-yellow, with a few blackish streaks on the throat; sides of body and ventral region, ashen; beak light brown; legs and feet, brown. Total length, 5in., tail 1 9-10th in.

Adult female: Similar, but browner almost entirely lacking the olive-yellow areas of the male, and more thickly spotted with blackish on the throat and fore-neck.

With this species I must leave this genus, exigencies of space forbidding even the briefest description of the remaining species. Those described are those which are the more likely to reach this country. None of this genus have yet been bred in this country, and they are most desirable acquisitions either for cage or aviary.

Genus: Sycalis.

Sycalis: This genus consists of five species, viz., flaveola, columbiana, pelzelni, arvensis, and luteiventris, all of which are known to aviculture, the former being perhaps one of the most popular and best known of foreign birds; arvensis is also fairly often to be obtained, the other two species less so. They are all hardy, and can be kept out of doors all the year round, while as to food and treatment, the usual seeds, a little soft food and an occasional mealworm or other insect will suffice to keep these handsome birds in the best condition and plumage. The first named is, to my mind, the most handsome of the quintet, it is also the most freely imported and consequently cheapest.

The Saffron Finch (Sycalis flaveola). —This, the Canary of Brazil, is very abundant, and ranges over practically the whole of the South American Continent. In habits and demeanour it closely resembles the English Chaffinch, especially as regards its violent courtships and swooping flights from one end of the aviary to the other. With all the numerous individuals I have kept, the hen never accepts the male's advances at first, and his attempts are pressed with such vigour and viciousness that many females are lost as the result of such violent wooing. Once paired, however, I have never experienced any trouble with them afterwards. Many individuals are, however, very unsafe in a mixed series, owing to their pugnacious demeanour, especially to closely related species; I have both seen and heard of many such; yet, though I have had a good number of these birds pass through my aviaries in the course of years, I have never possessed a quarrelsome bird.

Its song is lively, the notes are very high and gritty, but when heard at a little distance not altogether unpleasing. Their natural breeding season is our winter, and a pair brought into a warmish kitchen and placed in a good-sized box cage would doubtless follow their natural instinct and breed. During the winter also my birds have always been brighter and ruddier in colour than they are during the summer. A pair at the present time (January) are in very rich colour and finest plumage, but, being out of doors, of course breeding is not permitted. At any time their brilliant colouring and vivacity make them pleasing and desirable inhabitants of an outdoor aviary. I suppose I must qualify this, and say that beauty of voice is ha, not, neither rarity; therefore, their progeny, though fairly numerous, are not remunerative, being worth but little more than the imported birds.

Adult male: Upper surface olive yellow, with darker centres to the feathers of the mantle and upper back, lower back, rump and upper tail coats yellow; tail feathers blackish olive, edged with yellow; top of head and hind neck, olive yellow; forehead and fore part of crown, bright saffron-yellow; lores, sides of face and entire under surface, bright yellow; sides of body tinged with olive; beak, horn-colour; legs and feet, brownish-flesh. Total length, 5¼ inches; tail, 1⅞ inches.

Adult female: Somewhat similar, but more yellowish green above, and the yellow of her under surface is not nearly so rich in hue as that of the male; also, her forehead is only lightly tinged with saffron.

The British Museum Catalogue gives a sub-species: S. jamaicæ, which is similar to S. flaveola, but is brighter and more uniform yellow above, while the bright saffron-yellow of the crown is continued to the nape. Its beak also is much darker than that of flaveola. It appears to be local to Jamaica.

The Yellowish-Backed Finch S. columbiana (lutcola).—This rare finch, to which I have given the above vulgar name, possibly comes to hand with ordinary Saffrons, which it closely resembles. This is probably the case with both sexes, though the British Museum Catalogue states that the female is unknown; not having a skin to hand, I herewith give the British Museum catalogue's description of the male: "Similar to S. flaveola, but smaller in size, with the back uniform olive-yellow, and the quill-lining narrower and pale sulphur-yellow or yellowish-white. Total length, 4.3 inches: tail, 1.5 inches."

Habitat: Venezuela.

Pelzelni's Finch (Sycalis pelzeini.) — Adult male: Upper surface yellow, hind neck and mantle striated with blackish; tail feathers dusky brown, edged with yellow; forehead, rich orange; crown, bright yellow; lores; eye region, cheeks, and entire under surface, bright yellow; beak, dark horn-colour; legs and feet, brownish-flesh. Total length, 5¼ inches; tail, 2 inches. The female differs from the male in being yellowish-brown above, striated with blackish-brown; tail feathers dark brown, edged with yellow; crown of head, brown, streaked with blackish; sides of face, whitish, streaked with brown; throat, white; remainder of under surface, ashy white, streaked on the breast; sides of body and flanks with brown; beak, horn-colour; legs and feet, slaty brown. Total length, 4⅞ inches; tail, 1⅞ inches.

The Yellowish Finch (Sycalis arvensis.) —Also known as the Yellow-bellied Finch, while Sclater and Hudson, in "Argentine Ornithology," call it the Misto-Seed Finch. It has been bred in this country on one or two occasions only, and its appearance on the market is very fitful. It is a slender, graceful bird, smaller than a Canary and very like a Serin in appearance (this is very striking, as I hold a skin of each genus in my hand for comparison); the upper surface is dull olive-yellow, with brownish striations; the under surface is dull yellow. The female is slightly smaller, and not so bright in colour as the male; that is, when comparing adults.

This pretty species is gregarious in its habits, and frequents open plains and cultivated districts in quite large flocks; they feed on the ground and rise with a considerable amount of noise and angry chirping notes when disturbed. The nest, according to Hudson, is well built, deep, and always to be found at a low elevation, often on the ground itself and always well concealed. The clutch consists of five longish and pointed eggs, of a pale bluish-white colour, thickly spotted with brown. In flight flaveola and arvensis differ as widely as it is possible for birds of the same genus to do—flaveola has a strong, direct, blustering sort of flight, while that of arvensis is fluttering or butterfly-like. The British Museum Catalogue gives three sub-species, as follows, which I can only indicate by the difference of size and colour: S. luteiventris. Similar to S. arvensis, but smaller, brighter, and having a few oblique white markings on the tail feathers. Total length 4.7 inches; tail, 1.85 inches. Habitat: Peru, Ecuador, and Colombia. S. minor. Similar to arvensis, but smaller and brighter yellow on the under surface, the ear coverts and sides of neck being also of a much richer hue. Total length, 4.6 inches; tail, 1.6 inches. Habitat: Amazonia, Venezuela, and Guiana. S. chrysops. Also very similar to arvensis, but without any white on the tail feathers. Total length, 4 inches; tail, 1.7 inches. Habitat: Central America, from Mexico to Guatemala.

The Thick-Billed Sycalis Sycalis taczanowskii (reimondi.) — This species appears to be confined to Peru and Ecuador, and has a much thicker and more powerful beak than the other members of this genus. The colour of the upper surface is brown, with blackish striations; rumps, ashy; wing feathers, dark brown, with rufous, whity-brown and yellow edges; tail feathers, blackish, with whity-brown edges; the top of the head is tinged with yellow; lores and eye region, yellow; ear-coverts, cheeks, and sides of neck, ashy brown, tinged with yellow; under surface, dull greyish white, tinged with yellowish, with a yellow patch on the fore-neck; sides of body and flanks pale brown, striated with darker brown. Total length, 5 inches; tail, 1¾ inches.

TO OUR FRIENDS AND OTHERS.

The Crystal Palace show generally marks the close (for all practical purposes) of the cage-bird show season, and as the great event of the year is now over and the labours of an unusually exhausting and exciting period have come to an end, it will be as well for CAGE BIRDS to put into print its heartfelt appreciation of the favours shown to it during that busy time.

Each year the work of reporting the shows becomes increasingly arduous. Each year the responsibility that falls on the individual reporter becomes correspondingly heavier. And we are delighted to be able to say that our reporters during the past year have, one and all, risen to to their respective duties nobly and thoroughly. They deserve the thanks of the whole exhibiting fraternity, for the way they have responded to the calls made upon them, not a single cage-bird show of consequence having been missed in either England, Scotland, Ireland or Wales.

Reporting is an unthankful job, as a rule, less of a sinecure than judging. The reporter must sink his personality and become merely the cold-blooded dispassionate, critical observer. When he forgets to be this he ceases to be useful.

During the past show season we are pleased to say CAGE BIRDS has made still further phenomenal strides in circulation and influence, and latterly has been leaping up with extraordinary bounds. For instance, our orders for this issue alone run, at the time of writing, into Two THOUSAND EXTRA Copies over last week's total, that week showing an additional thousand over the week before! For this growth we tender our many friends all over the country deep and heartfelt thanks. The extent to which our advertising columns are patronised bears eloquent testimony to their undiminished popularity and the prestige of this paper.

Before the season comes to an end we hope to publish a total of sales far in advance of anything yet recorded, and we hope our readers will enable us to swell this figure by giving away, meanwhile, to likely new readers, all spare copies of CAGE BIRDS they can lay hold of.

During the past year we have suffered the inevitable lot of the successful—and been vicariously traduced and misrepresented in certain quarters, for somewhat palpable reasons. We have, we most freely admit, made mistakes in our conduct of CAGE BIRDS, and doubtless will make many more in the future, unintentional mistakes, but still errors. We may at least, though, lay claim to having the courage of strong convictions, and to possess the confidence of the majority of bird-keepers, and the sympathy and good will of the more far-seeing portion of the bird-fancying community; further, thank God, we still possess the enthusiasm and energy of youth, and there is always the Palace of Poplar and old age pensions looming ahead should we ever forfeit that general good will which we are now so proud and pleased to possess.

OUR COLOURED PLATE.

Two Birds of Summer.

The coloured plate accompanying this special Crystal Palace Show Number, is by that well-known artist, Mr. J. G. Keulemans, of world-wide repute as a painter of birds, and who has illustrated many of the most notable ornithological works produced during the last quarter-century. The pictures grouped under the title "Two Birds of Summer" are beautiful examples of his skill with the brush, and will, we venture to think, not lack for admiration amongst our readers.

The Wood Warbler is widely known as the Wood Wren, though it is not by any means closely related to the Wren proper, i.e., Jenny Wren. It is a summer visitor to our shores, like the Lesser Whitethroat, and a daintier, more delicately-coloured and softer plumaged bird it would be difficult to name in all the British list. It is a woodland bird, but not quite so common as the Chiff-Chaff, and much less common than the Willow Warbler, which two birds it greatly resembles in appearance. It is larger somewhat, and has wings appreciably longer. It sings a sweet little song, "shivering" its wings prettily the while, this attitude, indeed, having been beautifully caught by the artist.

The Lesser Whitethroat is not very much smaller than the better-known "Peggy" Whitethroat, but is a much shyer bird, given to skulking along the hedgerows and among any tangled brambles it can discover, hence generally going unseen. The song of this bird is also quieter than that of its near relative. It builds a fragile, pretty little nest, which is not unknown to the majority of country boys, for it is easily discoverable. In the far north of England, especially in Scotland, the Lesser Whitethroat is not met with in large numbers, while in Ireland it is very rare. It is often kept in captivity, and is not particularly delicate provided it be kept warm and well fed. As an exhibition bird, however, it is not much in demand, the rarer and more gaudily apparelled species being preferred.

Competition No. 1.

On page 145 of this week's issue apepars a full-page drawing of six Norwich Plainhead Canaries, all more or less faulty specimens. Yet amongst this faulty half-dozen are hidden a number of "parts" which, if the whole of the birds could be dissected, and the said "parts" successfully joined, would produce one high-class exhibition specimen.

This is a puzzle we ask readers to solve, and we offer a

for the correct solution. The "key" to the mystery, we may say, will remain in our artist's keeping until the date of the competition closing.

To make the matter quite clear, we will say by way of fuller explanation, that what our readers have to do is to take a pair of scissors and a pot of paste (or gum), and cut out certain parts from each of the six birds depicted, so that these parts, when pasted on a clean sheet of paper, will make a picture of a Norwich Canary fit for "keen competition." The exact parts to be used—a leg from here, a beak from there, and so on—are at present known only to our artist. And it is for exercising their powers of discrimination in solving this puzzle that we offer readers the half-guinea prize. In the event of a tie, the neatest picture will take the prize. The Editor's decision will be final

Write your Name and Address clearly on the back of each attempt sent in, and post them to reach us NOT later than TUESDAY, MARCH 3rd next, on which day the competition will close.

Competition No. 2.

On the occasion of our last competition on the above lines, we received several letters asking us to provide another similar skill competition, but with an entrance fee attached to it, the whole of the entrance fees received to be pooled and make the prize, or prizes. On consideration we have decided to hold such a competition in connection with this Norwich Canary puzzle picture, in addition to the usual competition detailed above. The same conditions and stipulations will apply to it, except where hereafter modified.

What You Have to Do.

To compete in Competition No. 2, you have to send along the exhibition bird, cut out and pasted up as described in Competition No. 1, but accompanied by a

POSTAL ORDER FOR SIXPENCE,

made payable to "F. Carl, London," and crossed "and Co.," for safety. All the postal orders received will be pooled, and the total value, less five per cent., will be distributed in prizes according to the amount received. That is to say, if the entry is a large one, the amount will be divided into first, second, and third prizes; but if a small one, then only one prize will be given, the option to rest with the Editor.

Closing Date Tuesday, March 3rd.

NOTE: Any Reader may enter both Competitions, but NOT with the same bird. One bird must be sent with each entry.

THE CAGE BIRD UNION.

Kindly announce that the annual meeting of delegates will be held at the Deansgate Hotel, Manchester, on Saturday, February 22nd, at 3.30 p.m. Please also announce that Mr. A. Brown, of Gateshead, has been elected representative on the Council for District No. 1, in the place of the Rev. Wm. Rickaby, the voting being as follows:—A. Brown, 4; D. A. Ogilvie, 2; G. McPartling, 2; T. Robson, 2—Geo. W. F. LYTHGOE, Sec.

THE MANAGER, "CAGE BIRDS," 154, Fleet Street, LONDON, E.C.

Mr. A. C. Hughes, of Hampton Hill, Middlesex, sends us a price list of his aluminium Canary rings (both closed and to open). His goods have met with wide approval from fanciers, are very neat, well-finished and extremely reasonable in price.

I very much regret to inform you, writes Mr. H. T. G. Bamsey that my father, Mr. W. H. Bamsey, the late secretary of Derby Cage Bird Club, is still lying seriously ill in the Derbyshire Royal Infirmary, and he will never, we are afraid, be able to again take the active part in life that he has done in the past. The family would like to thank all friends for their kind enquiries.

We are very busy getting 3,000 Canaries ready, comprising Lancashires, Yorkshires, Lizards, Norwich Crested, Norwich Plainheads, Cinnamons, etc., for New York, write Messrs. Mackley Brothers, the well-known Norwich firm, which are leaving here to-morrow, Tuesday (Feb. 11th), to catch the White Star Liner, "S.S. Adriatic," leaving Southampton on Wednesday. We had only eight days to get this order ready.

The annual members' pair show of the Halifax O.S. ,writes Mr. J. F. Thackray, sec., will be held at the Talbot Hotel on February 15th. Mr. D. Robertshaw, of Halifax, will judge, and Mrs. Ross will give a gold centre medal for best pair. Birds will be staged at 5.0 o'clock, and entries will be taken till 2.45. Immediately after judging, a members' judging competition will be held. Mr. A. Ross will give a box of cigars for first prize, and Mr. H. W. Walsh a silver medal for second prize. A meeting will be held at 8 o'clock, when Mr. Robertshaw will explain the different points of the winning birds.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence to pay postage expenses, &c., otherwise their letters will not receive attention.

NOTE.—Readers are requested to carefully study past numbers and current issue before submitting questions. By doing so they may save trouble and unnecessary repetition.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. British Birds, Mules and Hybrids—G. E. Weston. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S., &c., Park and Lake Aviculture—Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. M. & O.U., &c. Wild Bird Life—H. Borman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Sib-bred Hen Unwell.

Trimings, New Cross.—Your feeding is entirely the cause of the hen's condition. Give her the Canary seed as a staple, as you are now doing; discontinue the mixed seed altogether, and instead give once a week a small piece of bread soaked in milk and squeezed nearly dry, a teaspoonful of soaked rape seed, and a pinch of inga, this last twice a week. Give each of these separately, on different days, and not oftener or in greater quantity than named here. Give green food when obtainable, and quite free from frost on each day when neither of the above extras are given. Dissolve a piece of sulphate of soda the size of a split pea in the drinking water every second day for a week, and after that give it a similar dose twice a week for another fortnight.

Fits of Coughing.

Helen Green.—It is very curious that your bird should have such fits of coughing and wheezing during the daytime and always seems to be relieved after setting down to roost at night, and rests well. In so-called asthma the wheezing is almost invariably more pronounced at night. You say the bird is kept in a warm corner of your living-room. Is the position one that is likely to get very hot during the day, say, hot fire; or is it exposed to dust or vapour from any kind of work? Perhaps these hints might help you to discover the cause and remove it. If the heat fluctuates at all where the bird is, I should advise you to remove the bird to a position where there is little or no difference in the temperature day or night—neither over-heated, nor yet cold, and above all free from draughts. You may give it twenty drops of whisky and ten of glycerine in its drinking water every alternate day for a fortnight. If that does not put it right, write again, and say how you feed it.

Sheet Iron Cages.

"Dundee."—No, I do not think iron box pattern breeding cages would be as good for Canaries as wooden ones, even if they were enamelled over. In my opinion they would be much colder than cages made of wood, and what advantage they might gain in durability, or other ways, they would lose far more than they gained, all points taken into account.

Shape of Perches.

W. H. Wanham.—What may be termed a flattened oval is the best shape of perch to use, and it should be of a proper size for birds to grip comfortably. A good average perch for birds about the size of a Norwich Canary may be made with strips of soft deal, five-eighths of an inch wide, and three-eighths of an inch thick, by just rounding off the square edges, and taking about double as much off the edges which are to form the under-surface of the perch. Finish by rubbing them a few times with very rough sandpaper—say No. 1½—which slightly corrugates the surface of the perch, and gives the birds an excellent grip. The square perches you find in the cages you buy birds in have no advantage whatever, other than giving less trouble to make. And as the birds are only intended to occupy these travelling cages temporarily, they do well enough for a makeshift. The elder sucker perches you describe are useful as mite traps, but I do not care about having more than one in each cage. They are too smooth and slippery.

Yorkshire Moulting and Seed Samples.

J. Lewis.—The only seed sample to hand is one of Canary and rape mixed together, so I expect that is yours. If you use the seeds mixed together as sent, there is about treble the quantity of rape there should be. It would be far better to give the Canary seed separately as a staple diet, and give a teaspoonful of rape twice a week in the egg drawer—Once it may be given dry, and the next time soaked or scalded. Both the seeds are of moderate quality. The only fault of the Canary is that it is rather small. The causes of the Yorkshire moulting—that is assuming it moulted at the proper time, as this is a second moult—is probably due to a weakened condition, and chills or damp. Keep it fairly warm, free from draughts, and add twenty drops of chemical food to its drinking water, two days in every three for the first week, and afterwards twice a week for another fortnight. A small piece of sponge cake, with a few drops of whisky or sherry on it twice a week will do it good.

Lancashire Queries.

W. G. Boulter.—In Lancashires there is a crested and a non-crested variety, which hold just the same relationship to each other as do the more common and popular Crest and crest-bred Canary. In Lancashires, however, the Crest is termed a "coppy," therefore the Lancashire coppy is the variety with a crest, and is found of both sexes. The Lancashire Plainhead is the variety without a crest, although, as you might have noticed, it has a heavily-feathered head, and dense, overhanging "eyebrows." This variety also occurs in both sexes. In breeding the Lancashire, you would mate a coppy cock with a Plainhead hen, or a Plainhead cock with a coppy hen, the same as in breeding the Norwich crested, and the progeny would be both coppies and Plainheads, in varying proportions according to the way the parents had been bred. Both coppies and Plainheads may turn up in the same nest every time. You doubtless noticed the material difference in the shape of the headgear Norwich Crest and the Lancashire coppy. In the latter the typical shape is a kind of horse-shoe formation, with the circular part in front and the straight, flat portion across the back of the head.

Not Singing.

Photographer.—Your bird is only waiting for the Spring, I think. There does not seem to be anything wrong with him. You may give him a crumb of sponge cake, slightly moistened with sherry, once a week, and once a week a small teaspoonful of egg food. I cannot gather from your description what breed the bird belongs to. It may be a grizzle ticked Norwich Plainhead, but as you say it is a deep yellow, I should hardly think it is a German, which is generally a washed-out kind of lemon-yellow tone. The white tips to the feathers show it is a buff—whatever the breed may be.

Labelled Poison, etc.

Noviee, Stoke-on-Trent.—No, there was no mistake at all in the remedy advised for your bird, and although the chemist labelled it "poison," it will be perfectly safe to give it in the quantity you were advised to do. Of course, the chemist was quite right in labelling it so, as a precautionary measure, and you are also right in wishing to be sure if it is correct before using it, but, as a matter of fact, it is nothing like half as poisonous or risky to use as a certain drug which has been commonly advised. Shall be glad to hear you have found the result all you could wish after using it. As regards the scalded rape, if you have only a small quantity to prepare, say a few spoonfuls, or less, it will be quite sufficient to put in a teacup, fill the cup with boiling water, stir it until the rape sinks to the bottom, and allow it to stand ten or fifteen minutes. Then drain, wipe dry, and serve. If you are preparing large quantities you may put it in a saucepan and allow it to boil a few minutes, then pour into a sieve, perforated small enough to prevent the seed passing through, pour over it a jugful of cold water, allow to drain, and serve as before. Always pleased to be of use.

About to Start.

F. Nash.—I take it you wish to know the best price to give for a pair of birds suitable for a beginner, but you mention no variety. To take the two easiest varieties for a tyro to start with, viz., Border Fancy or Norwich Plainhead—you should get a nice, serviceable pair of birds for such a purpose for 10/6. For better quality birds of the same breed you may go upwards to £5 a pair, or even more than that. The cheaper birds, however, will be better for you to "learn on." Sorry I cannot, for obvious reasons, mention any particular dealer. Consult our advertisement columns. I do not know that anyone makes a business of supplying dandelion leaves. Any florist or nurseryman may be glad to sell you some. A town friend of mine buys chickweed of a nurseryman, and the latter is doubtless glad to get rid of a troublesome weed so profitably.

Malta Canary.

A Bird-lover.—The bird you call a Malta Canary, is probably the common wild Canary, which sometimes finds its way to this country privately under that name. Whether it is Serinus Canariensis I could not presume to say without some description, and you give no idea whether the Malta Canary was supposed to be a domesticated variety or not. The wild Canary is an insignificant bird in comparison with any domestic variety we possess. It more nearly approaches our English Siskin, perhaps, than any other common specie I can think of at the moment. I do not know where you could get a good coloured plate of "the original wild Canary." If you could visit a good library you might be able to consult Sir W. Jardine's "Naturalists' Library." The plates in this work are excellent, but I am not sure whether this particular specie is shown or not.

To Breed Yorkshire Greens.

"Grocer," Liverpool.—Had you asked how to breed Greens, without the important stipulation "from your three buff cocks," I should have advised you to start with two or three pairs of Greens. But you appear to imagine you can obtain a certain type of hen to mate with the buffs which will enable you to breed Greens right away. In this I am afraid you will meet with disappointment. Even if you mate the cocks; that is, supposing they are clears, or nearly so, as I assume they are, in the entire absence of any information as to markings or variegation; to pure self Green hens, you must expect only a comparatively small number of self Greens from them. A small proportion of clear birds may also be expected to turn up, and the majority of the young will be more or less variegated and broken Greens. If your chief object is to breed Greens, I should advise you to dispose of at least two of the buff cocks, and get a self Green and a broken Green in their places. Then you might pair the buff cock with a self Green hen; the broken Green cock with a self hen; and the self cock with a broken Green hen. You would then get a fair proportion of Greens and a stock of useful birds for future breeding besides.

Rings for Canaries; and a Disinfectant.

W.S.B.—1, There is really very little risk in putting rings on Canaries, although it cannot be said the custom is absolutely void of risk. If it is necessary to mark the birds at all, I do not think you need be afraid to ring them. You must get the smallest size rings for Border Fancies. 2, I never use any other remedy than the one which has been often mentioned in these columns for red-mite, so I have no practical knowledge of the disinfectant you name. It is said to be harmless, so I should expect it would be quite safe to dilute it to about one part to three parts of water, making four parts in all and paint it on the cage, or any other place where it was required to kill the mites with a small paint-brush. You might also mix a teaspoonful with a pint of water, and spray the cages with it.

Mate for Buff Green Cock.

J.M.—I think you would be best advised to mate the bird you describe to a clear yellow hen, and obtain some useful birds for improving the natural colour of the clears where required, and at the same time you might, as you suggest, get some nicely variegated birds. The bird, according to your description, is a broken green, and, having a small patch of yellow feathers on the throat, is not likely to strengthen the common fault of fading in colour on throat if paired to a green.

Covering for Bottom of Flights.

W.H.W.—The difficulty you find of keeping the sand or sawdust from being all blown to the side of the bottom of flight may be partly due to you having the lower perches too near the floor, and partly to using the material too fine. You require coarse-cut sawdust, not the fine, powdery stuff, and also a fairly coarse, gritty sand. Mix both together in about equal proportions, and cover the floor to about an inch in depth, and you should find little further difficulty in keeping the bottom covered all over.

Sample of Rape Seed.

A.A.—I much prefer the small, reddish-brown coloured rape seed, which, when tasted, has a flavour similar to that of the sample you send. The seed you send is quite double the size of the reddish seed, and is much darker in colour, but the flavour is quite mild and nutty, so that if I had any difficulty in getting the small, ruddy seed, I should have no objection whatever to using this seed as a substitute. I believe this is the kind of rape which is much used by German breeders. As to whether it is really pure rape seed, I am not enough of a botanist to tell.

Deformed Feet.

A Constant Reader.—I assume from your letter that the bird's claws are clasped similarly to the way they would be if it were grasping a very thin twig. You do not say how long they have been in this way, but if it is for any length of time, it will be far best to leave them alone now, as the defect will be quite incurable. When these cases do not arise in the nest, or very soon after the young leave the nest, they are almost invariably caused by a wrench or sprain when the bird is flying about violently, and gets its foot momentarily caught in the wires or on a perch. Badly shaped or placed perches add to the risk of such cases arising. If only the hind claw is affected, get a quarter of an inch of rubber tubing, similar to that used on a baby's feeding bottle, catch the bird, draw the three front claws through the tubing, and pass it on up the "shank" of the leg, and leave it there with the hind claw inclosed in the circular band. Leave it on two or three weeks, or longer. If all the front toes are curved under, it would be better not to interfere with them. To relieve the apparent soreness, bathe in a warm, strong solution of boracic acid, and anoint afterwards with zinc ointment, as advised several times the last few weeks.

Canary Occasionally Gaping.

"Fancier," Denbigh.—I cannot gather from your letter that there is anything seriously wrong with your friend's bird. If you had said how the bird was fed it might have helped us to tell what was wrong, if anything. Feed as you will see advised to several enquirers last week, and add as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpenny piece, and the same quantity of chlorate of potash, and ten drops of glycerine to its water for a day or two each week. If that does not stop the occasional gaping, write again, and give more particulars. All birds are apt to gape occasionally.

A Beginner's Troubles.

J.E.H.—You should send your muling query on a separate sheet for our Mr. Weston to deal with. For the present you seem to be treating the pair of birds correctly. You are also probably right in thinking the two Canaries you bought as "sex unknown," are hens. They may be small, common Yorkshires, but whatever they are, the badly-crossed wings are a serious defect, so it is fortunate you have only determined to keep them for the purpose of getting knowledge of how to keep a better type of bird properly. As regards the Roller, you are feeding it rather too well. For the present stop the mixed seed altogether, and instead of giving egg twice a week, give it a small piece of bread dipped in milk once, and once a small piece of sponge cake with a few drops of sherry on it. Give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and the same quantity of chlorate of potash in its water every second day for a week. Although you say you cannot find any redmite, I am convinced that either this pest, or the grey lice, is troubling the bird. Take out the perches and carefully examine the ends, also probe the joints of the door with a pin, and see what turns up. If any are found, eradicate them, as so often advised. Give a tepid bath, with a little essence of quassia in it each day, and if it will not bathe, spray a little over it with a fine sprayer. Mind the bird does not get a chill after it.

Cinnamon Hen Slack.

D. Hope.—Give the hen five drops of tincture of steel in the drinking water for two days, and follow afterwards with ten drops of chemical food every second day for a week or so. For two or three days in the first week give her also a crumb of sponge cake, with a few drops of sherry on it.

Canary Gone off Song.

"Scotsman," Liverpool.—The cock Canary which has gone off song, mopes about the bottom of the cage, and has lost several feathers, may be going into a partial moult. Your feeding is good, and as there are no draughts to trouble the bird, you cannot do better than continue as you are doing, and add twenty drops of chemical food to the water two days in every three for a short time. Twice a week give a small piece of sponge cake with a few drops of sherry sprinkled on it. You should have plenty of time to get it into condition for breeding, as you should not think of mating the birds for some weeks yet. As you cannot get watercress, you had better adhere to apple, carrot, and various fruits as substitutes for green food, unless you can find groundsel or dandelion. It may be found, even now, of excellent quality growing in warm, sheltered nooks. But be very careful you do not give any that is frosted. The same treatment as you give Canaries would do for the hen Canary and cock Linnet when put up for muling. This query should have been on a separate sheet for Mr. Weston.

Canary Laying.

Workman.—I suspect two things are answerable for the hen Canary laying in the cage. First, the kitchen where the birds are kept is probably a very warm one, and, secondly, she has probably been kept near to or within view of the cock, which combination of circumstances is quite sufficient to incite the hen to lay. There is very little the matter with your feeding, but I would advise you to stop giving the hen the mixed seed altogether, and to give the rape seed and carrot once a week only instead of twice, for two or three weeks, and twice a week add a little Epsom salts to her drinking water. You should not mate the birds yet, but if your kitchen is such as is described above, you may start in a month or five weeks.

A Roller Bare.

Underwood.—Let the staple diet consist of two parts Canary to one part of German rape seed, and see that you get the mild, nutty flavoured rape, and not the stuff often sold as rape, which tastes more like mustard seed. With this little alteration, and giving a small piece of bread and milk sprinkled with maw seed once a week, instead of the prepared food you are now giving, there will not be much the matter with your feeding. Say, give the prepared food once a week, and bread and milk once, instead of giving the former twice a week. For two days give a pinch of Epsom salts and ten drops of chemical food every second day for a week or two. You might also very sparingly anoint the bare places with sulphur ointment. Give a tepid bath daily, but see that the bird does not get chilled after it.

Swelling over Beak.

F. Allen.—It is quite likely the growth over the bird's beak is a tumour, and I doubt the advisability of your attempting to interfere with it. If the bird is a valuable one, it might be worth while asking a veterinary or your medical man to remove it. It would be a very simple matter for them to do so, but an unskilled hand might do much mischief by interference. In lieu of this, you might, if you have the stuff handy, anoint the growth sparingly every second day with Zam-buk ointment. Keep the bird in good condition and vigour, by giving it twelve drops of chemical food in its water two or three times a week.

Songless Roller-Norwich.

W. Coates.—The cause of your cross-bred Roller-Norwich cock rarely singing and showing signs of bowel trouble, lies in your feeding, which is decidedly bad. Discontinue giving the mixed seed you mention altogether, and feed as follows. For staple diet give a mixture of two parts Canary to one part summer rape seed, once a week give a small piece of bread dipped in milk and sprinkled with soft sugar, and once a week a crumb of sponge cake with a few drops of sherry on it. On the other days when neither of these extras are given, give a little sweet apple, banana, or the tender tops of the inner stalks of celery, when obtainable. In the drinking water give first, for two days, as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and afterwards give fifteen drops of chemical food every second day for a fortnight. Give a tepid bath daily, but see that it does not get chilled after bathing, and also be careful to protect it from cold draught at all times.

Answered by G. E. WESTON.

Hawfinch and its Treatment.

Pupil.—A Hawfinch makes a very good show bird indeed, providing it is an extra good specimen. Some are not easy to steady, and I prefer a canvas-topped cage at first. Sunflower should be a Hawfinch's principal food—get it (the seed) sound and plump (with good kernels). Given this, and a mealworm or two every day, the bird asks for little more. The mealworms, however, should be given direct from the fingers; a little patience, and he will take them fearlessly, so great is the bird's love for them. They are an invaluable agent in steadying a Hawfinch. The bird also appreciates hemp, linseed, Canary, oats, and sometimes a little buckwheat, dari, groats, summer rape, small maize, etc. His powerful beak makes short work of beech-mast, walnuts, plum and cherry stones, hawthorn, privet, etc., berries, and the like. One never need be fast for dainties acceptable to the Hawfinch. Green food they are not particularly keen on, but appreciate a little young lettuce, watercress, chickweed, shepherd's purse, also ripe apple, pear, etc., occasionally. They make an exception in favour of tender green garden peas, and those should be given in the pod when obtainable. Let the bird bathe freely.

Linnet Feeding Once More.

Somerset.—Really, I seem always advising someone or other about the feeding of Linnets; it is a very frequent query. A good seed mixture is: Canary three pints, teazle two pints, summer rape, charlock and linseed one pint each. A feed of hemp, maw, niger, and a good wild seed mixture can be given frequently (varied) by way of a change. Let them have a little green food, especially rape seedlings, in the winter, and ripe seeding, shepherd's purse, chickweed, plantain and groundsel freely in the summer. When but newly caught, cracked hemp (fresh made each day) and maw seed should be freely given, with some niger as well; likewise a pan of soaked rape (dabbed as dry as possible in a cloth) should also be provided. Many good makers put up a special Linnet (or Finch) mixture in packets, and a feed of this occasionally makes an acceptable variation from the ordinary stock mixture. Look up recent answers.

Yellowhammers for Exhibition.

F. Harries.—It is getting late now, and you want to buy your birds as soon as possible. You can turn them in the aviary at once. With regard to the show Yellowhammer, the points are not easy to describe, nor are they easy to get on a bird. The chief colour points are rich yellow (golden) top of head, cheeks, throat, and breast, especially the two latter, though the breast is usually shaded over (across) with a beautiful warm brown. The back should be a rich deep brown, showing the dark markings (pencilling) distinctly and evenly, also the wing markings. Very important markings are the V-shaped black streaks running down each side of the crown, meeting at the beak, and the somewhat horseshoe-shaped cheek markings. These should both be dense black, thick, and well-defined (clear-cut). The centre of the head-mark should be as clear and bright a yellow as possible (free from black ticking), and round about the check-marks should he the same. I may say that the head and throat of the Yellowhammer "clear up," as fanciers say, towards the spring—that is, loses the dark edging to the feathers, and so become a purer, brighter yellow. This "clearing-up" process is hastened by rich feeding. Most of the big winners are colour-fed.

Concerning a Jay.

Ethel R.—I see no reason why a Jay should not make you a satisfactory pet. It is best to get a hand-reared bird if one desires a talker; or at least, one taken when very young. The simplest (yet good) method of feeding is to utilise table scraps largely. As a stock food, you could use, broken-up dog biscuits or puppy cakes, or "Melox" (or game meal), with coarse crissel—say two parts of either of the former to one part of the latter (by measure). Moisten with hot water, giving it crumbly moist, and mixing with it table scraps, cooked meat, and potatoes, greens, gravy, etc. Give a few trapped mice, young Sparrows and the like (even young frogs, if you can capture them), but not over much raw meat. You will find them very accommodating in the matter of food. Eggs (raw and cooked), acorns, beechmast, nuts (cracked) of various kinds, peas, berries, fruit, worms, beetles, grubs, and butter are other things they will eat. It is an unnecessary, useless cruelty to cut any bird's tongue. This is also a point I have often dealt with. A good cage for a Jay would not be less than three feet long (four or five would be vastly better), three feet high, and two feet wide. Put in at least two good-sized perches, one a little larger than the other.

Management of Bullfinch.

Tim.—Bullfinches are not difficult to cater for, and make good pets, but they are not, as a rule, very long-lived in captivity. Your bird should do well on the following stock mixture: Canary and teazle two pints each, sunflower one pint, linseed, summer rape, and charlock, half a pint each. As variety offer daily a pinch of one or the other of these things (in a separate vessel): Maw, niger, hemp, wild seed mixture, thistle and dandelion; also give thistleheads, hardheads, milk thistle, shepherd's purse, groundsel, chickweed, blackberries, privet berries, buds from hawthorn hedge, fruit bushes, etc., as may be in season, some suitable ripe fruit (banana, pear, apple, cherry, orange, etc.), and a small mealworm or two, now and again. This will give you a pretty varied menu to ring the changes upon, and so afford that variety which will keep the bird in good health and condition. Always remember that Bullies are great fruit, bud and berry eaters by nature. No; they are not of any use for breeding purposes. He might mate with a hen of his own kind; still, try the hen Canary if you like. There's nothing like experimenting.

A Foreign Goldfinch.

W.H.—I presume you have got hold of a Russian or Siberian Goldie. You are wrong in assuming they require different treatment to a British Finch. The tastes of both are very much alike. A good stock mixture for your Russian (or Siberian) Goldfinch, assuming him to be newly imported, would be: Hemp, niger and teazle one pint each, Canary half a pint, linseed a quarter pint; with just a little sprinkle of summer rape, if you like. A feed of cracked sunflower seed should be offered daily, and as the bird gets on to it, the niger in the stock mixture should be gradually lessened. Maw seed is also relished, and very good for a tit-bit. Russian Goldies relish the same wild foods as our English Finch, viz., thistle, teazle and hard heads, dandelion, groundsel, etc. Many also get very fond of an occasional mealworm, once they have been induced to taste of them. Keep him in the usual Finch stock cages. The kind you saw at the Palace show are the same pattern as I use myself.

Sex of Goldfinch.

Amateur.—Really, this question is beginning to pall upon me—I seem to be answering it every other week. What time and space queriers would save me, if only they would refer to recent back numbers before sending along their queries! Once again; the hen Goldfinch is rarely so brightly coloured as the cock, and has a much smaller blaze, seldom extending back past the centre of the eye (or even past the beginning). On the shoulder (wing butts) and on the crown of the head, the black is a dirty greyish-black, whereas in a good cock bird it is a dense, glossy, jet black. A fresh-caught Goldfinch is sometimes a long while coming into song, and this is not a safe guide (especially if the bird is not steady). The size of your cage is all right, but a passage, if draughty, and they usually are, is not the best of places in which to hang it.

A Mealworm Query.

R.T.—As to whether a pint of worms would be too many to put in an ordinary biscuit tin to start breeding depends upon whether you intended using any of them whilst they are developing. Personally, if you were going to put the box away, and use none of the worms put in, I should say a pint would be a fair start for two ordinary biscuit tins. If you could introduce a hundred or so beetles you would save several months in getting worms of your own breeding fit for use. In reply to your second question, once a box is started, if it is kept in a healthy condition, and not drawn upon too severely, it will last for years without renewing.

A Would-be Softbill Keeper.

W.T.P.—I should not like to say that Softbills (much depends on the species, of course) are hardier exactly to keep than some of the seed-eaters. It is a knotty point, and would be best answered by the historic phrase, "Some are; some ain't." They, Softbills, are certainly the more expensive, and must be catered for in the best style, if they are to thrive. Briefly put, my own methods of keeping Wagtails, Blackcaps, Nightingales, and similar small insectivorous birds are as follows. As a stock mixture:—Powdered Osborne biscuit, three parts; best ants' eggs and dried flies, two parts each; powdered silkworm pupæ, one part; meat meal, half part, by measure. Take the quantity required of this, and mix it just crumbly moist with grated raw carrot, or finely chopped lettuce, watercress, or chickweed (use young leaves only), or cold boiled potato, varying it frequently. It is necessary, of course, to give, in addition, all the live insect food (flies, spiders, wood-lice, earwigs, small beetles, smooth caterpillars, green-fly, live ants' eggs, etc.) one can possibly obtain; mealworms given regularly are indispensable. To the above stock mixture I occasionally add, after damping, a teaspoonful or two of preserved egg-flake, or part of a hard-boiled fresh egg, finely minced, and, more occasionally still, a little finely scraped raw lean mutton or beef. Good cream cheese is a splendid food, too: give a little, finely chopped, and mixed, of course, with the above biscuit food, or just laid on top of it. Maizena wafers may be used in place of Osborne biscuits; or, for economy's sake, the "broken biscuits" (sweet) obtainable cheaply from most grocers.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S.

To Cure Gray Parrot.

T.B.—Give the bird one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia in its drinking water for one day, and repeat the dose after a two days' interval. Keep a piece of clean cuttlefish continually in the cage. On the days you are not giving the magnesia, well colour its drinking water with Parrish's chemical food. After the two doses of magnesia, you can continue same at intervals as above, if the sickness continues, but it must not be given sufficiently often to cause its bowels to become watery loose. If the sickness does not yield in a week or ten days, repeat query with full details. From your note I gather you are feeding correctly, but please fully understand you must not give any table scraps, tea, coffee, or milk slops.

Green Parrot with Cramp.

Constant Reader.—You must stop the tea sop. For your benefit I will repeat the formula which appears weekly in this column. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk slops, or any kind of animal food whatever. Diet as follows: Boiled maize two or three times a week, its staple diet to be a mixture of Canary, wheat, dari, oats, maize, hemp and sunflower seeds. Well mix and always keep a supply in the cage. Also give so as to vary the diet, ripe fruit, nuts, green food, plain biscuit, and a little boiled potato (dry); keep a clean piece of cuttlefish continually in the cage. Note: The boiled maize only keeps fresh one day, and the food vessel should be well cleaned for each occasion. For one day only put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia in its drinking water, and at intervals of three days each repeat the dose, for a fortnight providing its excreta does not become watery loose. When not giving the Magnesia, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's chemical food, and continue till the bird is in condition again. Keep it quite warm, yet not out of reach of fresh air. Draught must be carefully guarded against. Sweet and wholesome food is the best preventive against disease in the case of Parrots, many of which are killed by so-called kindness. They cannot eat everything you can. If you treat as above, unless there is something more serious than your letter indicates, it should gradually recover condition.

What Birds to Breed.

O.H.—It would have made my task much easier had you given me your county. Most certainly White Javas would answer the purpose well, and so would Diamond Sparrows or Finches, and unless you have odd birds, the probability of them interbreeding would be very remote. If you could get, say, two pairs of each, and then inbreed them for a season or two, you might get some very interesting sports. With breeding White Javas I presume you are aware that only quite a small percentage come absolutely pure. If you choose to repeat the query at your convenience, giving your county, aspect and dimensions of shed and proposed run, I can give you more definite help than I am in a position to do at present. Diet: Canary, millet and spray millet, oats, paddy rice (rice in the husk), green food, cuttlefish, and an ample supply of water for drinking and bathing, with a saucer of some good soft food mixture when they have young to feed, would about meet their need.

The Hardiest Parrakeet.

W.S.—(1) The Red Rosella is the one which would best suit your purpose, would agree with the Budgerigars, and is hardy enough for your conditions; they are also a free breeder once they settle down, but sometimes take a couple of seasons to do so. Redrumps are a little smaller, but are rather uncertain in the breeding season; this also applies to the Blossomhead. However, I gather they would have plenty of space, so that I don't expect either species would materially interfere with the Budgies. I certainly recommend the Rosellas, and I do not think you would find them too large. At the present time I have them associated with Budgies, Cockatiels and Lovebirds, and they have never attempted to molest either. (2) I'm afraid Rosellas won't meet your requirements as to sex distinctions, for the differences are infinitesimal and not easy, even for an expert, to distinguish. Redrumps can be readily distinguished. Many-colours also are small, beautiful and would command a good figure, as also would Mealy Rosellas. But here, again, the outward sexual distinctions are not easily discerned. (3) The prices here quoted should give you an idea as to what you would command for any young reared. But you must bear in mind you cannot put a pair of these birds in the aviary and expect them to breed in a few weeks as Canaries do. They often take months to do so. Red Rosellas 30/-, Mealy Rosellas 60/-, Redrumps, 25/-, Blossom-heads 20/-, Many-colours 80/-, Stanley 80/-, all per pair. All should ultimately breed with you, but you cannot rely on any to do so this spring.

What Bird Is it?

Novice.—You give no clue as to size, neither did any feathers reach me, but from your description, I have no doubt the bird you have caught is a Cockatiel. If its body colouring is grey combined with the marking you mention, and it has a hooked beak, it is a Cockatiel. Canary and millet seed, with a few oats, green food, cuttlefish and water will suffice for its modest wants. It is not a talking species, though there are isolated instances of hand-reared birds speaking a few words and short sentences. If it has not got a Parrot-like beak, but one like a Finch's, then give it ripe fruit and some live insects, but I think I have named it correctly above. A Cockatiel has a body about the size of a small and slender Pigeon, but possesses a long tail.

Breeding Madagascar Lovebirds.

H.H.—I fear this species is not a satisfactory breeder, even in a large garden aviary, where instead of rooting out the nest husk the male would probably get rid of his energy on the wing, and about the branches, but in a cage, possibly in a room with humans always about it, seek the retirement of the husk, and their scuffling about therein upsets your hopes of breeding. I fear all I can tell you is to leave them alone, and some fine morning you will be surprised by hearing young in the nest, then don't be curious, but patiently wait their advent from the husk. I'm very doubtful if you are doing the right thing in removing the eggs, in my opinion it is far better to leave foreign birds alone, and not interfere at all with their nesting arrangements. Possibly, if you wrote to an advertiser of husks you could get a larger size still, the extra room of which might save the eggs. Poor consolation as it is, you are not alone in your failure in breeding this species, freely imported though they be; the recorded instances of successful rearing of the young are by no means numerous. Hope you will have better luck next time.

Treatment for Nesting Zebra Finches.

"Zed Ef."—(1) Hay, long grass, or any kind of dried garden weeds, they are not at all particular, and are quite ready to use any dry hay-like rubbish there happens to be about. (2) They are not fastidious in this respect either, a box, cocoanut husk, or small Hartz travelling cage, will meet their need. (3) Uncertain; some begin almost as soon as caged, others waste the regular nesting period and bring up a brood in late autumn. So far as it is possible to fix a period, it is from April to the end of the summer, usually it is the moult that checks their breeding for the year, once they have made a start. Often there are three or four broods during the year. (4) I do not think you will have much luck with breeding them in the C.P. cage in the company of other birds. A full-sized Canary breeding cage, as you suggest, will give you a good chance of success. Note: Foreign birds are not as regular as Canaries in their nesting arrangements; in fact, they are decidedly irregular, but the charming little Zebra is very prolific under almost any conditions.

Amazon Parrot and Bengalese.

A.L.—If you will describe to me the condition of the bird's legs and feet, and the colour of its eye, I shall be able to tell you if it is an old ish or youngish specimen. As regards teaching to talk, see reply to "E. W." on same subject in this issue; your diet is correct, but I presume you are giving ripe fruit and a few nuts as well as the seed mixture, as these items should form part of the regular diet of Amazon and grey Parrots. Bengalese are pretty, and interesting little birds, and very ready to nest, but have a habit of sitting in the nest together, and so many of the eggs get spoiled, but you would certainly succeed in rearing some young each season. You would succeed better with one pair only than with several; you could keep with them such as Silverbills, Zebra Finches, Cutthroats and Mannikins in variety. You are far more likely to succeed with foreign birds, with a single pair each of several species, than with several pairs of the same species.

Aviary and Budgerigars.

Love Bird.—(1) Yes, they do better out of doors than in. (2) No, you must take out the laurel bush. (3) Do not overcrowd, begin with not more than four pairs. You will find the yellows most profitable, as their progeny commaud a higher price than the greens, though to my mind the latter are the most beautiful. If I were stocking such an aviary myself, I should put in one pair of green and two pairs of yellow Budgerigars, and one pair each of Cockatiels and red Rosellas; they would all agree together, and though the two latter might not begin to breed at once, they should do so the second year. All would thrive on the same food: Canary, millet, oats, green food and cuttlefish. Put up at least 12 husks for the Budgies, and three nest-boxes for the Cockatiels and Rosellas, the boxes are described in reply to another correspondent in this issue. (4) Popular Parrakeets, by W. T. Greene, 1s., plus postage, from Editor CAGE BIRDS.

Book on Amazons.

E.W.—I do not know of any cheap book on Amazon's, they are dealt with in Greene's "Parrots in captivity," and also in other works of which they only form a small part. If you read up this column for the past month or six weeks, you will have full details for treating these birds, which are not all delicate. Necessary treatment may be summed up as under: Diet as advised in this column. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk slops, or any kind of animal food. Keep their cage in some light position, where it will get plenty of fresh air, yet be out of draught. Cover the cage up at nights, that is, round the sides, but leave about six inches of top of cage uncovered; do not remove the cover in the morning till the room has been aired and ventilated, or be careful and see that the cage is not in the draught at an open window.

Parrot with a Cold.

James Jago.—For a proper dietary for your bird see reply to "Constant Reader." Keep the bird warm and quiet, but not in a vitiated atmosphere. Spray its nostrils with diluted glyco-thymoline, say, twice a day till the exusion ceases; if the bird will let you handle it, you could probably treat it more effectively by cleansing the nostrils with the solution by means of a camel-hair mop brush. Note: The brush must be well cleansed, and a fresh portion of the solution used for each occasion. Also, get from your chemist the following mixture: Ipecacuanha wine, oxymel of squills and glycerine in equal parts, put a teaspoonful of this mixture into the bird's drinking water daily, till the cold yields. Also soak one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia into a piece of biscuit, crust of bread, or piece of Madeira or sponge cake, according to which the bird will most readily eat— two doses of this should be sufficient, and there should be an interval of three days between each dose.

Treatment of Green Landrail.

P.J.R.—(1) The moult usually takes place in late summer or early autumn. (2) A mixture of Canary and millet, two parts of each, and one part each of oats, wheat, dari, hemp and sunflower seeds; soft food, several mealworms or other insects daily, and ripe fruit, as the bird favours. This species is very fond of cuttlefish, and a clean piece should be continuously in its cage. It is also fond of green food, and should have a liberal supply of it. (4) The bird is very fond of its bath, and should be encouraged to take this either in a bath hanging outside the cage, or on the kitchen sink, for he makes a great splash, and in the summer-time will bathe one, two or three times a day, if opportunity be given him.

Naming a Bird.

H.S.—Your bird is evidently the Tropical Seed Finch, and is certainly uncommon; a few of these birds were privately imported last summer, and have been distributed in various directions. I have one almost identical with your description, and there is no doubt you have one of this lot. Till this summer I had never seen the species alive before. However, I will look into the matter further, and if I have reason to change my opinion, will supplement this in a later issue.

Cockatoo Failing to Feather.

J. A. Morrell.—The bird is evidently not as strong as it appears, and also you are indulging in the dangerous habit of tea slops (see my remarks re same in other replies) and table scraps, stop these at once, and put it on a seed mixture of Canary, oats, wheat, dari, maize, hemp and sunflower seeds, in equal parts, as its staple diet, and confine your extras to ripe fruit, boiled potatoes, nuts, green food (lettuce), cuttlefish, plain biscuit (dry). Give the bird several doses of Dinneford's magnesia, with a three days interval between each, which should be one teaspoonful in its drinking water. When not giving the magnesia, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's chemical food, and continue for a month, or longer. Also daily moisten a piece of biscuit, bread or sponge cake with water, and well dust same with flowers of sulphur and continue for some few weeks. Frequently spray the bird with quassia solution (carefully guarding against draught), even if it is not troubled with parasites, it will make the plumage bitter and unpleasant to the bird's taste.

Grey Parrot Mending.

C. W. H. Glover.—Glad to note the bird is so much better, continue the treatment advised, which I cannot improve upon. In case of a possible relapse, write at once with full particulars. If you keep your bird where it will hear plenty of ordinary conversation, it is almost certain to repeat some of it sooner or later, or teach it by constant repetition some of the words and phrases you wish it to learn; but don't trouble the bird with the latter till it has entirely recovered from its indisposition. The diet you are now giving, combined with the other treatment, should soon bring about a material improvement in its condition.

Budgerigars, Canaries, etc., Mixed.

Stango.—(1) For a time they might, but sooner or later the Canaries or Finches would be not maliciously, but none the less mischievously, maimed or slaughtered. I cannot advise you to keep them together, it is a costly experiment in the long run. (2) You have room for three breeding pairs of Budgerigars, and their young should be so disposed of as they are able to feed for themselves, that the number in the aviary does not exceed a score at most. (3) In the first year of their being turned into the aviary, they may take several months to settle down, and rear but few young the first year; afterwards they should begin quite early in the year, and they usually bring up brood after brood till stopped by the moult, and though some will attempt more, they should not be allowed to have more than three broods, the average number of which may be taken as five. Be sure and have a plentiful supply of nesting husks hanging about, or quarrelling over nesting sites will most certainly interfere with their prolificness

What Bird?

Two Years' Reader.—It is a Grey Java Sparrow, and a single bird is very difficult to sex, the outward distinctions of the sexes being infinitesimal. However, if you get a number of these birds together you will find some with comparatively stubby beaks, others with narrow and more pointed beaks; the latter are the females, the former the males. This distinction is most easily discerned when viewed in profile. Hybrids have been bred from the bird with the Silverbill, but such cases are very rare. I should advise you to purchase a female White Java Sparrow, and once they settle down should breed freely enough. A full-sized double breeding cage, with all the partitions removed would give the most reasonable prospect of success.

Budgerigars Found Dead.

Anxious.—I can only suggest one or two possible causes; at the same time, I think the solution of the problem lies in the fact that all birds resent new introductions into their midst, and if all the food vessels were on the ground, the poor Budgies were chased from place to place, and finally died of exhaustion and fatigue. It is far the best to introduce new birds into an aviary early in the morning, and see that they have a good feed before doing so, they have then time to get acquainted with their quarters, and to lose the scared feeling arising from strange quarters and companions. When birds of such diverse size are kept together—they can be successfully so kept—there should be supplies of food for the small birds fixed higher up in some open and accessible position; also under such conditions for the first day or two seed should have been scattered broadcast over the entire extent of the aviary. Why did you not have one of the birds examined, as apart from evidence of injury, the only conclusion to draw is that they were starved to death by being driven from the food?

African Grey Parrot Breathing Heavily.

A.L.—Your present manner of dieting the bird will soon bring about an improvement in its condition. For one day soak about a teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia into a piece of its biscuit, and see that it eats it, the biscuit can be allowed to dry, or partially so, before giving to the bird; repeat the dose after a three days interval. Get from your chemist the following mixture: Ipecacuanha wine, oxymel of squills, and glycerine in equal parts; put one teaspoonful of the mixture into the drinking water daily for a week, this should give relief, in such case continue the treatment till the trouble gives; in the case of no improvement, you had better repeat query. Shelled walnuts would be better than Brazil nuts, and quite as economical in the long run.

Breeding Avadavats.

J. Ford.—I cannot hold out much hope of your succeeding with these birds, unless you have a garden aviary with a growing bush into which you could turn them, and even under these conditions, they are not by any means free breeders. However many species of small Foreigns have been bred in cages on the Continent, so that there is just a possibility you may succeed with them in the cage you name. If it is not out of print, you would find "Foreign Fancy Birds for Young Fanciers," by the late Dr. Greene, 6d., plus postage, a helpful little manual; possibly the Editor of CAGE BIRDS could procure it for you. The only way to encourage them to nest is to fix a bushy heather branch in one end of the cage, and to put a nest basket in this, where it will be almost hidden, and leave the rest to luck. As regards food see reply to A.E.S., in this issue.

What is its Name?

E. G. Skipton.—I am sorry I cannot name your bird till you give me something more to go upon. I must have some indication as to size, and if it is Starling like, Finch-like or a Parrot, I must say your description points to the latter. Kindly supply the details asked for, and I shall have pleasure in naming the bird for you in our next issue.

Aviary for Canaries and Foreign.

E.W.—Your proposed aviary should be a success, for it is well arranged, and if furnished with plenty of cover, that is, stacks of sticks for the birds to build among, you should have good results from same. Put up plenty of nest-boxes and husks as well. At the same time, you must note Canaries are never so prolific when flying together in a flight as when kept in pairs in breeding cages, but are far more interesting in a state of liberty, but if you mix the varieties up much, you will find them pairing up anyhow. Besides, the Britishers you suggest in the hope of getting Mules, you could keep Grey and Green Singinghnches, Alario Finch. All these have crossed with the Canary; Rufous-tailed and Long-tailed Grassfinches, Zebra Finches, Zebra Waxbills, Ribbon Finches, and Waxbills in variety. It will comfortably accommodate double the number you name. The Foreign birds named above, would only require millet and spray millet in addition to the food you supply for the Canaries. Don't put Foreigners out till late April or early May, according to the season.

Britishers & Foreigners Together.

G.P.S.—Such a mixture as you have, there will be certain trouble with, when the birds get the courting fever, as I know from experience with the Chaffinches, Yellowhammers, Bramblefinch and Reedbunting, it will end in the "survival of the fittest," and only one pair left. I have always found it best to have only one pair species among such mixture. I cousider you should remove the Hawfinch, and the Tits, as well as all those named above, and keep the Greenfinches under observation. The Foreign birds I named in my previous reply would theu stand a good chance of successfully rearing young, and you would also have a reasonable prospect of a fair measure of success. You have made the common error of beginners, that of getting together too great a variety. You would succeed far better with, say, not more than a dozen, or at the most, eighteen pairs, and gradually increase as you gain experience, say, as follows, Bullies, Goldies, Linnet, Siskin, Twites and Redpoll, Canary, Zebra, Ribbon, Rufieanda and Diamond Finches; Long-tailed Greenfinches, Common and green Avadavats, Zebra Waxbills, Diamond Doves, and say half a dozen odd Weavers and Whydahs, but not the Pin-tailed Whydah. If any points are still obscure, shall be pleased to further enlighten you.

Green and Yellow Budgerigars.

T.S.—I am afraid you will find they will be inclined rather to mix up, than to keep to their respective varieties, still, this may not be so; if they do, the best course for you to take will be to get rid of your Green cock, get another yellow one. You will then be quite safe to get both yellow and green youngsters, for you will be sure to get one true pair of yellows, and when Greens and Yellows are paired together the resulting progeny are always fully 95 per cent. of pure Greens, so this will be your simplest way out of the difficulty, if they should attempt to cross mate. The eggs are white, aud about the size of the Common Sparrow's eggs.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. J. North, 435, Oxford Road, Reading, will examine cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for a reply direct 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post-mortem examinatiou must be sent packed in a box direct to J. North, with fee. Any sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Canary (S. C. Roberts).—This young hen's death was caused by "chill," or inflammation of lungs and liver. The latter organ being in a softened condition accelerated the taking of the chill. Under such conditions a diet of milk sop and additional warmth of atmosphere would have been more conducive to recovery than a plain seed diet.

Canary (J.A.L.)—Septic inflammation of bowels, lungs and liver; the latter organ being in a softened condition, rupture of its large blood vessels resulted. Its cage should be disinfected.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

Wood and Wire (Labourer).—Your letter hardly comes within the scope of the correspondence columu. We shall be pleased to write the advertiser on your behalf if you will comply with the rules.

Article (W. P. Bell).—Glad you like the article. We will certainly let the writer know.

Hawfinch (J. Hakes).—Thanks for the photograph, which we shall have pleasure in reproducing in a forthcoming special number.

What's in a Name? (Scarborough).—It often happens in country districts that many persous, and even families, of the same name live in the same village. So far as we know they are different persons.

British Birds (Fred. Rishworth).—It is in course of preparatiou, and when ready you will see it duly announced in the columns of this paper. Thanks for your very kind remarks.

Cage-Making (E. Dyehouse).—Your son will find his wish fulfilled in this issue. We trust he will provo adept, and go one better than "dad."

Photograph (W. H. Baker).—Wo have to acknowlrdge with thanks the interesting photograph you send us.

Green Food, etc., Holder (T. Lyon).—Wo shall be pleased to give you a notice of the green-food, etc., holder when you are ready to advertise it. Is this what you are desirous of knowing? Your letter is not clear.

Parrots (T. Watson).—You appear to have overlooked the fact that differences of opinion exist between practical keepers of almost all kinds of birds as to their "proper diet." It is hardly likely that the food captive Parrots are fed on in their native wilds would be entirely successful over here, even assuming it to be obtainable. Flat, white maize is the most generally sought after; and this kind is not to be bought everywhere, but most bird-food specialists ought to be able to supply you with it.

Books on Birds (T. R. Hadley).—Will you kindly let us have your full address, so that we may write you? "Burton-on-Trent" is all your note is headed, and this seems to be insufficient.

Breeding Mealworms (H. M.).—The procedure for breeding mealworms has often been given in our pages. Briefly, a large biscuit tin is two thirds filled with bran and pieces of sacking (alternate layers), and a quantity of mealworms (say half a pound) turned therein. Bore a lot of small holes, for ventilation, round the top of the tin, and keep it in a warm place (the latter is important). In due course, the mealworms turn to beetles, which lay eggs, and the latter hatch out into mealworms.

THE YORKSHIRE UNION.

The series of open winter shows held under the rules of the Yorkshire Union were brought to a close at Keighley on February 1st. The results of the various competitions are as follows:—The "W. H. Shackleton" Challenge Trophy, value 30 guineas (first year of competition); three highest birds of each competitor to count for points.—1st, and medal value £1, Messrs. Bailey and Swanger, 304 points; 2nd, medal value 15s., Messrs. Ogden Bros., 268; 3rd, medal value 10s., Mr. J. Wilcox, 267; 4th, medal value 7s. 6d., Mr. W. H. Shackleton, 257. Mr. H. W. Walsh is next with 220 points. The "H. W. Naylor" Challenge Cup, value five guineas (won in 1905 and 1906 by Messrs. Murgatroyd and Son), three birds only of each competitor to count for points, and to be marked "Cup."—1st, and medal value one guinea, Mr. W. H. Shackleton, 200 points. Mr. H. W. Walsh is the runner-up with 186 points. Teapot, value £1 10s., presented by Mr. J. W. Ramsden, of London, to person gaining most points at Union shows with birds moulted on his peppers. Three highest birds of each exhibitor to count for points.—1st, Messrs. Bailey and Swanger, 304 points; 2nd, Messrs. Ogden Brothers, 268, medal; and 3rd, Mr. W. H. Shackleton, 257, medal. Both medals are presented by Mr. Ramsden.

NOVICE COMPETITIONS.—Prize, value one guinea, given by Mr. H. H. Towers, of Windhill, to person gaining most points during the season in the Yorkshire novice classes. Won by Mr. A. Frankland (Guiseley). Union Novice Medals, value one guinea each, 12 medals, 9 for Yorkshire section and 3 for Norwich section. YORKSHIRE SECTION: 1, A. Frankland, 243 points; 2, H. Lodge, 200; 3, F. Townsend, 150; 4, P. Drake and Son, 142; 5, Shaw Brothers, 135; 6, Allen and Swaine, 116; 7, J. R. Ackroyd, 115; 8, H. Coates, 113; 9, J. Chippindale, 112. Four highest birds of each competitor to count for points. NORWICH SECTION: 1, J. W. Holmes, 236 points; 2, J. Mottram, 142; 3, A. Lloyd, 113. The points in the above competitions have been taken from the various catalogues, and as these have proved more or less unreliable during the past season, I shall be glad if all persons concerned will communicate with me, should they find the number of points given differing from their own reckoning.—FRED. HAMMOND, Secretary.

SOUTHERN NORWICH PLAINHEAD CLUB.

The third annual meeting of this specialist club was held on Feb. 10, at the Crystal Palace show. It was attended by most of our Norwich breeders that have the interest of the society at heart. Many wrote regretting their inability to attend, but wished us every success during 1908. Amongst those that were present were Messrs. Coombs (Hastings), A. E. Golden, W. Ellis (Hastings), H. Frost (Brighton), G. W. Saunders (Sutton), Kilby (Caterham Valley), C. Young (Thornton Heath), H. Lambert Brown, Holder, Pretty, B. J. Cooper, R. E. Spinner, Hodson, Richardson, Simpson, Woolhouse, and Rogers. Mr. Lambert Brown was voted into the chair, and the minutes of the last meeting were read aud confirmed. The treasurer and secretary gave a report of tho finance and general work of the society. He said he had pleasure in stating that they were "on the right side of the balance sheet"; all expenses had been met for printing, postage, rent, etc., and the cost of specials had been paid for. The society had some cash in hand already by subscriptions, 1908, to the amount of £2. The special prize fund had been a great help; those gentlemen who had subscribed, not only helped the society, but gave the secretary encouragement to do his best in the interests of the club. The membership had increased from 102 to 120 paying members, only two members resigning through not being affiliated to the Cage Bird Union. But one of these has again rejoined by the help of the societies to which we give our patronage. We are looking forward to a membership of 150. The treasurer also mentioned that in 1908, beside the £3 3s. cup, they had every prospect of a £10 10s. silver trophy for champion section, also a £3 3s. cup for novice points. Messrs. Marley and Richardson spoke on the adoption of the balance sheet subject to audit which was carried unanimously. The result of the voting was: Mr. E. Baker, President; vice-Presidents, Messrs. J. H. BeRamy, G. Crabbe, R. L. Crisp, F. J. Gibbs, W. R. Miles, R. J. Pretty, J. W. Ramsden; auditors, Mr. T. Heath and J. W. Simpson; hon. treasurer, Mr. F. S. Matthes.—The chairman of committee, secretary, hon. secretary will be elected by committee. London Committee, Messrs. H. Lambert, Brown, A. W. Curtis, Geo. Gardner, J. Hodder, W. Morris, J. W. Rennie; Provincial Committee, Messrs. W. Collings, G. Dring, A. E. Godden, G. H. Lowe, W. N. Midgley and J. Saunders. The question of the adoption of the model and medal of the society was brought forward, and after a good discussion, it was decided that we could not do better than accept the drawing of Mr. H. Norman, voted by 4 out of 6 of our south country judges to be the best. Also the same as the Norwich Plainhead Club have adopted. This was proposed by Mr. J. Hodder and seconded by Mr. A. J. Marley and carried. A letter was brought forward by the secretary from Mr. J. Raynes, concerning the friendly contest between the two clubs. The members decided that arrangements be left in the hands of committee, and that we have the contest for the interest of both societies. Next came a rather important item brought forward by Mr. R. L. Crisp, "That Rule 5 be altered to—the annual general meeting be held at the National Show." Mr. B. J. Cooper said he had much pleasure in supporting, and Mr. J. Hodder thought it best to settle Saturday as a fixed date. But Mr. A. E. Godden (Hastings) and Mr. Kilby (Caterham Valley) offered an amendment that it remain as now printed, as it was the best day for country members. The chairman put the amendment, which was carried. The question as to whether the club as a specialist club need be affiliated to the Cage Bird Union, was next discussed. Some members are affiliated and some are not. After a lively, but short discussion, it was moved and seconded by Messrs. Woolhouse and Kilby "That we be not affiliated as this would give the affiliated and non-affiliated, as this would gibe the affiliated and non-to the club." This was carried unanimously. Then came the most interesting feature of the evening. The chairman presented the prize to the successful competitor for specials. The following is the list of winners for 1907:—Champion section: Mr. Hodder, 202 points, the £3 3s. cup; Mr. G. H. Lowe, 101 points, the £1 1s. rose bowl trophy; Mr. E. Baker, the 15/- rose bowl, Mr. W. R. Miles, 10/- special, and Mr. W. Morris 5/- special. Novice section: Mr. Richardson the £1 1s. teapot and 5/- for best bird; Mr. Hale 2/6 for best vhe, at Hastings; Mr. Marley the £1 1s. teapot and 5/- for best bird; Mr. Harper 2/6 for best vhe at Westminster; Mr. Young (Thornton Heath) 5/- for best bird, and Mr. H. Pennill (Hastings) 2/6 for best vhe at National Show. Mr. J. W. Ramsden's specials: Mr. Richardson for most points, the hand-some teapot. Mr. Young (Thornton Heath) also won a very nice silver medal, which he wished to thank the giver for. The meeting closed with a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. H. Lambert Brown for the able way in which he conducted the business. The secretary then opened the receipt book for subscriptions for 1908, which many of the members present paid. Donations to the 10-guinea silver cup will be thankfully accepted by the treasurer.—F. S. MATTHES.

CINNAMON CANARY CLUB.

The annual general meeting held on Saturday at the Crystal Palace Show, was poorly attended, but important business was done, as the Agenda paper was sent to all members of the Club, and brought many responses from those who were unable to attend. Those present were:—Messrs. E. Godley, Rishton, J. Walsh, Blackburn; G. Wheatley, Leicester; G. Durnford, East Grinstead; T. Cowley, Birmingham; J. Dobson, O. Hand, and R. J. Pretty, hon. sec., London.

Mr. Godley took the chair at the request of the meeting. Tho balance-sheet for the past year was presented duly audited, and showing a cash balance in hand of £10 14s. 5d., and was unanimously passed.

It was agreed to alter the Novice Rule to the same as that in force in the Cage Bird Union, and in the discussion that ensued, Mr. Dobson said he thought there should be an intermediate stage between Novice and Champion, as he was of opinion that it was rather hard on the novice going straight up to the Champion section. Among the many letters read from Messrs. Bladon, E. Dormer, Hargreaves, Roberts, Bairstow, J. Wilson, and S. Wilson, on the general business, only one dissented to the alteration.

The alteration of the Club Cage to the same pattern as the Norwich Plainhead was also agreed to with one dissenter. The question of the inside colour caused a very long discussion. Messrs. Dormer and Hargreaves suggested Hedge Sparrow tint, and Mr. Walsh the Club cage maker, suggested azure blue and pointed out that there were two Gobelin greens, one light and the other dark, the latter being the one now in use. Ultimately, Mr. Durnford moved that a vote of all the members be taken on the question of colour, when the voting papers for the el ection of officers took place, a sample tint obtained from Aspinall's to be sent with each paper. This was seconded and carried. The locale of the Club Show was left for the members to decide upon after applications had been received.

The secretary read a letter from Mr. E. Naylor, resigning the vice-presidency, as he had given up the Fancy, and Mr. Dobson suggested that Mr. J. Wones be asked to stand, which was agreed to. The patronage specials were left to the Committee to be on the lines of the Manchester programme. Mr. Godley announced his intention of giving 5s. at each patronage show for the Novices, and it was also his intention not to compete for any Club Specials this coming season. Mr. Dormer also wrote saying that he had decided to stand down for any Club Specials next season, and would give a special against that of Mr. Godley's, but he had not yet decided what form it would take. Messrs. Dormer's and Godley's offers were accepted on the proposition of Mr. Dobson, which Mr. Cowley seconded. A vote of thanks to them was also carried by acclamation.

Mr. Bairstow's various suggestions were read, and Mr. Dobson proposed that the letter lay on the table for future consideration. Mr. Hand seconding, it was carried. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to Mr. Godley for presiding.

THE CAGE BIRD UNION.

Agenda of Annual General Meeting.

Annual general meeting of delegates, Feb. 22nd, at the Deansgate Hotel, Manchester, at 3.30 in the afternoon. The elect on of President and Secretary for the ensuing year will take place. Amongst other business, it is proposed to provide for District Committee meetings of all affiliated Societies being held as early as possible after March 1st, to fix up show dates and avoid clashing. Only such Societies, however, as intend to hold their show under C.B.U. Rules, should attend the meetings, and for this purpose, it is proposed to amend Rule 4 to provide for at least, 5s. of the subscript on to be paid by March 1st—the balance due, if any, to be paid by September 1st. It is intended that all Societies applying for affiliation or licence after these dates are fixed shall not be accepted, unless their show date does not clash with one already fixed, in the same district. Other business will be to adopt Rules providing for the calling of an official general meeting of delegates at any time by notice, and for appointment of a Secretary, pro tem., when necessary; and, also, a Rule giving District Committees power at any time to investigate cases of alleged fraudulent or dishonourable conduct. The Council will also bring before the meeting for discussion, the question of Railway grievances. There are a number of suggestions from various societies which have been forwarded for consideration at this meeting.

GEO. W. F. LYTHGOE, Sec.

Suggestions Made by Various District Committees and Societies.

DISTRICT COMMITTEE NO. 1.—That the secretaries of all shows to be held in 1908 under C.B.U. Rules, send the date of their show on or before March 1st to the district secretary. That the secretary tabulate them and then call a meeting of the delegates. That the delegates have the power to re-arrange the dates in cases where they clash.

Suggestions re railway charges.

District committee meetings to be called by three members of the committee. Delegates attending shows to be supplied with a Union ticket by the district secretary, admitting to the show on all occasions, while open.

DISTRICT COMMITTEE NO. 6.—That the question of railway charges and care taken in delivery be gone into and the question of cheap railway tickets when visiting shows.

That an exhibitor having exhibited 12 months at affiliated or licensed shows, shall then be compelled to become a member of the Union.

DISTRICT COMMITTEE NO. 12.—That societies and their show managers be not permitted to accept entries after the advertised date of closing.

That the affiliation of societies and licenses be only secured upon the condition that the same be applied for sufficiently early in each year to allow the officials of the C.B.U. to determine all show fixtures by ballot.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.—That the annual meeting be strictly representative of paid up affiliated societies, whose credentials shall be examined.

That all proposed alterations in the rules be sent to the general secretary two months prior to the annual meeting, and sent to all affiliated societies six weeks before the meeting.

That rules can only be amended or added to at the annual meeting.

That no advertisement appear on the rules or any other printed matter.

That on all future balance sheets the expenses incurred by the Council and delegates be shown separately. Amendment to Rule 13: Providing for the nomination of members of the Council 12 weeks prior to the annual meeting and elected by ballot. The candidate to have resided for 12 months previous to his nomination and not to be in arrears with his subscriptions. Rule 17: After the word show, in the fourth line, insert "Non-affiliated fanciers will not be allowed to exhibit at affiliated club shows."

CHESTER C.B.S.—That entries for open shows be not accepted from anyone not a member of an affiliated society or an associate member of the Union.

BOLTON O.S.—Similar suggestion that non-affiliated members ought not to be allowed to show at Union shows.

LEEDS C.B.S.—That no society be allowed to accept entries from non-affiliated exhibitors. Similar resolutions from Hartley, Hazel Grove, Newcastle, and Wimbledon in favour of Rule 17 being extended to debar non-members of the Union from exhibiting at Union shows. That Rule 17 be modified to bar only Canary and British bird fanciers from exhibiting at non-union shows, and not apply to foreign bird exhibitors, or that Canary exhibitors only be barred. That no entries be accepted from recognised exhibitors unless affiliated to the Union. Such an exhibitor being one who has exhibited at two or more shows in any one season. Any exhibitor infringing the rule to be debarred from exhibiting at Union shows for the rest of the season. That voting papers be stamped with a Union stamp and numbered instead of voters signing the ballot papers.

A judging competition was also held. Mr. C. H. Cooper kindly gave 5s. for the member placing the awards nearest to the judge's placings. Mr. F. Williamson also gave 2s. 6d. for the runner-up. There were 10 competitors, with the result that Mr. H. Ovenden gained 1st prize with 71 points, and Mr. A. B. Forse 2nd with 53 points. We had a fairly good attendance, and passed a most enjoyable evening.—B. F. FORSE, Sec.

MAESTEG AND DISTRICT F.S.

The seventh annual show (five miles radius) was held at the Town Hall, on February 7th. There was a good entry in all sections. Mr. W. Morgan makes an excellent secretary, and with the help of the stewards, Messrs. Miles, Bowen, and Treharne, had everything nicely in hand. Mr. T. H. Melhuish judged cage birds.

NANTWICH.

The 47th annual show was held in the Town Hall, on Feb. 7 and 8. Cage birds existed almost in name only, for out of thirteen classes provided, only four stood, the remainder having to be cancelled. Never before during the whole of the forty-seven years has the cage bird section of the show (one of the oldest in the Kingdom) reached such a low ebb as this year. It is not that the management are unworthy of better support, as the committee is composed of thorough fanciers who have always paid all due and just demands. We heard it whispered that it was on account of the show not being held under Cage Bird Union Rules. No doubt that prevented many exhibitors from sending entries. Still the fact must be borne in mind that last year, with an extended classification held under Union Rules, there was a loss on the cage bird section of over £10; no classes were cancelled, and prize-money was paid in full. However, if the exhibits were few the "gate" was good, but many of the visitors were keenly disappointed to find so few birds on view. Nantwich, formerly a stronghold for Norwich, was this year without a single bird of this popular variety. The four classes that stood, viz., Yorks., Mules, and two British, contained some splendid exhibits for quality. Several well-known winners put in an appearance and added another win to their already long list of victories. Mr. Powell, as secretary, would be difficult to improve upon, being well versed in the art of show management, and courteous and obliging to all. Mr. W. O. Barlow judged, and left very little room for complaint.

NORWICH COCK AND HEN: Cancelled. YORKS. CK. LOWESTOFT AND DIS. C.B.S.

The society held a table show for pairs of Crests, Plainheads and Cinnamons, on Feb. 3, at the Fox and Hounds. In spite of the cold and wet, there was a good number of cages, and plenty of members turned up. Mr. Bedwell was unfortunately not able to come, owing to business matters, so Mr. Hart kindly filled the office of judge in his absence, and placed the cards to everybody's satisfaction, not competing himself. Norwich Plainheads were well represented in both classes, and by the look of the Novice Section, they mean to make it warm for the champions at the first-feather show. The crested class also brought out some good specimens, and we were glad to see some of the Norwich All-England winners here, as it gives the novices a good chance of comparing their own with them, and also to see what is required to place on the show bench. All prize money was paid out at the close of the meeting. CHAMPION SECTION.—CRESTS: 1, 3, Corke; 2, vhc, Wigg; 4, Smith. PLAINHEADS: 1, 3, Nichols; 2, vhc, Disney; 4, c, Blackburn; hc, Lang. MANNINGHAM C.B.A.

The fourth and last show of the year was held on February 8th at headquarters, Mowbray Arms, to determine who should be winners of the extensive list of special prizes put up for competition. The entry was a splendid one, no less than 100 exhibits facing the Judge, Mr. I. Wilman (Shipley). Competition was again very keen throughout, and in many classes it was a hard task to select the coveted winners. The quality of the birds was of a very high order, many noted winners being staged, to do battle for their owners in the race for points. The winners of the special prizes were: 1st, Messrs. A. Grange (cup and gold medal); 2nd, E. Kemp (gold medal); 3rd, H. Grange (silver medal); special for best bird in show went to Messrs. Halliday and Armstrong's winning clear buff. The Judge's awards gave satisfaction to all.

GRAYS.

A nice little schedule had been issued by the Grays Fanciers' Association, for their show at the Masonic Hall on February 11th and 12th, but so poor was the response that seven out of the twelve classes scheduled had to be cancelled, and the others only secured thirty-six entries, fifteen of which were in the stuffed specimens class. The arrangements were well carried out by the committee, and Mr. Smith, although new to the work, made a most capable and courteous secretary. Mr. A. E. Enfield judged.

MULE (8): 1, vhc, Smith, very smart, lightly ticked buff Goldfinch-Canary, nice shape and size; 2, Whent, rich-coloured, variegated buff Goldfinch-Canary, rare shape and feather; 3, Norman, large dark buff, Goldfinch-Canary, capital face, splendid feather; r, Tompkins; vhc, Webb. ISLE OF THANET F.S.

A supplementary show was held on January 30th at the Parochial Hall, Hawley-street, Margate, with a view, if possible, of reducing the deficit on the recent annual show. There were 172 entries, and some splendid exhibits in all classes, and from the exhibitors' point of view the show was a complete success as it brought into competition owners who showed some of their best birds. The committee arranging the show included Messrs. S. Boncey (chairman), A. Weston (treasurer), T. Brown, L. Shaw, W. E. Mills, H. J. Matthews, E. Papworth, and A. G. Moore. Mr. W. J. Jones made an excellent secretary, and deserves every credit for his able management. Mr. F. Gibbs (Canterbury) judged cage birds.

GOSSIP FROM THE PALACE SHOW.

A Red Light.
Notwithstanding that Messrs. Rhodes and Ley each spoke of the danger of fraud creeping in, the motion was carried that the Crested Canary Club confine its specials to birds bred by the member exhibiting. It was a close thing, however, as had Messrs. Rhodes and Tyson voted, the score would have read 10 to 9.

Is it You?
Quite a big smile, one of those which could be heard all over the room, was in evidence when Mr. J. S. Clarke mentioned that there was a gentleman who considered himself, and himself alone, as the only person in the Crested Canary Club fit to take office of any kind.

Encouraging the Novices.
Some of the Crested Canary Club members seemed afraid that far too much was going to be done for the novices, but the annual meeting evidently thought otherwise, for teapots and other specials were voted for them as gaily as festive merry-makers bowl over cokernuts.

Lost, Stolen or Strayed?
Naturally the question of length in the Yorkshire was a theme largely dwelt upon at the Palace. The Yorkshiremen all said they had come down to see "the good big 'uns" that could and should win over the good ones of standard length. But they could not find them!

"Pa" Puts in a Word.
"Pa" Mundell declared there was not a 7 in. Yorkshire Canary in the whole show, and that none of the winners would measure 6¾ in.; "Pa" ought to know.

A Mystery.
Much speculation took place as to what had caused six or seven of the yellow Yorkshires to lose a number of tail and flight feathers. Upon enquiry we learnt it was caused by something startling the birds about three o'clock on the Saturday morning; but what it was no one could discover.

A Long Record, Anyway.
The yellow Yorkshire which has been mentioned in the controversy on length as having come down South and being returned to the North because it was not big enough, stood second at the Palace. First in the unflighted class as a youngster, and second in adults as a yearling, proves that this specimen is quite long enough for North-country judges.

An Up and a Down.
Joe from Eccleshill was pleased at his yellow cinnamon-marked hen securing the L.P.O.S. cup, but felt grieved that it went to the particular bird it did, whilst the apple of his eye, the champion of the season, stood cardless. Mr. Wilcock was very philosophical about it. As she wins about half a dozen specials, it made up for the other being out, "but ding it all," he said, "I doan't loike it."

A Surprise Packet.
The exhibitors in the Foreign Goldie and Bullie class were somewhat surprised to see the second prize captured by a pair of Desert Trumpeter Bullfinches. They thought it "contrary to custom." But the class head reads "Foreign Bullie," and they evidently overlooked the fact that there are many of these besides the Siberian.

A Puzzle for Experts!
There was one Hybrid staged that puzzled even the "experts" to name at first glance, though to their sorrow they were told that a "novice" had "guessed it in office." The bird was shown by Mr. Vale, and is a Twite-Greenfinch. It was left out in the cold.

"You Dirty Boy."
More than one comment was passed on the soiled appearance of Mr. Williams' famous Clear Goldie Mule. But John explained it at once by saying the bird was a ticklish customer to wash, liable to faint in the hand while the tubbing was in progress. Naturally he takes the risk as little as possible. Better a "duty boy" than a dead boy.

Beauty Unadorned, or — ?
A leading dark Goldie Mule attracted considerable attention. The circumstances are somewhat extraordinary, and we print them for what they may be worth. It was alleged, in short, that the bird had washed himself in the water tin, and that then the colour of its blaze had come away and run down over its breast. The show manager was informed, also the C.B.U. representative, and Mr. Ramsden at once sent a message to the judge. Mr. Dewar went down to the show, and afterwards wrote Mr. Ramsden that he had examined and tested the bird in question, but failed to remove any artificial colour, hence he declined to move in the matter. But we understand that the case is still to go before the C.B.U. A lot of discussion waged round the bird.

Another Up and a Down.
A case illustrating the ups and downs of exhibition birds has already been alluded to in the Yorkshire Canary section, and yet another case occurred among the Hawfinches. At the Scottish National show the "score sheet" read, 1st Gilmour, 2nd Chick. At the Palace to-day Mr. Chick's bird (late Hakes, and winner last year) now owned by Mr. Axe, secured first prize, while his Scottish conqueror stood cardless! It was not a question of condition, either.

Off to Canada.
The L. and P.O.S. are losing their treasurer, and invaluable helper, Mr. W. Laskey—at least, for a time. He is journeying out into the wilds of Canada, on a business visit to a friend. His son, recently the victim of a sad accident, costing him the sight of one eye, is going out with him. Both carry the best wishes of fanciers, and we trust the trip may be beneficial in every way.

A Case of Compulsion.
Not a few fanciers were heard to express the opinion that "preferential treatment" had been meted out to Mr. Roberts, of Blackpool, who had his noted Crest and Crest-bred placed in specially made glass-fronted cases, securely locked, as soon as judging was over. We believe, however, that an insurance company concerned stipulate that the exhibits be so protected.

Sufferer, NOT Suffragette.
We understand that the second prize yellow Norwich hen was discovered discoursing sweet music to its neighbours. This led to a protest being lodged, and its efforts to while away the time as pleasantly as possible result in the prize going elsewhere.

Who Pulled His Leg?
The London "Evening News" had many hard words said about it on the Friday evening, when it appeared with a statement that "many birds had already been found dead in their cages," the February weather conditions being set down as the cause. On an explanation being asked, it looked as though someone had been "getting at" the reporter whilst at the show, and he had swallowed all that was told him, and duly put it into print. As a matter of fact, the weather was extraordinarily favourable, and the casualties nil.

"Have You Any Wool?"
We overheard unflattering remarks being made about the loose feathering of some of the Cinnamons on view, the speakers considering the breed to be not improving. "Good birds in more hands," these fanciers (Cinnamon breeders themselves) put forward as the remedy.

R.P.
We understand that all four of the birds which secured the quartette of cash prizes given in connection with this Journal's coupon competition, were moulted on Ramsden's pepper.

The Ungallant Influenza.
Mrs. Ramsden and Mrs. Lambert Brown were taking the same keen interest in events as of yore. What helps their "worse halves" must find them! We regret to have to say that Mrs. Ramsden had contracted a nasty cold, which, however, we trust has now been banished. Another unfortunate victim to the influenza fiend was Mrs. J. F. Hills, who had come up to town with Mr. Hills, that well-known British bird judge. Mrs. Hills was obliged to keep to her room for a day or two, but we hope the attack has by now completely passed away.

The Blackie's Escapade.
A Blackbird escaped from its cage on the Friday, by some means or other, and made its way into the body of the Palace, where it visited the various stalls, and even accepted food from the hands of the attendants. On Sunday it returned to the show, and went down to the tier which held the other Blackbirds, when it was promptly netted by one of the men in charge, and returned to its cage.

No Work for Sherlock Holmes.
Extraordinary precautions were taken to prevent any theft of birds. In addition to the usual staff of uniformed police, plain clothes officers continuously patrolled the aisles, while up aloft, in the balcony running round the dome, a detective with a pair of field glasses was perched. Many were hoping some attempt to remove a bird might be descried, in the belief that some light might then have been thrown on recent mysterious disappearances of show birds.

A Bit Mixed.
The "Daily Mail," in telling its readers about the show, informed them that the Scotch Fancy was a long, slim bird, which must not exceed 6¾ inches in length!

"Jolly Dogs."
Those are a jolly lot of boys that come from Lancashire and Yorkshire, and know how to enjoy a trip to London. They were no exception to the rule this year. They had worthy rivals in a little group of keen enthusiasts from the Midlands, however. One well-known Norwich Plainhead fancier, we were informed by a creditible witness, "sang like a Nightingale" all the way from the Palace up to town.

Extra Classes Next Year.
We believe there is every possibility of a class solely for Tanagers being added to next year's schedule; likewise a class for British hen Bullfinches.

An Early Clearance.
An early morning Wednesday message from Mr. Ramsden states that the show room was completely cleared by 10.15 on the Tuesday night. The long distance birds, as usual, received "preferential treatment," and were got off on the homeward journey at the earliest possible moment.

SHOW DATES FIXED.

To secure insertion in this column a guarantee that the show will be advertised in "C.B." to the extent of at least 25/- must be sent to our manager.

HOUSE'S
CANARY MANUAL
Price ONE SHILLING. Post Free 1/2.
Superbly illustrated by the Champion Canary Artist Mr. H. NORMAN. EVERY BIRD DEPICTED IS A VERITABLE MODEL, and shows the breeder what to aim for. Some idea of the popularity of this Practical Manual may be gathered from the fact that under the title of "The British Canary," it has passed its Third Edition, entering upon a Fourth Edition of 5,000 copies under the new title of "HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL." MR. HOUSE has thoroughly revised and brought this work up-to-date and incorporated a chapter on the "Roller or Singing Canary."

Record Breaking at the Crystal Palace.

The 49th Annual Great National Cage Bird Show a huge success.

A Record Entry, a Record Attendance, and Record Weather.

The London and Provincial O.S. brought the forty-ninth Great National Cage Bird Show to a splendidly successful conclusion on February 7th to 11th last at the usual venue, the Crystal Palace. A more completely successful function, indeed, it has never fallen to our lot to chronicle—we had a record entry, record weather, a record attendance, and a record smooth-working, thoroughly enjoyable show. It is not so many seasons ago that we were hearing the "decline and fall" of this old-established fixture freely predicted, but such gloomy anticipations have proved without foundation in fact. Far from the interest of the Fancy and the public being in any sense on the wane, it can incontrovertibly be proved never to have stood at a higher pitch—the "Crystal Palace" has always been a name to conjure with in cage-bird circles, but never more so than to-day.

The Skipper, the First Mate —
How much this satisfactory state of affairs is due to the able gentlemen, who, to drop into nautical phrase, man the good ship and bring her safely into harbour, only the future can fully reveal. However, none will question, we think, that at no time in the history of the Great National Show has an abler skipper and first mate held command. Messrs. J. W. Ramsden and H. Lambert Brown once again shared the managerial duties, and once again brought them to a triumphantly successful conclusion. J. W. R., long ago christened "Prince of Show Managers," was in his finest form. Energy personified, yet ever urbane and cheerful (perhaps we ought to say "chirpy"), he has a happy knack of smoothing out difficulties and putting things ship-shape in double-quick time, and never has the Great Show looked better or done him greater credit than on the occasion now under notice. Mr. Brown has proved an admirable coadjutor, courteous, level-headed, methodical, and with a fine grasp of detail. With these two gentlemen the future of the show is in safe keeping.

And the Crew.
The efforts of the managers were ably seconded by many members of the L. and P.O.S., amongst those we noticed hard at work being Messrs. Crabb, Couzens, Laskey, Bobson, Hodson, Oldaker, R. J. Pretty, Boaler, Day, Dring, Graves, Hazell, Mathes, Mortlock and Tringham, while Messrs. Brooks, Brownlie, F. J. Green and W. B. Cobb (all the way from Leeds), also "took their coats off," and buckled to in a style worthy of more than passing mention. All are good fanciers, and ungrudgingly gave many hours of their time for the benefit of the birds, and to see them properly unpacked on arrival, and despatched at the close. Mr. Ramsden had a large staff of paid, experienced helpers, also at hand, and under his personal supervision the large entry was handled with great ability—the birds were in their places immediately they arrived, and at the close the exhibits were in a remarkably short space of time got away on the homeward journey. There was not a single hitch anywhere. The usual "professional feeders," Messrs. Gritchfield and "Jimmy" Small, added another to the long list of Palace Shows at which they have officiated in this capacity. The seed-eating birds were fed on seeds supplied by Messrs. J. Carter and Son, and the insectivorous birds upon food and yolk of egg supplied by Messrs. Trower and Co.

The Clerk of the Weather Smiles.
The weather can only be described as beautiful. Right through the show, not a bad day had to be recorded, and the springlike sunshine of the Saturday no doubt had much to do with the enormous crowd through the show-room. Never before do we remember seeing so many visitors; certainly never before has our Visitors' Book held so many names, and bird-lovers seem to have fore-gathered from every part of the United Kingdom—not even forgetting the Isle of Man. The men from Lancashire and Yorkshire were in especially strong force, though the West-country sent a powerful contingent. One and all seemed greatly pleased with the fare provided, and tiresome railway journeys were accounted well repaid. As a protection against possible stress of weather, an enormous hot air pipe had been fitted right down the centre of the show. This luckily had not to be called upon to "do its best," but helped with the usual heating facilities to make the enclosure under the great dome as snug and comfortable as possible, a condition of things appreciated by visitors and birds alike. We have said that the latter broke the record for number of entries, and this record applies to the competitive classes (despite the complete cancellation of the Green Canary section). At one former show an extraordinary number of birds were entered in the extra stock class, and if these be taken into account, then that show just holds the palm.

A Merry Luncheon Party.
The judges' luncheon this year took on an added importance by reason of doing duty also for the annual dinner the L. and P.O.S. has held in former seasons. A truly splendid gathering was the result, between 80 and 90 members and friends, including a goodly leaven of the fairer sex, sitting down in the handsome restaurant under the genial presidency of Mr. Geo. Crabb. An excellent repast was served, and an enjoyable time was spent by those present—many fanciers from a distance being included in the number. Only one toast was on the list; in this Mr. Crabb coupled the "Health of the judges" with "prosperity to the L. and P.O.S.," and called on Messrs. J. F. Hills and Lambert Brown to respond. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Crabb referred to the increased number of exhibitors, and said that undoubtedly the Fancy was spreading in remarkable manner all over the country, for which they had the Fancy Press to thank. He was pleased to know the L. and P.O.S. was progresing satisfactorily, and drew attention to the fact that the next would be the jubilee show of the Crystal Palace, for which they intended to offer some special attraction—perhaps a jubilee prize, or prizes, on the lines of the present Abraham trophy. Mr. Hills, in a few happy sentences, responded on behalf of fellow judges and himself. Then Mr. Brown spoke of the progress the L. and P.O.S. was making, saying that he was pleased the society was more than holding its own, even in these days of strong competition. They had arranged a very good programme for the coming year, including practical lectures, washing exhibitions, debates, a series of members shows, etc. and also another essay competition. The membership roll showed a satisfactory increase. Referring to the present show, he said that the tremendous amount of work it entailed upon Mr. Ramsden and himself was amply repaid by the gratifying response in entries. They would not rest satisfied, however, until a total of 3,000 had been reached. Mr. Ramsden proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Crabb for presiding, remarking that he was the "best man who ever belonged to the L. and P.O.S.." Mr. Laskey seconded, and the vote was accorded with enthusiasm.

Plenty of Business About.
Business among the stallholders was exceptionally brisk. Several well-known firms had their specialities on view, and it was difficult at any time on the Saturday to get near, so great was the crowd inspecting and sampling them. Messrs. Carter and Co., Hyde and Co., and Trower and Co. all had tasteful displays of the noted seeds, bird-foods and other specialities they put up for the benefit of bird-keepers. Messrs. Trowers stall also held a choice lot of teapots, coffee pots, and other valuable plated goods they were offering at the show as special prizes to their customers, and these were much admired. Mr. Roehl's stall contained a choice lot of Roller Canaries, cages, and every appliance imaginable useful in their breeding and keeping, to say nothing of a grand bird-organ, for teaching purposes. Mr. Newley put up an exceptionally fine display of cages, special kinds adapted to the needs of almost every known bird being found thereon, and for workmanship and price they were second to none. On this stall, Mr. Ramsden had a display of his noted colour-foods, and the richness of colour of his latest samples is something remarkable. Messrs. Russell, the world-renowned photographers, had a tastily arranged stall of photographic picture post-cards, and did a roaring trade with visitors. Lastly, CAGE BIRDS had its stall in the usual place, at side of the entrance, and the display of plates, picture post-cards and books brought us many expressions of delight, which were duly appreciated. We were extremely pleased to see so many of our friends and supporters.

The Judges.
The judges had their tables arranged in an excellent light, and as the Friday morning was fairly bright, got through their work under favourable conditions. A somewhat high wind was prevalent outside, and the management thought it better to have the canvas top pulled partly over the dome, rather than expose the birds to avoidable draughts. This arrangement, we think, would commend itself to all, for it were surely better to sacrifice a little light at one end of the show, than to have the benches raked by draughts. The gentlemen who officiated as judges were: Messrs. T. Brown (Scots), H. T. Camps (Foreign), S. R. Compstou (Lancs. and Lizards), S. Cook (British), J. F. Dewar (Hybrids), J. Dobson (Cinnamons, etc.), T. Heath (Crests and Yorks.), J. F. Hills (Brit.), W. Mundell (Yorks.), J. H. Payne (Norwich), A. Rettish (Rollers), J. Robson Borders and Belgians), J. H. Roe (Novice and Limit), W. Swaysland (For. and Cages), and G. E. Weston (Brit.). They one and all accomplished their tasks in good time, and the catalogues with awards were out early in the evening. Odd "grumbles" and differences of opinion were to be heard here and there, of course, but taken on the whole, the decisions of the judges must be considered satisfactory.

"Cage Birds" Competition.
The decision of the Grand Final of CAGE BIRDS great coupon scheme competition created an enormous amount of interest, and not a little excitement. Telegrams from competitors kept arriving right through Saturday, and of enquirers at the show manager's office there seemed to be a regular stream. The result was that the £5 cash first prize went to Messrs. Ambler's (Bradford) winning clear yellow Yorkshire, the second prize, £2 10s., to Mr. C. E. Brown's (Shirehampton) ticked yellow Norwich, the third prize, £1 10s., to Mr. C. J. Wards (Uttoxeter) Linnet-Bullfinch Hybrid, and the fourth prize, £1, to Mr. G. Laurence's (Coventry) Canary-Bullfinch Hybrid. To these gentlemen we tender our congratulations.

The Sales.
As soon as the "Box Office" opened, there was an eager rush for bargains. Trade was soon booming; purchasers were many, and bargains were ditto. At no moment did business seem like falling below the average of former years. It was as much as the supply could do to meet the demand. Asked what was his general impression of the Sales Department, the indefatigable Mr. Ramsden replied, "Very good; well, up to the average." An analysis of the sale returns reveals the fact that while there were no sensational figures paid, purchasers were not afraid of paying a good sum for a good bird. The total amount of cash which passed through the books verges on £300, while the number of sales effected totalled 170. Mr. J. McLay's Crested-bred Canary (a hen of eight months), first in its class, changed hands at £10 10s., while the only Norwich Plainhead sold was Mr. J. Wones' clear buff cock, the price paid being 25/. Several good sales took place in the Yorkshire classes, one of the most notable being Messrs. J. Haigh and Son's clear yellow, which found a purchaser at £4 10s. Mr. F. Wood's ticked buff (3rd in its class), changed hands at £3 10s., while the Cinnamon ticked cock of Messrs. Ogden Bros., which won 1st prize, was sold for £6. Only one sale took place in the Cinnamon classes, and that was for £1 15s. The Limit classes provided no less than 67 sales, including 14 pairs matched for Plainhead breeding, most of which fetched the maximum price of 35/-. Two Roller Canaries embarked on a journey to a new home, both belonging to Mr. Roehl, the one sold for £2 and the other for £1 15s. Mr. L. S. B. Clark's Goldfinch and Canary mule found a purchaser at £2 12s. 6d., Mr. W. Pierce Williams' dark yellow Goldfinch Hybrid at £3, Mr. H. P. Hutchison's dark buff at £2 10s. and Mr. H. Dale's at £2. A number of good Britishers were sold. Mr. C. Prior's second prize cock Goldfinch was claimed at £5, while Mr. G. N. Barclay's cock Siskin (first prize) fetched £5 5s. Mr. A. Porteous' cock Goldfinch found a purchaser at £2 12s. 6d. "Dobber II." a Twite formerly in the possession of Mr. J. Livingstone, passed into that of another at £2 12s. 6d. Two pounds was paid for a Magpie of Mr. F. Jarrett's, while quite a number of Britishers changed hands for a pound apiece.

Among the Foreigners, too, purchasers were busy. Mr. C. T. Maxwell's pair of Sepoy Finches, first in a heavy class, were claimed at £5 10s., and his Black-faced Sugar Bird at £5. Mr. L. W. Hawkins' pair of Cuba Finches, too, found a new owner at £4. A raid was made on the Extra Stock class, and 38 birds changed hands at good prices. A very good number of sales were effected in the case of cages, which were undoubtedly a tempting lot.

Champion Norwich a Grand Lot.

The champion Norwich Plainheads made a grand show, there being an entry of 210 in the eight classes, giving an average of nearly 27 per class—a fine average indeed for any show. The quality, too, we thought was better than last year; in fact it was very level and another set of winners could have been easily found in most of the classes. The buff classes struck us as being the best in point of quality, all the winners being birds of exceptional merit and nicely balanced. The clear buff of Mr. Bishop, which secured the L. and P.O.S. diploma for best Norwich, the silver challenge cup, and the spl presented by the Victorian Society (Australia) is a smasher, and was put down as fresh as paint, which enabled it to throw off the strong opposition presented by the ticked yellow of Mr. E. Baker, which secured the championship special last year. Messrs. Bishop and Baker are to be congratulated upon winning three firsts each, no mean achievement at such a show as the Crystal Palace. There was, we were pleased to see, almost an entire absence of the big, long-sided and coarse feathered birds, and for such a large collection, they were a very uniform lot as regards type. Several grand birds got "knocked out" owing to having fought many stiff battles up and down the country, and consequently showing signs of wear and tear, being handicapped when meeting good birds which had only made their appearance at a few shows. In the unflighted classes were many birds which will make sure winners next year, should they get a good moult, as they are just the sort to improve. The winning buff is a gem and with a little more size would be the beau ideal of a young Norwich Plainhead.

Crests Good, Though Few.

The total entry in the six classes for Crests and Crest-breds was 65, or an average of just over ten per class. Even though the numbers were not so great as might have been hoped for, the competition was well broken up, and some dozen members of the Crested Canary Club entered the lists. It is perhaps a hopeful sign for the future welfare of any variety that the competition should be spread widely, rather than that a few fanciers should exhibit largely. Thus, in the classes under notice, there were twenty-three individual exhibitors, a splendid percentage. True, such magnificent teams as we have seen put down, in the days gone by, by some of the "giants," were conspicuous by their absence. With just a few exceptions, the quality was not so high as we have seen it, but it was more even. Mr. C. Roberts showed Southerners his noted Crest, "King of the North," and his truly marvellous Crest-bred "Blackpool Wonder"; and we could not help admiring Mr. J. McLay's remarkably fine yellow-green Crest-bred. Variegated crested buff cocks, and crested-bred buff cocks were the best filled classes, and here, too, was the cream of the quality.

The Yorkshires Make History.

Yorkshires made one of the finest displays in the history of Palace shows, in fact we doubt if a better quality lot were ever seen at Sydenham. Type and quality were strongly in evidence, and those who say that the North country birds are big must have had their eyes opened to the fact that they are not. The recent controversy on length has caused much excitement amongst breeders of this most popular variety, and the birds on view were most critically scrutinised by fanciers' both of the North and the South, and the universal opinion was that the good big ones, of which we have heard so much, certainly had the worst of the deal against the good little ones. The special for the best Yorkshire fell to Messrs. Bailey and Swanger's famous 'ticked buff, which won last year, and has held his own well through the season just closing. He is one of the sweetest and smartest Yorkies that ever looked through a cage, and the judge's decision seemed to be unanimously approved. Whilst the standard gives us such gems as this there is little need to amend it for the benefit of the problematical good big ones. The L.P.O.S. cup for best Yorkshire shown by a member, fell to Mr. Wilcock's winning yellow cinnamon marked hen, a lovely bird, but hardly the equal of her more famous stable companion, which stood in the same class unnoticed. The ups and downs of exhibiting never received a more pertinent illustration—the crack of the season cardless, but compensation comes by her owners second string getting first past the post.

The Class of the Section.

The class of the section was undoubtedly that for ticked buffs; what a lot they were! One only under a couple of score, and the winner did win. For feather and style a better Yorkie never graced the benches, but he gave one the impression that good as he is to-day, he will hardly prove himself such a laster as his more famous stable companion. Anyway they are two as good ticked buffs as ever came from one stable, and Messrs. Bailey and Swanger must have been hugely delighted with their success. In this class several extra prizes were given, and the South got a look in by the aid of the exhibits of Messrs. Parrott, Rennie, and Knight, the former which won the S.Y.C.C. special for best cock was the winner at Walthamstow, and a charming bird he is too, one that with careful handling, should make a name for himself in yellow classes next season. Style and grace were also well exemplified in the birds of Messrs. Rennie and Knight. Other North country birds that got in the prizes were Mr. Wadsworth's pair, and Mr. Walsh's exhibit, and a very shapely, high quality trio they were. The clear yellows were a very even class, but the quality was hardly so high in character as that seen in some of the others. Messrs. Ambler's winner was well worthy of his position, and wound up a successful season in good style. Buffs were a good lot, some birds of most exquisite feather being found amongst them, whilst few indeed were there with that all too common failing of bad wing carriage—a smart shapely collection, with the leaders well selected and pressing each other closely. The second bird was of somewhat different stamp to the other winners, he excelled when handled, but did not look so well on the bench.

The ticked yellows were superior to their clear brethren, and the task of separating them must have been by no means easy. Mr. Mundell's selections were very uniform, and little was there between any of the birds in the tickets, another day and several of them might easily be in reverse position. Mr. Walsh's representative beat everything in the class for colour, and this enhanced his other charms, which were great. In the ticked buffs was found the special winner previously referred to. A bird which we liked very much in this class was Mr. Shackleton's vhc; he is a Yorkie all over, and had somewhat hard lines; between him and the winner there was not much to choose. Mr. Binn's second, given a little more colour to show off his beautiful quality, would take beating, but Mr. Heath paid little heed to colour, and rightly so, the Yorkshire is a bird of shape and style. As a class the unevenly marked were below the average of the others, and were not so typical, many of them lacking the fineness of body and compactness of feather, which is so great a feature in a first-class Yorkshire. Of the unflighted class, we have already spoken. Hens made two splendid classes, quality, shape and style being seen right through, but we thought the buffs excelled the yellows in being a better quality lot, and rather more level; some of the yellows were big.

High Honours for a Hen.

Cinnamon marks were not so good as we have seen them at Sydenham. Whilst there were many most admirable birds staged, there were also some that were far too stout, especially so in the buffs, which were the weakest of the four classes. Each of the yellow classes were good, and some very slim, racy birds of most exquisite feather properties with abundance of nerve and style were to be seen in them. The yellow hens were extra good, and here as before stated was found the winner of the L.P.O.S. cup, a big honour this to fall to a hen.

Borders Hold the Averages.

The Border classes came up splendidly, and there is an undoubtedly growing interest in this particular branch of the Fancy. There is more than one reason for this. The Border is an attractive bird. It is neat, vivacious, hardy, and wears a gloriously silky dress. Moreover, the absence of all necessity for colour-feeding, which saves such a great deal of trouble, time, and expense, is a considerable asset in its favour. Whatever may be the reasons, certain it is that the Border Fancy Canary is rapidly increasing in popular favour, as, indeed, are also the various subdivisions of the variety increasing in point of beauty and of merit. There were big classes, and the quality was marvellous—this remark applies throughout nearly the whole of the section. As is the case with the Norwich, there is not at present quite that uniformity of type which the best friends of the breed heartily desire, but where so many were excellent, 'twere unkind to criticise adversely the few. It is only bare justice to congratulate the breeders upon the success of their labours to improve and popularise this bird. Splendid quality and type were to be found in the hen classes (happy augury of future excellence). The class for self or foul Cinnamons was one of considerable interest, and an entry of 16 a very creditable feat on the part of Border Fancy men. Great and commendable progress is being made in this section. As may be expected with a variety in process of development, there were varying shades of colour, and that, too, in the prize list. Still, be would be a writer of considerable temerity who essayed to assert that Cinnamon Borders were not on the up grade all round. 163 birds in 8 classes was an average which should have a steadying influence on the champions of other varieties, who boast of the popularity of their favourites. Even the straight 'un of the County of Broad Acres was out-numberd on the averages!

The Scots and Belgians.

Scots were not a great collection, only sixteen in three classes, buff hens being scratched. Mr. Brown had not much difficulty in finding the winners, Mr. Harden's two birds standing out in the cock classes, In the yellow classes, the best shaped and cleverest handling bird was Mr. Cobb's third; a wonderful Scot is she, but feather condition told its tale. Only twenty-six Belgians faced Mr. Robson, but they were good, and the leaders would have done credit to more extended competition. Capt. Philp held a very strong hand and his birds not only excelled in points, but were put down in the finest condition possible. Some exhibitors might ask the Capt. for a tip on showing Belgians. The veteran Robertson sent a lovely brace of hens, and they led the class well. It is over twenty years since the writer of these notes was exhibiting Belgians and the High Harrington enthusiast was then a power in the land, even as he is to-day. Evanescent as is the Canary fancy, it is unique to find an exhibitor sticking so closely to one variety for such a number of years, especially with a variety so difficult to breed and exhibit as is the Belgian. Mr. Robertson, we lift our hat to you. Some comment was aroused by the fact that Captain Philp exhibited his young class birds in the two adult classes where they carried off the premier awards. According to the schedule he was quite in order in so doing, but it is not quite in accordance with custom, and there was some "kicking."

The Novices; and Others.

In the A.O.V. class were to be seen several of those handsome birds, the four-marked Yorkshire and Norwich, and we were pleased to see Mr. Dobson recognise their merits. Lancashires, but for the presence of the teams of Messrs. Green and Garner, would have been a very poor lot. These two enthusiasts each staged a capital lot of birds, the former especially, and his perseverance is reaping a rich reward, three firsts, three seconds, two thirds, and a fouth is an achievement of which Mr. Green may be justly proud. Lizards came up fairly well in numbers and the quality was very even and of high class. We thought the Silvers excelled the Golds in all-round merit, and especially in spangling. Mr. Hampshire, who had the long journey from Oldham, was rewarded by seeing his Silvers stand at the head in each class. These two birds are father and son. Mr. Rukin held a strong hand in Golds, but we thought the pick of the basket was Mr. Dewsnap's winning clear cap, a wonderful bird this for rowing and colour, and it had a coat which shone like silk. As usual the novice Norwich contained some warm stuff and that in more senses than one. Taking them right through they were an exceedingly fine lot, and we were pleased to see that in most cases, type and quality was well considered in the awards. Mr. Young was the most successful exhibitor in the section, and he certainly staged a grand team. The unflighted class was a teazer, and in it was found the winner of the special for the best bird in the section, a very handsome wing ticked yellow of Mr. Johnson's, but he was very hardly pressed by the buffs of Messrs. Young and Schofield, and the yellow of Mr. Dixon. Crests were about the poorest lot we have seen the novices put down at the Palace, and were miles below last year's turn-out. Yorkshires were splendid, many of the birds staged being fit to win at ordinary shows, and what is more they were staged in really grand style. A Yorkshire takes some staging, but these novices seem to have overcome the difficulties. The classes were not quite so uniform in quality as those in the open section, as some of the exhibitors thought Mr. Mundell would be captured by the big ones, but they made a mistake, for if any difference was to be seen the awards leaned more to type and quality than they did in the open. Messrs. Shaw won the section special with a most charming yellow which was closely pressed in its class by a lovely little bird shown by Mr. Jeffreys. Other exhibitors, whose birds were of grand type and style, were Messrs. Duke, Adams, Forse, Robinson, Couzens, Hawes, Slade, Cross, Stevens, Blackhurst, Jones and Wood. As the open cinnamons were an improved lot, so the novices were below par, and were disappointing. Possibly this arose by reason of many of the C.C.C. novices showing in the open, so as to compete for the club's specials.

Among the Hybrids.

The Hybrid section, as is usual here, provided those interested in these freaks with splendid classes to look over, and some food for speculation as well. The Light class was not heavily patronised, but held some quality. A "Twite-Canary" (according to catalogue) was put down in it, but was very unsteady, and had broken its plumage. We hardly know whether it could be classed as "lightly ticked," either. The variegated Goldie class was magnificent, both in numbers and in quality, and a double set of winners could well have been found in it. Light Linnet and Greenfinch Hybrids seem as scarce as ever. The dark yellow Goldies were a clinking lot; the dark mealies present only in small number. Dark Greenies mustered in force, and the only (we believe) cinnamon-coloured example figured amongst them. They were more numerous than the dark Linnets, though we question whether so high in all-round merit. The Si-kiu, Redpoll and Twite-Canary class was a stinger, and the light Siskin mule bred last season in Scotland landed the first prize for its new owner. Dr. Galloway staged (unnoticed) what we assumed to be a very lightly-marked Redpoll-Canary, though the catalogue was silent as to the parentage. Lacking colour, it looked, although of good size, like a hen; somewhat unsteady, it had damaged its plumage. The Canary-Bullies, seven all told, made a fine showing. The remaining Bullie Hybrids were also a grand lot, the "star" Goldie-Bullie leading the way. The Redpoll-Bullie we have heard so much about of late, secured fourth place. It is a fine young bird. The A.O.V. Hybrid class was splendid, though it did not introduce us to any novelties. The recently disputed House Sparrow-Tree Sparrow Hybrid stood therein, but went unnoticed; bad condition of plumage, however, was not in its favour.

British a Huge Success.

The British Bird section was a great success, and well upheld the traditions of the Palace as a hotbed for classes of our native birds. The judges, whoever they may be, can always rest assured that their task will be no light one. Whatever happens to other sections, the Britishers come along in huge numbers year after year, and there is no doubt that with the gorgeous Foreigners, they share the honours of the show, so far as the public is concerned. The usual throngs filled the aisles along which they were staged. The British Bullfinches were a very good and level lot, and with one possible exception the judge "went for" the medium-sized birds, about whose nationality there could be little question. Two "good big 'uns," at least, we noticed cardless. The Goldies, always a fascinating class, came up in the usual stroug manner, and the judge said he considered them the finest all-round lot he had as yet had under him at this fixture—the quality was exceedingly high, and exceedingly level, rendering the sorting out no easy task. Birds with good winning records, and which will win again, had to stand in the "carded" division, and probably some were out in the cold altogether. We believe one or two of the Goldies fell under suspicion as regards their nationality. Last year's winner, the gem from Wales, appeared in even more brilliant form than before, and scored another first. The Linnets were excellent, a close race for all positions having to be recorded. Unfortunately the Scottish National winner, a gem belonging to Mr. Arrigbi, had two or three flights out of one wing, which probably lost it the coveted first prize. Hard luck for its popular owner. Mr. Walsh also had a lovely specimen unnoticed (a well-known winner) through being off in condition on the day. The Chaffinches, Redpolls and Siskins made up strong classes, while the Brambles were a fine collection. We understand the winner is 11 years old, and that this is his fifth Palace win. What a record! The Greenfinch class was exceptionally keenly contested, and the judge did well in selecting his winners. The Hawfinches saw a grand specimen (recently bought for £10) at the head of the poll. But, curiously enough, a bird which lowered its colours at the recent Scottish National show, here failed to get even a ticket—an odd reversal of "form." We had six species in the Bunting class, so that it was highly interesting, and Mr. V. Wynn, an exhibitor making a first appearance at the Palace in this section, captured both first and second prizes, a very meritorious feat. The large Softbills were well up to the average in merit, the Magpie, etc., class being, indeed, exceptionally fine. The Albinos brought out a pretty pied Bullfinch, and a really beautiful Albino-Yellowhammer, a lovely yellow in colour, and with pink eyes (we heard it being disputed, by the bye, that the bird is in reality a Yellowhammer). The Resident and Migratory Insectivorous classes may be said to have maintained their usual interest, though nothing new and startling put in an appearance. We had a Swallow; but this species has been seen before many a time, though not just recently. The Great Grey Shrike carried off the special for best British bird, its owner, Mr. W. Cook, also annexing several other specials with its aid.

Many Rare Foreign Birds.

The Foreign section, if not a record, was certainly more than up to the average. There were 129 entries spread over eight classes, and among them quite a number of rarities, of which there has been quite a surfeit of late, so much so that it might almost be said rarities have become common! Of the management, it suffices to say that it was in advance of past years, and this is high praise indeed. A feature was the ample seating accommodation, of which visitors were not slow to avail themselves, and evidently appreciated. Elaborate precautions were taken to obviate draughts. But will this ever be accomplished at the Palace? The precautions against draught had the effect of shutting out some of the light, but in spite of all, the management must be congratulated on getting as near perfection as circumstances permitted, and also on a most successful show. The main features of interest were again the Birds of Paradise, of which there are now quite a number in the aviaries and bird-rooms of aviculturists in this country. A noteworthy exhibit, though not commanding the same general attention as the Birds of Paradise, was the Rev. H. D. Astley's Purple-breasted Parrot, which surely is a misnomer, as it certainly would be more appropriate to call it the Purple-hellied Parrot. Other rarities were the Guiana Lovebirds, Crimson-fronted Lorrikeets, Golden-breasted Buntings, Rock Bunting, Sepoy and Lavender-backed Finches, Sunbirds, Festive Tanager, Black-faced Sugarbird, etc., truly a goodly array, making the judges' task anything but an enviable one. The judges' awards came in for some criticism, but they had a difficult task indeed, and with Foreign Birds at a show, a day, or even half a day, makes a lot of difference in the appearance and condition of the birds.

Norwich Plainheads

not given in catalogue. CREST-BRED YELL. (3): 1, McLay, nearly green hen, with immense body to a yellow, in fact one or two of the connoisseurs thought it might be a buff, as the size helped scepticism as to colour. It is a yellow without a doubt, and a grand bird of its kind, skull beautifully domed, grandly rising cushion, long turn back, a right good bird of its class; 2, Stanger and Herdman, nearly even-marked, nice formation of skull, well clothed, and turns back well; 3, Calver and Son, variegated, well lashed, good body, nice length of turn back; 4, Johnson, tightly varieg., good in length of head feather, not quite so dense, but a good one; vhc, Tope, very nice skulled bird, with rare quality of body feather; hc, Bowyer, well-formed head, nice one; c, Woollard. C.B. BUFF CK (19): 1, Roberts, the celebrated and marvellously fine-headed bird, "Blackpool Wonder." It is difficult adequately to give a description of this splendid specimen, but it will be sufficient to say that it excited the sportsmanlike envy of all crest men present at the show; 2, Wallace, variegated, with grand body, lovely feather, wide entrance, skull of the correct formation, fine cushion, nice short beak, dense, wide, and long in head feather, a noble bird; 3, Tyson, another gem, with wide veiny feather, wide entrance, rare shape of body, and long turn back; 4, Shearman, green, fine cushion-shaped head, rising well over the beak, and turning back dense, wide and long; vhc, Godley, variegated, well lashed, wide head and entrance nice length of head feather, hardly so deeply cushioned, yet a good one; hc, McLay, well lashed, dense in head feather; c, Horton, grand skulled variegated, that took the fancy of a great many. C.B. HENS (9): 1, Tyson, gem for length of turnback and shape of skull, wide, veiny feather, typical body; 2, Atess, hen with nice width of skull and entrance, dense in the feather-packing on head, wide in individual feather, and good length of head-gear; 3, Walsh and Son, has length and width of head-feather, but is scarcely so wide in entrance, good body, and the right sort of feather; 4, Wallace, very attractive green, with a dome-shaped head, short beak, wide veiny head feather; a truly smart and valuable hen; vhc, Horton, long in head feather, nice width of skull; hc, Brown, green, good one; c, Pooley.

The Yorkshires.

Judges Messrs. T. Heath, odd numbers, W. Mundell even, commencing with Yellows.

YELLOW (20): 1, Ambler, sweet head and neck, grand close fitting shoulders, well filled back, wings and tail, well braced, stands well on a good pair of legs, plenty of nerve and style, lovely silky feather, and a wealth of colour; 2, Bailey and Swanger, grand shape and style, beautiful feather, not so much colour, nice head and neck, capital back, tapers well away from shoulders to vent, wings and tail, grandly braced; 3, Haigh and Son, beautifully slim, stylish, nervy, bird, full of colour and quality, carries himself well, grand wings and tail, not quite so neat in head; 4, Webb, splendid shape and carriage, rare wings and tail, stands well up and is full of nerve and style, a really smart Yorkie, but not quite so silky in feather as leaders, or so neat in head; vhc, Towers, grand colour and quality of feather, splendid head, neck and shoulders, nice tail, hardly so clever with his wings; hc, Cuthbertson, full of colour and quality, lovely head, neat, well packed wings and tail, gets well up on his legs, and shows for all he is worth, given a little more length of side he would be a flyer; c, Hodgson, long, slim, stylish bird, capital wings and tail, hardly so clean in front, grand legs and good position. BUFF (20): 1, Shackleton, a picture, not a feather out of place, as tight as wax, sweet head, grand neck, well placed close fitting shoulders, wings tightly braced, neat tail, plenty of nerve and style and tapers well away; 2, Bradley and Coulson, more length and substance, grand head and neck, good back, capital wings and tail, hardly so round in chest, a nice stylish bird which handles well; 3, Wadsworth, grand quality of feather, plenty of colour, good head, back, wings, and tail, shorter in leg, and hardly so well tapered, full of nerve and style, a taking bird; 4, Bailey and Swanger, plenty of colour, grand quality of feather, neat head, well filled neck, grand shoulders, and well placed wings, nice length of leg and stands well; vhc, Webb, beautiful feather, plenty of nerve, stands well, good head, wings, and tail, on the stout side; hc, Drake, long, heavy built bird, splendid feather, handles well; c, Knight, very neat and sweet, full of quality, grand wings and tail, just a shade chubby. TICKED YELL. (11): 1, Walsh, very hot coloured wing ticked, neat head, grand neck, capital close fitting shoulders, well packed wings and tail, plenty of leg, full of nerve and handles remarkably well, shows a few pen feathers on head; 2, hc, Bailey and Swanger, thigh ticked, very sweet, slim and clean cut all through, lovely quality of feather, neat head, capital neck, rare shoulders, wings and tail, full of style and quality, must have run the leader very close indeed; hc, another gem, full of colour and quality, beautiful shape, rare nerve and position, a charming bird indeed, thigh ticked; 3, Ambler, thigh ticked, plenty of length, full of nervo and style, rare shape and carriage, good wings and tail, hardly so neat in head, and not so hot in colour; 4, Wood, smart and neat throughout, plenty of nerve, handles well, grand wings and tail, not so silky in feather, ticked in neck; vhc, Shackleton, grand shoulders, wings and tail, just a shade fat in skull, grand quality of feather, plenty of nerve, and stands well up on perch; c, Marr, nice slim, thigh ticked, capital shape and nerve, hardly as steady as those above it. BUFF (15): 1, spl best buff, spl best Yorkshire, Bailey and Swanger wing ticked, wonderful shape, colour and feather, sweet head, well filled neck, neat, close fitting shoulders, wings tightly braced, tail like a pipe stem, stands well up, full of nerve and style, a Yorkie all over and a picture that could be studied with advantage by those who advocate the abolition of the present standard length; 2, Binns, thigh ticked, very sweet head, grand neck, shoulders and back, well braced wings and tail, stands well up and shows himself grandly, not so much colour, but magnificent quality of feather; 3, Wood, lovely wing ticked, very neat head, nice neck, close fitting shoulders, wings and tail, well braced, gets well up, and shows himself like a soldier, a bird of rare quality and style; 4, Wilcock, head ticked, fine head and neck, capital shoulders, beautiful feather and style, longer and also stouter; vhc, Cuthbertson, very neat head, good neck and back, grand tail, lovely feather, hardly so clever with his wings, gets well up on his legs and has plenty of nerve, neck ticked; vhc, Shackleton, very handsome thigh ticked, beautiful colour and quality of feather, smart head, capital neck, shoulders and back, tail well piped, full of style and nerve, a bird we liked very much indeed; hc, Owen, another of the longer and stouter ones, grand shape and feather, good head, shoulders and back, splendid tail, neck ticked; c, Wadsworth, thigh ticked, very neat and smart throughout, grand shape, rare quality of feather, capital wings and tail, and stands like a guardsman. UNEVENLY-MKD. (14): 1, 2, Murgatroyd and Son, three-pointed yellow, wonderful quality, shape, colour, and style, grand wings and tail, neat head, stands well up, a really good Yorkie, and on his best behaviour to-day; 3rd, eye and wing buff, grand shape and feather, capital head, back, and wings, does not to-day show the life he should do; 2, Broughton, variegated buff, wonderful quality of feather, grand shape, tapering well away from shoulders to tail, well braced wings and tail, just a shade flat in head, grand carriage and nerve; 4, Armstroug, three-pointed buff, which we liked as well as anything in the class, magnificent silky, close fitting jacket, plenty of colour, neat, sweet head, capital neck, shoulders and back, well braced wings and tail, and full of style and nerve; vhc, Wood, long, slim, variegated yellow, capital head, neck and back, tapers well away from shoulders to vent, fails carriage of wings and tail; hc, Wilcock, neck and wing marked buff, as tight as wax, grand shape, style and nerve, rather pale in colour; c, Crisp. UNFLI. (39): 1, Bailey and Swanger, cheek ticked buff, beautifully rounded head, well filled neck, neat close fitting shoulders, wings and tail, well whipped up like a bit of elastic, full of nerve and style and feathered to perfection, not a feather out of place; 2, 4, Wadsworth, grand shape, very hot yellow, rare wings and tail, grand level back, gets well up on his legs and stands like a soldier, looked rather soiled in plumage; 4th, very tight, close feathered, warm coloured buff, good head, neck back, wings and tail, hardly so steady as his stable companion; 3, Walsh, lovely feathered buff, on the small side and pale in colour, very neat head, rare wings and tail, and as tight as wax; 3, spl best S.P.Y.C.C., Parrott, charming yellow, very slim and sweet, fine head, grand neck, rare shoulders, wings, and tail, plenty of nerve, lovely feather, handles remarkably well, a most typical Yorkie; 4, spl best 4th S.Y.C.C., Rennie, yellow of nice quality and style, good head, neck and back, wings and tail well braced, plenty of nerve, not so nicely tapered in body; 4, Knight, well shaped, stylish buff, fine head, grand back and wings, hardly so neat in tail; vhc, Radley, very slim, stylish bird, lovely quality of feather, neat head, grand wings and tail, full of nerve, had damaged his wing ends, which doubtless put him back; vhc, spl best, vhc S.Y.C.C., Crisp, plenty of colour, length and style, rare legs, nice shape, hardly so compact in feather; vhc, Whittaker, grand shaped, close feathered buff, much shorter than last named, and formed a striking contrast as they stood side by side, had he been well washed, would doubtless have stood much higher; hc, Bradley and Coulson, charming buff, rare shape, style and feather, grand close fitting wings and tail, plenty of nerve; hc, Forse, very hot, slim yellow, grand quality and style, gets well up on his legs and handles well; c, Patrick, very close feathered, stylish buff, rare shaped body, hardly so neat in head. HEN, YELL. (25): 1, Broughton, neck ticked, very slim and neat, grand head, neck and back, wings and tail well braced, lovely quality of feather, and holds herself like the belle she is; 2, Radley, rare shaped wing ticked, neat head, capital shoulders, wings, and tail, plenty of nerve and holds herself well, gone in neck which handicapped her severely; 3, hc, Walsh, rare colour and feather, sweet head, grand shoulders, rare wings, just a title slack in tail, plenty of nerve and style; hc, cheek ticked, very slim and racy, nice feather, not so much colour; 4, Ambler, grand head, and neck, beautiful slim body, tapering well away towards vent, grand wings, shows the effect of the season's work, still a nice smart lassie; vhc, Peel, grand quality, shape, and style, capital wings and tail, plenty of nerve, hardly so neat in head; vhc, Ogden Bros., very long, slim, racy hen, grand wings and tail, stands well up, not quite so clean in front; c, Shackleton, rare shape, tapering nicely away to vent, well-placed shoulders, very compact wings and tail, hardly so close in feather. BUFF (30): 1, Walsh, wing ticked, wonderful feather, rare nerve, rich colour, splendid wings and tail, nice head and neck, nice length of leg, inclined to be a little bit hooky; 2, vhc, Bailey and Swanger, neck ticked, wonderful silky feather, very tight and compact, well braced wings and tail, stands well up and shows grandly; vhc, the old hen in lovely form, wonderful feather and style, but getting a little stout with age; 3, vhc, Wadsworth, very smart, stylish hen, neat head, capital neck, rare shoulders and back, well braced wings and tail, plenty of nerve, quality of feather; vhc, thigh ticked, more colour, nice shape and feather, but does not get up so well as her stable companion; 4, Broughton, beautiful quality and carriage, stands well up, nice silky feather, but not so tight as she might be, very nervy; hc, Shackleton, neat, smart lively clear, nice head, back, and tail, showing signs of the season's wear and tear; hc, Owen, good length, style and feather, but on the strong side; c, Fellows and Flynn, head ticked, neat head, nice back and tail, drops her wings a trifle. CINN. MKD., YELL. (12): 1, hc, Ogden Bros., very hot colour, wonderfully silky and close in feather, nice head, neat wings, and tail, shoulders well placed, plenty of nerve and style, head, cheek and wing marked; 2, Wilcock, head, check, and wing marked, grand, shapely, well tapered body, rare quality of feather, gets well up on his legs and shows himself to perfection, hardly so clean in front; 3, Pattrick, eye ticked, very slim and neat throughout, grand wings and tail, plenty of nerve and holds himself well; 4, Hirst, very slim, stylish wing marked, grand nerve, neat head, capital wings and tail, hardly so tight in feather; vhc, Wood, eye, neck and wing marked, grand, rich colour, very silky and tight in feather, grand wings and tail; c, Bentley. BUFF (13): 1, Hirst, eye and wing marked, sweet head and neck, grand back, beautiful quality of feather, just a bit on the stout side, well braced wings and tail, and plenty of nerve; 2, Cooper, head and wing marked, very nice quality of feather, nice head, neck and back, hardly so neat in wing; 3, Crisp, eye and wing marked, lovely head, capital back and wings, just a shade thick in tail, very close and compact in feather, stands up well and has plenty of nerve; 4, Dobson, eye, neck and wing marked, rare shape and style, plenty of nerve, very fine in feather, grand wings and tail, a bird we liked well; vhc, hc, Pattrick, eye, wing, and tail marked, nice shape and style, well feathered, but rather unsteady; hc, eye and wing marked, capital feather and shape, nice legs and stands well; c, Ogden Bros. HEN YELL. (12): 1, spls, L.P.O.S. cup, Wilcock, head, neck and wing marked, splendid colour, very silky and tight in feather, neat head, capital neck, fine well placed shoulders, grand wings and tail; No. 480, same owner, the champion hen that has done so much winning this season, standing cardless, we liked her as well as anything in the class; she is a real beauty; 2, spl, best S.Y.C.C., Crisp, wing marked, charming bird, slim, straight, and stylish, splendid colour and quality, capital wings and tail; 3, Taylor and Raigh, head, check, and wing marked, long, stylish hen, grand shaped body, not so compact in wings and tail; 4, Ogden Bros., eye, cheek and wing marked, rare head, neck and back, wonderful colour and quality, beautiful shape and style, rare carriage of wings and tail, a lovely hen throughout; vhc, c, Ambler, eye, cheek, and wing marked, capital colour and quality, fine head, capital wings and tail; hc, Gibbs, eye, neck and wing marked, very tight and compact in feather, grand wings and tail, very shapely and stylish. BUFF (9): 1, Shackleton, wing marked, as sleek and tight as a mole, wonderful shape and style, full of nerve, shows herself like a true champion, a real smart lassie; 2, Ogden Bros., rather heavily marked, neat head, grand neck, back, and wings, gets well up on her legs, and holds herself splendidly; 3, Wilcock, head and wing marked, very erect in carriage and as steady as a sentry on duty, very silky and tight in feather, a regular little swell, and hard to find fault with; 4, Armstrong, eye, neck, and wing marked, nice quality and style, rather more substance, but plenty of nerve and good feather; vhc, c, Cuthbertson, wing ticked, grand shape and style, nice legs, hardly so fine in feather; hc, Bentley, cheek and wing marked, very tight in feather, grand shape and style, pale in colour. GREENS: All cancelled.

The Cinnamons

(Judge Mr. J. Dobson).

The open Cinnamon classes made a nice display; in fact, one of the best that has been seen at the big Glass House for a long time. Not only were they numerically strong, but quality was there as well. Mr. Godley staged a fine team, with which he annexed the majority of the prizes, and they were indeed a credit to him. The winning Jonque of Mr. Davies, with which he led off, and upset some of the "champions," is a grand exhibit, and was put down in good fettle. YELLOW (17).—1, Davies, grand colour, sound and well burnished, good size, shape, and skull; 2, Godley, lovely quality and colour, bright, but hardly so deep as the leader, nice feather and shape; 3, Dormer, good size and shape, beaten in neck, but good sound colour, and well burnished; 4, Gaze good size and nice skull, not quite so high in colour and quality; vhc, Riding, a smart exhibit; hc, Wones; c, Yates. BUFF (17).—1, spl, 2, 4, Godley, winner rare size and shape, best of colour nice feather good skull; 2, magnificent colour and full of quality, grandly burnished, and as tight as a drum, must have made the leader gallop to get home; 4, also good quality and colour, a fine team; 3, Davies, good shape, nicely pencilled, loses a shade in quality perhaps, else close up; vhc, Dormer; hc, Rukin; c, Gilbert. UNFLIG. (14).—1, 2, 3, Godley, yellow leading, grand size, colour, shape, full of quality a clinker; 2, buff, rare size, excellent quality and colour, another gem; 3 yellow, very sound in colour, and good in shape; 4, Handt, buff, nice shape, colour, and quality, very promising; vhc, hc, c, Dormer, three smart youngsters. HENS (16).—1, 4, vhc, Godley, grand shaped and good coloured Jonque leading, nice head and neck, excellent quality; 4, buff, good shape, nice quality, grand back and full neck, sound colour, must have pressed hard; 2, 3, Riding, fine Buff leading, grand shape, quality, and size, bold, clean skull, and full neck; 3, good shaped yellow, just beaten in colour and quality by the winner; hc, Dormer.

Lancashires and Lizards

(Judge, Mr. S. R. Compston).

LANCS. COPPY. YELL. (8): 1, 3, hc, spl, Green, first last year's winner again at the top, creating a record we should say in a Southern bird twice winning in succession at the Palace; ho is a grand, shapely bird, of nice length and carriage, with a well fronted, nicely spread coppy, and was put down in AI form; third a ticked bird, grand shape and substance of body, with good carriage, nice frontal, not so well finished at sides; 2, Rushton, shapely, stylish bird, of good length and substance, but does not possess the spread of winner; 4, Adams, another ticked bird, good length and shape of body, which is well carried, nicely spread coppy, but rather short; vhc, Fisher, again a ticked bird, nice length of body feather, fairly stout body of good shape, short of coppy.; c, Garner. BUFF (9): 1, spl, hc, Garner, fine shapely bird, plenty of length, gets well up on his legs, and holds himself in a "gradeiy" way, plenty of body feather, and well spread coppy; 2, 3, 4, Green, long, massive, heavily-feathered body, capital carriage, plenty of head feather, but hardly so much substance of skull; third, another heavily feathered, massive bird, of grand body properties, coppy is of good length, but drops too much; fourth, another rare good bodied bird, with plenty of feather, but is inclined to lift his coppy, and thus spoils his good looks; vhc, Adams, good length, shape, and carriage of body, neat coppy, wants more substance of neck; c, Rushton. PLAINHEAD YELLOW (7): 1, 2, hc, Green, the leaders two grand birds, full of Lancashire properties, each carry abundance of body feather and possess well lashed skulls, winner possesses the best shaped and most massive skull, but second carries and shows his body properties to the best advantage; 3, 4, Garner, third ticked neck, nice width of skull, good long body with plenty of feather; fourth, very similar bird, full of good properties, but, John, you forgot their toilets before you sent them off and the Southerner beat you on staging; vhc, Adams, capital shape, nice length and strength of feather, also suffered for not being in the best of condition. BUFF (6): 1, 2, hc, Green, again two grand shaped birds with plenty of feather and substance and put down in tip-top form, in fact the condition of the Redhill team would have done credit to any Yorkshireman; 3, Garner, stout, well feathered bird, not so long in body, shapely, well feathered skull; 4, Smith, nice length and style, with plenty of feather, hardly so massive; vhc, Adams, good shape, carriage, and length of body, hardly so massive in skull.

LIZARDS, GOLD (14): 1, hc, Dewsnap, a perfect picture for distinctness and evenness of spangle, nice shapely cap, splendid colour, good legs and feet, put down in rare pomp; 2, 3, Rukin, two nice close feathered birds, with plenty of work, but it does not show up so distinctly as that of the leader, owing to a peculiar deadness of the ground colour; 4, Lowe, plenty of spangle, nice cap, loses in ground colour; vhc, Miss Whipp (2), two very smart, shapely birds, of grand quality and well rowed; c, Hampshire. BROKEN CAP (9): 1, spl, 4, spl, Rukin, almost a no-cap, grand, rich colour, wonderful quality, very clear and distinct in rowing; fourth, quite the reverse, being almost a clear cap, good shape, feather, colour, and spangle, loses in shoulders; 2, Lawton, capital shape, colour, and feather, plenty of work, but not so regular; 3, hc, Dewsnap, plenty of spangle, well put on, nice feather and shape, loses in ground colour; vhc, Hampshire, clinking good bird, but mooned in tail. SILVER (11): 1, spl, vhc, Hampshire, grand shape and size, very regular and distinct in spangle, well formed cap, good legs, rich clear ground colour; vhc, another rare good bird, hardly so large or so regular; 2, Riseborough, nice shaped cap, well rowed back, capital colour, and feather, hardly so much work on shoulders; 3, Miss Whipp, another grandly spangled, rich coloured bird of rare quality, good cap, wings and tail; 4, Dewsnap, rare quality and colour, beautiful rowing, hardly so much of him; hc, Lowe. BROKEN CAP. (5): 1, Hampshire, son of the winner in previous class and a very worthy son too, grand shape, colour and feather, with plenty of clear, distinct, regular spangle; 2, Lawton, very nice shape and quality, plenty of work, but hardly so bold; 3, vhc, Dewsnap, two very smart, tight feathered birds, plenty of work and very regular, not quite so rich in colour; 4, Fisher, neat little bird with a lot of work, but rather dark in ground colouring.

Border Fancies

(Judge, Mr. J. Robson.)

CL. or TKD. YELL. CK. (26): 1, 2 specials, 4, Wilson, the leader a little gem, just like one of the best-finished wax models in Madam Tussaud's, colour perfectly level, wings beautifully braced, back as level and legs and rump as cleanly cut as if by a chisel, jaunty and full of life; 4, another little star; 2, Hislop, very jaunty and full of go, nice model; 3, Brownlie, very fine outline, jaunty, clean cut, full of life, beautiful feather, a sprightly little fellow; ex. 4, Blaikie, a very sweet bird, of fine quality; vhc and spl, Duncan and Logan, hardly so close in feather as winners; vhc, a trifle, just a shade different in build, but very fine feather; hc and spl, Clark, jaunty, well modelled; hc, Simpson, pretty, close feathered; c and spl, Duncan and Logan; spl, Jenkins. CL. or TKD. YELL. HEN (16): 1, spl, Brownlie, good all through, a lady with a dress that fitted her closely, grand style and sweetly pretty carriage; 2,, Wilson, another sweet one, so lady-like in her bearing, and with so cleverly fitting a costume; 3, Gilchrist, very perky and gay in action, fine quality; 4, Walker, we liked, little gem, beautiful quality, gay, and jaunty carriage, clean cut; vhc, Hutchinson, neat, but a bit soft when we saw it; hc, Wilson, rich in feather; c, Poole, very nice. CL. OR TKD. BUFF CK (24): 1, Gilchrist, very beautiful texture of feather, which fitted it like wax, and in action truly Border-like; 2, spl, Brownlie, another true Border, possessing the best qualities of the breed; 3, Duncan and Logan, a gem of the first water, no better feather could be wished for, and, as to style and carriage, well, these points were all there; 4, Walker, typical in most respects, but hardly so wax-like; vhc, Clark, neat little fellow; vhc, Blaikie, very pretty; hc and spl, Brown; c, Blaikie. CL. OR TKD. BUFF HEN (22): 1 and 3 specials, Duncan and Logan, ticked on wing, gem of a Border in every respect, full of rich quality, beautifully frosted, sweet head and jaunty carriage; 2, 3, and spl, Gilchrist, a couple of grand ones, either of which could hold its own in the best company; 4, Walker, sweet head, rare model, very jaunty carriage, rich quality, clean at all points, well-braced wings; vhc, Dr. Bowes, another sweetly pretty bird, teeming with quality; hc, Arnot and Jamieson, neat and nice, well closed up; c, Pearson. EVENLY MKD. (15): 1, Duncan and Logan, yellow, good style and carriage, rich quality and colour, finely marked; 2, McVittie, four-pointed buff, also nicely marked, and rare shape and carriage; 3, Smillie, yellow, very sweet; 4, Seiranac, yellow, wing marks carried too far up shoulder, but a sweetly pretty bird; vhc, Gilchrist, buff of rare feather and style, fair markings; hc, Shearer; 4, marked buff, fails a bit in eye-marks, rare quality; c, Blaikie. UNEVEN-MKD. (30): The largest class in the section, in which were many birds of rich colour, representing value in the breeding cages. 1, spl, 2, Duncan and Logan, the former a variegated buff of grand Border properties, quality, colour, carriage, wing bracing, &c.; 2, grand yellow, very similar in most respects; 3, Shearer, variegtd. buff, jaunty in carriage, rich in quality, well modelled, nice one; 4 and spl 4, Seiranac, two very sweet and stylish Borders. We were pleased to see our old friend to the fore again on the show benches, this time among the Borders, and hope he may be as successful as he was amongst the Norwich Plainheads; vhc, Blaikie, very nice, vargtd. yellow; vhc, Brownlie, Cinnamon vargtd., very fine feather; hc, Bowes, Wilson; c, Arnot and Jamieson, Seiranac. SELF OR FOUL GREEN (14): 1, Arnot and Jamieson, sweetly pretty yellow green, silky, shiny feather, pure colour, jaunty, very full of style; 2, Jenkins, another yellow, possessing Border shape and style, nice colour; 3, Blaikie, yellow, very gay and jaunty; 4, Mrs. Amos, buff green, rare blooming feather, stouter than some, but nice outline; vhc, McMillan, fine yellow green, we liked, close up; hc and spl, Stevn; c and spl, A. and J. Thompson. SELF OR FOUL CINN. (16): 1, spl, and 2, Brownlie, a capital feat, leader golden bright yellow tone, very level, nice silky feather, good style; 2, also jaunty and gay, but a different shade of colour. Which is correct in Borders? 3, Hutchinson, still another caste of colour, inclining to the dusky shade, clean cut and typical; 4, Cubby, yellow, not quite so pure in colour, but very nice and neat; vhc and spl, Hislop; hc, Cubby; c, McMillan.

Scotch Fancies

(Judge, Mr. T. Brown).

YELL. (7): 1, and two spls, Harden, long-sided Piebald, good head and neck, stout shoulders, grips perch well and brings tail well under, gets head down nicely and drives well, quick and smart in action; 2, hc, Willison, big, massive clear, rare shoulders and back, capital length of side, more substance generally, very deep through, hardly so smart in tail carriage; 3, Summerhill, foul head, capital shoulder, good back, nice head and neck, good length, does not grip perch quite so well as leaders; 4, vhc, Cobb, rare shaped clear, lovely head and neck, nice shaped shoulders, good wings and tail, full of nerve, handles remarkably well, beaten only in substance; vhc, another grand shaped clear, plenty of length, good shoulders, hardly so fine in feather; absent, 802, Longden. BUFF (5): 1, 3 spls, Harden, very heavy shouldered clear, great depth through, grand head and neck, drives well, takes perch well, full of nerve and style; 2, Philp, one of the finest feathered Scots ever staged, magnificent shape, grand head, neck, shoulders, and back, grips perch well, and uses tail nicely, plenty of nerve and action; 4, Cobb, very heavy green pied, splendid head and neck, well filled shoulders and back, takes perch well, and uses tail nicely, not so much substance, but full of nerve and quality; 4th, another green pied of nice shape and substance, capital nerve and style, does not grip perch quite so well; absent, 807, Longden HEN YELL. (4): 1, 3, spl, Cobb, lovely shaped green, with pied tail, rare shoulders and back, grand head and neck, nice depth through, very smart and quick in action, a charming hen; 3rd nice lengthy clear, good shape and substance, nice back, handles well, but not in such good feather as her mate; 2, Harden, quick, nervy hen, grand shoulders and back, takes perch well and knows how to use her tail, not in the best of condition; absent, 811, Longden. BUFF HEN: Cancelled.

"CAGE BIRDS" ESSAY COMPETITION.

The judges of the essays sent in for our recent competition are giving them their careful consideration, but so heavy and onerous is their task that we cannot promise to publish the full results for another week or two. Competitors can rest assured, however, that we will do this, and so relieve their anxiety, at the earliest possible moment.

Belgians
(Judge, Mr. J. Robson).

YELL. (9): 1, Blackhurst, rare shape and colour, beautiful quality of feather, a very smart high-class exhibit, and shown in grand form; 2, Gerrey and Davis, capital shape, neat head, good width and depth of chest, rare colour and style, hardly so smooth in feather; 3, 4, Keech, two bonnie birds of grand type, rich level colour, splendid silky, high quality feather; vhc, Deverill, not quite so chubby, but grand quality, style and colour; hc, Johnstone; c, Mrs. Litchfield. BUFF (16): 1, Jeffreys, nice short, chubby body, neat, compact wings and tail, nice depth and width of chest, capital colour and quality; 2, Hill, rare shaped body, clothed in fine shiny raiment of rich colour, hardly so stout in head; 3, Coupe, grand head, lovely colour and quality, grand shape, just a trifle slack at thighs; 4, Laurence, not one of the largest, but very typical, and full of colour and quality; vhc, Blackhurst, capital body shape, grand colour and meal, beautiful feather, not so much substance of head; hc, Vince, grand little bird, lovely shape, very neat, short wings and tail, about his only fault seemed to be that he was horned somewhat; c, Johnson. YELL. TKD. (13): 1, Young, very neat and shapely, neck ticked, nice head and chest, beautiful colour, very high quality of feather; 2, Blackhurst, very stout, chubby, variegated, wonderful colour and quality of feather; 3, Grey, another variegated of exquisite colour and quality, but does not possess so much substance; 4, Keech, very stoutly made variegated, grand shape, rare quality, and good style; vhc, Atkinson, very shapely, nice coloured wing ticked, not so tight in feather; hc, Chandley and Son; c, spl, Lovegrove. BUFF (8): 1, Leeming Bros., rare chubby, variegated, capital shape, short wings and tail, rare quality and colour; 2, Bevan, very warm coloured, high quality variegated, not quite so chubby; 3, Nichols, grand shaped, nice coloured wing marked, gone in neck; 4, Hill, variegated, of very rich colour, nice shape and capital feather; vhc, Wearden, just a shade narrow in head, nice body, capital colour and feather; hc, Gerrey and Davis; c, Eynon. HENS (28): 1, Tottle, head ticked yellow, grand shape and colour, beautiful quality of feather, grand wings and tail; 2, Blackhurst, very sweet yellow, beautiful colour, nice shape and style, with neat wings and tail; 3, hc, Johnson, head ticked buff, grand shape, somewhat pale in colour, but wonderful quality; 4, Keech, very sweet yellow, grand shape, rare quality of feather, nice, even colour; 4, c, Young, buff of good colour and very compact feather, nice tail, but not clever with his wings; vhc, Schofield, very neat buff, grand body, nice colour and quality; vhc, Coupe, another very typical, nice quality, well-fed yellow; hc, Deverill. UNFLI. (4): 3, 1 spl, Johnson, wing marked yellow, beautifully even and rich in colour, rare shape, grand silky, compact feather, staged in rare bloom; 2, 3, 4, and two spls, Young, a rattling good team, full of quality and colour, grand shape and neat wings and tails, a buff and two yellows, the fourth failing just a little to his mates in chest; 3, 4, Dixon, yellow, and a buff, two grand bodied birds, but somewhat narrow in head, rare colour, splendid soft, silky, compact feather good wings and tails; 3, Schofield, buff of super-excellent quality, grand colour, splendid wings and tail, rare shape, we liked as well as any; vhc, spl, Fennel, variegated buff, capital body and quality, but somewhat narrow in head; vhc, Lovegrove, grand shaped variegated, hardly so tight in feather; vhc, Tottle, rather slim, high quality buff, of good colour; hc, Bevan (2): Grey; c, Miss Sneyd, Winnard.

Rollers
(Judge, Mr. A. Rettich).

Our reporter writes:—"I am sorry I could not get the tours from the judge, and without these it is hard work to report on Rollers. A good many of the birds I did not hear, although spending some five to six hours with them. But I may say that the Rollers came up in large numbers, and made a good show, 94 birds being entered in the three classes. Some very good birds were staged, although the quality of some of the exhibits was not up to contest form. The awarding of the prizes was accomplished under adverse circumstances, such as the organ playing, the noise made by the taking down of timber, etc., which is anything but favourable to the soft strains of the Rollers' song. A good many of the birds failed to open during the judging, which spoilt some good birds out of the premier honours (this, of course, is the lot of the Roller exhibitor). All the prize-winners could not be heard, but I feel sure the judge did his best under the circumstances. Had No. 1343 open class, sung before the judge, as we heard it afterwards, he should have been much higher—in my opinion the best bird in class. In the young bird class some fine specimens were staged, the first and second prize winners making their first appearance this show season. One exceptionally good bird left out of the cards was No. 1403—quite equal to the winners. In the £2 Limit class there was nothing of really special merit to be picked up, as is to be expected at such a show as this, although some of the birds were clamed." (We think it would be to the best interests of this variety of Canary if the officials of shows providing classes for it, stipulated with the appointed judge that a list of the tours sung, and their points value, should be supplied for the information of exhibitors and the public.—EDITOR.)

Mules and Hybrids
(Judge, Mr. J. F. Dewar).

CLEAR, ETC. (10): 1, 4, c, Williams, the "Mule King's" champion clear buff Goldie-Can. leading, a real gem for size, shape, colour and quality, though the latter property was somewhat obscured by the presence of dirt on the plumage, still, the bird won easily enough, 4th, same cross, buff, slightly grizzled on one wing, clinking good mule, fine size, shapely, very nice colour; 2, Arrighi, the Scottish National winner, ticked on eyes, buff, beauty for size and style, fine quality, full of colour, staged in very taking condition; 3, Cunningham, charming 4-pointed buff, small, neat eye-marks, very well balanced wings, good in size and shape, and with the silkiest of feather, put down in great form; vhc, Wasley, 6-pointed yellow, a gem of the first water for colour and quality, hot and level all over, and shining like silk, very sweet markings, excellent size and shape, we thought pressed hard on leaders' heels; hc, Tunis and Son; "w.c." Isard, a dark mule; No. 1422, Hamblyn, a clinking good, all-round specimen, presumably passed by the judge as not being evenly marked, is grizzled on the rump, hard luck. UNEVEN OR VARIEG. GOLDIE-CAN. (28): 1, vhc, Withams, almost 5-pointed yellow, real beauty for colour, big and grandly modelled, put down in perfect trim, rightly heads a wonderful class; 2, Dr. Galloway, nice size, for shape and style a gem, staged in faultless condition, wax-like feather, buff, lightly marked eyes and tail, very taking bird; 3, vhc, Cunningham, almost 6-pointed yellow leading, a grand mule, has size and style, is full of quality, and was seen at its best, in perfect trim, vhc, a lovely 5-pointed; 4, Leigh, marked left wing and about head, yet another charming example of the cross, rare size, very typical in build, best of condition, sleek, shining jacket, nice colour, good face, a close race; ex. 4, Duncan and Logan, marked head, wing and tail, buff, exceedingly good quality bird, nice colour, carries fine bloom, grand size and shape; vhc, Lamb; hc, Beaty, Arrighi; c, Lewis and Dymond; all the carded birds clinkers, fit to win in average competition, a magnificent class. LINNET OR GREENIE DO. (5): 1, 4, Williams, the noted head and saddle marked Linnet leading, a clinking good bird, rare quality and tightness of plumage, nice colour for this cross, A1 size, very typical style, 4th the well-known varieg. yellow Greenie, excellent size, shapely, teeming with colour, but meets its match to-day; 2, Arrighi, same persuasion as winner, marked head, wings and tail, another specimen right out of the common, rather slimmer in build, but very well moulded, and full of style, condition and polish a treat to see; 3, Menzies, lovely, lightly variegated buff Greenie, rare good size, stoutly got up, wide, bold head, excellent colour and plumage, all out a good one, and nicely put down; vhc, Galloway. DK. YELL. GOLDIE-CAN. (16): 1, Duncan and Logan, the well-known champion, grand size, good head and chest, beautifully marked, sound, hot colour all over, fine expansive blaze, well burnished; 2, Coffey, except for being, perhaps, not quite so hot in blaze colour, very close on winner's heels, a gem for size and shape, finely marked, very lustrous coat, splendidly shown; 3, Marshall, this is also a grand mule, but looked a trifle "gone" in under blaze, rattling size and shape, red-hot colour, bright and polished all over; 4, Ridley, equal to any for quality, shown in lovely trim, fine colour and markings, just a little behind in size; vhc, Pierce Williams, rare chested, rich-coloured mule; hc, Lewis and Dymond; c, Mortlock. BUFF DO. (8), a very disappointing entry: 1, Thomson, Junr., a bird noticeable for its really remarkable colour, otherwise of nice size, shapely and stylish, rare quality of feather, in good fettle; 2, Bald, teeming with colour, but just a trifle on the dark side, well burnished, grandly marked, very fine size and shape, excellent blaze; 3, Dale, monster for size, rare chest and head, very decent colour, bit rough at thighs, but quickly claimed at catalogue price, may make a topper; 4, Carter, nice size and shape, good expansive face, put down in taking style, simply shimmers with bloom; vhc, Hutchison, another fine bird, should moult a very good one, soon snapped up; hc, Wells; c, Hall. DK. GREENIE-CAN (19): 1, Leigh, the noted jonque, rightly leads a good "field," rare size and shape, sound, rich, even colour, unsurpassed for polish and neatness, a gem; 2, Arrighi, cinnamon-feathered, fine example of the variety, very good size, shapely, neat, nice tone of colour, staged beautifully; 3, Boardman, somewhat smaller than leader, well built and shapely, deep, rich colour, carries a charming bloom; 4, Cooper and Martin, bold, stylish mule, very hot colour, tight and sleek in coat, nicely put down; vhc, Lewis and Dymond Marshall, real good birds; hc, Wilson, Davids and Evans; c, Taylor, Porteous. DK. LINNET-CAN. (13): 1, Williams, wonderful size, hold chest and head, very rich and sound in colour, excellent wings, a beauty all over; 2, Dick, rattling good buff, grand colour, even right through, fine polish on top, shapely and stylish, nicely put down; 3, Victor Williams, whacking big one, splendid shape, not so sound in colour as leaders, unfortunately, pale in face, a bird of possibilities; 4, Coffey, fine headed jonque, nice shape and style, very decent colour, staged in good form; vhc, Mrs. Doolan, smart one; hc, Morton, promising youngster; c, Wells. SISKIN, ETC. (26), a lovely collection: 1, Williams, a new acquisition to this famous stud, head and neck marked Siskin-Canary, good size for a jonque, lovely shape and quality; 2, Maxwell, dk. jonque Siskin-Can., a real gem, great size, beautiful quality and colour, grandly marked, in rare condition; 3, vhc, Arrighi, heavily variegated, Twite-Can. leading, very good size and shape, nice colour and quality, pretty exhibit; 4, Thomson, Junr., lovely Redpoll-Canary, excellent size, very shapely and stylish, well polished, rich colour all over, and the hottest face we remember seeing on an example of this cross; ex. 4, Fraser, romping big buff Siskin-Can., deserves the place, finely marked, deep colour, very fine condition; vhc, Lamb, rattling good, big Twite-Can., beautifully pencilled; c, Davidson; hc, Sissons, Ringley; c, Hesketh, Leigh. No. 1379, Galloway, a bit of a puzzle, presumably a lightly marked (almost clear) hen Redpoll-Canary. A.O.V. CAN. (8): 1, 2, Williams, both Canary-Bullies, leader a real gem, lovely size and shape, grand head, red-hot colour, 2nd also very warm in colour and good in size and shape, well beaten on head, both in fine fettle; 3, Duncan and Logan, the Scottish National winner, grand big bird, full of colour and quality, very shapely; 4, Laurence, loses a little in size, but grand cobby shape, beautiful tone of colour, tight as wax in feather; vhc, hc, Mrs. Askham, latter a marvel for size and shape, great pity it is a hen; c, C. G. Williams. A.O.V. BULLIE (15): 1, Williams, that wonder of wonders, the crack Goldfinch-Bullfinch, often described, half as big again as any of its kind in the class, and twice as good in colour, a perfect picture; 2, Leigh, rattling good Greenie-Bullie, beauty for size, grand shape and style, one of the best heads we ever saw, and finished off with a lovely polish on top of sound, rich colour; 3, 4, Ward, the Linnet-Bullie again in front, truly a beautiful bird, lovely size, shape and colour, but surely somewhat lucky to "take down" the Redpoll-Bullie, another grand specimen, albeit wanting time to perfect; vhc, hc, c, Arrighi, trio of clinkers, Goldie-Bullie leading, can win in any average competition; c, Longden, very promising Greenie-Bullie. A.O.V. HYBRID (25): 1, Miss Reeves, the now noted Bramble Chaffinch, unquestionably far the best yet seen, charming colour and marking, grand size and style, staged in A1 manner; 2, Cunningham, smashing good Goldfinch-Greenfinch, grand one for size and shape, red-hot in colour, finely marked, well polished, we must confess, however, a slight preference for 3, Lamb, the well-known Redpoll-Goldfinch, another gem, teeming with colour and quality, lovely blaze, perfect shape and style, plumage like silk; 4, Taylor, very pretty, rich-coloured Siskin-Greenfinch, fine shape and size, beautifully marked; vhc, Tanks, another extra smart Goldie-Greenie; vhc, Williams; hc, Lamb, very fine Redpoll-Greenfinch; hc, Maxwell, real smart Linnet-Goldie; c, Gunnell, Stewart, and Milne, an exceedingly fine class.

USE OUR PICTURE POSTCARDS

(Judges, Messrs. G. E. Weston, J. F. Hills, and S. Cook).

Mr. Weston's Classes.

BULLFINCH (34): 1, Beaty, medium-sized bird of beautiful shape and style, wonderfully deep, rich colour (house-moulted), grand shaped, glossy cap, deep blue back, well cut, clean wing bars, shimmering with bloom, a real little picture; 2, Jupe, in field dress, rather nearer our ideal for shape, being a trifle wider in chest, lovely quality of feather, beautiful, even, hot colour on breast, not a feather out of place anywhere, fine back and bars, grand head, close up; 3, Mays, also in field plumage, steady as a rock, beautiful cobby type of bird, rich colour, polished like glass, perfect markings, staged by a master hand; ex. 3, Cullen, fine size and colour, rich and even breast, rare good cap and markings generally, loses a shade in polish; 4, Haynes and Gardner, extremely steady and tight in plumage, hand-reared we understand, certainly a lovely colour all over, fine size and shape, good head and back, deserves a better cage; ex. 4, Frostick, beautifully neat and cobby, field-plumaged bird, sweet colour all over, very steady and stylish, well put down; vhc, Vincent; vhc, Maxwell, best cap in class, little loose in feather; vhc, R. J. Howe, very fine bird, looked a shade soiled; vhc, Mrs. Clark, grand bird, but almost over the border-line in size; hc, Pennell's, Carter, Mrs. Young, three excellent Bullies; c, Walsh, Henderson, and Chick, another smart trio, the latter somewhat ill-behaved; No. 1,615, gem of a bird, but too big for our liking, we heard was the Scottish National winner. GOLDFINCH (53): 1, special, Lewis and Dymond, the noted Welsh crack to the front again, truly a topper, just the right size, lovely shape, and carrying a magnificent blaze which is a deep, bright, pure scarlet, polished like glass, well buttoned, nine bars, best of tanning, well contrasted colours, staged in admirable style; 2, Prior, another magnificent bird for colour and condition, put down by a master hand, shines like silk all over, rich, well-placed chestnut, grand wings and moons, splendid full face, well cut, brilliant in colour, stylish, showy bird, claimed at catalogue price, £5; ex. 2, Cunningham, a bird we liked well, big, square, clean-cut blaze, lovely cobby body, best of tanning and markings, handicapped by a little lack of life, and also needing a wash, almost lost its position on this account, a splendid bird otherwise; 3, Hurst, the celebrated "Pride of Liverpool," an eye-opener for colour, very richly tanned, grand wings, well folded and buttoned, nice bars, wide, lovely-coloured blaze, carries a charming polish, not so cobbily built as leaders, and a little over-cloudy in whites, yet a bad one to beat; ex. 3, Herbert, looks like another noted Welshman, in fresh hands, grand Goldie for size and shape, beautifully tanned and buttoned, fine bars, wonderfully expansive blaze, which, if it were deeper and more brilliant in colour, would bring its owner the highest honours; 4, Tonks, another beauty for width of face, rich colour and polish, very nicely shown, good all-round bird; ex. 4, Andrews, very cobby, taking Finch, fine wide face nice colour, but a trifle guttered, put down in splendid style; ex. 4, vhc, Maxwell, grand stamp of Goldie, fine wide square-cut face, good colour, not so tight in plumage as leaders; vhc, Stanger and Herdman, fine Finch, charming condition; vhc, Manley, wonderful square-cut blaze, only wants brilliance, probably spoiled by colour-feeding; vhc, Mitchell, also remarkably square-cut, beaten for polish; hc, Harris, Osborne, Duncan, jun., Carter; c, Beaty, Porteous, Gunnell, Swingler and Blackwell, W. S. Smith. LINNET (32): 1, ex. 4, Lovell, "Old Joe" at the top once more, truly a remarkable bird, winner, according to the catalogue, of 51 firsts, really wonderful rich colour, sound all through, splendid pencilling all over, in full bloom; latter "Young Joe," who looks likely to "follow in his father's footsteps" as regards prize-winning, very smart young bird, cobby and well-built, fine sound colour, a mass of marking, both birds grandly staged; 2, Walsh, rattling big bird, grand chest and head, good whites, fine colour, pencilled beautifully, breaks a trifle on the breast, seems to be a new face, and needing another moult to appear at its best; 3, Maxwell, charming Linnet, hardly the warmth of colour of leaders, but for size, shape, and pencilling a gem, very sound all over, ran the second closely; ex. 3, Miss Bowen, shade smaller, fine heavy pencilling, good, even, rich colour, very shapely and stylish, grand polish; 4, Prior, extra fine size and shape, tight as wax in feather and sound in colour, good wings, lacks a little in pencilling, but close up; vhc, Wildsmith and Hawkins, fine upstanding bird; vhc, Roddie, grand Linnet, but not at its best, gone in neck; vhc, Hurst, just down in size, good all round; hc, Vale, Cooper and Martin, Carter, three excellent birds; c, Coffey, Stanger and Herdman, Henderson, the latter a bird of great size, but short of quality and pencilling. CHAFFINCH (23): 1, Beaty, magnificent bird for size and shape, rare chest and head, fine wings, deep, rich body colour, with plenty of contrast, in lovely bloom, steady as possible, not a feather out of place; 2, R. J. Bowe, another gem, not so large or so typical as the winner, lovely tone of colour, however, and smothered in bloom like a ripe peach, all quality; 3, Swingler and Blackwell, "Pride of the West," similar tone of colour to second, rare chest and head, stylish and neat, with a trifle more polish would be bad to beat; 4, Lewis and Dymond, rare big fine-chested Chaffie, excellent colour and condition, not far behind; vhc, Francis, fine bird, but too fat; vhc, Prior, lovely bloom; hc, Feltham, Withers Bros.; c, Maxwell, Morrison. One or two got left out for being too good in the whites, and one or two good birds seemed to have had soap left behind in the plumage in the wash.

Mr. S. Cook's Classes.

LESSER REDPOLL OR TWITE (22): 1, Dickie and Smith, an exceptionally good Twite, very rich in colour throughout, and densely marked, just a little roughness in neck, but it only shows when he is on the turn; he certainly wins, great size, exceptional polish; 2, Osborne, a fine house-moulted Redpoll, almost devoid of breast markings, but in other respects a gem, a thick-set, well proportioned bird, with splendid wing bars; 3, hc, Colley, another good Twite, lovely sound colour, well laced throughout, shows a nice splash of white in wings; 4, Marsden, a house-moulted Redpoll, good size and nicely pencilled, rather yellow in colour compared to some; vhc, Bowen, Livingstone; hc, Prior; c, Arrichi, Walsh. SISKIN (11): 1, Barclay, fine bold bird, grand in colour, good dense cap, well laced, shown to perfection; 2, Cunningham, very neat, tight as wax, beautifully proportioned, grand cap and bib, splendid lacing, very taking bird; 3, Bald, bold, shapely, packed with feather, nice bold cap and bib, grand wings and colour; 4, Arrighi, lighter, but very shapely, excels in lacing, good cap, and best bib in class, splendid wing bars; vhc, Hurst; hc, Cullen; c, Quantrell, not a large class, but good. BRAMBLE (27): 1, Longden, very fine bold bird, rare depth of colour, extends well down thighs, very rich in spangling, excellent carriage, rightly heads a very strong class, and not for the first time we believe; 2, Prior, very shapely bird, nice clean colour, rich spangling, excellent thigh ticking, shows himself to perfection; 3, Bowie, a dark, rich coloured bird, big, but a shade slim, very tight in feather, give him a bit more chest and he would be a topper; 4, Coffey, grand bold fronted bird, rare even colour, carried well down sides, beautifully spangled with lovely wings, we liked well; ex. 4, Bowie, another grand Finch of good colour, beautifully spangled; vhc, Arrighi, Turner, Barry; hc, Francis, Sisson, Coffey; c, Wood, Boardman, Manley. GREENFINCH (29): 1, Sharp, a gem, very shapely, and beautifully proportioned, as tight as wax in feather, good, sound, natural colour, no matter in what position he always shows a good splash of yellow, not the largest in the class, but wins; 2, Hurst, another good bird, bold and shapely, excellent wings and carriage, lacks variation in colour compared with winner; 3, Howe, very big, bold bird, good shape, stands well on perch and shows distinct variety in plumage, in excellent condition; 4, Coffey, very shapely, colour fed bird, beautifully proportioned, and grand wings, we fancy that extra pinch of pepper kept him back; ex. 4, Howe, another good one, shapely, and of good colour; ex. 4, Coffey, good size, well proportioned with splendid wings; vhc, Quantrell, Coffey, Paton, Goodfellow; hc, Francis, Bowen, Frostick; c, Goodrum, Telfer, Goodall. NIGHTINGALE OR BLACKCAP: 1, Howe, a grand shapely Gale, nice rich colour, in perfect feather, full of life; 2, Frostick, very fine Blackcap, large and shapely, shown in excellent feather, a very taking bird; 3, 4, Miss Watts, another bonnie Gale, as steady as possible, lovely shape, nice bold eye, rare colour; fourth Blackcap, good size and shapely, very expansive cap of good colour; vhc, Francis; hc, Hathaway; c, Scott. LARK, ETC.: 1, 2, Walsh, bold Skylark, big head, fine bodied bird, full of work, nice rich colour throughout; second lovely little Pipit shapely, and in perfect feather, beautifully pencilled; 3, Mays, bonnie Shorelark, big, bold fronted bird, with good crescent and eye marks, just coming into colour; 4, McVay, another good Skylark, not far behind winner, shown in beautiful feather; vhc, Withers; hc, Cooper; c, Cook. A.O.S. RESIDENT (22): A good class, ranging from the big Green Woodpecker to the tiny Tit: 1, Milne, Tree Creeper, a very good specimen, with good markings; 2, Rowntree, very fine Grey Wagtail good bold fronted bird of excellent colour, shown in perfect feather; 3, Gardner, Long-tailed Tit, real good specimen, very tight in feather, showing plenty of colour and nice clear marking; 4, McDiarmid, perfect Pied Wagtail, very clean cut markings, the black and white being exceptionally pure; vhc, hc, Maxwell, two Grey Wagtails of exceptional merit; vhc, Francis, Mays; hc, Meadows, Binns; c, Cook, Livingstone. A.O.S. MIGRATORY Binns; c, Cook, Livingstone. A.O.S. MIGRATORY (21): A most difficult class to judge, comprising so many different species: 1, Cook, very fine Great Grey Shrike, in perfect feather, very clean cut markings and pure in greys; 2, Walsh, lovely Wryneck, in good feather, markings clear and distinct, especially upon throat and breast; 3, Ford, Swallow, nicely marked, good in colour, somehow did not look quite at home, possibly misses the fireside; 4, Boardman, lovely Waxwing, and as usual in perfect feather, grand wings and bib; vhc, Howe (2), Walsh; c, Gardner; c, Kingley; some exceptionally good birds left out; they can't all win, but we thought Mr. Maxwell's Blue-headed Wagtail might have squeezed in. LIMIT, 20/- (20): 1, Frostick, grand Foreign Bullie, perfect shape and feather, marvellous colour; 2, Francis, good Goldie, nice face, very rich in tanning, useful bird; 3, Parrott, nice Hawfinch, good size and steady, capital bib; 4, Greenway good bold Bramble, very rich in spangling; vhc, Levers, Greenway, Parrot; hc, Mays, Graves, Rouse; c, Greenway, Rouse.

Mr. J. F. Hill's Classes.

HAWFINCH (21): One of the best classes ever seen at the Palace and sorting the winners must have been no easy task. We noticed the Scottish National winner left cardless (Gilmour), a grand bird: 1, Axe, a perfect specimen, beautifully proportioned, very close in feather, his rich, dark back contrasting well with his neck and breast feathers, feathered to perfection, with a most perfect bib and eye markings; 2, Jones, a good bird, shapely not over large, in excellent feather, nice bib, good beak and skull; 3, Francis, a big, bold fellow, nicely proportioned, good clean cut bib, in very good feather, but appeared to have suffered somewhat on the journey; 4, Axe, a smaller bird, shapely and in grand feather, good wing bars, occasionally crosses the tips, big bib; vhc, Francis, Brett; hc, Prior, Blackie; c, Lewis, and Co., Simpson. BUNTINGS (26): A grand class, every British species represented, although only a single Reed, which is generally a favourable show bird: 1, 2, vhc, Wynn, fine team, Snow Bunting leading, rather unusual in a big class, fine bold bird, in excellent condition, showing an abundance of white and nice chestnut markings, good bird; 2, a Corn, good size and feather, nicely pencilled on head and back, arrow shaped breast markings, fairly plentiful, both birds beautifully staged; 3, Axe, a real good Yellow, nice size and very shapely, perfect head and cheek markings, grand in colour, beautifully laced, hard luck; 4, Carter, rather dark Reed, very shapely, with dense black and nice touch of brown on wings; ex. 4, Lewis and Co., another big Corn, very distinctly marked, nice bold head, and full, in good condition; vhc, Ford, Mather; hc, Miss Bowen, Walsh; c, Ross, MacVittie; a good Cirl and some grand Yellows unnoticed. BLACKBIRD (13): 1, 2, Howe, two grand specimens, perfect in shape and feather, most difficult to separate, the winner appears a shade larger, and fuller in feather, but please change the colour of your cages, Mr. H., it positively hurts us—blue, black, and orange—a terrible mixture; 3, Axe, a well-known winner, excellently shown, perfect in feather, and a good, deep glossy black, wants just a wee bit more substance; 4, Ford, a good shapely bird, nice full feather, looks like a young bird, so will improve in colour, should make a champion; vhc, Milne; hc, Brett; c, Hakes. THRUSHES (15): A very fine class of spangled beauties, some well known winners taking back seats: 1, Bruce, lovely shapely bird, with a wealth of spangling, nice bold front of beautiful colour, shapely head with bold eye and perfect throat markings, quite a picture, wins easily; 2, Howe, bird of good colour, and well spangled, falls slightly in shape and substance; 3, Schoeler, a bold shapely bird, good head and chest, nicely spangled on flanks, bold chest, shown in lovely feather; 4, Price, another big bird, very shapely, beautifully spangled, the marking being dense and clear and extending well down the body, we liked well; vhc, Loader; hc, Axe, grand shapely specimen, we liked; c, Pearce. STARLINGS (9): One of our commonest birds, and yet only nine faced the judge at the big show, and three of the nine shown by one man; No. 1904, Francis, we made about the best bird in the class, perfect in shape, with ticking and wing bars all that one could desire, and that peculiar irridescence which reveals a different colour with every movement; call him, "Rainbow," Mr. F., he deserves the name; 1, Wildsmith and Co., a fine bold bird, looks just a shade 'fat, he is richly and evenly spangled, with very good gloss; 2, 3, 4, Howe, all three of these of the "snakey" type, very shapely and beautifully spangled, rather light in colour, shown in excellent condition; vhc, Lugg; hc, Carter; c, Lean and Son. MAGPIE, ETC. (15): 1, Gibbons, very fine Chough, shapely, good coral beak and legs, rare polish on feather, not over large; 2, 3, 4, Maxwell, a grand Magpie, wonderful colour, absolutely pure black and white, perfect feather; 3rd, a fine Jay, very shapely, beautifully marked head, grand wings; 4th, another very big Chough, rare feather, excellent colour, pressed winner hard; vhc, Johnson; hc, Jones; c, Bond. ALBINO (13): 1, Kell, perfect gem, a pure Albino Bunting, evidently the Yellow, a nice Canary-Yellow throughout, a good wash would improve him, still he wins well; 2, Edwards, variegated Bullfinch, with red breast, excepting for a splash or two of white, white crown with mottled back of cap, and whitish grey back, a very pretty bird of good size and feather; 3, Hakes, grand Albino Blackbird, very shapely, lovely wing carriage, perfect feather; 4, Gill, an almost white Linnet, a little beauty, very steady, in grand feather; vhc, McMath; hc, Knowles; c, Lamb. HENS (19): 1, Chick, very fine Hawfinch, with almost as much colour as a cock bird, rare size and feather, good winner; 2, Maxwell, perfect Bullie, shapely and hold, grand cap and wings, splendid colour; 3, Livingstone, real good Siskin, one of the best laced birds we have ever seen, a little beauty; 4, Francis, a fine Twite, good in colour and markings; vhc, McDougall; hc, Prosser; c, Bald.

Foreign Birds

(Judges Mr. H. T. Camps, Parrots, and Mr. W. Swaysland, the remainder.)

LOVEBIRDS, ETC. (15): 1, Maxwell, red-headed hanging Parrakeet, a beautiful and uncommon exhibit, not yet in perfect condition; 2, Mrs. C. Cooper, yellow Budgerigars, perfect, exceedingly well shown; 3, Mrs. J. Leach, yellow Budgerigars, very fine; 4, S. M. Townsend, red-crowned hanging Parrot, an uncommon exhibit, well staged and in good trim; vhc, True, red-faced Lovebird, very fine; hc, Millsum, Guiana Lovebirds, very rare, a little rough, hardly treated; c, Mrs. Hodgkiu. PARRAKEETS, ETC. (20), a very fine series, but many of them were by no means in perfect plumage, some evidently not having left the dealers long: 1, Maxwell, very rare crimson-fronted Lorrikeets, a trifle soft, at the same time a unique exhibit, and will be simply exquisite when they have been through the moult, the general body colour is bronzy-green, with yellow and orange-yellow shaft streaks on the nape and underparts, head and nape blackish, frontal band scarlet, thigh and vent scarlet; 2, L. W. Hawkins, Stanley Parrakeets, in good condition but not nearly so rich in colour as they will be when fully mature; 3, Mrs. Trenlett, King Parrakeet, very rich colour and in perfect condition, quite one of the best we have seen; 4, c, Cooper, varied Lorrikeet, a beautiful exhibit; vhc, F. Howe, fine chattering Lory; B. H. Cooper, red-vented Blue Bonnets; hc, W. Cook, ornamental Lorrikeet, an uncommon exhibit, good colour and very tight; L. W. Hawkins, Blue Bonnet; c, Cushney, Redrumps, Hollins, very fine Port Lincolu. PARROTS, ETC. (7): 1, H. D. Astley, purple-crested Parrot (Triclaria cyanogaster), a very rare and unique exhibit, which we believe to be not merely the only one in England, but the only one in Europe, and its owner is to be congratulated on a beautiful possession; 2, L. W. Hawkins, black-headed Caique, an uncommon exhibit, in good condition and well shown; 3, Hollins, very fine Leadbeater Cockatoo; 4, L. J. Arrighi, good black-headed Caique; vhc, Mason, perfect blue-fronted Amazon; hc, Cushney, another blue-front, attracted considerable attention by its very realistic laughing, crying, etc.; c, Rev. J. Crawford, very good Roseate Cockatoo. WAXBILL, ETC. (15): 1, Leavers, very perfect Diamond Sparrow; 2, Meadows, green Avadavats, sleek and light; 3, Hollins, very large grey Java Sparrows; 4, F. Howe, St. Helena Waxbills, very fine, quite one of the best pairs we have seen; vhc, c, F. Howe, very good Diamond and Nutmeg Finches; hc, L. McWade, good pair Combassous. Also exhibited Rhodesian Ribbon Finches (hard luck), Bib Finches, Indian Silverbills, Avadavats and orange-cheeked Waxbills, all in very good condition; a very pleasing and interesting array of the freely imported Ornamental Finches. A.O.S. WEAVERS, ETC. (23): 1, R. J. Watts, very good Queen Whydah; 2, 3, 4, vhc, Maxwell, a grand team, all in fine condition, violet-eared Waxbills, Dufresnis, black-cheeked and blue-brested Waxbills; vhc, Hollins, very perfect pair of red-headed Finches; F. Howe, very richly-coloured violet-eared Waxbill; hc, Hawkins, very perfect Pin-tailed Nonpareils; Beaty, good Gouldian Finch; c, Whyte, good pin-tailed Whydah; Mrs. Galloway, Parrot Finches. Also exhibited, scaly-crowned Finch (very hard lines), Dufresnis, blue-breasted and violet-eared Waxbill, Fire Finches, etc.; a large and interesting class. GROSBEAKS, ETC. (16): 1, Maxwell, Sepoy Finches, in very fine condition, but lacking the beautiful geranium-red of the wild bird; 2, H. E. Bliss, African golden-breasted Bunting, very rare and beautiful, the yellow throat and white facial streaks being very striking; 3, Mrs. E. Galloway, very good Olive Cuba Finch; 4, S. M. Townsend, rare Cape Rock Bunting; vhc, F. Howe, perfect green Cardinal; hc, Watts, pair yellow-billed Cardinals, evidently two cocks, a black-throated and a brown-throated; c, Cook, Nonpareil Bunting, good condition. Mr. Maxwell had hard luck with his rare lavender-backed Finch, it having a fit while judging was on. The uncommon black-faced Serin was only a ghost of its former beauty, having partially passed into winter plumage. A pair of Cutthroats was entered in this, the wrong class. TANAGERS, ETC. (15): 1, spl, 2, vhc, Maxwell, Indian Sunbird, festive and black-backed Tanagers, a grand team, but a trifle lucky, the first-named appearing as if it would hardly survive the show, which will certainly be very hard luck for its popular owner; 3, 4, S. M. Townsend, black-faced and yellow-winged Sugar Birds, in exquisite condition, and hardly treated, in our opinion the remarkably fine rich-coloured and absolutely faultless condition of the latter should have secured it premier honours; vhc, hc, c, Dewhurst, Mason, and Watts, in the order named, all superb Tanagers, and in very best condition, but the writer regrets that colour feeding should have crept in with a species so gorgeous in its wild plumage, and which is easily retained in full brilliance in captivity. This class is always a great attraction, and for gorgeous, tropical colouring is hard to beat, but it was not so varied as it usually is, half the exhibits being Superbs, which have been quite common of late—if the term "common" is permissible of anything the term "common" is permissible of anything Superb. ALL OTHER SPECIES (18): A very interesting class, the exhibits claiming most attention from the public being the King Birds of Paradise of which there were two, neither of which were perfect, one having lost both the long tail plumes (or wires), and the other one. Most of the species which are found in this class are full of character, and make the best of cage pets. 1, 2, Maxwell, Wall Creeper (surely a class of "A.S. Continental" should be provided at the National for such birds) and King Birds of Paradise, both in very finest condition, save that the last-named had lost one of its wires; (3) Miss Watts, very good Shama; 4, A. Brown, very fine Hill Mynah; vhc, Millsum, black-throated Laughing Thrush, a beautiful and attractive exhibit; Cook, golden-crowned Troupial, an uncommon exhibit; Victor Williams, King Bird of Paradise, minus the tail wires, otherwise in good fettle; hc, Dewhurst (2), African Coleys and Indian Barbet, the latter a beautiful and interesting bird, of bright grass-green body colouring, variegated with crimson on top of head, with black, blue, etc., adjoining the wings, sides of face, etc.; c, Gaving, Australian Swallow; Miss Hopwood, Rosy Pastor, well-known exhibit, being now nearly 12 years old, and looking very sleek and trim. Also exhibited, Glossy Starlings, Brazilian Hangnest, various Mynahs, etc., all interesting birds.

GOLD OR BULLFINCH (13): 1, Porteous, excellent Siberian Goldfinch, good sized, shapely body, richly tanned, very pure in whites, nice big blaze, well cut, deep and pure in crimson, wins on condition; 2, Quelch, something of a novelty, a pair of Desert Trumpeter Bullfinches, two very fine specimens for condition, staged in taking manner; 3, Roddie, another Goldie, carries a lovely polish, has a good face and is very stylish, chestnut, rich and well-placed; 4, Goodfellow, little to choose twixt this and the others, an attractive bird for condition and colour, face of good size, fairly well cut, nice tanning and whites; vhc, Dr. O'Neal; hc, Arrighi, a marvel for size and expanse of blaze, but terribly unsteady; c, Drake.

Palace Employees' Class

(Judge, Mr. J. Dobson.)

A.V. CAGE BIRD (15): 1, 2, 3, vhc, hc, c, Wilson, the leader a smart upstanding yellow Yorkshire; 2, a Missel Thrush, in nice feather, and very saucy; 3, a buff Yorkshire, good close feather, nice whip, and poses well.

Cages and Fittings

(Judge, Mr. W. Swaysland).

The cages made a very interesting section of the show, and more important, perhaps, than ever dawned upon fanciers' and show secretaries until a very few years back. Few seem to think of the contrast, in point of utility, neatness, and decorative effect, between the various show, breeding, flight, moulting, and other cages in use to-day, and those of that far-away time when the Crystal Palace show (for instance) was in its youth. The giving of classes for cages, etc., at the great national show was the happy thought of a practical brain, and the fruit borne is valuable, for, say what one may, a win in the matter of cage utility and cheapness at the Crystal Palace is a cage maker's asset which is not to be esteemed lightly. There were three classes, and these were well contested, the judge, Mr. Walter Swaysland, appearing to be guided mainly by points of utility, lightness, durability and cheapness, combined with effect. In one case—that of a drying cage, No. 2391, exhibited by Mr. Yates, of a drying cage, No. 2391, exhibited by Mr. Yates, it was decided that the exhibit could not compete, under the conditions of the class in which it was entered, but it was such an obvious acquisition to any exhibitor's stock of necessary adjuncts that a short description of it may be valuable. It was collapsible, and was fitted up as follows:—Glass front and back, metal sides, top and bottom, standing on four metal legs, which raised the bottom two inches from the table; a door was fitted in each end, and there were three sensibly-made perches. At the bottom was a cistern, an inch and half or so deep, intended to hold hot water, and on this was spread a piece of flannel intended as a bottom on which to place the bird when washed. By this means warmth was secured sufficient to dry the bird, while dispensing with a lamp or fire.

Another ingenious contrivance which did not receive a mention at the hands of the judge, but was novel and useful nevertheless, was No. 2385, described as a "Song cage, with grips for prize cards, cuttlefish, etc." As a show cage it was clearly unsuitable, but as a "Song cage" for the home it was a most ingenious contrivance, which we should describe as a boon to the ladies. On the lower portion of the front was fitted a hopper, with glass front, which effectually prevented the seed, etc., from littering out on to the carpet or floor. This point obviously escaped the eye of the judge, who is usually keenly alive to fanciers' difficulties, or he would no doubt have given it some sort of recognition. Possibly a little more "decoration" would have to be resorted to 'ere the cage would become popular amongst the ladies. A point we think worthy of mention is that while we have show, breeding, song and other cages galore, no one seemed to take an equally practical interest in the construction of suitable packing boxes or hampers. Here is a field, we are sure, for the exercise of genius that will pay.

SHOW AND STOCK CAGES AND FITTINGS (price not to exceed 6/6) (30): 1, Newley, a Thrush show cage, handy in size, light, durable, well made, fitted with most easily accessible and cleansed seed and water hoppers, which could be attended to from the outside, thus obviating the necessity for disturbing the bird. The perches and the whole structure seemed utility and common sense itself, and the price 6/6, moderate; 2, Linsey, a stock cage, very suitable for a Hawfinch, or such like bird; it was described as a "Large canvas top," and the price—2/6—was cheapness itself; 3, Reece, one of the lightest and neatest Norwich show cages we have seen, quickly snapped up at the modest price of 1/6. The puzzle is—how are they made at the price?; vhc, Palmer, Reece (2); hc, Walsh (3); c, Martin (2). BREEDING CAGES AND FITTINGS (14): 1, gold medal, Linsey, a double breeding cage, 36 in. long, well and substantially made and closely jointed; it had two partition slides, one wire, the other wood, there were clips for the nesting material, suitable fittings for food and water, arrangements for the nest pans or wire hangers, and upper doors for getting at the same, indeed the most minute detail had been attended to; the whole was neat, effective and cheap; price 8/-; 2, 3, vhc, hc, Palmer, the former an "Improved London Breeder and Fittings," price 3/6. This was an attempt to reconcile the old London breeder (with its intricacies, its harbour for red mite, its insufficient accommodation for young in the partition cage, and its nesting platform), with modern ideas; 3rd, a much more modern and exceedingly light and durable, cleanly and excellent single breeder, well fitted, easily cleansed and roomy, price 3/3; vhc, hc, Newley; c, Linsey. A.O.V. CAGE (15): 1, Barrows, a most artistic and at the same time beautifully made wagon-shaped, drawing room cage, for small foreign Finches; this exhibit was made of white wire and metal, was finely finished, and as roomy as it was well fitted, a triumph of the drawing room cage maker's art, price 13/6; 2, Palmer, described as a "Stock cage for large SoftBills." An excellent cage for a Blackbird or Thrush, light, substantial, sensibly perched and fitted, and a great desideratum—every facility for feeding without putting the hand in the cage; very cheap at 11/6; 3, Newley, a "Cardinal pair show cage," also suitable for a Gale, Blackcap, or such like, well made, neat, and light, price 8/6; vhc, Newley (3); hc, Palmer, Newley; c, Barrows, Newley.

CRESTED CANARY CLUB.

Annual Meeting.

The attendance at the annual general meeting of the C.C.C., which was held in the Garden Hall, at the Crystal Palace, on February 8th, was rather sparsely attended. Mr. R. Rhodes was voted to the chair, the other members present being Rev. L. Platt, Messrs. Ley, Heath, Dobson, Howard, Franz, Lazarus, Barnett, Evans, Bloomfield, Horton, Broad, Pooley, Lilley, Compton, Clarke, Sadd, Brotherton, Robson, Peters, Bunsom, Greenwood Piper, Slade, Stone, Brooks, and J. Tyson (hon. sec.).

The balance sheet having been sent to the members, was taken as read. Mr. Tyson then read his annual report.

At the conclusion of the report, Mr. Ley said Mr. Tyson has spoken of resigning. Now we don't want him to do so, for we cannot get another secretary, and we don't want to. We all have confidence in Mr. Tyson, and we ought to give him our heartfelt thanks for the earnestness with which he has looked after our interests. It is hard on him we know to have to give so much time to the work, and although he speaks of his shortcomings, who could do better! Who has done better? He is the best secretary we have had, and we don't want to lose him. As to his making profit! Well we all know the profit attached to such an office. A man has to neglect his business in addition to giving up what is his spare time. Where is the profit? One thing is certain we don't want to part with him, and we don't intend to.

The Chairman: We have strayed somewhat, but I felt it was right for Mr. Ley to express his sentiments which are those of all of us, but we will have the vote of thanks later on. I must say I cordially endorse all Mr. Ley has said. One thing is certain we cannot find anyone to do the work, as Mr. Tyson does it, the success of the club really depends on him. We can only meet once a year, therefore much of the business must be left to the secretary, and we must have a man with initiative, one who has the club's interests at heart, and one whom we can trust. All this we have in Mr. Tyson, and if we had not, the club would soon go back. The club must make great demands on his time, and we are, I am sure, deeply grateful to him for all his good work. On the motion of Mr. Ley, seconded by Mr. Broad, the report was adopted.

Mr. Tyson then gave the result of the annual election as it appeared in CAGE BIRDS last week.

Club Specials.

The agenda bore notice of motion by Mr. Glasscock—"That all specials given by the club must be competed for by birds bred by the exhibitor only—i.e.—purchased birds debarred."

Mr. Glasscock, not being present to support his notice of motion, and having failed to reply to the secretary's letter concerning same, Mr. Rhodes said the only thing they could do was to pass it by.

Rev. L. Platt objected to this. The notice of motion was there and someone else might adopt and propose it. He thought it would be an exceedingly wise step to pass such a motion. We saw too much of the business aspect of the Fancy, and those who were trying to breed good birds were handicapped by those who went and bought their winners. It would be much better if members did breed the birds which competed for the club's specials. There was infinitely more honour in breeding a winner than in buying one, and if such a rule were passed it would do good to the novices. He had great pleasure in proposing the motion.

Mr. Peters said he would be pleased to second if it applied to young birds only.

The Chairman: If it is desired to vary the motion, notice must be given.

Mr. Ley spoke strongly against the motion. It was wrong putting so many restrictions on members. Such a rule would be of no use, and there was no need for it, and it would cause loss of members. If a man bought a bird he should be able to win with it. What we wanted to see at our shows were the best birds irrespective of ownership. It was the birds not the owners we wanted to win, and he thought such a rule would do harm as men could not be humbugged with such restrictions.

Mr. Peters said it would be an encouragement to young fanciers to breed good birds.

"The Fleecing of Novices."

Mr. Bloomfield said Mr. Platt had spoken of the novices being fleeced. There was no fleecing of novices, because it was the novices who wanted to buy the birds which the old hands bred.

The Chairman: One thing must not be lost sight of and that is the Crested Canary Club must cater for all its members and not for a section only. We do a lot for the novices, as indeed everything should be done to encourage them, but we may go too far. It would be a mistake to deprive members of the right to buy and sell. Such a rule would prove an incentive to fraud. It is a fact that as soon as you begin placing restrictions upon men, they begin to seek ways and means to avoid them, and it is very difficult to detect fraud and bring a charge home to the offender. It would be much more satisfactory to leave the thing open. Working men bought birds as well as other people, and when they bought a bird they calculated upon getting its value back by the winning it did.

Mr. Ley: Such a rule would have a tendency to lower the value of birds, and we don't want that. We want to increase value not decrease it. Let us have birds worth £100 rather than as many shillings.

Rev. L. Platt, whilst advancing the claims of the novice, said he was also thinking of the purity of the Fancy. He wanted to see the hobby side kept to the front, and not the business side. We see birds snapped up, shown, and used to sell other inferior stock in no way related to them. As to fraud? Surely they could trust their members; they were not a lot of rogues, and if they found men doing things they ought not, they could turn them out. The motion was then put and carried by 10 votes to 7.

The Novices Again.

The next notice of motion was:—"The Cage Bird Union's definition of a novice, viz., that a novice is one who has not won a first prize in open competition or three first prizes in open novice classes," having been adopted by this club are novice members who have previous to 1907 won one or two firsts entitled to a 21/- teapot on winning their second or third prize during 1907, or should the three firsts be won during one season to qualify?

Mr. Tyson explained that this had arisen out of the conditions for novice cup competition.

The Chairman: The question is this. Must a competitor qualify in one season, or at any other time? The claim is put forward by some novices that if they win two firsts in one season they should go on into the next season and be allowed to win the third.

Mr. Tyson: It should be limited to one season. If not we shall never know where our liability will end.

Mr. Clarke: Was any hope held out to these novices that they would be considered at a future date.

Mr. Tyson: No.

Mr. Clarke: They cannot then expect to be allowed to compete for a thing which was not in competition.

Mr. Heath proposed and Mr. Clarke seconded:—"That the wins in one season should not count in another," and it was carried unanimously.

Teapots for Novices.

In the absence of Mr. Crisp, Mr. Robson moved—"That a novice winning his three first prizes during any one show season shall receive a teapot value 21/-"

Mr. Ley, in seconding, said the teapots would be an inducement to the novices to get their birds out and win.

Mr. Peters wished to know what limit there was to be to the teapots.

Mr. Tyson: To the shows at which the club's patronage is given.

Rev. L. Platt: What is the position of the novice who wins two firsts and not three?

Mr. Tyson: He is still a novice, but of course his chance of a teapot is gone. The motion was carried nem. con.

First Year Champions.

Mr. Heath proposed and Mr. Horton seconded, Mr. Crisp's notice—"That specials, value 21/-, 10/6, and 5/-, be given for first, second and third most points gained by a first year champion at six specified shows."

Mr. Tyson: Mr. Crisp's idea is to offer some inducement to first year champions to do their best in open competition. Fanciers coming from the ranks of the novices are often overwhelmed with the idea of meeting the champions, and do not try their best.

Messrs. Peters and Robson spoke in favour of special treatment being given to clear bodied birds, and even-marks, the latter saying all the craze seemed to be for size, and they had variegation run riot, to the detriment of quality and points which were hard to breed. Ten or fifteen years ago there were better clear bodies and even-marks than to-day.

Mr. Clark: What about the clear Crests, do you leave them out of consideration?

Mr. Robson: I do not, but wish to emphasise the clear body darks, and will propose that we give specials of 10/-, 5/-, and 2/6 for such birds, taking the clear body darks first, then the clear or grey Crests, and then the even-marks.

The Chairman: We have strayed somewhat from Mr. Crisp's notice, still it is for the benefit of the Fancy. I hardly think we can pass such a motion, and would suggest that it be a recommendation to the committee, as they will have to consider the question of ways and means.

Rev. L. Platt: That is a very wise and proper suggestion, and one which we must all be in sympathy with.

Mr. Peters then proposed and Mr. Robson seconded, that it be a recommendation to the committee.

The Ballot.

Rev. L. Platt asked why the voting papers should be signed. He objected to signing, and as a result his vote was lost.

The Chairman: Years ago I thought the same as Mr. Platt, but there are good reasons why the papers should be signed, and I think it is best so. It prevents any improper use of the voting papers.

Mr. Clarke: I can tell you the auditors when scrutineering never stop to look whose paper they are handling, they are too intent on counting the votes. I may, however, say that we did notice one paper this time, because the member voted for himself for every office and for himself alone.

Mr. Tyson then announced the result of the novice competition as follows:—Mr. Lazarus wins 59 points; Mr. Johnson 49; Mrs. Crow 29, and Mr. Mason 28. At the request of the Chairman, Mr. Lazarus came forward and received the cup amidst applause.

Interesting Presentation.

Mr. Tyson announced the Roberts' cup competition result to be:—Mr. T. J. King, 176 points; Mr. J. Tyson 136; Mr. Colledge 108; Messrs. Evans Bros. 106.

Mr. Leys proposed, Mr. Robson seconded, and the Chairman supported a vote of thanks to Mr. Tyson for his unflagging energetic labours on behalf of the club, and in doing so appealed to the members to render the work lighter by promptly replying to the hon. sec.'s communications.

Mr. Tyson, in replying, said he had done his best, but he knew there were many deficiencies, he had received much help from Mr. Clarke, especially in the matter of purchasing trophies.

The meeting closed with the usual vote of thanks to the chairman.

NATIONAL BRITISH BIRD AND MULE CLUB.

The annual general meeting of the National British Bird and Mule Club was held at the Crystal Palace on Saturday, February 8th. Present, Messrs. Robson (chairman), Fulljames, Lobb, Duncan, Chittenden, Clarke, Hills, Robbins, W. T. Plumbridge, A. Plumbridge, Wyse, Weston, Cooper, Trower, Swaysland, Goodchild, Dewhurst, Maxwell, Arrighi, D. Bentley, W. B. Bentley, Walsh, Frostick, Rouse, Silver, Prior, Vincent, and Carr. The minutes of the last annual general meeting were read and confirmed. Winners of the club medals: Messrs. Maxwell, Browning, Williams, R. J. Howe, A. Howe, Price-Jones, Walsh, Mays, Chick, Dale, Perkins, Hurst, Lamb, Beaty, Cooper, Francis, McQuiston, Arrighi, Andrews, Cunningham, and Laurence. Mr. Plumbridge read result of voting papers; also annual report. Mr. Trower read balance-sheet. Proposed by Mr. Swaysland, seconded by Mr. Dewhurst, that balance-sheet be adopted as read. Proposed by Mr. Fulljames, seconded by Mr. Goodchild, that a hearty vote of thanks be accorded to Sir William Ingram, the President, and to Mr. Trower, the Treasurer, for their generous donations, to the funds. Discussion ensued on the birds recently added to the club list. Proposed by Mr. Arrighi, seconded by Mr. Fulljames, that the birds recently added to the list be rescinded, and each bird be voted on individually by this meeting. Amendment proposed by Mr. Cooper, seconded by Mr. Dewhurst, that the list be left as passed by committee. Further amendment proposed by Mr. Weston, seconded by Mr. Silver, that the recently added list be expunged, and a list be sent out for all members to vote on. The chairman put Mr. Cooper's proposition to the meeting, result 5 for, 10 against. Mr. Weston's proposition was then put, and was carried by 14 for, 3 against. The question of the classification of Albino and rare-feathered birds was next discussed. Proposed by Mr. Cooper, seconded by Mr. Maxwell, that all rare-feathered specimens shall compete only in such classes as are provided for rare-feathered specimens. Amendment proposed by Mr. Walsh, seconded by Mr. Bentley, that Albino and rare-feathered specimens be included in the any other species class at shows held under the club rules. The chairman put Mr. Walsh's proposition to the meeting; result, 6 for, 12 against. Mr. Cooper's proposition was then put to the meeting, and carried by 15 for, 6 against. The question of uniform show cages for Hardbills was then discussed. Proposed by Mr. Arrighi, seconded by Mr. Cooper, that this club adopt a suitable uniform cage, and it be left in the hands of the committee to select same. This was carried. With a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman, the meeting was adjourned until February 17th for the election of officers for the ensuing year. New members proposed: Messrs. H. J. Chittenden, D. Duncan, jun., R. Carter, E. Fullbrook, and W. Quantrell.—PLUMBRIDGE and CARR, Hon. Secs.

BEGINNERS; You MUST read the ANNUAL.

PRACTICAL HANDBOOKS FOR BIRD LOVERS.

"AVIARIES, BIRD ROOMS and CAGES," their Construction and Management.

By H. NORMAN. Copiously illustrated with both Photographs and Sketches, Bound in Cloth and Gilt, 2/3 Post Free. This volume, the latest of "Cage Birds" publications, is absolutely unique in its design. The information given in it is on sound practical lines, and all fanciers whether large or small will find it most helpful in the housing and management of their feathered pets.

"HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL."

By C. A. HOUSE. Post Free, 1/2, Cloth Bound, 2/2. (Fourth Edition of "The British Canary"). This thoroughly practical book, the latest edition of which has been re-written by the Author. Superbly illustrated by the Champion Canary Artist, Mr. H. NORMAN. EVERY BIRD DEPICTED IS A VERITABLE MODEL, and shows the breeder what to aim for. Some idea of the popularity of this Practical Manual may be gathered from the fact that under the title of "The British Canary," it has passed its third Edition entering upon a Fourth Edition of 5,000 copies under the new title of "HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL." Mr. HOUSE has thoroughly revised and brought this work up-to-date and incorporated a chapter on the "Roller or Singing Canary."

"CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS."

By CLAUDE ST. JOHN. Post Free, 7d.; Cloth bound, 1/2.
An exceptionally helpful, intensely practical and instructive handbook for beginners and tyros at canary breeding. It is profusely illustrated and contains innumerable hints helpful to all young bird keepers. In this handbook the reader is taken from the pairing up of the stock to the placing of the young birds on the show bench. It is equally applicable to the fancier with one or a dozen pairs.

"THE STANDARD WORK."

"YORKSHIRE CANARIES: How to Breed Manage and Exhibit."

Price, Post Free, 1/2, Cloth bound 2/2.

By H. W. BATTYE, President of the Yorkshire Union, and deals fully with the Yorkshire Canary and its sub-varieties, should be in the hands of every breeder. It gives the fullest instruction upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, Exhibiting, and how to treat both in health and disease. Illustrated by Messrs. H. Normau and A. J. Simpson. Among its most useful contents will be found a chapter on "Dont's." This of itself is worth the price charged.

"THE HYGIENE OF BIRD-KEEPING."

By R. H. CLARKE, M.D., M.A. Post Free, 7d.
A very useful booklet on this subject, which should be found in every bird-lover's library. Dr. Clarke has given the subject of this book very special study.

By Mr. J. H. PAYNE. 1d.; Post Free, 1½d.
A Lecture reprinted from "Cage Birds," delivered by this leading judge and expert before the London and Provincial Ornithological Society, and pronounced by all experts to be a most valuable pamphlet.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A NEW SOCIETY FOR CLITHEROE AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—We held our first meeting at Bennett's Rooms, and a good number of members were present. Mr. F. Turner, the chairman, presided. Our meetings will be held on the first Thursday in each month. I am glad to inform you that every member gets a copy of your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS.

RD. LAMBERT, Sec.

ROSY-BREASTED COCKATOO DESTROYING PERCHES.

SIR,—I wonder if many readers of your interesting paper have been troubled as I have with the destruction of perches by this bird? Even a lignum-vitæ perch did not last long. I always gave semi-decayed wood or fir cones to amuse the bird, but this did not prevent the mischief. At last I fixed in two bamboo perches with wire, and these seem most satisfactory. She has had them nearly two months, and they are not injured.

M. HAINES.

A NEW SOCIETY FOR SALFORD AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—At a meeting held on January 30th at 296, Ordsall Lane, Salford, with Mr. G. Hawksworth in the chair, we succeeded in forming the above society. We have appointed officers and also a Committee, amongst them are some well-known fanciers. The subscriptions are as follows: Entrance fee, 1s.; annual subscription, 3s.; payable by instalments at any time before first feather show. We are at present seventeen members strong, and appeal to all fanciers of the district to join us, as we wish to make this club a credit to its members.

IS IT CRUEL TO USE MEALWORMS?

SIR,—I suppose I shall be thought unutterably foolish if I object to "Illustrated Idea" No. 177, and wonder at its earning a prize. I have heard of mealworms and other insects being nailed to the perch, but when it comes to illustrating and rewarding a similar suggestion it is too much. No doubt it has already furnished some cruel boys with a new idea for some delightful game. They would not stop at insects, we may be sure; mice and sparrows would follow. I think it is rather a disgrace to CAGE BIRDS. I tore out the column at once, and burnt it, that no one else should see it.

H. B. RUTT.

SIR,—Re Sketch No. 177 in "Illustrated Ideas," in your last issue, I sincerely hope that no bird lover will adopt it. It is an exceedingly cruel suggestion. I find that putting the worms in a small glass vessel answers the purpose admirably. The worms can't crawl up the smooth sides and get away. Just imagine the poor things being impaled on a wire, perhaps for several hours! Trusting you can see your way to insert this letter, and wishing success to CAGE BIRDS.

W. STRICKLAND.

THE RARE REDPOLL-BULLFINCH HYBRID.

SIR,—With reference to Mr. Jackson's remarks in your issue of the 1st inst., I still maintain that the Hybrid in question is the most beautiful of all Bullfinch Hybrids I have as yet seen or produced, and during my great endeavours in this department for about twelve years I have produced most of the crosses at present known, and seeing the difficulty in obtaining fertile eggs and greator difficulty in rearing this Hybrid than the larger crosses, a real good specimen rightly deserves to take premier position. Of course, I do not infer that if a rare Hybrid is successfully reared it should beat all other good specimens of other crosses. If a poor specimen, although rare, certainly not. But if a grand example, and much more difficult, under a judge who has gone through the routine of Hybrid breeding, he would certainly be placed at the top, of course, if in good show condition. Mr. Jackson remarks he is sorry to see me take my reverses so badly. All I require is fair judging, which, I am sorry to say, has not in some cases taken place this show season. At Brighouse my Redpoll-Bullie was placed first, and the following week, at Great Horton, had not even a card. Surely something is wrong? I might also inform Mr. Jackson that had my Redpoll-Bullfinch not been a little out of form when judged at St. Helens by Mr. Houlton he would have scored higher. Presumably the birds were not unpacked until the same morning as show, owing to a ball taking place the night previous. It would not do for a bird to win at every show, and it is well to have judges with different opinions, to give them all a chance. But surely, after so much being said by "St. Bride" "St. Mungo," and others, and the male and female being shown on CAGE BIRDS coloured plate (a thing that has never taken place before since Hybrid breeding commenced) the Hybrid in question is worthy of much more consideration. I also have noticed this show season that a Hybrid has been exhibited not the property of the exhibitor. Referring to Mr. Johnson's letter last week, I must say I consider some of the contents of same ridiculous. In the first place, he contends that the Hybrid in question is quite a common bird. I say "very uncommon," and will leave it to readers of your valuable paper to judge whether I am correct or our friend Mr. Johnson. He also says that I enumerate four of this cross; I referred to Mr. Colton's and the two bred by Mr. Dixon. But it is well known the male bird of Mr. Dixon's has joined the majority. He remarks he knows of two others, and goes on to say that there may be "many in the background waiting to spring upon us," etc. I guess from Mr. J.'s remarks that he has not as yet been fortunate enough to stage a rare Hybrid, or he would not blow his trumpet so loud. Again, he says my Redpoll-Bullie has not been at the top under a good Hybrid judge this season, and is not fit to go there in good company. If he will refer, he will find he has been placed at the top in the best of company, taking premier position at Dudley, under Mr. Robson, in a very strong class, also running Mr. John Williams' grand Goldfinch-Bullfinch a close race at Gateshead under Mr. Westen; as is well known, these two gentlemen are considered experts in the Hybrid world, therefore Mr. Johnson's contentions are quite overruled. He asks, Why not let the bird develop instead of running up and down the country? He has already developed and proved himself a fine specimen of the cross. Mr. J. asks me what I mean by "nest feathers." I should have said "as a young bird" to make it more clear, although a young bird usually retains his flight and tail feathers the first year. I hope that 1908 will bring many more rare Hybrids on the show bench, without causing so much discussion, and that Mr. Johnson will produce something good.

PROPOSED SCOTTISH YORKSHIRE CANARY CLUB.

SIR,—The Yorkshire fanciers of Scotland have responded gallantly to the above proposal. A sufficient number of names have been received to make a successful start. There are still a number of Yorkshire exhibitors in Scotland whose names we shall be pleased to receive. A meeting will be held on February 19th, at 8 p.m., in the Co-operative Hall, Glasgow Cross, to draft rules and elect committee for the coming season. All fanciers interested are cordially invited.

A REVIVAL AT KENDAL.

SIR,—After a lapse of several years of the Fancy in Kendal, a meeting of cage bird fanciers was held at Mr. John E. Dixon's Central Refreshment Rooms, Market Place, on February 3rd, when a large number of well-known fanciers gathered together, and everything went off in grand style. The officials chosen by the meeting were as follows:—Chairman, Mr. John Thompson; Hon. Treasurer, Mr. Wm. Haywood; Committee, Messrs. T. Walker, Wm. Little, John Dickinson, John E. Dixon, J. C. Parkor, Frank Dixon, J. W. Crossley, John Pennington and T. Ball; Hon. Secretary, Mr. Wm. Vart, Queen's Place, Queen's Road, who will be glad to give any information in connection with same. He will gladly welcome fanciers as members. We may add that the meeting was a thorough success, about fifty members joining. The society is formed for any fancier resident in the county of Westmorland, or adjoining counties, within a twenty-one miles' radius.

W. VART, Secretary.

A CURE FOR ASTHMA.

SIR,—May I call attention through your valuable columns to the cure of my Canary of asthma? Method: three drops of solution of tar in his drinking water (I use the old-fashioned founts and fill half way), which I kept changed daily. After a few days' treatment he seemed worse. Then, gradually, he began to breathe less heavily, when, much to my surprise, he began to warble, and is now singing gaily. As the information to the tar was gleaned from your paper, I must thank the writer for the suggestion. Also, as my canary was always moulting, I was advised to take him to a room without a fire. This I did when fires were necessary again, and have kept him in a cold place free from draughts all the winter. He is never bunched up now, and instead of my dear little bird being destroyed to put an end to his suffering, I still have him to sing to me incessantly, and he seems to thank me each time I attend to him. I have found Sprati's Cod Liver Oil food a very good thing, given twice a week. The solution of tar I obtained from the chemist. If used too strong, I am informed that it is poison.

RARE FEATHERED BIRDS AT THE SHOWS.

SIR,—What is the "normal colour" on the show bench? This, to my mind, opens up a large question ro judges, as it appears to me, an outsider, that the N.B.B. and M.C. select and approve of the judges, and at the same time appear to have no control over them whatever in the awards they give. Some judges will put rare-feathered birds in the money, while others will leave them out—a strange state of things surely. I don't know what Mr. Weston means by A.O.S. in his last letter; perhaps he will explain. But I think the A.O.V. class has enough in it now, without rare-feathered birds being added.

H. R. LOVER.

[We have had to delete part of our correspondent's letter, for the matter of the rare-feathered Greenfinch at Gateshead Show closed, in accordance with our footnote of February 1st last, with the replies to Mr. Hay's letter in the issue of that date. The question of the exhibiting of rare-feathered and Albino birds generally we shall be pleased to allow discussion on, although we understand that the N.B.B. and M.C. came to a decision concerning them at their annual meeting, held at the Palace Show.—EDITOR.]

AN APPEAL FOR A FANCIER IN DISTRESS.

SIR,—I should like to thank these fanciers and friends who so ably supported me with contributions towards Mr. Benj. Spier's fund. No doubt there are many who would like to give a trifle towards this most deserving case, and if they would send on, however small a sum, to me, it will do much to comfort this poor fellow in his awful affliction. I need hardly state that he lost his sight in such a short time that when the calamity befell him he had nothing provided for his five children, the eldest being nine years of age. Total collected by myself, £7. I should very much like to make it ten, so, friends, help me to accomplish this. Appended is a full list of subscribers.

A PET YELLOWHAMMER.

SIR,—I have heard that the Yellowhammer is a lovable, tamable little fellow, and I have often wondered if any British bird other than Yellowhammers could come up to mine. I say "could" not "can," for poor Buntie is no more after having been in my possession just over six months. I lost it through an accident. As it never sang I must conclude it was a hen. I bought it from a poor man for 1s. 6d., because he was hard up, for one thing, and the bird looked such a forlorn little thing, with its sober green coat (I call it brown). It was said to be finger tame, but the very next day after I got it it started its impudent tricks. It certainly would stand on your finger for any length of time, that is if you kept your eye on it the whole time; but once take your eye off, if only for a second, and away it would fly, circling round and round the kitchen so swiftly that the eye could hardly follow it. It would keep that game up for such a time that I was often afraid it would kill itself with exhaustion. But it never seemed to do any real harm. It would drop upon the windowsill with its beak wide open, quite motionless. I always opened the cage door when safe, as it loved to roam about at its own sweet will. One day, there being a very tiny hole in the corner of the cage, in an idle moment I picked up a piece of string and pushed the end through the hole into Buntie's abode. Buntie was sitting moping on the top perch, with a very bored look, watching this string; but it seemed quite above touching such a common article as kitchen string. I was just pulling it out again to throw away when down Buntie dropped and attacked the string savagely. As fast as she pulled it in, I drew it back again, and if I drew it right out of the cage, she danced about in a most frantic manner until I put it in again. And there we would keep up the game until one of us got tired—generally I. Then again, she has been sitting with the same bored expression, refusing to come out when I opened the door, when I have taken a piece of string and trailed it slowly across the long table. She would take no notice for a time, but suddenly there would be a dart and Buntie would have the string, holding on to it like a bulldog to its meat. I have carried her about hanging on the string for ten minutes at a time, but she didn't mind a bit. I swung her about, danced her up and down on the floor; but no, she seemed to say, "I've got it and mean to keep it." Of course, I had to be careful that I did not dislocate her neck. We have fairly cried with laughing at her. But one day I found that she had swallowed about 3 inches of string, which she was playing with by herself. After ten minutes' coaxing I managed to get the string out of her throat, and she was poorly for two or three days, and I kept all string out of sight. After that time she seemed all right again—up to all kinds of tricks. She would get hid, and I should call out "Where is Buntie?" Then I would hear a little cry, and out she would dart from some dark corner. If I went into the scullery Buntie was sure to fly after me. If I sat by the fire taking no notice, she would fly round me so closely as to flap my head with her wings, and seemed delighted if I made as if to catch her. If you put a bit of string on anybody's head she would go and fetch it at once; nothing escaped her sharp eyes. But one day I was too ill to bother with Buntie, only opening the cage door. When she had been out an hour or two I looked for her, and, to my dismay, she was sitting in a lump on the cage with a knot of thick string sticking out of her beak. I tried to pull it gently out, but it was quite fast, so cut off the knot hoping against hope that she would digest the other. But she died in 24 hours. She had hidden that string, poor little thing, as she had done before. I was always careful after the first accident to collect all bits. I have had lots of birds both before and since, but never one to come up to poor Buntie.

YELLOWHAMMER.

A FEW WORDS TO ADVERTISERS.

SIR,—I have read the letters on this subject with interest, because I also live beyond the limits of any railway company's delivery. I cannot help thinking that the writers of these letters take a one-sided view of the matter, and might easily avoid their difficulties by a little foresight on their own part. No one can expect dealers to know the local traffic arrangements of every customer they get, and, although postcards are cheap, as one correspondent remarks, postage stamps are not quite so cheap, and business competition nowadays is keen. Perhaps it would help these correspondents to say how I got over my difficulty quite easily. After experiencing one or two annoyances about consignments of birds, I made it a point always to enclose with every order I send to a dealer a self-addressed and stamped postcard, and, telling the dealer in just so many words that I lived beyond the railway company's delivery limit, asked him to oblige by sending off postcard on the same evening as the birds were sent, informing me of the fact. This costs little, gives the minimum of trouble to the dealer, leaves no excuse for neglecting to inform the customer of the dispatch at the proper time, and, I must say, has always worked well for me. I have always found the dealers return my postcard at the proper time. I never trouble about sending to the station until the postcard reaches me, and then, or very soon after getting there, the birds are generally found in good condition. I give the hint for what it is worth: it serves me very well.

NOT AN ADVERTISER.

THE BIRDS OF INDIA.

SIR,—I was very much interested to read the letter from "D.H." about the birds of India. His remark about the Blackbird of the Himalayas shows that he is a careful observer of bird life; for, as a matter of fact, there is no Merula in the Himalayas which is perfectly black. The Neilgherries boast of the nearest approach to our English Blackbird in their Merula Simillima. Many a nest have I found, and young birds have I brought up by hand, but none can compare with our home-bred bird. I have lately returned from a long stay in the sunny East, and have kept many Indian birds in my verandah in captivity, and I must confess to being somewhat disappointed in not seeing more of my old friends imported into this country. The common seed-eaters which do arrive here are amongst the most uninteresting of Indian cage birds. The Red Waxbill, the Silverbill, and the Baya Weaver bird, are what we mostly see here, but they cannot compare with many of the very common soft-billed birds, such as the Black-headed Mynah, the Bulbul, the Drongo Shrike, the Dayal bird, and the Rosey-eyed Babbler (pyctorhis sinensis). The Shama is fortunately becoming better known in this country, and a most delightful pet he is. Of the rarer kinds, I have kept the White-throated Fantail (leucocerca albicollis), and very tame he becomes in a very short time. The Minivet, the Iora, and, last, but not least, the Paradise Flycatcher. If some of the wholesale importers could manage to get some of these beautiful and, on the whole, easily kept Indian birds into England, they would add considerably to our captive avi fauna.

KING CROW.

THE STANDARD LENGTH OF THE YORKSHIRE CANARY.

SIR,—I am much obliged to Mr. House for his lengthy reply to the points raised in the two letters from Mr. Rennie and myself, but it would have been more satisfying to me if Mr. House had replied in a more direct manner. He speaks of introducing other names, and deems it unusual, but he himself has done so over and over again. He has yet to justify his action in passing a bird over 6¾ inches long and putting one over 6¾ inches long in the money. Can he reconcile himself to that fact? He admits that other judges put birds over 6¾ inches long to the front, but does he deny that birds over 6¾ inches long are winning at Yorkshire Union Shows? If Mr. House has never bred Yorkshires he cannot understand the difficulties of producing and maintaining length in the Yorkshire. As regards his statement about Southern fanciers being afraid to send their birds North, the C.B.U., in its wisdom, does not allow outsiders to show at the Yorkshire Union Shows, and the time has not arrived yet when Southerners can hope to hold their own successfully with the Yorkshiremen on their own ground; there may be an exception or so. As regards Southern men not knowing what they want, does he know that £18 was refused for two birds at Bradford West, and one not in the cards? A Southern fancier wanted to bring them away, but could not. He admits it is not essential to judge to exact length, and, seeing that in no place in the S.Y.C.C. handbook or rules does it say birds shall not exceed 6¾ inches long, he has placed himself out of court at once, and it would be futile to further argue the point with him. He says that Southern fanciers want a lot for their money. Would it not have been better to say value for money? Thanks to the Fancy Press and the general enlightenment of the Fancy at large, the days of "flat catching" are drawing to a close. Some birds that come from Yorkshire have an unfortunate knack, after being home a few weeks, of growing trowsers and heavy frills, doubtless, of course, owing to the change of air; others, rude people say, have an uncontrollable homing instinct, and come back near to the land of their birth, of course, at an enhanced price—but this by the way. As regards your Editorial footnote, nothing was further from my thoughts than to be in any way abusive. I am obliged in one way to Mr. House for his action at Plymouth, as it has led to much interesting matter seeing the light of day. As regards people thinking I am a disappointed exhibitor, that does not trouble me one iota. As a matter of fact, I got nothing at the last three shows I showed at. As long as it amuses me, and I can afford it, what has it to do with anyone else. There is one thing: I do not buy winners, and if I cannot breed them, I go without until such time as my luck turns.

R. R. BROOME.

SIR,—Reading Mr. House's views on the Yorkshire, I, with others, are as much in a fix as ever. I admit that Mr. House had a perfect right to pass the two birds in question, according to the standard laid down. I also agree with him that the standard is faulty in construction. The length should read in my view "about six and three-quarters." As to my experience, the long, good, typical bird is the hardest to breed. Speaking of the stock classes up North, I wonder why they have been allowed to lapse? But there, if a few more judges have the same opinion of a stock bird as Mr. House, they are bound to fail, as Mr. House distinctly said at a lecture he gave to the members of the W.C.O.S. only a few weeks ago that he should always put a typical show pair in front of a stock pair. This question was asked by our Mr. Spillman in reference to a pair he put some years ago in front of a stock pair. So, according to Mr. House's view, a stock bird should be a show bird. If so, why does he talk of stock classes? Now, speaking of length, the longest birds that have been seen South are the birds from the North, and they win as a rule. Again, the show reports every week (as a rule) generally say: 1st, so and so, bird of grand length, etc.; 2nd, not so long, or fails length. What are we to be guided by? Let's have the question settled by the present-day breeders, the men that know the hardest and most valuable bird to breed. I may mention that Mr. House is appointed to judge the Western Counties this year again, and, the fixture being an early one, a few of us should like the thing thrashed out before the show comes off, so that we may know what sort of a bird has got to win. I noticed last year most of the societies put the Ticks and Clears together, so as to stop disputes, and the handling and blowing up of birds. Just fancy a bird being taken out of a cage and laid on a rule (you cannot do all this without ruffling up the feathers), then placed back amongst the row and judged against the birds with all their plumage in place. Is it doing justice to good birds? I don't see why we shouldn't do away with the handling, except for suspected fraudulent practices. I conclude by hoping to get bigger breeders' views than myself, a West-Country breeder, and a lover of a good long one.

RED-BILLED WEAVER BIRDS AS CAGE PETS.

SIR,—This bird would not be a favourite if it were not for its extraordinary habit of weaving its nest. It is not endowed with any beautiful colour, nor is it of any particular interest. In winter the plumage resembles that of the common House Sparrow, except that its red bill and light coloured breast are different. In the breeding time the hen bird remains the same colour, but the cock birds vary considerably. Its food should either be the ordinary Canary mixture (care being taken that there is not much hemp, as this is apt to give them apoplexy), or foreign bird mixture. The cage should be a large one, plenty of room for flight being provided. It will agree with other birds. If the birds are desirous of building they should be kept in a large cage by themselves, as the other occupants of the aviary are liable to pull the nests to pieces. The following things should be borne in mind if the birds are required for breeding purposes:—They should be placed in a large cage by themselves. Plenty of hay and fibres should be supplied, and some fork-like branches. They weave busily all day, but they are rather shy while they are engaged, and will not do it while being watched. If possible the cage should be kept in a warm place, a conservatory for preference. I once, however, had a pair in my possession that were kept out in the open in an aviary with some Canaries. They thrived exceedingly well, and in two months' time they began to weave their nest. But they had continually to be on guard, on account of the Canaries' frequent attempts to destroy it. The bird is not recommended as an aviary bird, but more as a bird to be watched simply on account of its habits.

SOME OPINIONS ON JUDGES.

SIR,—I believe a good judge is born, not made, so to speak. If a man has a real capacity for forming judgment, it must be born in him, and he then can study and acquire all the main points and features in the various species and breeds he sets himself to, and become a good sound adjudicator on whatever breed or thing he studies. There are many men who are successful as exhibitors, but absolute failures as judges, and quite at sea with a class of birds when trying to place them in order of merit. Too many men in these days want to be judges, and that in some cases with just one or two years' limited experience with two or three successful exhibits. There are also, in the opinion of the writer, too many "exhibitor-dealer-judges," and it is beyond human nature to expect these men to hold an unbiassed and open mind when entering a show to judge. They will find birds there which have passed through their hands, in some cases quite recently, perhaps the week before, and when another runs the known one very close, there is a natural temptation offered to the judge to lean to the one he sold only last week after winning at a show for him. I am a stout believer in a strong exhibitor remaining so as long as he wishes, and when he wants to begin to be a judge, to give up exhibiting, and enter the judging field with a free, open hand, and clear of all temptation to buy, sell, or exhibit, one or both or all these. By so doing he can hold aloof with the dignity which ought to characterise every judge, absolutely free from the fetters of the paradoxical position of dealer, exhibitor, and judge, all rolled into one. I consider the position honestly and conscientiously untenable. Either be dealer and exhibitor or judge, and not try to be all the three at one and the same time. I know this principle of mine is not approved by such men as are at present basking in the category pointed out here, but, if they will unfetter their minds of the bonds mentioned, and look upon the situation, they must admit it is running with the hare and hunting with the hounds, or at least trying to do so.

SCOTCH FANCY CANARIES AT CITY OF GLASGOW SHOW.

SIR,—I have always made it a rule in my life to ignore all correspondence of an anonymous nature, no matter on what subject, but as your correspondent chooses to make, to my mind, a personal accusation under the cloak of a nom-de-plume, I have decided to forego principle for this once, as I have good reason to believe that I am the president referred to "who arose, and did not appreciate the Scotch Fancy." I may inform "A Scotch Fancier" that it is news to me to know that during my term of office I moved in any way detrimental to the interests or progress of the Scotch Fancy section of the City of Glasgow Association, and if my conscience teaches me aright, and the goodwill of my colleagues is any indication, I will pass your correspondent's accusation as being flimsy. "A Scotch Fancier" again seems to forget that I was merely president, with a large executive of experienced fanciers, gentlemen well capable of conducting the affairs of the society in its best interests. Your numerous readers will therefore, I think, readily admit that, supposing I had the inclination to be antagonistic in any way towards our Scotch Fancy section, I had but small opportunity for doing anything of the sort. I might go further, and tell your correspondent that during the last ten years of my connection with the City of Glasgow Association I have had the valued friendship of a large number of the most prominent breeders and exhibitors of Scotch Fancies in Glasgow and the West. Coming now to "A Scotch Fancier's" tabulated proposed prize-money of something like £5 5s. per class, I think the suggestion, to say the least, is preposterous, and anyone who has had to do with a large show, guaranteeing full prize money in about 60 or 70 classes, as we do, will readily conclude what this proposal of "A Scotch Fancier" would mean. If, however, I may be allowed to read between lines, probably your correspondent would like to see the association reduced to the same level as it was in 1900, and at that time the presidentship was held by a gentleman who takes a more than passing interest in the Scotch Fancy in Scotland. I fear to think what position the association might have occupied to-day had not a few loyalists bravely put their shoulders to the wheel, and, coupled with the grand support accorded them by the general Fancy, succeeded again in placing the association on a sound financial basis. And this was accomplished even after the aforesaid Scotch Fancy President had washed his hands from the affairs of the old association. I do not propose to answer in any way for Mr. Jardine's views or intentions, as that gentleman is quite capable of attending to his own affairs. Nor does it concern me whether or not he satisfies "A Scotch Fancier" by stating his "views"; but anyone knowing Mr. Jardine as I do (and there are many) can vouch for his motto as being impartiality and fairness to all varieties catered for by the City Association. In conclusion, let me tell "A Scotch Fancier" if he cares to sign his name to his epistles on this subject in future, I will be pleased to discuss matters for the benefit of all sections of the Fancy in connection with the City of Glasgow Association. Otherwise this is my first and last communication, as our annual business takes place in June, and discussion is open to all members.

JOHN YOUNG,
(Past President, City of Glasgow O.A.).

MORPETH WAKES FROM SLUMBER

SIR,—Following up my remarks in your last issue, anent the Morpeth and District Canary and Cage Bird Society, I am pleased to say that the first meeting was held in Vose's refreshment rooms on February 6th. There were present Messrs. A. Grey, Cowling, Summers, Myers, Mackay, Lackey, Pegg, Davis, and Marshall. Mr. A. Grey was unanimously voted to the chair. In the first place the chairman made some justifiable remarks concerning the breaking-up of the old society. It was his opinion, he said, and it was also the opinion of Mr. Lackey, who followed up his remarks on this point, that the final meeting of the old society was not in order, inasmuch as notices had not been sent to members. A little discussion followed, whereupon it was stated that the late secretary resigned at that meeting, and the residue of cash (a very small sum, I suppose) and the show staging was bequeathed to the late secretary and treasurer. However, it was considered best to let bygones be bygones, and start a new club. If we are to have a new society, said the chairman, we must start on new lines and make a big success of it. The election of officials was proceeded with. Mr. E. Cowling was proposed as secretary by Mr. Lackey; this was seconded by Mr. Summers. Mr. E. Cowling received the unanimous vote of the meeting. Mr. Cowling is an ardent fancier of the Norwich Plainhead, and has figured prominently at the shows in the North Country. His character and principles are beyond dispute, and we have every confidence in his ability to fill the position of secretary. Mr. Sidney Pegg was next elected assistant secretary, and the other officials are as follows:—Treasurer, Mr. A. G. Marshall; chairman, Mr. A. Grey; auditor, Mr. C. B. Willis. The position of president was considered, and it was decided to approach Ald. G. B. Grey, J.P., for his patronage. I am pleased to say that since the meeting this gentleman has expressed his willingness to be elected. Permit me to enumerate a few of the lines we purpose adopting. The annual subscription is to be 3s. This amount is not prohibitive, and ought to prove an inducement to all intending to send exhibits to our annual show to become members. Mr. Cowling made some forceful remarks regarding novices, and in his opinion novices should have greater inducements held out to them. Mr. Grey was of the same opinion, and pursuant to this we decided to hold an annual show under C.B.U. rules, with members' classes for novices only. The opinion expressed was that it seemed unfair for the professional, or the fancier who could win in open competition, to scoop up the awards in the members' classes. The novice has no heart to show his birds in members' classes when he knows he has to stand his birds alongside those of professionals. For our club we regard a novice as one who has not won a first prize in open competition. Our show date is October 17th, and we intend making the popular charge of 1s. for each entry, and pay four money prizes—8s., 4s., 2s., and 1s.—in each class. We have already enrolled fourteen members, and are hoping for a generous response to our appeal for more. We shall be glad if fanciers wishing to join, and who cannot attend our next meeting (which will be notified in CAGE BIRDS) at Vose's refreshment rooms, will drop a postcard to Mr. E. Cowling, Fulbeck Cottage, Morpeth.

A. G. MARSHALL,
Treasurer.

'THE CHAMPION LINNET."

SIR,—Having no reply from Mr. Allen re the challenge to sing his Champion Linnet, I think it is high time he stopped putting in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, about his bird being the "Champion of all Champions," seeing that he is frightened to make a match. Therefore, I am going to let the matter drop.

C. BISS.

RECORD EGG LAYING.

SIR,—I am just a new beginner; I only started last year. I had a young Norwich hen which laid two eggs on the bottom of her cage in November. I took them from her, and she sat her time out, on the cage bottom. So I put the cock bird in against her and she had three more eggs and hatched them on January 5th. Two of them have died, but one is still living, and is likely to do so. I think that beats all. I wish your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, every success, as I long for it every week, seeing I get some valuable information from it.

ROBERT WALKER.

SIR,—Having read so much about record late eggs by your correspondents in CAGE BIRDS, I beg to enclose the following, which up to the present, I think, constitutes a record. I have a Canary that laid her first egg on the 1st of January, and hatched four young Canaries out of five eggs on the 18th, all at present doing well. Wishing your splendid paper every success.

H. CLARK.

SIR,—As a reader of CAGE BIRDS, I notice week after week that there is a discussion as to who owns the bird that lays the latest eggs. So I thought I would let your readers know that I have a hen Canary mated to a cock Greenfinch, and she has laid four eggs, and is sitting well. But I think we will have to call them early eggs, as the season is coming on again. Good luck to your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS.

ROBERT MCGILL.

SIR,—I see by CAGE BIRDS that two or three of your readers have been writing about records in late breeding, but I think this eclipses them all in early breeding. The reason I call it early breeding is that the birds bred in the summer time up to the month of September and then moult and shortly after that become very proud. A friend of mine, Mr. McLaren, had four birds hatched December 23, and not only that, but the male parent is only a young bird hatched about the end of July, 1907, which makes him only five months old at the present time. He was reared in an open aviary, and I think it was the change from the aviary to the house that set them breeding. He has also another hen sitting (a week now) and still another one along with a Russian Goldie. They are great friends and are looking as if they are going to pair up at an early date, as both the Goldie and the hen are busy building a nest.

ADAM DICKSON.

THE STANDARD LENGTH OF THE YORKSHIRE CANARY.

Some Opinions of Breeders and Exhibitors.

I am in favour of the standard length of 6¾ inches being adhered to, as I think it is a good length for a Yorkshire show bird. In my opinion there are not many good Yorkshire birds which measure that length. It takes a very long bird to measuro 6¾ inches, and I think if the standard length is altered, it will be a great mistake.

R. Carr.

Bradford.

I have been breeder of Yorksuires for 23 years. At the time the Union was formed I was a member, and it was to do away with the big plain bird about 7 inches long for one 6¾ long, that that was made the standard length by the Union. My idea is the 6¾ birds are the best for the show bench; they have the style and quality with them which has made the Yorkshire the leading bird.

Joe Exley.

Baildon.

As I have the honour to be chairman of the Yorkshire Canary Club, I answer that the standard laid down is 6¾ inches. This standard has not been arrived at without a great amount of discussion by members of all lengths of experience, and one which I believe to have been arrived at justly. Should birds measure more than the standard length, let classes be provided for them as stock birds, as many of our shows do in Yorkshire, and instead of ignoring the bird, ignore the judges who give preference to an over length bird. If we do not adhere to a standard we shall do a great injustice to the novice and amateur fancior. May success attend the efforts you put forth for the enlightenment of the Fancy

D. Sunderland.

Bradford.

I think this question has assumed an altogether exaggerated form. According to some of your correspondents one would think that a 6¾ and a "7" bird are totally different. Surely a ¼ of an inch cannot make such a huge difference, as suggested. My experience is that birds over 6¾ in. long are the exception rather than the rule on the show bench. My opinion is that if birds over 6¾in. can be bred equally as good in type, feather and breed, as those not so long, preference should be given to them. There is a decided difference between mere size and length and between the two (to say the least)). I think some of your correspondents are getting a littlo mixed. However, I do not know, and never have posed as an authority on the variety, but seeing in my own stud how difficult length is to maintain and breed, I can only stick to my expressed opinion.

R. P. Broome.

Sutton.

We are in favour of tho judges adhering to the standard length, viz., 6¾ inches; but for reasons just the reverse of those given by some of the Southern fanciers, as the judges at most of the Yorkshire Union shows have given preference to the shorter bird. But of course, the reason is that there are no larger birds with the samo good properties as the smaller ones. We do not know what they have down south, but we can safely say there is not a bird living in Yorkshire 7 in. long that possesses all the good properties that are required to make up a good show bird. We have been to all the Union shows and have not seen a noted winner staged this year, that exceeds 6¾ in., if they measure them fair without any stretching. (Our way to measure them is getting the bird in one hand, with the thumb on the back of its head, so as to get its head straight out, put it between two jars for the beak and tail to just touch, then measure tho distance between the jars). We have seen a lot of noted winners under 6¾ in., especially in the hen classes. Bar two or three, there has not been a winning hen exceeding 6¾in., and we could mention several cases were 6¾ hens habe won. Now the Yorkshire is a bird of length, and we dont want it to come about that visitors to the Palaoe have to ask which are the Yorkies, and which are the Border Fancy. Anybody who has tried to breed winning Yorkies knows that it is much easier to get a little good one than it is to breed a big good one. This being so, when that good big one oomes, we think it should predominate over the lesser bird. Mind you. if it is as good in all other show points, not the big ones that Mr. Gibbs describes. The ambition of most breeders is to breed a good big one, but as yet it has never come. This is the reason why we don't think it should be a hard and fast rule,—"must not exceed 6¾ in." It should be worded like the Y.C.C., "standard Length 6¾ inches"; as it would be a pity for the fancier who was so fortunate as to breed a bird about an eighth over standard, with all other essential points, to have to keep it at home. I would like to describe a few instances that have occurred at union shows with these big ones. They have been staged nicely in the morning and looked well; when judged, got first; then they come to stand seven or eight hours in the show cage, what is the result? They let slack feather (commonly called in Yorkshire their breeches) down, and seem to fall out of shape, for ease, I suppose, as they are too big to carry themselves for so long together. The name for them here is "mop cloths." And then you can guess what the poor judge gets! But here is tho most important question of all, who is going to measure the bird, and how are they going to measure it? Has the judge to take birds out of the cage to measure? We say no. As good a way as any is to measure them by the eye, as we can measure the same bird two different ways and make it close on ½in. difference in the length. We think they are over-estimating the length down south. But when we get a few of these long, slim, good ones, that will be soon enough to think of altering the standard.

T. Ogden (Ogden Bros.)

Bradford.

My friends may wonder why I have entered this controversy. My answer is this: In the first place I hold a somewhat altered opinion since I read the able and respectful article by Mr. House, and secondly because I was asked my opinion by an interested person shortly after the birds were judged at Plymouth. I admitted then that it was cutting things very fine to pass a Yorksh're for overlength. My word! If some of the Norwich Plainhead judges were to pass the "should-be chubby ones" for the same reason, we should soon see the "much desired" coming out at the top. There are times when we think we are hard done by. Here's an instance. I exhibited a young bird at a nest feather show some ten years ago and had great hopes of winning. But, alas! I was told on entering the show-room that my bird had been passed on account of its having "second feather," and the judge explained that if the schedule had read "Young Bird Show," then he should have given the bird the special for best in show. Now, no one can but admire the great work Mr. Crisp has done for the fancy, and judging from past experience, he has always been practical and business-liko, and with the courage of his convictions, but that he has erred in this instance no one can deny. The club's standard is the judge's guide, and if any judgo ignores it and pushes his own ideas to the front in defiance. it is the duty of the club to drop him like a hot potato. This remark may cause a smile; well, it is much better to end smiling than to be always grumbling.

W. Spillman.

Plymouth.

Sir,—A great deal is now being written about the length of the Yorkshire Canary, and one of the points in the discussion has been deeply accentuated. It is the difference of opinion which is said to exist between breeders in the North and those in the South as to the length limit of a good Yorkshiro. I am of opinion that this alleged difference is based upon supposition, and is more imaginary than real. It may be true that in the South there are a few fanciers who are craving after increased length and size, just as there are, here and there, men in the North who seem to be supporting them; but I feel certain that if this particular stream was traced to its particular source, and from its source to its outflow, the reasons for this agreement, in isolated cases, between North and South as to the desirability of cultivating increased size and length, would easily bo found In my opinion the good sense of the main bulk of Yorkshire fanciers in the South, would be proved, if put to the test, to be neither in favour of the big, long bird, nor the undersized one; but I think they have their eye well fixed on the 6¾ inch standard, and consider that a rational and reasonable length to which to breed. I remember judging at a Southern show not so very long ago, and a noted Yorkshire, one of the pick of a well-known Northern breeder's stock, was placed first. This bird was admitted by an equally well-known Southern breeder to be "a typical specimen" in every respect, but it did not please him as it was "not big enough" for present-day demands, and yet it had won repeatedly in the North, had feather like wax, well-braced wings, nice tail, clean well-covered thighs, was well up, neat in head and beak,—a model in shape and pose; but—for the disciple of bulk, it was "not big enough." The great majority of Southern Yorkshire men considered it a smart sweet bird. In another instance, a well-known Southern Yorkshire breeder said to me—"You must get 'em longer, or they stand no chance." But in spite of the few instances to be met with as above, I venture to think that the majority, aye, and the large majority of breeders in the South, as in the North, consider a 6¾ inch bird plenty long enough. I am of opinion that the more you go for length, the less likely you are to get stylo and quality, and that, to my mind, is one of the crucial points which should weight the whole controversy, the point of the future of the breed. Consequently, I am quite content with the 6¾ inch standard. Of course, I take it, the argument is intended to apply to shows where there is some evidence of competition, and not to cases where a judge is face to face with a few birds of inferior stamp of feather—birds that he would, perhaps, have to disqualify holus bolus, if he stuck strictly within the standard length limit. I do not write with any desiro to dictate, or to blame anybody for the particular views they hold. My view is that the Fancy should fix its standards, and the judges judge to them as nearly as may be possible; but that does not preclude anyono from issuing a word of warning if he sees the tendency of some portion, even, of the Fancy to pursue a course which past experience convinces him is destined to lead to ill results. What has always appealed to me—I say it respectfully, but firmly—is that 6¾ inches is a strapping bird, and I am fully convinced that the more we exceed that length, the further we shall get away from quality; which, with position, and style, form the sine qua non of a Yorkshire.

George Gardner.

Some Points about Hybrid Breeding.

By THOMAS SMITH.

The fancier who may not be inclined to purchase high-class Scotch Fancy or Norwich Canaries, which have now reached a high price, can take up the interesting hobby of Hybrid breeding. An unprecedented rush has been made on British birds in the winter months. A Bullfinch hen, as soon as it appears in the dealer's window, is picked up. The wholesale and Continental dealers have not been able to supply all demands. The growth of this department in cage bird life is really marvellous. It is evidence of the alertness on the part of British fanciers taking up a pleasant pastime which entails a minimum outlay. Siberian Goldfinches have been in great demand, and the entry at the principal shows in Goldfinch-Canary Mules exceeded in quality anything that appeared before. Light-pointed and first-class Dark Mules were a treat.

In the scope of this article, I shall confine myself to Hybrids. Hybrids are produced from a pair of wild birds of different species. The knowledge which has been diffused, through the medium of the press, of the possibilities in this direction has no doubt led to the increase in Hybrid breeding. But withal, Hybrids of a superior class were rare last show season. Canary and Bullfinch Mules were more numerous than formerly, but several were small and had not the colour which is necessary in a winning Canary-Bullfinch. There were a few really good specimens of this cross, and they did well on the show bench.

Hen Bullfinches Considered.

Greenfinch-Bullfinch Hybrids did not come out so strong as was expected. Indeed, only one really good Hybrid of this cross was to be seen in Scotland. It possessed colour and size. The others were small, and behind in colour. The reason for the difference in quality is that the one was bred from a large Siberian Bullfinch hen, and the others descended from British or German Bullfinch hens.

The impression that German pet Bullfinch hens were the only kind to use, has been exploded, and now the conviction is dawning that nothing can equal the Siberian Bullfinch hen. True, she is not so ready to nest as her German cousin, but when she takes to nesting, she is quite as prolific. It is as easy to feed and rear, a gem of a Hybrid as an inferior Hybrid. I have tried and have been successful with both, and I recommend the Siberian.

The Siberian appears to nest readily in the second year of her confinement, but I had one that bred in the first year. My Siberian hens did well, and I look back with much satisfaction upon their progress as breeders. Siberians are difficult to obtain, and have to be ordered all the year round in advance.

Points about Greenfinches.

A Greenfinch is not so difficult to get, but hundreds may pass through a dealer's hands before a really good one can be secured. Colour is a desideratum, and therefore a bright brassy yellow should be selected. Old Greenfinches never tame but a young Greenfinch soon settles down, and becomes very docile, breeds freely in confinement, and can be relied upon. An odd one may prove savage, and has been known to strip the hen of every feather, but as a rule a Greenfinch cock and a Bullfinch hen live together on the very best of terms, and are most affectionate.

A couple of pairs, Greenfinches and Siberian Bullfinches, and five pairs of common feeders will, if they breed, afford considerable pleasure in the months of May, June, July and August. They are late breeders. The young are easily reared and moulted, and entail less labour than do young Canaries.

An Ideal Pair.

A Siberian Goldfinch and a Siberian Bullfinch make an ideal pair. Those who have visited Scottish shows, must have admired the very fine specimen which was bred by an Edinburgh breeder. Large and outstanding for colouration, it beat rarer Hybrids in competition. This was solely on account of its superior quality. Yet its competitors of the same cross prior to its appearance, would have satisfied the average breeder. It is clear that the Siberian Goldfinches and Bullfinches are the favourites for producing Hybrids for the show-bench. February is the last month to secure them, so that those who are not supplied should set about getting their wants satisfied at once. The Goldfinch-Bullfinch Hybrid of the first quality is a beauty, and a male is ample reward for a season's labours.

The Redpoll Bullfinch Cross.

The Redpoll-Bullfinch is a rare Hybrid, and worth producing, being highly valued. It will always command a high price, as it is difficult to procure. At the present moment only two or three are known to exist. I recommend the Lesser Redpoll cock and the small British Bullfinch, well-coloured in the tan and dense black on the cap and wing feathers. Both are easily purchased; a nice pair can be got for four or five shillings, putting this notable cross within the reach of any fancier.

They readily pair, are most affectionate and assiduous, but it is, unfortunately, a rare thing to secure fertile eggs. Further, fertile eggs frequently do not hatch. A lively Redpoll and a smart Bullfinch hen are a nice pair.

Another Good Cross.

The Goldfinch-Greenfinch Hybrid is easily got, and is a lovely one. The characteristic markings of the parents come out well in this cross, and it is a favourite on the show-bench.

The Redpoll-Goldfinch is perhaps the most engaging of all Hybrids. Their late breeding has told somewhat against them, but a Goldfinch hen taking to the nest, paired to the lively Redpoll, lends a peculiar charm to an aviary. The young are tiny and can be reared by Border Fancy Canaries. This Hybrid reproduces in a marked degree the characteristics of both parents. The hen Goldfinch takes readily to the nest, and is a capital hatcher, and has been known to rear her young in captivity. The Redpoll is a devoted feeder. Some very fine Redpoll-Finches have appeared on the show-bench.

A Siskin cock and a British Bullfinch hen produce a very charming Hybrid. The Siskin readily attaches itself to the hen Goldfinch, and they are agreeable. Both birds have colour, and it blends nicely in the offspring.

Some Precautions.

Each pair should be separated from the adjoining pairs by frosted glass, or other means, as when they see other birds flirtation is apt to be indulged in, and that should be kept in check if there is to be success. The hens take to a nest fixed up in the wicker cages Russian and German Finches arrivo here in; the bars of one of the ends should be removed, and the small wicker cage fixed up inside the breeding cage, with the side facing the light. Moss, and twigs, and the rootlets of trees should be placed at their disposal to encourage nest building.

The Hybrid breeder must of necessity have a good stock of common pairs to act as foster parents. For this the smaller Border Fancies may do, but for the larger, i.e., Greenfinch and Bullfinch, large common feeders should be used. They are stronger, and more equal to the up-bringing of a strong Hybrid, whose wants during the rearing are not easily satisfied. Bullfinch hens, in particular, lay one nest of eggs after another, and make it no easy task to test them all. It is important that all the eggs should be tested. Fertile eggs are not so numerous, and the omission of testing one might mean a heavy loss to the breeder. Pairs that are to be used as rearers of Hybrids, preferably should be late breeders, so that they may keep alongside of the wild hens.

Have you given the notice respecting CAGE BIRDS' ANNUAL for 1908 your attention?

By WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

(See our full-page illustration.)

Purple or Violet Bellied Parrot.

Class 126. 1st Prize.—Mr. H. D. Astley.

A beautiful and rare species, reminding one of a small Eclectus, for it is fully one-third smaller than the average Eclectus. It is a South American bird and confined—so far as present knowledge goes—to South-Eastern Brazil. The general body colouring is a brilliant green, with a large patch of violet on the abdomen, the centre of this patch being glossed purplish. The eyes are very beautiful, and of a bright, ruddy-brown colour. The female is a plain green bird, entirely lacking the violet patch of the male. This I believe to be the first living specimen imported, not merely to this country, but to Europe, and the thanks of all are due to Mr. Astley for sending so precious a possession a long journey to the Palace Show at this season of the year, and so giving many an opportunity of seeing so rare a species. It was very tame, and appeared to appreciate being fondled even by strangers. At the same time, it did not strike one as being an "intelligent" species.

Many foreign bird fanciers present were of the opinion that this bird was entitled to the shield for rarest foreign bird; it certainly stood ahead of others in this respect. It is also known as the Azure-bellied Parrot. It is closely allied to the Dusky and Hawk-headed Parrots, which species it follows in the British Museum Catalogue, Vol. XX.

Sepoy Finches.

(Hæmatospiza sipahi.)

Class 129. First Prize. Mr. C. T. Maxwell.

This is also known as the Scarlet Finch and Scarlet Grosbeak, a truly brilliant species. The pair exhibited, though in good condition, indicate but little the beauty of the colouration of this splendid bird when seen in its native wilds. The male is a beautiful geranium-red in its summer dress, and the female is by no means a plainly clad bird. She is brown on the upper surface, with the centres of the feathers of the mantle and wings much darker; the under surface is paler, abdomen and ventral region yellowish; middle and lower back and rump bright yellow; tail dark brown with lighter edges. The beak is yellowish, and the legs and feet greyish.

According to Jerdon it is an inhabitant of India, and is found principally in the S.E. Himalayas, Nepal, and Sitshim. It frequents both forest and open, shrubby districts, and feeds on various fruits and seeds. Alas, in captivity its glory soon departs, and it becomes a sort of mealy-orange colour, though in the aviaries of Mr. Castle Sloan, in Sussex, it retained its regal plumage during the whole of an English summer. Mr. Sloan makes the remark that, like the Scarlet Tanager, although he possesses no crest, he raises the feathers of the head when startled. Diet: Seeds (Grosbeak mixture), fruit, a few mealworms, and lettuce and other green food ad lib.

Red-headed Hanging Parrot.

(Loriculus indicus.)

Class 124. 2nd Prize. Mr. C. T. Maxwell.

This is also known as the Smallest Green and Red Parrot, and the Red and Green Indian Parrot, Ceylon Lorikeet, etc. These are very pretty, but not very interesting birds, except when they are on the move; then nothing could be more entertaining as they roam about their cage, head downwards. Briefly, they are bright green in colour, with portions of the wings, tail, and throat bluish; top of head and forehead red, merging in orange green on the nape.

The birds exhibited appeared to be not fully mature, and will yet be much brighter in colour, but the light was poor at the time I examined them. It feeds on the pollen and saccharine juices of flowers and fruit. In captivity it should have soft, ripe fruit, well-sweetened fruit preserve, milk-sop, sugar-cane, etc., and a large and lofty cage to roam about in, kept in some sunny situation free from draught. Though somewhat dull in captivity, especially if kept in a small cage—in which its life would be but a brief one, as a rule—nothing can exceed its activity in its native wilds, as, with its screaming cry, it flits from tree to tree in search of food. Its brief periods of activity in the largest cages in the Parrot house at the Zoo but poorly indicate its Tit-like activity, etc., when at liberty.

The Queen or Racket-tailed Whydah.

(Vidua regia.)

Class 128. 1st Prize.—Mr. R. J. Watts.

This, one of the most beautiful of the Whydahs, has already been described in the pages of Cage Birds. Its velvet-like plumage of glossy black, golden-tawny and fawny-whites, with striking racket-tail plumes, impart to it both a striking and a beautiful appearance. It is a native of Africa. All the Whydahs, in addition to their seed diet, should have a few live insects regularly, and during the period of the moult these should be supplied more liberally. They should never be kept in a small cage, as under such conditions they cannot show off their long and beautiful caudal plumes, and they soon become frayed and broken.

The Golden-breasted Bunting.

(Emberiza flaviventris.)

Class 129. 2nd Prize. Mr. H. E. Bliss.

This beautiful and striking bird ranges over practically the whole of Southern and tropical Africa, extending northwards to the Congo and Abyssinia. This specimen was very rich in colour, tight and silken in plumage; sides and upper part of head black, with five white longitudinal lines, a narrow one down the centre of crown (see plate), and two on each side of the face, one above and one below the eye; upper surface nutty brown, with the centres of most of the feathers blackish; chin, abdomen, and under-tail coverts white, slightly tinged with yellowish; throat and breast bright yellow, strongly suffused on the breast with golden-rufous; beak: upper mandible brown, lower mandible flesh colour, which is also the colour of the legs and feet. A beautiful and striking species. The female is similar, but the blacks and whites of the bird's plumage are not so pure and are slightly mottled.

These beautiful birds would thrive on the seed mixture usually given to foreign Finches, with a little insectile food and a few live insects. I believe this to be their first appearance on the show bench, and they only need to be imported to become very popular with aviculturists generally. It also gives an opportunity to breed a species for the first time in this country.

The Festive Tanager.

(Calliste festiva.)

Class 130. 2nd Prize. Mr. C. T. Maxwell.

This is a very beautiful species, which has only once previously been seen on the show bench, viz., in December last. One can hardly speak of Tanagers without associating them with irridescent and gorgeous plumage, and this species is certainly not second-rate in this respect. Its general body colouring is bright irridescent green, obscurely variegated with blackish on the mantle and back; sides of face and upper neck golden coppery; cap, rich glistening blue.

One can only hope that the day is very near when many more of this beautiful genus, at present known only from skins, may be imported, that we may feast our eyes upon their glowing, living beauty.

F. CARL, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet St., London.

All communications for this column should be written on one side of the paper only, duly authenticated with the name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication, and sent to H. Norman, Editor, "Wild Bird Life," "The Eyrie," Salisbury-road, Carshalton, Surrey, by Monday in each week. Original observations and records invited.

Protective Colouration.

During our winter rambles, when the trees and hedgerows are denuded of leaves, we have the opportunity of noting the nesting habits of wild birds in a way different to that in which we see them during the summer months. Even old hands at nesting find they have missed many nests, while the foliage aided protection. We all know that a quickset hedge is the most likely place of all to find the home of the common Hedge-Sparrow, and it is now when the branches are bare that we are able to locate many nests which we passed in the summer. The Hedge-Sparrow is not considered to be a bird of much importance in the ornithological world, and yet like other rarer species it has its allotted work to perform, its nest to build, and its young to rear, to perpetuate its kind, with equal sureness as that of the Golden Eagle or the rarest Warbler. Although the nest of the Hedge-Sparrow is considered by some to be somewhat insignificant and of little importance, yet some of the structures put together by these sober plumaged birds can compare favourably with the choicest work of the Goldfinch and Chaffinch. And where can we find anything in the world of oology to surpass the turquoise blue of those tiny eggs; not even the priceless egg of the extinct Auk can beat it for colour. A child would probably select the smaller egg (if the two were offered), on account of its beauty of colouring. In the endless variation of wild birds' eggs we have a subject for constant study. It has been noticed that the white and pale coloured eggs belong to those species nesting in holes or covered nests, and that the brightly-coloured and marked eggs are laid by those birds which build open and exposed homes. Protective colouration plays an important part in the care of wild birds' eggs. Let the novice search diligently the small meadow where the Lapwings regularly rear their young. He knows the nest and the eggs are there, and he will most probably set his foot within six inches of the treasures, and yet be unable to find them. When, too, the young are hatched, and scramble among the herbage and stubble grass, they will be just as difficult to locate as the eggs were. At first glance it may appear that Nature has made a mistake in giving the coloured eggs to those birds which build open and exposed homes, but with the study of eggs must also come the study of the birds themselves. To revert to the Hedge-Sparrow, we find a dowdy-brown and grey bird covering a clutch of beautiful turquoise eggs, and unless we catch her beady eye we shall probably pass her more than once during the day without noticing that we are so near to the treasures of a living creature. Again, the nest is deep, and although the eggs are very conspicuous when laid in the palm of one's hand they are not so easily noticed when among the green foliage of the bush. All the Finches lay eggs of a greenish tint, and the hen birds are duller in plumage than the males, thus continuing the colour protection commenced by the nest and eggs. It will be noticed that where the sexes of birds are alike, both having showy plumage, such as the Robin, Kingfisher, Woodpeckers, etc., that these species invariably nest in holes in trees, banks, etc., and even then it will be seen that the gay coloured hen hides her rich colouring as much as possible during incubation. Peep into the knot-hole of the elm-tree, where the patient redbreasted hen is covering her pale coloured eggs, and note how little of that bright colour is visible. She crouches down, thus hiding her breast below the ragged lining of the nest, and becoming almost invisible herself.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

Heron's Local Name.

"Hernshaw" appears a peculiar name for a bird, but this is one of the local names for the Heron. The Shakespeare phrase, "Know a Hawk from a Hernshaw," no doubt referred to the grey long-legged Sentinel.

Self-Protection.

It has been recorded that some of the larger birds, such as the Curlew, Redshank, etc., have been known to deliberately head a sheep off when it is grazing too near the bird's nest. This shows a depth of purpose which we can hardly credit a wild bird with having. Some ground nesters will, while sitting, deliberately peck at the foot or nose of a grazing animal in the same manner as they will sometimes at one's hand. I have seen a Skylark do this.

A Diver Without Flights.

Mr. A. H. Patterson says he once obtained a red-throated Diver that was quite devoid of flight feathers; it had only the softest pulpy stumps showing. Either the bird had moulted all these feathers simultaneously, or it had never possessed any. Anyway, it must have paddled and drifted with the tide a long way to have been secured at the end of the pier. He says it was heavy and fat, thus showing it had fared well.

During Extreme Cold.

Such a spell of severe weather as we are now experiencing, says a writer in a contemporary, causes discomfort and suffering in many quarters, but nowhere so promptly and keenly as among many familiar kinds of birds. The kinds which feed entirely on insect life left the country at the first hint of autumn cold. But there are many others, including Thrushes, Blackbirds, Hedge-Sparrows, and many other common and apparently hardy kinds, which feed to a great extent on worms and other forms of food which they extract from the soil; and as soon as the ground is frozen their time of hardship begins. Their great stand-by is the berries of the hawthorn and holly bushes, which fortunately this winter are exceptionally well clad. Chattering troops of Missel-Thrushes, Song-Thrushes, and Blackbirds can be seen fighting for possession of the boughs with their near relatives, the Redwings and Fieldfares, which come to us in winter from the Scandinavian and Russian forests. If they cannot find a lasting and abundant supply of berries Thrushes and Redwings are very soon seen in a state of starvation, though such a slender and apparently feeble little bird as the Golden-crested Wren is well able to keep in thriving condition in hard weather. The feeble resistance made by the Song-Thrushes is very remarkable, as the Thrush is one of the commonest and apparently hardiest of British birds, and the Redwing breeds in the far northern forests, and only in winter time condescends to come as far south as our own islands. Most kinds of hard-billed birds, such as Finches and Titmice, contrive to withstand the frost a good deal better, though they are grateful enough for the charity of the "birds' breakfast table."

Rarities in Old Epping Forest.

One of our Woodford readers (J.S.C.) says Hawfinches have been plentiful in Epping Forest this year, and there can be no doubt but what these interesting birds are increasing fairly fast. A very good indication is the number of them we see at our big shows. But apart from that we are constantly hearing about them in suitable localities. Goldfinches in fair numbers have been seen a good deal lately in the old forest, appearing particularly fond of the old oak trees. Many people have never seen these beautiful birds at liberty. There is no prettier sight than to see some half dozen, feeding upon the tall weeds upon waste ground; for colour and vivacity there is nothing to beat them. They appear more like butterflies.

An Unusual Clutch of Plovers' Eggs.

A friend tells me he found last season a Lapwing's nest containing five eggs. This is a very unusual number, the generality of nests containing four only, as a full clutch. He saw the nest more than once, and noticed that the eggs did not lay in the usual manner, that is, with the small ends pointing inwards. Possibly the extra number somewhat baffled the hen bird in keeping them in the ordinary position. Upon one occasion two of the eggs had their narrow ends pointing outwards, and upon another visit three of them were so placed. Unfortunately, he was unable to watch the nest through incubation, and so was unable to say how they hatched out, as the extra eggs would mean that the full clutch would spread over considerably more ground, in consequence of the way they would lay. It is rather doubtful if the bird would be able to properly cover them. These abnormal clutches may not be so very unusual, although personally I have never found one.

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor for the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The deposit must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—Three Words a Penny up to eighteen words, MINIMUM Fourpence. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Fourpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1 6 according to size.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Thirty-six inches long, eighteen inches high, blue inside, black enamelled out; complete, with nest-boxes, sand trays, sliding division, forming flight and fitted up with loose punch barfronts; please remember you are not buying soap-boxes but cages, and to prove that my cage is far superior to those advertised by others I am open to send one against any dealer in Birmingham or out.—G. White, 122, Great Hampton-row, Birmingham.

JOHN GARLAND.

I know several good firms that advertised breeding cages before this book was published. I hope none of the old firms think that I am alluding to them, I have no doubt there will be many fanciers starting breeding this season; my advice is, if you require a breeding cage, write to an old established firm, don't be led astray by these 3/6 mushroom firms, as they know nothing about a breeding cage; particulars stamp.—60, High-st., Bordesley, Birmingham.

No bird room is complete without this wonderful tonic. Sent post free to any address, 7½d. and 1/- bottle; awarded two gold medals and five diplomas Crystal Palace.—Note address, Geo. Burrows, 105, Judd-st., Euston-rd., London, W.C.

in a BIRD'S EXISTENCE
BREEDING SEASON.

Breeding taxes the strength most severely Unless the birds are strong, vigorous, and free from Disease, breeding will reduce them to a ball of feathers. Their offspring will be of no use, and therefore it will be a waste of time and money.

HARRY ALLEN,

THE ORIGINAL LINNET KING.

Champion of all champions, patronised by all the leading mule breeders, exhibitors and contest singers. I have the finest strain in the world, bar none. If you doubt my word, look up back numbers of CAGE BIRDS and see the prizes I have won, and the winners I have supplied. Beware of spurious imitations, they will not give you satisfaction; mine never fail to please. Please remember when buying birds from me you are buying from one who thoroughly understands just what you require, and not from one who copies advertisements, and sends anything out. I guarantee you a song any time of the day or night. Pay me a visit, and see my birds sing in your own hand. I mean what I say. I have the finest Linnets in England; big, fine cock Linnets, well pencilled, good nut brown, very tame, 1/6 and 2/- each. I have a few gems, which will make big winners, 2/6 and 3/- each. Large, broad chested cocks, picked specially for muling, sure mulers, 2/6 each. Remember Sergeant Smith, of Leeds, bred and reared 68 mules with three of the above kind. Cock Linnets, singing beautifully, in singing cage, a packet of my special mixture and instructions how to feed, 3/6 the lot. All taught by the champion Linnet of the world, owned by me, winner of over 100 first prizes. House-moulted Linnets in full song, specially trained for contests, and can win, 10/6 and 15/6 each, with contest cage. Cock Bullfinches, with broad, black cap, good wing bars, etc., in excellent feather, 3/- and 3/6 each, singing night and day; hens, sure mulers, 2/- each; giant cock Greenfinches, like paint, real gems, 1/- and 1/6 each; Redpolls, as large as Linnets, 1/- each; Chaffinches, Larks, in song, 1/- each. I have a few matched pairs, sure mule breeders that will give satisfaction, and give a success to every purchaser, house-moulted Bramblefinch and hen Bullfinch, 7/6; ditto and hen Canary, 8/-; cock Linnet and hen Canary, 4/6; cock Greenfinch and Canary, 3/6; ditto and hen Bullfinch, 3/6; house-moulted cock Goldfinch and hen Canary, bred mules last year, in excellent breeding condition, 12/6; cock Goldfinch and Canary, 8/-; satisfaction guaranteed. Having bought Mr. Porter's Westminster stock of exhibition Yorkshires, yell. and buff, off a well-known winning strain, am open to sell some at reasonable prices, cocks, buff and yellow, standard length, in excellent feather, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6 each; hens, 3/-, 4/6, 5/6 each; pairs, matched by an expert to breed winners, 12/6, 15/6 and £1 pair, birds that would cost double elsewhere. I have the finest collection of birds ever seen in any bird-room, contradiction defied. Four packets of my special mixture, 1/-. Book of Secrets, P.O. 1/6, post free; see last week's advertisement. Kindly read what others say:—61, Sharah-st., Alexandria. Sir,—Received Linnet and Canary safe; am very well pleased with them. J. McCreadie to H. Allen. Fulmer-road, Gerrard's Cross, Bucks. Sir,—Birds arrived safe, am quite satisfied, thanks for your prompt attention. H. Haddock to H. Allen. 2, Spring Hill, Longton, Staffs. Sir,—The contest Linnet gives me great satisfaction. I am sure he is fit to win; am very pleased to see that you treat a working man like a gentleman. F. Withington to H. Allen. Linnet King, 5, Floods Court, Olney, Bucks. Sir,—Received bird safe, am well satisfied, with thanks. J. Harris to H. Allen. Cong. Manse, Huntley. Sir, —Thanks for prompt attention, bird arrived safe, and gives great satisfaction. C. Lewis to H. Allen. I have hundreds of testimonials. Please give me a trial order, and I guarantee you will say satisfied. All my birds are on seven days' approval; cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system. No waiting, kindly state wants. Everybody welcome to the largest aviaries in England. Pantomime talk of leeds, "I will meet you at Harry Allen's Bird Stall in the Market on Saturday night." Come and hear the champion Linnet of the world.—Harry Allen, Bird Specialist, City Aviaries, Beckett-st., Leeds.

W. RUDD, THE Bird Specialist, NORWICH.

W. E. GREEVES,

Wrentham, Suffolk, has for disposal the whole of his Crest and crest-bred stock of birds; this is an exceptional opportunity for breeders to procure birds which will improve their stock; I am expecting to remove from Wrentham shortly, it is for this reason they are being sold; a fortnight ago no money would have bought any of these birds.

EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY.

Through increasing business, am compelled to give up the fancy, therefore offer the whole of my valuable stock of the above and cages, at very low prices. They comprise some exceptionally good birds; a few crested hens will be sold separately; may be seen by appointment, or sent on approval.—Mason, 23, Ferme Park-rd., Stroud Green, N.

WONDERFUL!

That is the expression used by all who call and look upon the marvellous collection of Plainheaded Norwich that I possess. There is something for everyone, if they are only prepared to pay a fair price for high-class Birds, including

HIGH CLASS FOUR-POINTED BIRDS.

Full particulars of any bird required, upon receipt of stamped envelope.

I can send you on approval for 15/- 20/-, 30/-, 40/-, and 50/- per pair, such as plenty would charge from £4 to £7 for: and I know what I am writing about too. Others as below, and it is not the price alone I ask you to consider, but the quality for the price, and you can have them on approval. Cocks, clear yellow, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, upwards. Clear Buff, 6/-, 6/6. 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards. Ticked or Variegated, 5/6, 6/-, 6/6, 7/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- upwards. Hens, clear yellow, 4/-, 4/6, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-. Clear Buff, 3/-, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-. Ticked or Variegated, 2/9, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-. Pairs Norwich Plainheads, matched for Breeding, 7/6. 8/6, 9/6. But don't expect the best either in size, quality, &c., at the lowest fixed prices, because that would be inconsistent. Travelling Cages, 3d. extra. Note—I pay carriage back, others do not, but they don't tell you that.

W. RUDD, THE Bird Specialist,

NORWICH.

A GENUINE OFFER.

Read these opinions:—"Pendeen, Cornwall, February 14th.—Very pleased with Canary; it gives great satisfaction. It was quite fresh when it arrived, and started to sing nicely.—Thomas Sedgeman to R. Hanford." "Penfold-road, Folkestone, February 14th.—Bird arrived safely, and gives entire satisfaction. Thanks for prompt attention.—E. Sharpo to R. Hanford." One trial order will prove I give the best possible value for money. Cold-room kept, healthy, and feathered like wax. Inspection invited; three days' approval; cash or deposit; illustrated price list free.—R. Hanford, Osmaston-rd., Derby.

SILK'S CHAMPION NORWICH.

More winners produced from this strain than any other. Birds sold by me have won at most of the All-England shows in keenest competition, and a great number were bred from stock pairs supplied by me. Some of the champion exhibitors owe their success on the show bench to this wonderful strain, procurable only from me. I can supply the champions and give satisfaction, and I will place the novice and amateur on the same footing, by giving him exactly the same high-class Norwich, at moderate prices. My pairs at 40/6 have no equal, and cannot be bought elsewhere at double; in fact, every bird I send out is double value. Why be disappointed with unreliable strains? Pairs properly matched by an expert and breeder, special attention given to see that the cock and the hen have the necessary points to breed really high-class specimens. All orders have my personal attention, and fanciers can rely upon getting exactly what they require at moderate prices. Giant stock pairs, from 20/6 to 40/6; yellow cocks and hens, 12/6 to 25/6; ditto buff, 10/6 to 22/6; approval to any part British Isles.—A. E. Silk, Whitstable.

Thousands of testimonials have been published by me in CAGE BIRDS from satisfied customers. I guarantee strictly honourable trading and satisfaction to all.—Varney, sole proprietor and importer of this remarkable Roller Canary. Twenty years advertiser.—Varney, Stratford, London.—St. Mary Abbey, Mill Hill, December 1st, 1901. Received the Hummel; it sings beautifully indeed. It sings sweetly, and oh so softly, all day, and I cannot imagine any bird with a more lovely voice; he begins, even these dark mornings, at 7.30, under his serge cover, and sings till 6 o'clock. Although his song is so lovely, it is beautifully sweet, he has no shrill notes, and I am able to read through it. Miss F. Blockett. December 1st., Southfelt, Poynton, Cheshire. Received the Hummel, and am more than delighted with such superior song. W. Glover, to Varney, the largest importer of Rollers in London. January 8th, 1908, Sunner-place, Billinghurst, Sussex. Please send 12 good Hummel Rollers. I have six of your Hummel Rollers; all perfect Rollers. J. Leyland. January 10th, Sunner-place, Billinghurst, Sussex. I enclose cheque for the 12 Hummel Rollers. Am very pleased with them.—Mr. J. Leyland to Mr. Varney, Angelus, Stratford, London.

3 IMPORTANT POINTS QUALITY QUANTITY VALUE

That is what I profess to give, and to test the statement I respectfully invite you to have anything on approval. Travelling Cages 3d. extra,

BUT

I pay carriage back, i.e., if they come.

HARTZ MOUNTAIN ROLLERS.

Cocks, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, upwards; Hens, same strain, 3/6, 5/- each; Pairs, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-. Extra Special Cocks, 30/-, 40/-. Singing Hartz Cocks, 5/9 each; Extra selected, with better notes, 6/6, 7/6. Hens, 2/-, and 2/6 each. Pairs, 8/6, 9/6, matched for Breeding good Songsters.

You may have seen Advertisements of Hartz Mountain Rollers with all kinds of what may be termed "fancy" names, although such are absolute nonsense and positively meaningless, and I question if the people who use them ever were in Germany in their lives, or have any special knowledge of Canarics at all. If you require special strains, the very best known in Germany, I can supply them.

N.B.—Persons not liking much noise and wanting low and sweet singing birds, can be supplied by mentioning the fact with order.

Free Illustrated PRICE LIST & CATALOGUE.

Remember, I can be found at Park Lane, as I neither buy nor sell under "bogus" names, how can you find people who do not exist, that is the trick of some of the phantom names—of course letters reach, that is another thing. Authors and Actors use professional names, that is all right, but if I asked you to believe I was someone else, that I think would be all wrong.

By Royal Letters Patent. If you have not seen a sketch of this Breeding Cage write me, I will send all particulars.

CHARLES, Sec.

CONSETT, BLACKHILL AND DIS. P.P.R. AND C.B.S.

Annual meeting was held in Co-operative Buildings, Consett, on February 15. Mr. E. S. Bell occupied the chair, and a large number of members attended. Mr. F. Turnbull, one of the auditors, presented the balance-sheet. It showed, after paying all accounts, also prize money in full, a balance of £45 16s. 7d. in bank, an increase of £14 17s. 11d. on last year's balance-sheet. Also at the present time we have 135 members on our books. The balance-sheet was duly adopted. The officers were then elected, which terminated the business.—W. H. HUTCHINSON, Jun., Secretary.

SUNDERLAND C.B.S.

We had an excellent meeting on Feb. 15, when Mr. John Farrer presided. Very few birds turned up for the table show, but there was some splendid quality, the prizes being won by Messrs. J. Riseborough and C. Waters. Thanks were accorded to Mr. J. T. Clark for judging. The same gentleman will officiate at our table show on Feb. 29th, when more members have promised to support. Terms: Pairs of Canaries, any variety, and pairs for muling, a special being given to each division, with entry fee threepence, half to go to the funds. A special prize will be given by Mr. John Farrer to the novice getting most points in either division. Members are allowed two entries in each section. Our open show dates are November 20th, 21st, and members are requested to attend on Feb. 29th, at 7.30 to hear report of deputation in respect of engaging the Co-operative Hall for show. Six new members were elected. Officers: President, Mr. C. E. Thompson, J.P.; Vice-Presidents, Messrs. C. Grimshaw, W. Hall, G. Bell, J. Cobb, and Dr. O'Neal; Chairman, Mr. John Farrer; Vice-Chairman, Mr. Geo. Clark; Trustees, Messrs. William Oglehy and Robert Armstrong; Auditors, Messrs. W. F. Swan and J. Farrer; Committee, Messrs. W. F. Swan, A. Elliott, H. Gordon, W. Reid, Dr. O. Neal, C. Waters, W. Maddison, H. Fenwick, and G. Davidson: Treasurer, Mr. John Riseborough; Assistant Secretary, John Copeland; Secretary, F. W. Gordon, 17, Kayll-rd, Sunderland. Membership is now 70, entrance fee 1s.—F. GORDON, Sec.

SHIPLEY O.S.

The members were favoured by a lecture on British Birds and Hybrid Breeding at their meeting on February 9th, by Mr. H. J. Chittenden, Bolton Woods. Mr. T. Whitfield presided over a good attendance of members and friends. The lecturer dealt more particularly with the better known Hardbills, and the lecturer's treatment of the subject received the closest attention. In giving us the benefit of his long experience in this branch of the Fancy, Mr. Chittenden will no doubt induce some of our members to take more interest in the same, and to follow out his methods of treatment would certainly bring some measure of success. The lecture was greatly appreciated, and a hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Chittenden, on the motion of Mr. H. Hudson, seconded by Mr. H. Bradshaw.—H. DOBSON, Secretary.

THE METROPOLITAN C.B.A.

The Metropolitan C.B.A. held their usual fortnightly meeting on February 13 at headquarters, The Crown Hotel, Lavender Hill, S.W. Mr. J. Nicholas was elected a member of this Society, and Messrs. F. Mullins, W. R. Everett, E. Alderman, G. Emmerson, and V. Wynn were duly nominated for membership. On the proposition of Mr. Box, seconded by Mr. McGregor, it was resolved that this Society should be known in the future as The Metropolitan Cage Bird Association. The next item on the agenda was to fix date for holding the pair show, but after a long discussion it was resolved to abandon this on account of its being rather too late in the season, as we should be unable to hold it until February 27. A discussion then ensued re the exhibits at the late Palace Show, after which the meeting closed.—A. J. HEAD, Hon. Secretary, 171, Battersea Park Road, S.W.

GLASGOW (Confined) SOUTHERN O.A.

A meeting was held in the National Halls, on Feb. 3. There was a large attendance of members. Mr. E. B. Bullins occupied the chair. Mr. Alex. Porteous made a feeling reference to the great loss the association had sustained through the death of Mr. Gilbert Gray, who was the esteemed president for the last eight years, and a very popular and enthusiastic Scotch fancier. The following office-bearers have been elected for the ensuing year:—Honorary President, A. Cameron Corbett, Esq., M.P.; honorary Vice-President, Andrew Motherwell, Esq., J.P.; President, Mr. E. B. Bullions; Vice-President, Mr. William Stewart; Secretary and Treasurer, James Fleming, 368, Cumberland-street; Auditors, Messrs. James M'Laren and James G. Turnbull. The rules were passed without alteration. Judges were elected for the forthcoming show on 31st October. A vote of thanks to the chairman brought the meeting to a close.—JAS. FLEMING, SEC.

MORECAMBE F.S.

A most interesting evening was spent on February 12 at Mr. Tetley's Crescent Cafe, Promenade, Morecambe, the occasion being a whist drive and supper. Seventy-six persons took part, and all thoroughly enjoyed themselves. The whist drive was got up by the novice members, namely, Messrs. Satterthwaite, Houghton, Beach, Brailsford, and others, the object being to raise funds for the Society's annual show. These gentlemen were highly satisfied at the hearty response with which their efforts were met. The prizes were eight in number, viz., four for ladies and four for gentlemen. These were graciously given by lady and gentlemen friends, and were very handsome. Mr. Walter Bell acted as M.C., and all passed off without a single hitch. I feel very thankful for the manner our young members are taking to the work, and I think it a very good sign for our next show. We have enrolled eighteen new members since the January meetiug.—JNO. H. IRELAND, Secretary.

WORCESTER AND DIS. C.B.S.

This recently-formed Society held a meeting on February 13, at the Black Horse Hotel, Lowesmoor, for the purpose of forming a committee, rules, etc. Mr. W. Morgan was voted to the chair. It was decided to form a small committee of five, when the following gentlemen were elected:—Messrs. Underhill, Summerhill, Truman, Morgan, and Bishop. Several rules were made, and two new members were accepted. It was arranged to hold a committee meeting on February 26th at 8 p.m., to fix the date of next monthly meeting, to appoint officers, etc., and to forward other necessary business. Some fine specimens were on view for inspection. Mr. Underhill staged a nice collection of Norwich Plainheads, Crests, and Yorkshires; Mr. Bishop, Yorkshires, Crestbreds, etc. Mr. Underhill's vargt. Norwich was greatly admired, also Mr. Bishop's clear Buff Yorkshire hen, a frequent winner. Mr. Summerhill was congratulated on his success (third at the Crystal Palace with a Scotch Fancy), the bird that stood first in its class at the late Malvern Show. A few valuable hints from Mr. R. Wingfield helped to make our meeting a great success. Thanks were accorded to Mr. Underhill for kindly lending the staging, etc., and a similar vote to the chairman, Mr. W. Morgan, for presiding, brought our meeting to a close.—A. E. BISHOP, Hon. Sec.

GLASGOW AND WESTERN COUNTIES N.C.M.B. AND F.B.C.

The annual general meeting was held in the Good Templars' Hall, 122, Ingram-street, Glasgow. Mr. Peter Pettigrew presided over an attendance of close on 70 members. Previous to the opening of the meeting, Mr. Peter Pettigrew, acquainted the members of the sudden death of Mr. William Craig, of Uddingston, and it was decided to record it in the minutes and to send vote of condolence to the relatives. The balance sheet was next read, showing a credit balance of £6 11s. This, along with such a valuable asset of staging as the club possesses, was considered highly satisfactory for a club in its first year. The following office bearers were appointed. President, Mr. George Marlin (Hamilton); Vice-Presidents, Messrs. Harry Henderson, Robt. Bald, F. S. Brannigan, and John Young; treasurer, Mr. Andrew Malcolmson; secretary, Mr. J. H. Adam, 15, Alexander-street, Sandyford, Glasgow; committee, Messrs. Johnstone, Roddie, Erskine, Weir, J. Roulstone, Montgomery, Drysdale, Wilson, McKenna, Edwards and Gardner; assistant secretary, Mr. Wm. Jack; trustees, Messrs. A. McFarlane, Peter Pettigrew, Walter and Connelly; auditors, Messrs. Peters and Gadsden. It was also decided to have a pairs show on 29th February, 6 p.m., at 122, Ingram-street, with the following classification, viz.: 1st clear or tick Norwich pairs; 2, tick or var., do; 3, clear or tick Border pairs; 4, tick or var., do; 5, Crest pairs; 6, A.O.V., pairs; 7, Goldfinch muling pairs; 8, Linnet muling pair; 9, A.O.V., do; 10, Hybrid pairs, any variety. The following new members were admitted, viz., Messrs. William Sharp and R. Cabler. A vote of thanks to the chairman terminated a very good and lively meeting. Anyone desiring to become members (fee 3/6) can have full particulars from.—J. H. ADAM.

SWANSEA AND DISTRICT C.B.A.

The annual general meeting was held at headquarters on February 13, and was attended, as usual, by the majority of the Society's officers and members. The chief items on the agenda were the auditors' report and the election of officers for the current year. The balance-sheets for the previous year were then read and discussed, and it was very gratifying to all concerned to hear that it was not only a record one, but left them with a substantial sum to carry forward. The officers were elected as follows:—President, Mr. John Williams, M.P.; vice-presidents, en bloc from last year; chairman, Mr. J. H. Ford; vice-chairman, Mr. W. T. Kirby; auditors, Messrs. A. E. Taylor and W. Chelley; show managers, Messrs. Phil Jenkins and J. Hocking; committee, Messrs. E. M. Evaus, J. Richards, T. J. Vanstone, W. Palmer, W. Robbins, D. Roach, J. Gooding, R. Owen, J. Gay, W. Hammacott, and M. T. Glover; secretary, Alf Hitchings, 69, Mysydd Road, Landore, near Swansea. The following new members were elected:—Messrs. J. Cronin, D. Saunders, D. Williams, W. Donnell, W. J. Hyett, T. Thomas, F. Mabbett and W. Williams (Gorseinon). It was decided that the annual open show should be held this year on November 11 and 12.—ALF. HITCHINGS.

UNITED KINGDOM LIZARD C.S.

At the meeting held at the Howard Arms, Glossop, on February 16, the following fanciers were present:—Messrs. Barker, Clegg, Dewsnap, Hampshire, Cawton, Fisher, Fuller, Dickinson, Smith, Ollerinshaw, Harrison, Senior, Anderton, Dove, and Kirby. Mr. J. E. Ollerinshaw was elected chairman pro. tem. The meeting was opened with a short speech by Mr. Clegg, who suggested that the Society, being new, and there being plenty of time in hand before the next show season, and also as there were several fanciers who might still join the Society and make good officers, it would be better to leave the election of officers, making of rules, and fixing of subscriptions until the next meeting. That would give fanciers time to think things over, and perhaps think of many a good suggestion to be put before the next meeting. A sub-committee of four was elected to go through the old rules and make any alterations they thought necessary. We have now on our books twenty members, and I hope that by the next meeting we may have as many more. It was suggested that the subscription be 4s. per annum. Our next meeting will be held at the Howard Arms, Glossop, on March 15, at 7 p.m. All members are asked kindly to be punctual and ready for business, as fanciers coming from a distance have to catch the 8.50 p.m. train from Glossop, and if the meeting is late in commencing very little can be done before our visitors have to leave. Fanciers thinking of joining are asked kindly to send in their names at once, and state whether they will take office if elected.—FRED GREIG, Secretary, pro. tem.

LANCASHIRE CANARY ASSOC.

Meeting held at Rochdale O.C. Club, Feb. 15th, before a good attendance of members. The President, Mr. Nadin, in the chair. After the balance sheet and list of officers for 1908 had been passed, the standard show cage came up for discussion. It was resolved that we adopt the L. and L.F.A. standard, Mr. Hampshire, of Oldham, to be maker of same. It was decided that we give medals instead of guarantees, three for the champions, three for novices, one gold, one silver, one bronze for each section, to be given for most points at shows where the L.C.A. give their patronage. All birds competing for medals to be shown in club, cage and points to count according to rules of show. The secretary was instructed to write to the L. and P.O.S. society, thanking them for the manner they have met us in foregoing our guarantee at the late show at the Palace. This was a big surprise for us. Next meeting at the Great Eastern Hotel, Oldham, on April 11th, where we hope to see a good attendance, as we expect having the designs for the medals before the meeting. I should be pleased to send a copy of the Lancashire standard along with any particulars regarding our society to anyone interested, as now the time is ripe for the novices to come out with their birds, and show the people that we intend the Lancashire birds to come to the front again. The subscription, 2/6 per year, is within the reach of all, with a good chance of winning the medals. All shows desirous of the club's patronage must send to me by the 30th of June, when we shall give them our early attention, as it will give us time to consider same.—W. ADAMS, Sec.

FANCIERS' FESTIVITIES.

Stockport B.F.A.

The members met at their headquarters, "The Boar's Head Hotel" on February 6th, the occasion being the annual dinner and concert. Over 30 members and friends sat down to dinner, which was served in the very best style by Mr. and Mrs. Nelson, the host and hostess. The President, Mr. T. E. Dickenson, occupied the chair, and was supported by Messrs. Hill, Massey, and Davies. During the dinner, the following toasts were submitted:—The Stockport B.F.A., proposed by Mr. W. T. Hill; The President, proposed by Mr. G. H. Massey; The Officials, proposed by Mr. J. E. Davies; The Visitors, proposed by Mr. W. Stafford, and The Winners of the Trophies, proposed by Mr. T. E. Dickenson. After a good set-to at the tables, and when the inner man had been supplied with the good things provided, and the tables had been cleared, we laid ourselves out for a good evening's amusement, the arrangements for which were in the hands of Messrs. Hill, Davies, Nelson and Massey. The President, in a very neat speech, said he had a very pleasing duty to perform, namely, to hand over to the Secretary a nice little "nest egg," the sum of £2 5s., as an expression of appreciation on the part of the members. When the secretary had got over his surprise, he replied in a suitable manner, and thanked the members very much for the kindness shown to him. He had, he said, only tried to do his duty, and would continue to do so. Music followed. Mr. R. W. Marshall sang "The Mighty Deep," in a fine bass voice; Mr. Hugh Haines, society entertainer, caused much merriment with a humorous song entitled "Cheese," and Mr. Chaloner sang "Drinking" in a very nice manner; he was well received. Mr. McKail followed with a reading entitled "The Saint and the Sinner," and was loudly applauded. Mr. Matthews sang "There must be another One," which took very well; friend Matthews ought to be able to sing, seeing the Linnets that pass through his hands. He also sang "The Skipper" and "The Wolf," both with good effect. Mr. Haines again sang a humourous song entitled "A minute to Seven," which created roars of laughter. The company were treated to another by Mr. Haines entitled "Don't Sing another Coon Song." Mr. Cuthbert, that able pianist, gave a sketch on the piano imitating "Fife and Drum," "Scotch Bagpipes," "Penny in the Slot," and "Church Organ," which was quite a treat. As an encore, the pianist sang and played "The Songs of Araby." Mr. Haines had the house "upside down" with his next entitled "He was a Married Man." Mr. Marshall sang "The Bandolero" with success. A vote of thanks to the artistes, proposed by Mr. Davies, was replied to by Mr. Cuthbert in a very nice speech. He promised to come again on some future occasion, and we shall be glad to renew the acquaintance. A vote of thanks to the host and hostess, and the singing of the National Anthem, brought to a close one of the best evenings that we fanciers have ever had.

W. STAFFORD.

Oldham and District C.B.S..

On February 1st, a large number of the members, along with their wives and sweethearts, assembled at the Club's headquarters to spend a pleasant evening. Tea was arranged for five o'clock, and after ample justice had been done to the good things provided, the rest of the evening was spent in singing, dancing, etc. In the absence of the President, Mr. Ackroyd was voted to the chair, and in his remarks alluded briefly to the past season's working. He also commented on the social side, and hoped that all present would enjoy themselves. In the first part of the programme, opportunity was taken to toast the honour of one of the members, Mr. Hardy, who had won outright the Bristol Bowl placed for the Lancashire section of Canaries. The chairman in proposing the toast stated that the society was proud that one of its members had had the distinction of winning such a trophy; especially after starting on such a "back" mark. Mr. Alex. Donnelly, in supporting, said he was pleased that the bowl had come to Oldham; also referring to the interest, the trouble and anxiety that it caused each year the competition had been running. Mr. Hardy briefly responded. The artistes included Mr. Howarth (Littleborough), as dialect reciter; Messrs. Turner and Bradbury, vocalists; Messrs. Steeple (Anglo-German), and C. Astley (English) concertinists, and Mr. Hargreaves, pianist. Mr. Turner also acted as M.C. Votes of thanks were passed on the proposition of Mr. Winn, seconded by Mr. Houldsworth. A splendid evening's entertainment was brought to a close with an old-fashioned country dance, and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne." A. ACKROYD.

Inverness O.A.

In the hall of the Queensgate Hotel, Inverness, on February 5th, an "At Home" was held under the auspices of the Inverness O.A. Sir Hector Munro presided, and he was supported by Messrs. Geo. MacKenzie, president, A. Sanderson, E. Chisholm, J. MacKenzie and A. Urquhart, sec. The chairman in the course of a few remarks thanked the society for inviting him to occupy the chair on that interesting occasion. He observed that they were to be provided with a rich feast of music that night. He was disposed to think that the best feature of the splendid musical programme was the chairman's remarks. (Laughter.) A chairman was fairly obliterated on an occasion like this. (Laughter.) But he might say how much he approved of the objects of the association whose career he followed with the greatest of interest. They knew more about birds of the feather tribe than he could possibly tell them. Whatever their hobby was—whether cricket or bird fancying—he thought it did a vast amount of good and was time well spent. The only remark he had to make was to wish the function every success. An excellent musical programme was thereafter submitted, comprising songs, etc., contributed by the Misses Minnie Fridge, Annie Collie, Mrs. Kelly and Messrs. J. R. Craik, Manson, Bert Law, W. R. Christie, A. MacKenzie, Alec Sinclair, etc. Mrs. Kelly and Mr. Sinclair played the accompaniments. The various items were loudly applauded and the singers and reciters were encored. During the interval in the proceedings tea was served by a number of ladies and gentlemen. At the close Mr. Geo MacKenzie, the vice-president, moved votes of thanks to Sir Hector Munro, for presiding and to the artistes for contributing to the programme. Mr. MacKenzie spoke of the esteem in which their president that night was held by the citizens of Inverness, and proceeded to eulogise the merits of the performers. He invited the young ladies of the town to join the Association, which had a very good membership and plenty of money. (Laughter.) The votes of thanks were enthusiastically accorded. The singing of "For Auld Lang Syne" brought a very enjoyable function to a close.

TWITTERINGS.

Kindly note change of address to 14, Brick Row, Seaton Delaval writes Mr Geo. Dobinson.

I won vhe in vho class for Border Fancy Hens, Buff, at the Palace Show, writes Mr. A. J. L. Taylor (Neath).

Our first feather show is fixed for June 17, writes Mr. J. N. Jeffery, sec. of the Torbay O.S. (Paignton).

Tho initials, "H. G." were inadvertently given in last week's advertisement of Mr. H. J. Hawes (Forest Gate).

The date of our next show, writes Mr. J. Thomas, secretary of the Merthyr Dowlais and Dis. F.A., has been fixed for Nov. 2.

I cannot possibly reply to all who answered my advertisement in last week's CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. W. Jones (Coalbrook Dale).

I have had so many applications through your valuable paper CAGE BIRDS that I cannot answer all, writes Mr. D. G. Davies (Cardigan).

Our show is fixed for Nov. 11 and 12, subject to C.B.U. sanction, writes Mr. W. H. Wright, hon. sec. of the Carlisle and District C.B.S.

The name of the Secretary of the Derby Cage Bird Club is Mr. Stevens, and not Stephens, as was inadvertently given in our columns.

Kindly note change of address from 10 Collego St., to 17 King St., Whitehaven, writes Mr. W. J. Douglas, Hon. Sec. of the Whitehaven C.B. and H.S.

Secretaries of shows please note that the Inverness Ornithological Association annual show has been fixed for 18th November writes Mr. A. Urquhart, sec.

I am pleased to say that I sold all my Scotch Fancies through my advertisement in your grand paper, CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. Wm. Dalgetty (Scarborough).

The plate issued with CAGE BIRDS Palace Show Number is well worth having. It is certainly a work of art, and I think I shall frame it.—F. S. Matthes (Rotherhithe).

I have taken on the Secretaryship of the Accrington and Dis. Cage Bird Society writes Mr. Jas. W. Philpott. My address is 28, Jubilee St., Oswaldtwistle.

Please do not insert my advertisement re mealworms in CAGE BIRDS this week, writes Mr. R. Kremner (Bolton), as the demand has been bigger than the supply.

The date of our next show has been fixed for 15th of August writes W. T. Davies, sec., of the Vaynol Park Show, Port Dinorwie. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.

We hear that the judges for the next annual show of the Newcastle C.B.S., on October 23 and 24, are Messrs. T. McCredie (Dumfries), C. Houlton, W. Vardy, and J. Robson.

I think that all our members take in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. W. Vart, sec of the Kendal and Dis C.B.S. As for myself I have taken it every week since its commencement.

The A.O.S. Resident Class in the Palace Show report should read first Milne Bros., and the Blackbird class should be vhe Milne Bros. write Messrs. Milne Bros. (Keith).

Full prize money won at Spalding Show was paid within fourteen days writes Mr. W. R. Murrell, Hon. Sec. Should any exhibitor have been overlooked will they kindly communicate?

Evidence of the unusual mildness of the weather is afforded by the finding in the Hertford neighbourhood of a Blackbird's nest and Thrush's nest, each containing several eggs.

The Sidmouth Fanciers will hold their show on November 19th write Messrs. Collier and Clode, Hon. Secs. All communications in future must be sent to us at Church St., Sidmouth, (Devon).

Very many thanks for so excellent a report of the Palace Show and the most beautiful coloured plate which accompanied it. I think your artist very clever.—S. G. Quelch, Shoreditch.

I think CAGE BIRDS a very valuable paper indeed, and one which makes interesting reading for those not in the Fancy; also I have been treated fairly up till now by those advertising. I wish you success.—H. Cook (Rodborough).

Last week's plate was a "knock-out," writes Mr. Wm. Hornby (Leeds). I am having it framed, and am waiting for the companion to it, so as to have a pair of pictures of which I shall be proud.

Kindly thank applicants for my Norwich advertised in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. H. Jowett (Bradford). They were too many for me to answer. Birds were sold very early.

In the Crystal Palace Show report I see the much talked of drying cage, No. 2391, reads as exhibited by Mr. Yates. This was not so; it was exhibited by myself, Geo. Burrows (Judd St., W.C.)

Your special Crystal Palace Show number is a great treat to all lovers of birds. The coloured plate and also the sketches are very good, and well worth the extra money.—Jno. C. Spilsbury (Stockport).

Your lengthy report of the Palace Show I appreciate very much, as I was unable to be present this year. The coloured plate is a real gem, the Wood Warbler being a "topper."—M. Hardy (Streatham).

We hear that Messrs. Moore and Crowston have been elected secs. of the Grimsby and Dist. Ornithological Society and in future all correspondence should be addressed to them at 9, Chantry Lane, Grimsby.

We like CAGE BIRDS very much and the coloured plates are supurb, writes Miss Annie Marshall (Winchfield). It it just the paper that we Novices require and we are surprised at such a paper for the modest 1d.

Kindly thank those who replied to my advertisement in CAGE BIRDS for Britishers writes Mr. R. Dallman (Melbourne). I had so many letters and cards I could not answer all. I wish CAGE BIRDS further success.

We regret to hear from Mr. Tom Bentley, of Cleckheaton, that two of his cinnamon-marked Yorkshires, which got into the cards at the Palace Show, were dead on their arrival home, though they left him in vigorous condition.

We hear from Mr. A. Wand, sec of the York C.B.S. that owing to a clashing with six other shows their show date has had to be altered from Nov., 6 and 7 to Oct., 30 and 31, and it is hoped the Fancy will note the change.

I consider the reproduction of this week's plate of Britishers is the most lifelike of any you have yet published, writes Mr. Fred Bowman, hon. sec. Scottish Yorkshire C.C., and reflects great credit on your most up-to-date methods.

Kindly note my change of address to 68, Railway St., Heywood, writes Mr. A. H. Meadowcroft, sec of the Heywood and Dis C.B.S. We shall welcome at our society meetings any fancier residing within a radius of 4 miles.

Allow me to wish CAGE BIRDS continued success and prosperity writes Mr. T. E. Nicholson (Pilmoor, York.) With the first class coloured plates and articles given therewith CAGE BIRDS cannot be surpassed by any other paper, that I have ever seen.

I regret to announce the death of Mrs. John Wrigley, wife of one of our oldest and best known Lizard Breeders, writes Mr. Fred Greig (Glossop). It was after a long illness. I am sure all fanciers join me in offering their deepest sympathy.

I shall be much obliged writes Mr. A. S. Treasure if you will rectify an error in report of our annual meeting. It says Mr. T. N. King was re-elected Assist. Hon. Sec., it should be Mr. E. H. E. Hope, who acted in the same capacity last year.

Mr. E. Fox, of Long Eaton, is judging the Leicester Hand-in-Hand C.B.S. Members' Show on Saturday, Feb. 22, writes Mr. Chas. Draper, the sec. It will be held at headquarters, the White Swan Hotel, and be open at 2 p.m. All fanciers are cordially invited, and the admission is free.

Am pleased to say that I sold my outdoor Bird Room through CAGE BIRDS columns, writes Mr. Geo. Francis (Lowestoft), also the two yellow variegated Norwich Cocks 1st and 2nd Lowestoft at a big figure.

Kindly announce that the Leigh and Dis. C.B.S. have fixed Oct. 23 and 24 as the dates for the Open Show, writes Mr. R. H. Davies, sec. All fanciers and friends are invited to attend our annual concert on Feb. 22, at Lawson's Railway Hotel, at 7.30 p.m.

Kindly thank all who answered my advert. in CAGE BIRDS last week, writes Mr. F. Tweedle (Birkenhead). I have replied to all who sent stamped addressed envelopes, but I could not undertake to answer all, they were so numerous. Wishing CAGE BIRDS further success.

I have sold, from my advert. in CAGE BIRDS, all the Norwich I have to sell, writes Mr. J. F. Bishop (Radcliffe-on-Trent). I am sorry I cannot breed all my birds equal to my three Palace winners, as most people seem to expect them to be so, judging from their letters.

The Red Mite Exterminator I am advertising in your columns this week I have given a fair trial, writes Mr. W. R. Myers (Bradford). It can with safety be given to birds even in their drinking water. I think it will be a big boon to every fancier during the coming season.

Fixtures for the year have been arranged as follows, writes Mr. B. F. Forse, secretary of the Leyton and Dis. C.B.A.: March 2, British Bird Show; June 27, Young Stock Show; Nov. 14, Annual Show; Feb. 6, 1909, Pair Show. Will secretaries please note to avoid clashing.

The plate entitled "Popular Parrots" by Mr. Goodchild, recently issued by you does you great credit writes Mr. W. Earp (Henley on Thames). It was done in first class style. I don't think I ever saw a better grey Parrot illustration. The expression is lifelike.

I see in the report of the Palace Show, writes Mr. A. P. Hurst (Liverpool), that the 3rd prize winning Goldfinch was the Pride of Liverpool, but the Pride was at home. The one at the Palace was a youngster, and has only been out once before, viz., at Dudley where he was first.

In the advertisement of stock for disposal from that well-known British bird fancier and exhibitor, Mr. C. Prior, of Brentford, the words, "State wants, enclosing stamps," appeared last week. This was an error of our printers; "state wants, enclosing stamp," it should have read.

We note from the annual report of the Consett, Blackhill and Dis. P.P.R. and C.B.S. which was sent by the sec., Mr. W. H. Hutchinson, that the balance is £45 16s. 7d. (an increase of £14 17s. 11d. on that of the previous year) and that the society now has a membership of 135.

We have received a copy of the City of Birmingham C.B.S. balance-sheet for 1907 from Mr. H. C. Wilkins, sec. It is a very creditable showing, despite losses of £4 odd on the Nest Feather and Winter Shows. The cash balance is £11 13s., which shows a small increase on that of the previous year.

The "advance booking" for CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL has been exceedingly large, but we are doing our very best to cope with the orders on hand, and all copies which have been paid for should reach subscribers on or before Tuesday's post next. If you have not yet ordered a copy, you should do so at once. This year's ANNUAL is far and away the best ever issued, and looks like being "sold out" in record time.

At Bathgate and District C.B. Show, held on 11 January, I may say for the benefit of other exhibitors who may be disappointed at not receiving full prize money, that in Class No. 5 my cage number should be 1, and not 8, as stated, there being only seven birds in the said class.—R. Frew (Wishaw).

Mr. E. W. Sainter of Royds St., Manchester, having guaranteed a quarter of the loss on the Pendleton and Salford O. S. All England Show held last December, writes Mr. W. Jackson (Hon Sec.), presented at our last meeting a cheque for same. A hearty vote of thanks was given to Mr. Sainter

Allow me through your paper CAGE BIRDS to thank the Lowestoft fanciers for their hearty vote of thanks writes Mr. J. E. Reeves (Canning Town). I shall be pleased at any future time to assist them at their shows if I happen to be at Lowestoft. I am sure of their success under the leadership of that good old fancier, Henry Hart.

We hear from Mr. Sampson, sec. of the Cardiff and Dis. C.B.S. that the annual members' show will be held on February 26 at Naish's Royal Stores, the Hayes, Cardiff. Mr. J. H. Payne will judge. Classes to be provided for Canaries, Brit. and For., entrance fee is 9d. and the prize money is on a sliding scale. Entries close on Feb. 24.

That well-known Crested Canary breeder and expert, Mr. W. E. Greeves, of Wrentham, in sending an advertisement of birds for disposal, writes: It is a matter of sincere regret that I am parting with my stock, but as I shall not be able to breed from them this season, I thought they had better go, rather than lose a season's youngsters.

I am delighted with the result of advertising in the Palace Number, which is magnificent, writes Miss A. Richardson (Hatfield). Kindly thank all who answered my advertisements as it is impossible to reply to each one individually. I had answers from all parts of the country, which shows what a large circulation CAGE BIRDS really has.

In our report of the Southern Norwich Plainhead Club annual meeting, our printers mixed up a line, and the proposition moved and seconded by Messrs. Woolhouse and Kilby should have read: "That we be not affiliated (to the C.B.U.), as this would give the affiliated and non-affiliated breeders the same chance of belonging to the Club."

Kindly state that my champion Goldfinch "Southern King" was absent from the Palace Show on account of his having lost 4 flight feathers, writes Mr. Arthur T. Jupe (Petersfield) Yours is certainly a grand paper. I always make a dive for it Friday mornings and often get into hot water for reading it instead of having my breakfast. I wish CAGE BIRDS all the success it deserves.

The balance-sheet for 1907 of the Gateshead and District C.B.S. is very satisfactory, showing a turnover of no less than £190 4s. 10d., and a cash balance of over £10, in addition to other assets. We note that the sum of £32 19s. 7d. was taken at the gate at the All-England Show. Mr. Taylor, the sec., and his fellow workers, are to be congratulated on the result of their labours.

Do not forget to visit the London and Counties A.C.B. Show of British and Foreign Birds at "The Bay Malton," Gt. Portland Street, W., on Saturday, Feb. 29. Note that this is the only Society which organises a show of this kind in London. Within five minutes' walk of Oxford Circus, Euston Road, Tube stations, and two minutes from Portland Road (Metropolian Railway).—ADVT.

Will you kindly remind all those having books connected with the Hartlepools C.B.S. prize drawing writes Mr. E. Woodhead, sec., that the same must be returned to the Hon. Sec. not later than Feb. 22, or Monday morning's post in time so that the winning numbers may appear the following Saturday (29). Those who have already sent books in, please accept the committee's very best thanks.

An admirable little handbook, entitled "The Bird Keeper's Guide," reaches us from Messrs. Trower and Co., the noted bird-food specialists, Caledonian Road, London, N. It deals in tabular form with every species of British bird likely to be kept in captivity, and also a very large number of Foreign birds, and brief but accurate and helpful information is given concerning their habitat and the cages and foods suitable for them. It is published at 6d., and may be had direct from Messrs. Trower. This useful addition to the bird-keeper's library is tastefully got up, and bears the names of Messrs. T. R. Trower and A. Silver as joint authors.

A SPECIAL OFFER.

To Users of Fluid Beef and Meat Extracts.

We invite the readers of "CAGE BIRDS" to test for themselves the advantages of the new preparation for making Beef Tea, Gravies, Soups, etc., called Fluid Ju-Vis. Fluid Ju-Vis is Beef strengthened and vastly improved in flavour by the addition of Vegetable Extract. Fluid Ju-Vis is solely a Beef and Vegetable product and contains no adulterant whatever. In Fluid Ju-Vis you get about double the usual quantity for the same money and we are satisfied that you will decide that it is at least equal in quality and flavour, to any Extract you have used. To make Gravies, Soups, Beef Teas at half the usual cost and like them better appeals to every one.

A 2-oz. bottle of Ju-Vis can be bought of Grocers for 6½d., or send 6½d. stamps for a bottle to G. Foster Clark and Co., Maidstone.

Cage Birds Annual

— For 1908 —

Will be on Sale by the time these lines are in print, and

Bird-lovers should hurry up and secure their copies at once.

A charming new cover, many beautiful illustrations of winning birds printed on art paper, a lovely coloured plate for frontispiece, a complete revision of all the popular features, and the addition of strikingly useful new features, mark this 1908 issue.

The articles, too, have never been excelled, and both Canary, Hybrid, British and Foreign bird keepers have been specially catered for. The needs of the beginner have likewise been given the fullest consideration. Many extra pages have been added, and the "ANNUAL" for 1908 represents wonderful value for 6d. —absolutely the best ever put before the Fancy.

Send sevenpence to the Manager, "CAGE BIRDS," 154, Fleet Street, London and get a copy post free by return, or order it through your newsagent.

Order it at once, however, as the edition is limited in number and we anticipate a record quick sale.

The ANNUAL is the STANDARD GUIDE to the Fancy, and a Yearly Treat for Bird-lovers.

Through an advertisement in your columns writes Mr. Wm. H. Riley (Hull), I have bought of Mr. A. E. Bishop (Worcester), two Goldfinches, and with one, a Graypate, I was in the money at our show. I also bought his winning Bramblefinch, Chaffinch and Linnet. I wish your paper every success.

Mr. J. W. Ramsden, the manager of the Crystal Palace Show, and the well-known vendor of colour-food, asks us to once again call attention to his change of address to 11, Josephine Avenue, Brixton, London, S.W. Correspondents sending letters to the old Herne Hill address, cause considerable delay and inconvenience.

We desire to express our thanks to the many secretaries of Societies who have responded to our application for the definition of a Headline Advertisement in a Show Schedule and Catalogue. As the matter is subjudice, we cannot deal with it in our columns at present, but we have noted the expressions of opinion with great interest, and shall hope to publish them all as soon as we are placed in a position to be able to do so.

Report of the Palace Show credits Mr. A. Lovegrove with commended and special in Novice Yell. or Tkd., etc., Norwich Class, when it should have read commended Mr. F. R. E. Handscombe. It is the first time I have ever shown at the Palace, and several of my friends who buy CAGE BIRDS and did not see my name, refuse to credit it. I think the report of the show a credit to your staff, and the number is great, while the plate, as they are always, is good and life-like and a credit to the artist. —F. R. E. Handscombe (Walthamstow).

I beg to tender my sincere thanks and heartiest congratulations to CAGE BIRDS and to Mr. Norman for the truly grand sketch of my winning yellow Norwich cock, writes Mr. C. E. Brown (Bristol). It came as a pleasant surprise to me when my birds arrived home from the Palace to find my yellow had won 2nd prize in CAGE BIRDS Coupon competition, and again on Feb. 14, when I was delighted to see his picture on the cover of your special Palace Show number, which I must say is a wonderful twopenny worth.

The balance-sheet for 1907 of the Manchester and Northern Counties O.S., proves the society to have had a highly successful season, the members', first feather and open shows all resulting in a profit, and there being £43 16s. 8d. cash in bank at end of year, despite an outlay of £10 for new staging and £17 for medals and members' specials at the two first-named shows. This must be eminently satisfactory to all connected with this old-established society and reflects credit on the secretary, Mr. G. W. F. Lythgoe, the assistant-secretary, Mr. E. Jones, and the treasurer, Mr. Higgins. A splendid programme of lectures, competitions, debates, etc., has been arranged for the present, 1908, season.

Allow me to thank your reporter, writes Mr. S. Hamblyn of Southampton, for the very kind way he has written about my specimen. No. 1422 in the Clear, etc., Hybrid Class. I have been successful with him at many shows of late. Last year at the Palace I took 3rd with him. He has been 1st and special at Bournemouth two years in succession. Whether he was passed by the Judge I know not, nor did I know there was, or is, any grizzle on his rump. I was unable to get to the Palace but appreciate the remarks in your paper, as much, or more so, as if I won a prize.

OBITUARY.

MR. E. JACKSON (Hamilton).

Many of your readers in Glasgow, Hamilton, and in fact all over Scotland, writes Mr. And. Wilson (Glasgow), will be sorry to hear that Mr. Jackson, of Hamilton, died at his residence there on 13 Feb. It was a short illness, he only being confined to the house for two weeks. Mr. Jackson was a single man and a guard on the Caledonian Railway, being greatly respected by all who knew him. His whole hobby was his "Bullies," of which he had both British and Foreign, and which were the only species of cage birds he kept and exhibited. These won many 1sts, 2nds, and 3rds for him all over the country during the last three years. I am sure his many friends will join me in deeply sympathising with his relations in their great bereavement.

Mr. W. Haddow, of Hamilton, also writes in feeling terms concerning the late Mr. Jackson, and of his kindly and obliging disposition.

MR. W. B. SIMMS (Sutton-in-Ashfield).

It is with great regret that we have to record the death of Mr. William B. Simms, of the Railway Inn, Sutton-in-Ashfield, which took place after a painful and lingering illness early on Tuesday morning (Feb. 11). Deceased, who was only 40 years of age, was widely respected. The Sutton-in-Ashfield Cage Bird Society, and several other organisations, all found in him a ready and willing helper. Deceased leaves a family of four young children to mourn his death. Amidst manifestations of regret and sympathy, the remains were taken to their last resting place in the Sutton Cemetery, among the large gathering of mourners being representatives of the Cage Bird Society.

Mr. R. Rhodes, of Nottingham, writes: William Simms was the eldest son of the late John Simms, and John Simms kept the name of Sutton-in-Ashfield well before the country for many years, being a very successful breeder of Crests and a winner all over the country. He was the means of starting the Norwoods in the fancy, their stock having for its foundation Simms' birds. But above all he was a strictly honourable and straightforward man. His son William, although never attaining the success which his father did, has had some very good birds, and has been a successful exhibitor. His business claims, however, prevented him from devoting as much time to his hobby as he would have liked. He carried on the Railway Inn successfully. The death of his wife, however, some nine months ago, the illness of his little daughter, and close attention to his business brought on consumption, which resulted in his death. He was at Nottingham Show last November, on the Monday, and at that time looked very ill, although he said he was improving. He evidently made many friends, judging by the very large number of persons who were present at the church and the graveside. Amongst other fanciers attending the funeral were the following: J. Briggs, O. Butler, T. Dove, and H. Turner (Sutton-in-Ashfield), J. Driver (South Normanton), W. Vardy, F. Beardall, and G. Marshall (Hucknall Huthwaite), and myself.

Mr. Joseph Smith (Mansfield) also writes in sympathetic terms, adding: The late Mr. Simms was the treasurer to the Sutton-in-Ashfield and District O.S., and anything that lay in his power he would do for the Society.

The L. and L.F.A. Cups and Medals.

Result of the Cup Competition of the Lancashire and Lizard F.A. is that Mr. John Garner, of Hazel Groves, wins the Lancashire Cup for the second time, Mr. J. Oldham being the runner up. Mr. John Dewsnap, of Glossop, wins the Lizard Cup, Mr. Wm. Lawton, of Glossop, being the runner up, followed closely by Mr. J. Hampshire, of Oldham, and Mr. J. Rukin, of Rawtenstall. Mr. Rukin was the winner last year. Mr. J. Oldham, of Oldham, wins the Lancashire Novice Gold Medal, Mr. T. Nelson, of Macclesfield, being the runner up. The annual general meeting will be held at the White Lion Hotel, Manchester on March 7th.—H. OLIVER, Sec.

Standard Show Cage for British Birds.

The committee of the National British Bird and Mule Club will have under consideration at their next meeting the adoption of a standard pattern cage for exhibiting British seed-eaters in, and cage-makers are to be invited to submit a specimen cage. Where the latter is to be sent, and the latest day for sending, will, we understand, appear in our issue of next week. The idea seems to be to adopt one suitable pattern, which can be made in different sizes to suit the various Hardbills, from Siskin to Hawfinch. The design which seems to meet with most favour, judging by remarks let fall at the annual meeting of the club, is one with the top about one-quarter wired over, bow-pattern, after the manner of a Crested Canary show-cage, with seed receptacle at the door end, and waterhole close against the seed receptacle; not, as is now general, in the centre of the cage between the two perches.

Women's Suffrage?

A curious happening in connection with a certain Metropolitan Cage Bird Society has leaked out. New members are elected by ballot, and "black balls" exclude. A certain fancier who put up for membership was "black-balled," and was not accepted. But on the very same evening the wife of the rejected one was accepted.

Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C. Competitions.

The following is the result of our Competitions for 1907-8. Open Competition: 1, Messrs. Ogden Bros., 185 points; 2, J. Wilcock, 135; 3, A. Cooper, 105; 4, A. Hirst, 104; 5, tied between R. Sutcliff and Son, and W. H. Shackleton, 68; 7, H. Dobson, 49; 8, E. B. Denton, 48· 9, J. Hartley, 34. Novice Competition: 1, Mr. H. H. Towers, 63 points; 2, W. Blakey, 54; 3, A. Blackburn, 51; 4, T. Wood, 15; 5, T. Bentley, 10. Special prize for most first prizes by a Novice was a tie, Messrs. H. H. Towers, A. Blackburn and W. Blackey, one first each. Special prize for most points with consolation cards: Messrs. Ogden Bros, 42 points; Mr. J. Wilcock, 38. Will members count their points and if the figures I give above are not correct, send on to me a list of their winnings for correction.

Food Specialists' Annual Feed.

The annual Staff Dinner of Spratt's Patent, Ltd., was held at the Holborn Restaurant on Friday, Feb. 14th, when a most enjoyable evening was spent under the chairmanship of Mr. A. Vaughan, director, supported by all the members of the staff able to attend. Mr. Vaughan apologised for the unavoidable absence of the Managing Director, Mr. Stephen Wingrove, who has invariably attended these festive gatherings. An excellent menu was provided. The toast of the evening "His Majesty the King," was proposed by the Chairman, that of the "Directors and Company" by Mr. S. T. Lethbridge, and of the "Chairman" by Mr. E. A. Deall. An excellent programme was provided and well rendered by members of the staff, assisted by Miss Eleanor Vale (soprano) and Mr. George Richmond (animal impersonator). A cordial vote of thanks was passed to the Committee, and responded to by Mr. F. W. Gill, the hon. sec.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence to pay postage expenses, &c., otherwise their letters will not receive attention.

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

NOTE.—Readers are requested to carefully study past numbers and current issue before submitting questions. By doing so they may save trouble and unnecessary repetition.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

A Dull Norwich.

S.G.—If you carefully examine the cage I have little doubt but that you will find enough there in the way of red mite to account for the bird being out of condition. The restlessness at night is very strongly indicative of it being badly troubled with this pest. Put the cage through the cleaning process recently described so fully in the "Novices' Note-book" page, and the bird will probably soon begin to regain condition. To help it, give first as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence and six drops of lemon juice in its water for two days, and afterwards give twenty drops of chemical food every second day for a fortnight. At the end of each week repeat the dose of salts and lemon juice for one day. You do not say how often you give egg-food. Give it only a week, and a small piece of bread and milk about as often. Give green food as often as it is obtainable free from frost.

To Make a Start.

L. Geddes.—1. You would be able, with an expenditure of £4, to make a start with Norwich with very fair birds, and ought to be able to breed birds quite fit to win at small shows the first season. 2. With the outlay suggested, I think you may venture to start with a cock and two hens, and mate the cock with each hen alternately. Then next year you might get another good cock, and by mating a young cock from each hen to the other adult hen, and purchasing a fresh hen to mate with the old cock you might go on for a few years afterwards without adding any more fresh blood. The two original hens should, of course, be unrelated, or at least not closely related. If you do this, I should advise you to get a good sized, shapely, and typical clear yellow cock, a slightly ticked buff hen, and a marked or variegated buff hen. Next season you might add a green cock, and thus have an abundant supply of natural colour to work with. 3. No, decidedly. I should not advise you to pick up the birds at shows. It required far more experience and acumen than a beginner is likely to possess to succeed in that method of selection. Either place yourself in the hands of a known and successful breeder and exhibitor, or in the hands of one of the large dealers who advertise in our columns and rely upon their judgment and selection. You will find a list of the breeders in "CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL." Sorry we cannot name any particular one. The present is a very good time to procure your stock. 4. You would find "House's Canary Manual" and "Canary Breeding for Beginners" both from this office, very helpful.

Poison in Zinc Drinkers.

Zinc.—There are many chemicals used as medicines for birds which, if given in a zinc drinker, would act chemically upon the zinc and form a poisonous solution, but whether ammoniated citrate of iron is one of them I do not profess to say, although I think it is not unlikely. Acids are usually the most dangerous things to use in this way, but as a matter of fact no medicine of any kind should be given in metal drinkers. We have often stated this distinctly. By the way, you do not say whether it is a loss of this kind that prompted your query. If it was, a post-mortem would have been most satisfactory for you. Perhaps some reader more deeply versed in chemistry would tell us whether a solution of iron in solution would act chemically upon a Zinc vessel.

Substitute for Egg Food.

C.F.P.—I have never used the prepared egg-food you mention, so cannot really say any more about it than that I should not object to its use as an occasional treat at ordinary time. But when breeding there is no really satisfactory substitute for good, freshly-made, egg-food. As you have so little spare time you might make up a sufficient quantity of the food composed of maizena wafers and preserved yolk of egg recommended to a querist in the previous issue to last a week, or even a fortnight, and damp as required for use. If you boiled your eggs all at once each day, and only broke them when required, it should only be a very few minutes' work to make up the food morning, mid-day, and at night just before the birds begin to settle down to roost. You might manage to accommodate 30 pairs and their young in the room you name 15 ft. by 18 ft., but it would be very much crowded at the end of the season, and the risks of disease breaking out proportionately great. On the whole I think you would be well advised to limit the breeding stock to twenty pairs at most.

Now Doing Well.

Norwich Fancier.—Thanks for your kind, appreciative letter, and remarks about our paper. Am very pleased to hear the birds are now doing so well. Continue the treatment until they are quite well, and the cock is on song again.

Blood in Droppings.

No Name.—Another query without signature. I suppose this is what you mean by red matter being mixed with the droppings. You give no detail as to feeding except that the general diet is Canary seed, and as you are sure the bird is not exposed to any chill I think it is very likely the condition in the result of too free bathing in cold water. For the present give the bath in a tepid state only; keep the cage floor as clean as possible; and treat as follows: Give only a small quantity of Canary seed, and each day give a little bread soaked in milk, pressed nearly dry, and sprinkled with maw seed. For one day only, give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence and five drops of glycerine in the water. Afterwards give one day thirty drops of chalk and bismuth mixture—any chemist will supply a pennyworth or two of this—next day give ten drops of aromatic sulphuric acid, and on the third day give pure water. Repeat this three days' course over again until the droppings are normal, and then omit them, and give twenty drops of chemical food every second day for a week or so longer.

Not Singing.

"Monarch," Manchester.—The bird's age is partly accountable for its not singing, and your feeding is by no means conducive to its well-being. Feed on a diet of plain Canary seed only for the present, and give green food when obtainable ad lib. Once a week only you may add a pinch of rape seed, given separately, and once a small piece of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week, and then every third day for another fortnight, and at the end of each week give a dose of twenty drops of Chemical Food in the water for a day. Improvement will probably be slow, as the bird appears to have been considerably over-fed; therefore, persevere. Shall be pleased to help you at any time.

Breeding in Aviary.

Notts.—Yes, certainly; you could run a cock with three hens flying loose in any aviary 12ft. by 10ft., and by doing so may very probably find a very successful result of the season's work. Fix up at least half-a-dozen nest-boxes, to prevent squabbles amongst the hens, and you would do well to put in a clear cock bird of one colour, and have all the hens more or less ticked or variegated, and of the opposite colour. Say, you put in a clear yellow cock, let all the hens be buffs and vice versa. It will not be necessary to remove the young when able to do for themselves, unless the parents should ill-treat them, or the young should be too meddlesome with the later nesting operations.

A Typical Alderman.

"Constant Reader."—If your Canary is so much overfed that it has a lump the size of a pigeon's egg (this, you know, is practically as large as its own body) on its chest, and a smaller lump lower down, it is an "Alderman" indeed. But you give no description of the appearance of these lumps, nor how you feed and treat the bird, so I cannot really tell whether the bird's condition is due to fat or not. Lumps of fat do not, however, usually appear on the chest first. Altogether I think you had better write again, and give me more particulars. Meanwhile, keep the bird in a fairly large cage; feed on Canary seed only, and limit the quantity of this to a small teaspoonful a day, and give, when obtainable, an unlimited supply of green food, especially chickweed and groundsel, and soft fruits, such as grapes or orange. Every alternate day give a piece of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea in the drinking water, and at the end of each week give ten drops of aromatic sulphuric acid in the water for one day. You should not attempt to breed with the birds in this condition.

Yorkshire Cock Wheezy.

"Gordon."—You should begin to give the bird a pinch of rape and one of hemp once a week now in addition to Canary seed. Give it also a small piece of sponge cake with a few drops of sherry on it once a week, and once a week a teaspoonful of egg-food with six drops of Chemical Food well mixed in it; and in the water give every alternate day ten drops of glycerine and five each of syrup of squills and sweet spirits of nitre, until the bird is well. See that it is protected from chills and draughts.

Opinion on Recipe.

"Enquirer."—The recipe you send is one which although I have never used anything quite like it, I should think it a very good tonic and stimulant, in cases where such "liveners" were indicated as being necessary. Its effect would be practically the same as giving the iron and quinine tonic we often recommend in conjunction with a piece of sponge cake slightly moistened with sherry, and the latter course would work out much cheaper than making this quantity of medicine. There is quite enough iron in the recipe you sent.

Puffy Hens and Seed Samples.

"Sappho," Watford.—There is very little the matter with your feeding, and I am inclined to think the seed you are using is the cause of the three hens becoming puffy and drooping their wings. They are the first to succumb to its ill effects, and the other will probably follow suit at longer or shorter intervals, according to their susceptibility, if you cannot get better seed. If you cannot obtain any better quality locally, you should order from one of the large dealers, whose advertisements you will find in our columns. The Canary seed is very small, thin, of poor quality, and badly ripened. The rape is a mixture, and contains a large proportion of wild mustard. It is not fit for feeding caged birds with regularly. Until you can get better seed, I should cut off the rape altogether, and feed solely on the Canary, with just a pinch of the rape once or twice a week, and a little egg-food twice a week. You may continue giving the piece of bread and milk, but omit the maw seed, and give green food, when obtainable, each day. Give a little Epsom salts in the water for two or three days, and after that twenty drops of Chemical Food every alternate day for a week.

Makes Clicking Noise.

C. Kearley.—You are most likely keeping the bird colder than it was accustomed to before you had it, and this, with the recent fluctuating weather would account for the bird starting to make this clicking noise with its beak at night. Keep her fairly warm, but especially avoid exposing her to any serious fluctuations, and protect her from chills and draughts. Do not give cold baths on cold, damp days. Give her also a small piece of sponge cake with a few drops of sherry on it twice a week until better, and in the drinking water give the medicine advised to "Gordon" in this issue every alternate day for a week.

Roller out of Condition.

W.H.W.—Your feeding is doubtless largely accountable for the bird's condition. Keep it in the room where it now is and see that it is not exposed to any draughts or chills. Discontinue the quinine in the water altogether, and alter your feeding as follows:—For a staple, give a mixture of two parts Canary to one part summer rape seed, and give a small piece of bread and milk twice a week. Give a spray of green food every day when obtainable, and free from frost and wet. If you intend breeding with her later on, you may give a small pinch of niga twice a week, but omit this if you are not going to breed with her. Also stop giving all the other foods and tit-bits you mention, and give only just what is named here for a time. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will lie on a sixpence every second day for a week, and then give twenty drops of Chemical Food in the same way three times a week for a fortnight.

Yorkshires Squeaky, etc.

"Ireland."—The Yorkshire probably caught a chill on its journey. Keep it comfortably warm and free from draughts, and give it the medicine advised to "Gordon" in this issue, for a week, and twice a week a little sponge cake slightly moistened with sherry, until the squeaking noise has quite disappeared. As regards the food you mention, I have no doubt whatever as to its being sufficient to rear young birds from the shell, "if," firstly, the old birds take to it freely and are fond of it, and feed readily with it, and, secondly, if the young can digest and assimilate it. These however, I know from practical experience, are "mighty big ifs," and I would not myself attempt to make it wholly supply the place of good wholesome and fresh egg-food in breeding valuable birds; the risk is too great. Therefore, I should only advise you to attempt it simply as a pure experiment.

List of Canaries.

Constant Reader.—Was it not a curious oversight that you should omit one of the very commonest varieties, and another common and notable variety, from the list of Canaries you send in and ask if it represents a compete list of the varieties of Canaries we possess? In addition to the varieties you mention, there is the Border Fancy, the Crest, and its ally the Crestbred, the Dutch Frill, and the Lancashire Plainhead, which, of course, is the ally of the Coppy, which you give on your list. All these you might have seen advertised in last week's issue of CAGE BIRDS, and the Border Fancy and Crest-bred were illustrated in the body of the paper, and a Dutch Frill was shown on the advertisement pages. Most of the breeds occur in a variety of markings, and in yellow, buff, and green. Years ago there also existed a Blue Lizard, which may not yet be quite extinct. Pigmy or Bantam Canaries of the Yorkshire type, and crested Cinnamons, are also breeds which fanciers sought to establish some years ago, but they seem to have disappeared.

Breeding Crests.

"A New Subscriber."—You ought not to have the cock and hens running together now. Take away the cock until the end of the next month. If he is strong, healthy, and vigorous, it is just possible to breed him with both the hens, by mating him with the one that is first ready, and then when she has commenced to sit, take him away and mate him with the other, and he should be ready and fit to mate again with the first hen by the time she is ready to receive him. A little judicious management in feeding up the hens should enable you to have one ready a little in advance of the other. But if you wish to breed decent birds, I should advise you to breed with single pairs, and also you would find it an advantage to keep a pair or two of common feeders to help in rearing the young. Plural mating, or pairing a cock with more than one hen, is not to be advised in Crest breeding.

A Norwich Gone Wrong.

G.W.—Your feeding is probably at fault, but your letter is not very explicit on that point. Look up a few back numbers of CAGE BIRDS, and you will find detailed advice for general feeding. Follow this, and give the bird a small piece of bread soaked in milk, squeezed nearly dry, and sprinkled with soft sugar, twice a week. Also give twenty drops of whiskey and ten of glycerine in the drinking water every second day for a week or so, and see that the bird is not exposed to any chills or draughts. Do not give the bath icy cold; make it tepid, or withhold it until finer weather.

A Question of Matching.

"Philatelist," Glasgow.—I think you would make the best of the material at your disposal, if you were to mate the (No. 1) cap and wing-marked yellow cock to the small buff hen (No. 2); then the small yellow cock (No. 2) with a good head and short tail, but not quite deep enough in breast, to the large typical buff hen (No. 1); and the large variegated yellow cock (No. 3) to the green variegated hen (also No. 3). From the last-named pair you would obtain a few Greens probably, and should keep the best of these and the most typical and full-chested Yellows to breed back to the other birds, and also keep up the natural colour of your stock. The most typical Yellow cock from the cap-marked Yellow cock, should be mated next season to No. 1 large Buff hen, and the best Buff hen from hen No. 1 mate back to the cap-marked cock. The other young may be mated together according to the strength of the points they possess. But as three of your present stock fail a little in depth of breast, you must keep your eye on this point, and retain for future breeding of their progeny only such as are good in this point. If you find the fault appear persistently in the young from either of these parents, it would be best to clear that bird out next season, with all the young that show the same failing markedly.

Nest Pan Linings.

Wm. Shone, Junr.—No, as you are going to give the hens cow-hair for nesting material it is not necessary to put blocked felt linings in the nest pans, in addition to the swansdown linings they already possess. If you had the pans bare inside, that is, without any lining at all, then you would either line them with swansdown or felt, but not with both these articles, which would simply be a waste of material.

A Canary with Abscess.

F. Newday, York.—There must be something radically wrong with your management for the bird to have been moulting six months. Stop giving the mixed seed. Feed on a staple of plain Canary seed, and give a teaspoonful of scalded rape and a similar quantity of egg-food once a week, and twice a week a small piece of bread and milk. Give each of these extras separately on different days, and when neither of these is given, supply a little green food. In the drinking water give one day as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and ten drops of lemon juice; next day give twenty drops of Chemical Food; and on the third day give pure water. Repeat these doses, in this order, again and again for two or three weeks. You do not describe the appearance of the abscess under the wing. Are you sure the bird it not troubled with insects, and has caused this sore by pecking at itself? In any case, you may gently smear it very sparingly with boracic ointment twice a week, and if it bathes, give it tepid baths, with a few grains of permanganate of potash dissolved in it.

Yellow and Buff.

No Name.—It is quite an easy matter to distinguish between yellow and buff. The distinction is the same in every breed, so what applies to the Norwich does so equally to all others. In the Buff the yellow feathers have the extreme tip of the web of a pure white colour, which gives the colour and appearance as though the bird was dusted over with white powder. The appearance is very noticeable around the base of the neck, the top of the head, shoulders, and on the breast. The Yellow bird has no such white tips to the feathers. You should get CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL to be fully coached in all these technical terms.

Mite Destroyer.

"Camphor."—Yes, the spirit and camphor mixture may be applied quite freely whilst the bird occupies the cage. It is perfectly harmless. An ounce of camphor dissolved in a half-pint of spirit is a good strength to use. Do not allow it to run about the varnished front more than you can help, as it quickly affects the varnish.

Trouble with Eyes.

M.C., Corino.—I should try moving the bird to another part where there would be no possibility of its being exposed to draught. Although you say the other birds in the room are not affected, there is the probability of this bird being more susceptible than the others, and also of its being exposed to a local draught which does not finds its way into the other cages. Still, there is the further probability of the inflamed eyes being due to constitutional disturbances. Try feeding it generously, giving plenty of green food or ripe sweet fruits, and add twenty drops of Chemical Food to its drinking water one day, a little Epsom salts the next, giving pure water the next, and repeat this course again and again for two or three weeks. As a local application, you might dissolve as much boric acid as will lie on a shilling in an ounce of water that has been well boiled and add a teaspoonful of rose water. Catch the bird daily and drop one or two drops of this fluid on each eye, holding the bird in the hand with the eye upwards for a minute or two, to allow the fluid time to work its way about the eye.

Loss of Voice.

E. Muller.—The bird has certainly had a severe chill, which might have occurred whilst on the journey to you, or subsequent to its reception. In addition to the seed mixture you are giving, give it a small piece of bread soaked in milk, squeezed nearly dry, and sprinkled with soft sugar, twice a week, and add twenty drops of Chemical Food to its drinking water three times a week for a fortnight or so. Also give it a pellet of the following paste two days in every three until the voice returns. You may stick the pellet on the wires at the end of a perch, where the bird can pick it off conveniently. Paste:—Well mix as much chlorate of potash as will lie on a sixpence into a teaspoonful of honey, and add sufficient yolk of hard-boiled egg to make a stiff paste. The voice should be quite strong and well before it is time to mate it, but even if it is not, and the bird is otherwise vigorous and healthy, I see no objection to breeding with it. Do not be in a hurry to mate it, however, if the voice does not soon improve.

A Varied Lot.

A.E.R.—The aspect of your bird-room is quite likely to be responsible to a great extent for the prevalence of colds among your stock. You must guard against draughts very carefully, and in such a room as yours I should advise you not to supply baths indiscriminately. Give them only during fine, mild weather, and early in the day, and do not allow them to hang on the cages more than half-an-hour, when you do give them. Give the hen you have removed to the kitchen twenty drops of whiskey and five each of syrup of squills, and sweet spirits of nitre, in the drinking water every alternate day for a fortnight. Feed on a plain staple diet, as frequently advised in these columns, and give a teaspoonful of scalded rape once a week, a little bread and milk one day each week, and one day each week a small piece of sponge cake with a few drops of sherry on it. The latter should be omitted when the bird is quite well. You should not try to breed with her, or, in fact, with any of them until they are better. 2.—Give the other birds with slight colds the above medicine three times in one week, and the next week give twenty drops of Chemical Food every second day. In addition to ordinary plain diet, give birds in cold room a pinch of a mixture of about equal parts rape and hemp twice a week, a teaspoonful of scalded rape twice a week, once a little bread and milk, and once a teaspoonful of egg-food. Give all on different days, so as to have one or another extra going each day. 3.—Treat Green Crestbred cock in the same way as recommended for the birds in cold room. It would only be possible to say what would be a suitable hen to match this bird to, by having a description of what crest properties it possesses. In the absence of such knowledge I should say in a general way a clear body dark-crested Buff hen would suit him.

Canaries with Cold.

T.W.—It is the late break in the weather that has slightly upset the birds I expect. Give just a little pinch of hemp and rape mixed in equal quantities to the cocks daily when none of the other extras are given, and a pinch of inga and rape to the hens, when the weather is changeable. Also give a teaspoonful of egg-food once a week. If the coughing and gaping have not already ceased when you see this, give twenty drops of whiskey and five each of glycerine and sweet spirit of nitre in the water for two or three days. 2. If, as I understand your letter, you only give the scalded rape and bread and milk each, once a week, your feeding is not bad, but you should make the additions mentioned above now, and might also begin to give green food regularly when you can obtain it free from frost.

Feather Eating Hen.

"Pernicious."—Your hen is evidently in high breeding condition, and instead of eating feathers is probably bent on trying to scerete them in some cosy corner in the form of a nest. The diet you were giving the bird is quite sufficient to force the hen into breeding condition, and will certainly do so now we are getting whiffs of the coming spring in stray bright and sunny days. As you have already moved the hen to a cage by herself, if she appears to go on well and ceases pulling at her feathers you had better keep her away from the cocks for another month or thereby. Feed her plainly, cut off the hemp and teazle, and only give a pinch of niga two or three times a week. Give a little bread and milk twice a week, and add a small dose of Epsom salts to the drinking water for two or three days.

A Breeding Query.

G.E.—Your kitchen must be a warm one, or otherwise you have been feeding the birds too liberally, which has brought them into breeding condition. This would be all the more likely to occur with hardy birds which had been flying loose in a large aviary in a glassbouse, which probably means a cold house. If your kitchen is a fairly warm one, say, at least, fifty-nine degrees, and you can ensure this been fairly equable day and night, I should advise you to mate these birds at once, and take your chance of success or failure with them, as when the birds have reached the condition yours are in, the hens will begin laying whether they are paired or not. Indeed, I should not be surprised if your one hen has laid before this reply can appear. When this occurs at this time, if the hens are kept unmated, they may be quite ruined for the rest of the season. Mate them first with the Canary, and then with luck they should be ready to start again at the end of April, when they might be replaced in the aviary altogether for the second nests. If all goes well, you may remove the cock Canary when the hens appear to be going to nest for a third round, and introduce the cock Goldfinch, and try for some mules. But breed from the cock Canary the first two rounds, as the Goldfinch may not be ready nntil these nests are safely reared.

Constituents of Cereals.

"Inquisitive."—I have no figures handy at tho moment, but will look the matter up and reply next week.

About a Woodlark.

S.P.—Many Woodlarks are singing freely at the present moment, hut if yours is not a steady bird (well domesticated, so to speak) he may not sing until tbe spring is well advanced. You must try and get him steady and used to the presence of human beings. Some Woodlarks are really very shy, and will not sing in the presence of strangers; others are as bold as Skylarks. I have had both sorts. In fact, I do not think I could name any species in which individual birds differ more in disposition. A good, free singer is a gem to be prized. Even the call-note is beautifully melodious. The best stock-cage is one of the type known as the "Lark runner," which should not be less than 24 ins. long, 10 ins. wide, and 10 ins. high, and should have a canvas top, and one perch in the middle, low down. There should be a door at each end; food and water vessels outside. Arrange so that one half of floor can be very thickly covered with a mixture of road dust and fine sand, and the other half by a clover turf, renewed as required. Run in frequently a wide shallow tin or dish filled with chickweed or other greenstuff, made very wet, and among this the bird will paddle, and so keep its feet in order. When cleaning this cage (or any other) the best plan is to have another cage of suitable kind handy, and run the bird temporarily into it. Feed on a good insectivorous mixture on the lines recommended to "W. T. P." last week.

Bullfinch with White Head.

Greenhorn.—It is not often that the Bullfinch sports white amongst its plumage (that is, exhibits albinistic tendencies), but eases are not by any means unknown. If you turn to the report of the Crystal Palace Show last week, you will see that a partly white Bullfinch took second prize in the Albino, etc., class. A year back an entirely white Bullie won first prize; a very beautiful specimen, this. Your Bullfinch, being white on the cap only, will not be of any particular value, hut as it moulted thus in the house, you should certainly keep it another year, and see if it comes lighter still at the next moult—a possible happening. You ought easily to tell its sex, for the cock Bullie has a red "waistcoat," whereas the hen is blackish-grey all over the hreast. On one of our picture postcards a coloured representation of the Bullfinch appears. Why not invest in this set? The Bullfinch has no song, only a few piping notes, which he strings together with some more or less creaky, crazy sounds, and produces with great gusto when feeling pleased with himself.

An Outdoor Aviary.

W. H. Shoobert.—Am afraid I do not quite grasp which part of the aviary (or rather how much of it) is to be covered entirely in. In my opinion a place the size of yours (6ft. by 6ft. by 4ft.) should be entirely roofed over, and have both ends boarded up. You say there is "a quite covered in part," but your sketch does not show any part of the front as being made of anything other than wire. Don't use whitewash, hut the sanitary distemper sold at most paint-shops (see also our advertisement columns). You cannot expect a live shrub to flourish in a covered-in portion; a heavily branched dead shrub would be better. It would need to be replaced as it became soiled and unsightly. If you put in canary hens you are practically certain to breed something or other. You could keep six or seven couples in it comfortably. Roller hens are excellent if the small size and poor colour of the progeny be not objected to. The cock and hen Bullie are doubtful breeders, and the Chaffinches very doubtful. If I were you I should leave out both the latter, and also the cock Bullie. I could not advise you what to add until I know the sexes of the other species you have. You certainly stand a chance of breeding something, but in a mixed collection, as I am frequently saying, it is very much of a lottery. Both old and young birds will winter alright in your place. But it is often necessary to catch up the young birds one breeds for a period, as they interfere with their parents' attempts to get on with the next brood, and sometimes get mauled about for their trouble. You will have to keep your eyes open for things of this kind. Bird-breeding is not all plain sailing. Try the cock Siskin with the hen Redpoll.

Greenfinch-Chaffinch Hybrids.

W.I.—You say you have a cock Greenfinch which mated with a hen Chaffinch, the result being one fertile egg. Well, all I can say is that you achieved what probably has never been achieved before, and which most fanciers would tell you was "impossible." If you bad hatched that one fertile egg, and reared the young, you would have at one bound attained lasting fame among bird-keepers. By-the-way, you don't say anything as to the fate of that egg; was it successfully hatched, or smashed, or what? Pity the Greenfinch has turned "asthmatical." It will certainly affect his breeding this coming season if it gets bad, and may prevent him coming into condition at all. I advise you to turn to our advertisement columns, and try one of the remedies for asthma which figure therein. Keep the bird in an equable temperature, out of all draughts. He is worth going to a little trouble with, assuming your story to be correct.

Skylark Not Singing.

V.H.G.—You cannot expect your lark to keep in health and song on a staple diet of crushed hemp and bread. No doubt he had not sufficient stamina to pull him well over the moult. I have no doubt, however, that he would soon be a different bird if you fed him liberally on the following lines, and for a fortnight stirred a teaspoonful of Parrish's chemical food (from the chemist) into his drinking water daily, using a pot or glass vessel only. A good stock food, the ingredients of which you can get from any up-to-date seller of bird foods or through our advertising columns (through which, too, many excellent ready-put-up foods may be had) is made of; Game meal (without grit) or crushed puppy biscuits, three pounds, finely ground silkworm pupae, half-a-pound, meat meal, good ants' eggs and dried flies, a quarter pound each, by weight. It will keep a long time. A few mealworms and other insects should be frequently given; also a little seed, in a separate dish. This food can be moistened with a little water (it should be made crumbly moist, not into a sticky mass). But a little finely-minced greenfood is by far the best. Why, clover grass (either a turf of it or some chopped fine and mixed in the food) is one of the best possible things to give a Skylark to make it sing, and keep it healthy, also to assist it during the moult. Chopped green-food of different sorts (chickweed, lettuce, etc.) grated raw carrot and mashed cold boiled potato, are indispensable, in my opinion and experience, to the health of the majority of softbill birds, both large and small. The party you name, I am sure, will treat you well in the matter you speak of. Mention my name when writing, if you like.

Brevities.

Among Canary Seed (A. G. Marshall).—The "black stuff" you send, and which was found among the Canary seed, is known as cockle-seed. It is the seed of a weed which grows among the Canary, and cannot be entirely cleaned out. It is not injurious, neither does it necessarily proclaim an inferior quality of Canary seed. At the same time, it ought not to be present in any pronounced quantity.

Early Breeding (E. Williams).—It certainly is not "wise" of you to commence breeding so early. But as your hens are so forward (witness the eggs) it will probably be the less of two evils to let them go ahead. The Finches you mention are hardly likely to fertilise eggs just yet, hence you should make use of the cock Canaries you have.

Mating Matters (Amateur).—1. It certainly is possible to breed with a fresh-caught (i.e., non-housemoulted) Greenfinch, and your very steady bird is just the sort of chap to do it. 2. Yes; I have myself bred Redpolls in a cage, so there is no reason why you should not succeed. Your birds which have been two years in the aviary should be a likely couple; give them a big cage, of course, nice and deep from front to back.

Muling Hens (A. W. Anderton).—It is not at all essential that muling hens should be sib-bred. You can breed Mules from any hen Canary. The term "sib-bred" means that the hens to which it is applied have been bred from closely-related stock (i.e., in-bred) and this is done with the idea of rendering them likely to throw light Mules. Your last season Norwich Plainhead hens ought to be very suitable for ordinary muling purposes.

Sexing and Feeding a Hawfinch (Feeder).—The treatment of Hawfinches was dealt with in reply to "Pupil" last week. The telling of the sexes is very easy in the adult birds. The hen is very dull-coloured by comparison with the cock, being The cock Hawfinch is clothed in bright browns and with the black of the bib quite greyish in tone. The cock Hawfinch is clothed in bright browns and reddish chestnut and has a dense black bib, and glossy black feathers in the wings. Probably you know the male and female Chaffinch; well, the sexual differences in the Hawfinch may be broadly said to be similar. Of course, the scheme of colouring in the males is not precisely the same.

Linnets Featherless about Head (J. H. E.)—From the description you give I should say your two birds are troubled with red-mite, or bird parasites of some kind. Are they restless at night, and continually picking and scratching about among their plumage? If so, you can depend on it my view is correct, and I advise you to get a copy of Cage Birds Annual, and in the chapter on bird diseases, you will find full details as to the proper treatment. As a new beginner in the Fancy, you will find the Annual invaluable—a mine of information.

Starlings Talking (H. A. S.).—Personally, I should not call our common Starling a "very good talker." I can say, however, that he is a very good not only heard of a good talker, but I have mimic and sometimes a good talker. I have listened to one, and he, curiously enough, was mainly "taught" by a talking Jay he had for a companion. It was a hand-reared specimen; and hand-reared birds should always be selected if one would have a proficient talker and mimic with a minimum expenditure oftrouble and time.

Jay's Eyes Bad (Doctor).—Get a chemist to mix you a lotion of one grain of sulphate of zinc in one ounce of rose water. Morning and evening lightly bathe (or dab) the eyes with this, using a tiny piece of surgical lint for preference to do it with (the chemist will supply this). If no improvement in a week or so's time, ask your family medical man what he thinks of the case. It is difficult to advise without seeing the bird, and often it is quite impossible to do good in cases of eye trouble. The "film" may be cataract; or it may be removable.

Mule Breeding (Devon).—Pleased to know my advice proved so successful. I can quite believe you have got a good hen from the fancier you name.

Question of Identity (A Puzzle).—You certainly are right in calling this a puzzle. The only Hybrid at all answering to the description of your bird is the Goldfinch-Bullfinch (male). But I have never heard of them being caught wild (except an obviously escaped one). And to have caught three at once is rather a tall order. Are you sure you have not some Foreign bird?—though goodness only knows what. Pity you can't send it for me to see. Should be pleased to see it.

A Woodlark (Novice).—Hang the cage just a shade above breast-high. See another reply this week concerning management. I should certainly say you have a cock, and that it will eventually come into full song. Many captive insectivorous birds "record" (or "try over") their song for quite a long period at the approach of spring before they begin to sing out loudly and strongly. I have several insectivorous birds now of different species that persistently sing pianissimo, so to speak, yet never a note do they utter above a whisper. But they will do shortly.

Thistle Seed (Novice).—The seed you send is that of a kind of thistle, but one of the large, ornamental plants, and not of the field thistle, the seed of which is the only kind that should be used in the feeding of birds. It ought never to have been sold you as "bird seed," and if you take my advice, you will throw it into the dust-bin.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S.

Chinese Nightingales and Siskins.

Wynn Williams.—The Chinese Robin and Pekin Nightingale are names which refer to the same bird, which has also several other aliases. These birds are very fond of a bath, and as a rule will keep themselves in perfect trim, however disreputable they may look when they emerge from the bath, soaked to the skin. Diet: Ripe fruit, soft food, or the following will meet the case—crumbled sponge, crushed plain biscuit, ants' eggs, dried flies and silkworm pupæ meal, in equal parts, make crumbly moist for use; also give a teaspoonful of millet about twice a week. Each bird should have several mealworms or other insects daily. Tempt the Siskin to take as much green food as possible, also ripe apple, and put half a teaspoonful of Parrish's chemical food into the ordinary cage drinker daily for a few weeks; also crush some cuttlefish to about the size of millet seed, and mix some with its seed mixture, and also with its sand. An aperient might help the case when this sign of surfeit appears, one dose of Epsom salts would certainly do no harm, make its drinking water just saline with it.

Plumage of a Grey Parrot.

A.S.—As regards the plumage of the birds, this varies considerably with individual specimens, some being silver-grey and others quite a dark grey, the bronzy reflections would be mainly due to light refraction; but you must have an exceptionally dark bird for this to be very apparent. Have you got a true grey. As regards the colour of its tongue, I must confess to not having made a study of this point and can only speak from memory; and as far as this serves, the tongues are quite dark; however, the tongue of your bird being white (or quite light) this need not of necessity point to any disease, unless the tongue is white by being furred. In such case give one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia in its drinking water every other day for a week, write again giving fuller details. Re talking, most greys speak more or less; as regards method of teaching; see reply to another querist in this issue.

Wire Netting to Enclose Lovebirds

Cockatiel.—I have at the present time Rosellas, Cockatiels, Budgics, and Lovebirds in an outdoor aviary, enclosed in with ½-in. wire netting of 22 G. They have been there some considerable period, and are still safely confined. You need have no fear to put your birds behind similar wire. What you must keep under observation is the woodwork; promptly cover any part they attack with the wire netting.

Budgerigers Moulting.

J.G.—I am inclined to think you have got hold of birds afflicted with what is popularly called "French moult." If so you can do them no good. Your diet is correct, but they should have green-food, such as grass in flower, lettuce, etc., also cuttlefish. You do not say how you are keeping them. A light, sunny position is best; while they must be kept out of draught, they must not be kept in a warm room. Try well colouring their drinking water with Parrish's chemical food for a few weeks, and give them a few oats twice a week. If they will eat bread crusts (though they are better without these as a regular item of diet), soak a piece in clear water, squeeze almost dry and well dust with flour of sulphur.

Grey Parrot Moulting.

T. Watson.—(1). Parrots usually moult in the autumn, and frequently this is a somewhat protracted operation. Diet the bird as advised regularly in this column, keep up a continuous supply of cuttlefish and put it on a course of Parrish's chemical food. Supply this in the proportion of one teaspoonful to a table spoonful of the drinking water—if there should be any appearance of constipation making the drinking water saline with Epsom salts will give relief. If it is pulling out its feathers, it is worth nothing at all, for it is almost impossible to cure them of this habit. As to whether the bird is pulling its feathers or in a genuine moult, you will have to ascertain by observation. (2). In the first place, the only danger of the bath is the bird getting a chill. It will be the better for being lightly sprayed with chilled water, but you must keep it out of draught till dry. The best way to teach it to talk is to keep it where it will hear plenty of general conversation, and also by constant repetition. Teach it such small sentences and words as you wish it to say. There is no settled age when they begin to speak, respective birds are very irregular in this respect. Very often after trying your patience very severely, they will surprise you with uttering several words.

Birds for a C.P. Aviary.

A.E.S.—St. Helena Waxbills, if not brilliant, are certainly beautiful birds, and a striking contrast to Canaries, and are neither costly nor delicate. Your query is not an easy one to answer, as the cheap, brightly plumaged birds are mostly delicate when first imported. Zebra Waxbills are also very beautiful and minute, and are, as a rule, long-lived in captivity. The green Singing Finch is also a smart, yellow and olive-green bird, and a sweet singer, and an odd male should agree with the other birds. You really ought to have a pair of Zebra Finches with them, they are pretty, and with their self-assertive, perky demeanour are also interesting. The cheap, brightly-plumaged birds are, as already stated, delicate when first imported. The Cordon Bleu, Fire Finch and Lavender Finch are all beautiful, and would suit you but for their delicacy; if you watched advertisements for an acclimatised pair of Cordon Bleus, these would meet your requirements. Canary, millet and spray millet, green food, with a little crumbled sponge cake, and a few ants' eggs will fully meet the requirements of all named above. They must all be kept out of draught. If this is not what you require, please repeat query.

Mynahs; Their Talking Capacity.

H.A.S.—There are several species of these interesting birds. Some of the best known in this country are as follows:—The Crested, the Malabar, the Southern Hill, the Northern or Greater Hill Mynah, etc. The last-named is the best talker, so far as my experience goes. It has a very human voice, and articulates very distinctly, but individuals are very variable in this respect, and the only way to get a talented specimen is by unlimited patience. In addition to this, even if you failed to induce an individual to talk, they are excellent mimics, and whistle with gusto, and the notes are mostly full and rich. It is of a glossy purplish-black colour, with orange beak and rich yellow eye and ear wattles. The Malabar Mynah has been bred in this country, both in a private aviary and at the London Zoo. Given a true pair and suitable accommodation, there is no reason why a like success should not accompany the attempt to breed the other species.

Green Avadavat Bald.

Anxious.—Waxbills and Ornamental Finches seem to act as if they had a special mission to keep one another bald once they get in poor condition. You must cage your bird up separately, till it has recovered its plumage. For one day only make its drinking water taste just saline, with Epsom salts. Follow this by lightly colouring the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food daily, until it has recovered its plumage. In addition to its seed diet give it a small piece of slightly damped sponge cake, dusting same with flour of sulphur.

Food for Rearing Zebra Finches.

V.C.—In addition to the seed diet, supply green-food liberally, also a mixture of crumbled sponge cake, dried flies, and ants' eggs in equal parts. Slightly damp for use. Or purchase one of the insectivorous mixtures advertised in our columns. I am of the opinion that the inclement weather was responsible for the non-rearing of the young, as many of these charming little birds rear their young on seed alone. It is better, however, to supply a soft food mixture.

We regret to have to say that owing to indisposition Mr. Page has had to hold over a number of replies until our next issue, but hopes to answer all then.—EDITOR.

PARK & LAKE AVICULTURE

Answered by Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S., M.B.O.U., etc.

Feeding of Marmozet.

Mamazete Monkey.—The low state of health your Marmozet has got into is no doubt owing to a lack of animal food. People who keep these pretty little animals too often do not realise that they only partly feed on fruit, the rest of their diet being insects and the eggs and young of birds. You should give your specimen some animal food daily, such as mealworms, egg and milk, scraped raw beef, and, as soon as you can get them, the eggs and young of sparrows. As it seems so much run down, I should try it with some Brand's Chicken Essence for the first start

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. J. North, 435, Oxford Road, Reading, will examine cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for a reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post-mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to J. North, with fee. Any sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Jonque Green Canary (S. T. J.).—Inflammation of liver and spleen, ulceration of lungs, apoplexy. All the signs of bird fever.

Goldfinch (J. Pilot).—Softening of liver, and consequent bilious feverishness, ending with rupture of bloodvessel of liver. Bird seems to have been eating a great deal too much. Some salad or sweet apple might have kept him in better health.

GENERAL.

Answered by The Editor.

Report (J. P. Dawson).—Thanks very much for your kindness.

Many Replies (R. Dallman).—Very pleased to know you did so well through your advertisement. Still, you might have put a penny stamp on your envelope. The post-office people have plenty of cash, without collecting penny fines from unoffending and inoffensive Editors.

Quantity of Water, etc. (J. Brown). Two tablespoonfuls of water is the correct quantity. Most sellers of fanciers' specialities will supply sea-sand, we believe; anyway, a small advertisement in our columns will doubtless soon put you in touch with someone who would place it on rail to you.

Our Visitors' Notebook (G. Tetin).—Your name was one of several we were unable to decipher, and so were unfortunately compelled to omit from our published list. Probably our pen nibs were not to the liking of some of our friends, and we must provide a wider selection next year.

Club Notice (W. Stafford).—We cannot find any trace of the notice you refer to. Its omission is unfortunate, but are you quite sure you put our address on it? The Xmas notice, as you surmise, reached us too late to be dealt with, owing to the holiday arrangements.

CORRESPONDENCE.

IS WIDNES C.B.S. ALIVE?

SIR,—Could anyone say if the Widnes Bird Society is still alive? I have not seen a report of any of their shows for a long time.

ONE WHO WOULD LIKE TO KNOW.

IS IT CRUEL TO USE MEALWORMS?

SIR,—I can assure both Miss Rutt and W. Strickland that it is not cruel to nail or pin mealworms on the perch, as the worms have neither sex nor feeling. Having hundreds of insectivorous birds during the season, I find it, of course, much more economical to put the worms in a glass vessel. The worms after being impaled on a pin die after a few hours, but it is sometimes necessary for a shy feeder to pin the worms in the front of the cage for them to see.

Chalk Farm Road, N.W. F. C. BARNES.

NEWCASTLE C.B.S. AND THE CAGE BIRD UNION.

SIR,—I notice in this week's issue the business to be considered at the C.B.U. annual meeting is published. Amongst the suggestions sent up from societies, the Newcastle Society is credited with having passed a resolution that Rule 17 be extended to debar non-members of the Union from exhibiting at Union shows, etc. This is very misleading; in fact as far as the Newcastle Society is concerned it is utterly false. The matter was brought forward by the Newcastle delegate, who moved a resolution that such a suggestion be sent to the annual meeting of the C.B.U.; but after discussion, this was defeated most decisively. So by what means the Newcastle Society has been placed in this false position of suggesting what they do not wish or desire, is more than I can understand.

JOHN CURRAH.

RARE-FEATHERED BIRDS AT THE SHOWS.

SIR.—In the letter of mine Mr. H. R. Lover refers to, "A. O. S." means "Any Other Species of British Bird," which, I take it, is the correct wording. The words, "Any Other Variety" are right enough when applied to Hybrids, which are really "varieties," and not distinct species (as I am sure Mr. Lover does not require me to tell him). In the same way, a white Blackbird is a variety of the Blackbird. But the Blackbird itself is not a variety of anything; it is a distinct species. Hence the different birds eligible to compete in the last class (usually) of the British Bird section, are correctly scheduled "Any (or, better still, All) Other Species of British Birds." Possibly the N. B. B. and M. C. will take the hint contained in Mr. Lover's letter, as regards "controlling" their judges. I believe it is not unknown for birds not in the club list to be awarded prizes at club shows (the Meadow Bunting, for instance), thus depriving the rightful birds below them of points helpful to their owners in the medal, etc., competitions.

G. E. WESTON.

"THE DISQUALIFIED CREST AT ST. ALBANS SHOW."

SIR,—I regret that it should have become necessary for me to most emphatically contradict a report which has gained currency that the Crested Canary, disqualified at the above show (and afterwards claiming the exceptional distinction of not only winning first prize in his class, but also the special for best bird in the show) was purchased from me. The bird was purchased by Mrs. Pearse from Mr. C. L. Quinton of Great Yarmouth, and has been in the possession of Mrs. Pearse since October last. Until I met Mr. Quinton at Norwich show, on November 2nd, I had not the slightest idea that Mrs. Pearse had such a bird in her possession, or that Mr. Quinton had sold any to her, and I respectfully invite Mr. Quinton to state, through the medium of your valuable columns, if the above representations are correct. It is really a pity that one cannot act on behalf of another without the attribution of sinister motives. Suffice it to say that I should certainly not have accepted the responsibility of detaining the bird if I had, in the first place, disposed of it. No secret has ever been made from whom the bird was purchased and, further, it was quite immaterial to Mrs. Pearse who kept the bird to prove her innocence. [The show officials had the option of sending it to any one show, the name of the seller given to them). In conclusion, during the time the bird has been in my possession, it has been inspected by many long-standing breeders and exhibitors of the variety, and was at a recent pair show, but in no single instance has anyone detected new feathers growing in place of those alleged plucked, and all are of the opinion that the bird was naturally and honestly exhibited.

BEGINNERS: READ "CAGE BIRDS" ANNUAL.

AN APPEAL FOR A FANCIER IN DISTRESS.

SIR,—Kindly allow me a small space in CAGE BIRDS to acknowledge receipt of £4 9s. from Mr. Easterling, on behalf of Mr. Ben Spiers in his sad afflictions. This sum was collected by him at the Crystal Palace Show. This makes a total to date of £11 8s. 10d. for which I tender my heartfelt thanks.—GEORGE HENRY NEAL, 163, Junction-road,

ANOTHER BLOW TO SCOTTISH BIRD SHOWS.

SIR,—Following upon the charging for carrying boxes, the Scotch railway companies have decided to close down their parcel offices at 8 p.m. This means that birds arriving after that hour will not be delivered till next morning. Rules and schedules will have to be revised, and fanciers will have to study the ways and means of transit, where transfers are involved. Verily, we do not know where we are! I admit it was too late to deliver birds at a show about midnight, but 8 p.m. on a show event is rather early.

OBSERVER.

CLOSING TIME AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE SHOW.

SIR, — On arriving at the Palace at six o'clock last evening, February 11th, and trying to enter to see the birds, I was surprised to find that no admittance was allowed, only to those who had birds to take away. I think this very unjust, as a time should be stated so as not to cause a wasted journey.

F.B.F.H.

[Our correspondent seems to have overlooked the fact that the times of opening and closing of the show on each day were stated in the schedule and catalogues. This information, too, appeared in our issue of February 1st, on page 92. The time of closing on the Tuesday (February 11th) was given as 4 p.m. —Editor.].

A KNOTTY POINT ABOUT HYBRIDS

SIR,—I have read with interest Mr. Thomas Smith's able article concerning Hybrid breeding in your issue of 15th instant, and have to compliment Mr. Smith on his ability as a writer on the above subject. Mr. Smith, having in the past bred some of our finest Hybrids, his article must carry weight with it. The difficulty of securing Siberian hen Bullfinches is very great, and after trying to get them from various sources, I have come to the conclusion that at present they are unobtainable, and have dismissed them as being an impossible factor in Hybrid breeding. I had the pleasure of seeing the Goldfinch-Bullfinch Hybrid mentioned by Mr. Smith, which was bred in Edinburgh in 1905. It is a monster and Hybrids between British Finches would have no possible chance in competition against it. Without wishing to detract from either its beauty or value as a Hybrid between two foreign Finches, I think it has been shown under slightly misunderstood conditions. I am, of course, only a single individual, still, if Finches of foreign extraction are disqualified from competing in classes for British Finches of the same species, I think a Hybrid between foreign Finches is out of place in a class which I think was originally intended for Hybrids between British Finches. I quite allow that it is not so specified in the schedules of our important shows, but if Bullfinches and Goldfinches of Siberian origin are foreign birds, then a Hybrid between these two is also a foreigner. This will no doubt open up a wide discussion, some of our best Hybrids having a foreign Finch as one of the parents. I shall be pleased to have Mr. Smith's opinion on the matter.

VIOLA.

THE RARE REDPOLL-BULLFINCH HYBRID.

SIR,—I am sorry that the contents of my last letter seemed ridiculous to Mr. Ward. Of course, when I mentioned the Redpoll-Bullie as getting quite common, it was more or less a "figurative expression," and I quite expected your readers would take it in that light. But evidently Mr. Ward hasn't read it quite as broad-mindedly; or is he blinded by his success at Dudley? By the way, was there something wrong in the Hybrid classes at Dudley? I read two reports of the show, and each read "Light Hybrid, including Canary-Bullie."—1st, Canary Bullie; 2nd, Greenie-Bullie. The other class read: "Dark" (I presume any other variety). The Greenie-Bullie isn't a "Light Hybrid," nor yet a Canary-Bullie. If the reports were a correct copy of the schedule, the Greenie-Bullie should have been in Mr. Ward's class, and perhaps, (who knows?), might have altered things a little. Perhaps Mr. Ward, or you, sir, will give us the correct wording from the Dudley schedule, if possible? But to revert to our original topic. There were six Redpoll-Bullies bred last season. I wonder if there were six of any other variety of Bullie Hybrids bred last year, or in any other one season. If not, I feel justified in saying that soon they will become common; at least, as common as the other varieties of Bullie Hybrids. Mr. Ward says his Redpoll Bullie was 1st at Brighouse, while at Great Horton he hadn't a card; and wants to know the reason. I should say the competition was much keener at Great Horton, or perhaps, "the judge wasn't capable." At a recent show in Wales, the Redpoll-Bullie got nothing, while his Linnet-Bullie was well up. Another "incapable" judge, perhaps. He goes on to say that his bird was in bad form during judging at St. Helen's. How does he know? Is he in the habit of writing to the judges to ask the why's and wherefore's? If so, I think it is bordering almost on intimidation. Mr. Ward accuses me of blowing my own trumpet. Now, I think that is a direct smack below the belt. I don't remember having said in either of my previous letters that I had won anything with Hybrids, or even owned any. For that matter, how does Mr. Ward know that I keep birds at all? I haven't mentioned it in my letters before; so how he can accuse me of blowing my own trumpet is beyond my comprehension. I even wouldn't have mentioned it in this letter, but for Mr. Ward's uncharitableness. I certainly haven't staged a Redpoll-Bullie yet, so can't blow my trumpet about that; in fact, I haven't tried to breed one. But I have reared 23 Hybrids bred from British birds this last three seasons, amongst which is one that has beaten the Redpoll-Bullie the only time he has met him. I don't mean to say mine is a better bird, not for the world; perhaps the judge wasn't "capable." Mr. Ward says the judges at Gateshead (where his Hybrid was 2nd), and at Dudley, are considered experts in the Hybrid world. Why not the judge at Brighouse also, Mr. Ward? Don't let us trouble Mr. Weston with this little matter; he has enough to think about—besides, the wild seeds will soon be growing, and then! With regard to Mr. Robson, he certainly shows a partiality to anything rare, as witness past events. With regard to the question in Mr. Ward's previous letter re Canary-Bullie, my opinion is, that if a Canary-Bullie in its first year beat a champion Hybrid that had matured, it was put up on account of its rarity, which, in my humble opinion, ought not to be. Mr. Ward asserts that his bird has developed. The expert report at Palace says, "Another grand specimen, albeit wanting time to perfect." In the face of that, I don't think my contention in previous letter re development is "overruled." Another report says, "Its rarity ought to have placed it higher in the list." Its "rarity," mind you, not its "merit"; another of my contentions not "over-ruled," Mr. Ward. To conclude, Mr. Ward has written a capital letter for our edification, but I must say the very last sentence stands out pre-eminent. He hopes "that Mr. Johnson will produce something good." So do I.

T. JOHNSON.

[The Dudley schedule reads: "Class 17, Light Canary Mule or Hybrid, including Canary-Bullfinch," "Class 18, Dark Canary Mule or Hybrid."—Editor.].

SIR,—I was considerably surprised to read Mr. C. J. Ward's letter last week, in which he mentions Mr. Weston as one of the judges who has done his Redpoll-Bullfinch Hybrid "justice." Now, his first letter on this subject appeared the week after the Gateshead show (where Mr. Weston judged the birds). In it he very nastily asserted that judges were incompetent and judged the "merits of the exhibitor," and not the birds, and so put the "commoner crosses" in front of the rarities. Now it seemed to me and other fanciers I have spoken to here, that it was the result at Gateshead which had upset Mr. Ward and caused him to write so unfancierlike a letter. Perhaps he had counted on the Gateshead bowl as being won by his bird; hence the tears! Fancy any sane man saying the exhibitor was "considered" in the case of such a champion exhibit as Mr. John William's Goldfinch-Bullfinch winning—one of the "common crosses." I wonder what friend John thinks about it?. However, perhaps Mr Ward will tell us what show or shows he referred to, if not Gateshead? How did he "bear up" when a specialist judge at a recent Welsh show left the Redpoll-Bullie unnoticed?

AYR AND DIS. CAGE BIRD CLUB.

SIR,—A well-attended meeting was held in the Good Templar Hall, New Bridge Street, on 10th February, to form the above club. Thirty-five fanciers attended, and only two left the hall without becoming members. Mr. C. W. Paterson was elected President, Mr. R. McKay, vice-president, Mr. C. Irvine, 144, Prestwick-road, Ayr, Secretary, and 12 well-known fanciers for committee. We hope to see all members present at the next meeting, also all fanciers who have not joined. For date of next meeting, see club notice column of CAGE BIRDS. Anyone wishing to join before meeting, please communicate with me.—C. IRVINE, Sec.

ORDER YOUR "ANNUAL" for 1908 AT ONCE.

IS IT A DEFUNCT SOCIETY?

SIR,—You will, no doubt, probably think that this is a somewhat peculiar heading, but, as an old reader (one of the first), I am anxious to know if it is anyway related to the "Leeds Cage Bird Society." My reason for asking this is that we never see any reports in the Press regarding members' meetings or committee meetings, which leads one to think the Society cannot exist. Surely this is not the case? I hope to hear to the contrary.

PRESUPPOSITION.

NEW SOCIETY FOR FORFAR AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—Kindly announce through your valuable paper that the fanciers of Forfar have just formed a society, to be called the Forfar and District Cage Bird Improvement Society. We have fixed a membership radius of six miles, so as to admit the fanciers of Kirriemuir. We have over 20 members enrolled, and hope to get a good few more. The subscriptions are as follows: — Entrance fee 1s. 6d., with a monthly sub of 3d. All fanciers within the radius are earnestly invited to become members. The officials of the Society are: President, Mr. W. Brown; vice-president, Mr. J. Cable, treasurer, Mr. F. Strachan; secretary, Mr. W. Grewar, 3, Bell Place, Forfar; committee, P. Taylor, R. Dundas, J. Stirling, D. P. Robertson, A. Robertson, and D. Robertson; auditors, D. Lawson and J. Stevenson. Meetings are held first Saturday of each month.

W. GREWAR, Secretary.

ROSY BREASTED COCKATOO DESTROYING PERCHES.

SIR,—Would you allow me space in your valuable paper, in reply to Mr. Haines? By all means do not try to break if off. Let it have a new perch every few days if they are needed; they can be made out of an ordinary broom handle which will cost only 2d. and will make three or four. I don't think that a serious outlay for pretty polly. If he is successful in breaking if off, he will surely be more successful in making it into a feather plucker. I find it a greater pleasure in making new perches than doctoring a bird that has acquired the habit of plucking itself. I have a young Grey Parrot, now, which would not chew up the wood I gave it. I caught it trying to nip its perch, which was a hard one, so I exchanged it for a piece of broom handle, and now she is fully employed pulling it to bits. I wish your paper, CAGE BIRDS, every success; I could not do without it.

SOME OPINIONS ON JUDGES.

SIR, — Your correspondent, "Commune Bonum," goes it strong against the "exhibitor-dealer-judges." But don't judges of all sorts — whether dealers and exhibitors or those which "hold aloof with dignity"—soon find their level? If they don't judge fairly, or don't give satisfaction, through inexperience or inability, they soon cease to attract entries, and show officials soon find them out, too, by the comments of their own members and the visiting fanciers on the birds seen on the benches. If a man has got to give up exhibiting before he can properly judge a few shows, I reckon it is a poor tale, and a poorer tale still if he cannot sell a few birds (which probably he has bred), and still judge properly. What about our good Norwich and Yorkshire judges, who are also both breeders and sellers (to say nothing of other varieties of Canaries)? Are they all so very weak-minded as "Commune Bonum" would make it appear? I think it bosh. Surely this writer must be one of the "Stand aloof with dignity" kind of judges (or would-be judges) who can see nothing good in anyone else, perhaps because he does not get appreciated as he thinks he ought to be. It is right enough that some successful exhibitors cannot judge a class of birds for "monkey nuts," as we say round our way. But they soon get found out, and certainly don't get on as judges. There is another class, however, who want showing up (or talking to, anyway), and these are the men who, when once they have given a bird a first prize (which it may have deserved), give it many more first prizes right through the season, which it may not have deserved. The bird becomes a champion right off, and under this class of judge (who, I suppose, thinks this being "consistent"), nothing can afterwards beat it. This class of judge is followed by the "lucky" exhibitor to every show he is down for, and gets the firsts every time. No new faces, however good, can get this man's birds out of the judge's eye, and so get a fair chance. This I call just as bad, if not worse, than judge's selling birds and then giving them the preference in a tight finish. Birds ought to be judged on the day, and not on what they have done in the past, and it is a shame birds backward in the early part of the season should not get a fair chance later on, because a judge keeps on putting his old winners up. It tells on the entries, too, for exhibitors soon notice these one man (or perhaps a few men) judges and shows.

F. JACKSON.

THE FIRST PRIZE ALBINO AT THE PALACE SHOW.

SIR,—The above bird well deserved its position in the class, but what is it? The fanciers that saw the bird would be more interested if Mr. R. Kell, the exhibitor, would give a few particulars as to how he obtained it. Was it reared from the nest, or was it captured in a wild state? And, if so, what bird does its call note resemble? It had no call-note at the Palace. The beak is not same as a Bunting's. I think it is an Albino Chaffinch. J. H. VERRALL.

A FEW WORDS TO ADVERTISERS.

SIR,—In some recent issues of CAGE BIRDS, some of your readers have complained of the treatment dealt out to them by dealers in regard to sending out the birds, etc. Will you kindly allow me to ask those readers to do us, "the dealers," the favour of their forethought. When enquiring through CAGE BIRDS for their wants, to ensure prompt replies, a stamped envelope is always the best and quickest way to satisfaction on both sides, as it not only saves the dealer a lot of time, but also cuts expenses considerably. My case, no doubt, is only a small consideration to some of your very big advertising clients, but in answer to my small advertisement in last week's CAGE BIRDS I received 138 replies up till Tuesday, and only one gentleman had the forethought to enclose a stamped addressed envelope. H. J. HAWES.

THE MANAGEMENT AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE SHOW.

SIR,—Kindly allow me space in which to say that I fully agree with your reporter's note re good management at above show. I arrived at the Palace on the Thursday evening, prepared to stay all night to watch the arrival and unpacking of exhibits. On putting the question to Mr. Ramsden as to the time he expected to have all birds staged, I was surprised when he answered. "By ten o'clock to-night," and sure enough every bird that had arrived was unpacked and in its place before the hour stated. Before leaving to catch my last train home, I had time to go right through the show, to see if every bird had food and water, and am pleased to state I found only one bird without water. Early on Friday I was again on the spot, to find all judges at work, all drinkers on Crest and Crestbreds' cages emptied until after judging, and prize cards being put on cages within ten minutes of receipt of judges' award slips. On the Tuesday evening I put in an appearance to watch the packing and dispatching of exhibits, and was glad to hear Mr. Ramsden and Mr. Lambert Brown giving orders for all long distance birds to be packed and dispatched first; and again, my eyes were opened to see how quickly and easily such a large number of birds were got rid of, for when I left at 10 p.m. there were not more than a dozen birds left in the show, and those I understood were to be called for. I went home satisfied at having learnt a thing or two, and at the same time feeling confident that "The Palace Show" is bound to be a success while in the hands of such workers as those it was my pleasure to come in contact with. I have no cause to regret my first experience at the Palace, as a Cage Bird Union delegate. A. W. CURTIS.

WHAT CONSTITUTES AN EXHIBITION CINNAMON?

SIR,—Being a visitor to the late Palace show, I was very pleased to see such an increase in the number of Cinnamons, and being a lover of the Cinnamon, I naturally spent some time amongst them, comparing the winners with one another, to see where the first prize bird beat the second, and where the second prize bird beat the third, and so on. I have got it into my head somehow or the other, either by reading CAGE BIRDS, or meeting with other birdy fanciers with their birdy chats, that the chief thing in a Cinnamon is a good, sound, bright, cinny colour, then quality and tightness of feather, type and size. Well on coming to the champion Buff class, I found that the first prize bird was a lovely large one, a clinker for size, a good Norwich type, and a bird I should be proud to own. But the second prize bird I found was a better coloured bird altogether, and I thought if anything of better quality of feather. When I saw the bird, it was certainly a lot tighter in feather than his pal above him. He was also a good-sized bird, typical, but beaten in size by first. Some one has led me to believe that in Cinnamons colour counts 50 points. So when I looked at the two birds, I thought perhaps I was off the mark in my way of thinking, seeing that the second bird was a lot the better coloured bird. It was equal, if not better in quality and tightness of feather, and of good Norwich type. So I cannot help thinking that it must be the size of the first chappie that put him on the laughing side of his pal. Now, sir, my way of judging Cinnamons must be wrong, according to those two birds, at all events. If so, I should like some one who understands a good Cinnamon, to kindly put me straight, for as a lover of Cinnamons I want to know what I am to aim at in breeding. Perhaps some one who saw the same birds would let me know through CAGE BIRDS what they thought, so as to help those of us who are willing to learn, and so bring this grand variety of Canary to the front. I was (with all due respect to the old hands) very pleased to see a fresh exhibitor's name to the front. I hope no one will think I am a disappointed exhibitor, as I didn't send an entry to the Glass House, or that I am trying to belittle the judging of friend Dobson. Hoping some fanciers will give us their ideas of a good Cinnamon in reply.

LOVER OF THE CINNAMON.

SCOTCH FANCY CANARIES AT CITY OF GLASGOW SHOW.

SIR,—I made no accusation against Mr. Young, but I took the liberty of giving my opinion as to the cause of the position of the Scotch Fancy Canary, and I do not move therefrom. A president did arise who did not appreciate the Scotch Fancy Canary. The reducing and keeping down the prize-money for the Scotch Fancy has been its ruin, and my proposed prize-money need not be extended beyond the Scotch Fancy classes, which is a modest demand where so much money is lying helplessly idle. The money should be put into active use. Mr. Young's reference to 1900 is clothed in mystery to me. But what do we find in 1908? A president vacating the chair and taking a joint secretaryship—which is a backward step. Mr. Young was not appointed secretary at the annual (which is past, and not to come in June, as he put it), and the committee have no power to appoint a paid official, and I am surprised Mr. Jardine should have taken a hand in such. The members will have something to say on that when they meet. The secretaries' salaries have been advanced. Why, it is difficult to understand. The committee do a lot of work—sending out schedules, etc.—which in former days was done by the secretary or secretaries. The surplus money should be expended on the Scotch Fancy Prize money, or paid to the hard-working committee, and I think that should be adjusted at the next annual business meeting in December. I shall be pleased to have Secretary Young's views on the points raised. If he did not declare himself before 1908, in accepting the position he has he certainly throws his entire influence into the Norwich, etc., sections. The situation is unique. A SCOTCH FANCIER.

ROLLER CANARIES AT THE PALACE SHOW.

SIR,—I see your reporter could not get the tours from the judge. Well, Sir, whoever he may be, I can assure him that he was much nearer the mark without them, as I see in his published report that the judge states my bird, Ex. 3rd prize in Class 90, bred 1907, No. 1402, B.R.C.C., Ring No. 513, sang hollow roll 6, hollow bell 4, bass roll 5, schockel 5, flute notes 4, with a bad aufzug, and a very sharp whistle, which kept the total down to 17 points." I declare this bird does not sing an aufzug, nor yet a sharp whistle, and the judge ought to have added points for purity and delivery, and thereby have made him the winner. Had the bird been one of (or bred from) C. Roehl's famous Gluck strain, he might have done so. On reading his report, I at once wrote to the B.R.C.C. secretary, to say I was prepared to send the bird up to any meeting, and I would give £20 for the benefit of the club if he sang an aufzug, or yet a sharp whistle in any form; but as yet I have not had a reply. Now, Mr. Rettich, I must remind you that I am a Lancashire bred and born sportsman, one of the sort that won't lie down to be defeated. So I take this opportunity of cancelling the above offer, and challenging Mr. Rettich to back up his judgment, and I say I am ready to wager any amount that this bird never sang an aufzug or a sharp whistle before he went to the Palace, and that he never does it again, and you can put him anywhere you like. Again, the reporter says my young bird left out of the cards, No. 1403, B.R.C.C., Ring No. 550, was quite equal to the winners. Quite true—and better. Many thanks to your reporter. And as I have a few pound I don't care much about, I will back up his opinion and wager these two young birds to sing any two B.R.C.C. rung birds in England (Randall preferred), under any three judges in England (bar Mr. A. Rettich and Mr. C. Roehl), the judges to have them at their own home not less than three days. At the same time, with No. 1403, Ring No. 550, I will sing for £2, any bird in England, young or old, imported or not (Roehl's recently imported excellent Gluck strain preferred). So hurry up, down with the stuff, and let us see what these now famous Gluck birds can do. It will be something new and very interesting. WALTER WHITTAKER.

Moses Gate, near Bolton.

LONG-SIDED NORWICH PLAINHEADS.

SIR,—It is with the greatest pleasure I read in CAGE BIRDS of the almost entire absence of those long-sided so-called Norwich plainheads at the Palace show. I am pleased to think the judges are opening their eyes to the fact that these big, long-sided birds are no longer to be termed Norwich, and let us hope this change in the right direction has come to stay. What is more annoying than to see such mongrels win in a class of Norwich, when there are good Norwich type birds in the class? As I have always said, type first. If we have not the Norwich type, what have we got? Also allow me to congratulate friend Bishop on his great achievement in winning three champion prizes. This speaks well again for good old Notts. We can do the trick when we try.

PROPOSED NEW SOCIETY FOR HIGHGATE, HAMPSTEAD, HOLLOWAY, KENTISH TOWN & DIST.

SIR,—It has been arranged by several cage bird fanciers in this neighbourhood to call a meeting together to form a society. The lower room in Spencer Hall, Spencer Road, Dartmouth Park Hill, N.W., has been secured for a meeting to take place at 8 p.m. prompt, on February 28th next. This hall is situated two minutes' walk from Junction Road Station, Midland Railway; three minutes' walk from Boston Hotel and Tufnell Park Station on the Highgate and Hampstead Tube Railway, and a few minutes' walk from the Highgate Archway Tavern and Gospel Oak Station, N.L. Railway. We earnestly invite all fanciers to attend and assist us in forming this new society and thus give it a good send-off. Election of officers will take place from fanciers present and names sent in. Any fancier willing to become a member, who is unable to attend, kindly send a post-card with name and address to BRITISH GOLDFINCHES AT THE PALACE SHOW.

SIR,—We are sorry to say that we have lost one of our winning Goldfinches. He seems to have gone wrong on the journey to the Palace, and arrived there "soft," and we notice the judge marked his ticket accordingly. To make matters worse, the Palace authorities, in error, sent him up to Mr. Arrighi, in Edinburgh, instead of returning him two days' rest. He arrived home in a his best for the bird (for which we wish to thank him), and returned him after giving him two days rest. He arrived home in a bad state, and only survived the following day, before joining the great majority. We were sorry to lose him, as he was a good bird, having won this season, 2nd Bristol, 2nd Porth, 3rd Merthyr, 4th Swansea, 4th Cardiff, etc., but our loss, of course, is somewhat minimized by the fact that he lived to the end of the show season. We notice a remark in your report of the palace show, that some of the entries in the British section had been passed by the judge because he considered they were foreigners. Might we ask if this was the reason why he passed our Goldfinch, 1647? We may say this is not the bird we refer to in the above paragraph, as having arrived at the show soft. If a judge passes an exhibit in a British section because he considers it a foreigner, should he not mark it "wrong class?" We fail to see in the catalogue that any Goldfinch was "wrong classed." LEWIS AND DYMOND.

MORPETH WAKES FROM SLUMBER.

SIR,—In your correspondence columns last week there appeared a letter which seemed to affect my eyesight very much, in reference to a new cage bird club having been formed at Morpeth. It would be interesting to know the reason the old club wound up at their annual meeting. If the management was not satisfactory, I think there was no need to abandon the club and start a new one. Why could they not have changed the office-bearers? It would have been more satisfactory. It was said at the annual meeting that some members were not going to continue their membership if there was not a new secretary. I should like to know where the term "Brother Fancier" comes in. It seems to me that the secretary has been forcing his duties too much on the so-called novice fancier," and I say it shows the lack of power of the members to have allowed the secretary to rule the whole of the business at their meetings. One would have thought that if the secretary was getting away from his duties, the meeting would have dealt with him, as he dealt with them, by enforcing the rules of the club. Also, looking up the back numbers of CAGE BIRDS, I find, according to the reports, which would be given by experts of the Fancy, that the hon. secretary has been a very energetic man, and also what I may term a real brother Fancier, but the whole affair leads me think that there has been some under-hand work going on by members, who perch too long on the same stick. They even rest so long that when they come from their roost they find the Society has become defunct. Then they hop about (getting heated through their horrible dreams), which leads to a new club being formed, simply through their own doings.

ONE FEATHER.

SIR,—I see by your issue of this week that the sleepers of the Morpeth and District Canary and Cage Bird Society have awakened from their slumber and have had their first meeting. Now, Sir, I, as secretary of the late society, cannot let Mr. Marshell's letter in this week's CAGE BIRDS pass without replying to same. In the first place, I would advise Mr. Marshell and his friends, when sending any more reports to CAGE BIRDS, to send true and accurate ones. He says that in the opinions of Messrs. Grey and Lackey the final meeting of the old society was not in order, inasmuch as notices had not been sent to members, and also that the residue of cash was bequeathed to the late secretary and treasurer. Those are not true reports. Mr. Lackey was at the final meeting of the late society, and he must have been very absent-minded when he supported Mr. Grey's remarks. He knows at that final meeting I said I had notified all members possible to be present. The one exception was Mr. Summers, whom I said I had neglected to notify. Why did not Mr. Lackey say the meeting was out of order then? No, Sir, the late society has been boycotted, as I said at the last meeting. Now, as regards the character and principles of the new secretary (Mr. Cowley), I have nothing to say, but I would like to ask Mr. Marshell if he imputes anything against my character, as I can assure him it will bear the strictest investigation, both as fancier and exhibitor.

A. DIPPIE,
Secretary of the late Society.

THE STANDARD LENGTH OF THE YORKSHIRE CANARY.

SIR,—The esteemed issue of last week's CAGE BIRDS is most interesting, more especially on account of the timely letters it contained re Yorkshire standard length. This subject is being vigorously discussed in a friendly manner by your numerous correspondents. From their observations much may be learnt. I certainly consider the time has quite arrived when this much-vexed question should be finally settled, for at least an indefinite period, so that future exhibitors and others may no longer be left in hopeless suspense respecting so trifling a matter as a quarter of an inch in a bird's tail. But as there appears to be a concensus of opinion in favour of a 6¾in. standard length, why not adopt the same forthwith as the recognised standard to be adhered to throughout the entire Yorkshire Fancy? Personally, I should prefer the standard to be 6¾in., and not exceeding 7in., provided such a specimen is equally perfect in all other points as that possessed by a 6¾in. bird. This stipulation ought to satisfy the most contentious exhibitor. I am, however, at a loss to understand how, or by what physical law, or other cause, the mere fact of a ¼in. longer should so "seriously" interfere with the essential qualities of a typical Yorkshire, as implied by some of your respected correspondents. I wish also to say, with regard to that objectionable custom of measuring show specimens, that however carefully the process may be carried out, the bird, on being returned to the show cage, cannot readily regain his former appearance and position, which, for a public show, is a "grievous disadvantage. Besides this, there arises dissatisfaction respecting such measurement being strictly correct. In order to avoid this unnecessary disarranging of show birds, allow me to suggest that for big shows an amateur photographer should be engaged to take a snapshot of the various specimens. Their modus operandi would prove in every respect a complete success, the accuracy of which could not be disputed by the most exacting judge or exhibitor.

Topsham. FREDERICK ELLIS.

ARE THEY RECORD LATE EGGS?

SIR,—As a constant reader of CAGE BIRDS, I see that a correspondent had a Canary that laid eggs in October and in November, and two in December, even as late as the 8th and 16th of December. So I may say in regard to my own two Norwich type hens and a cock Finch that I have been breeding Mules from them since last year's sitting. With me one hen laid her first egg on December 25 and the other on December 28. One got four and the other three. I think that is a record so far, and I expect some Mules from them, if the weather will keep the same.

ECHOES FROM THE PALACE.

Among the Lancashires.

The buff Lancashire Coppy staged by Mr. J. Garner, of Hazel Grove, won the championship diploma, and we understand that friend John has in his possession (stuffed) a buff Lancashire Plainhead which won three firsts and one second at the Palace in four successive years, a remarkable feat.

The Absent Greens.

The Green Canaries were conspicuous only by their absence, not a single class in the section being left standing. We heard that the Green men from Liverpool were quite willing to support the show, but, in view of the "square-feather" disqualifications last year, only providing the judges were changed. The latter the show officials would not consent to.

The Alleged Stained Mule.

Later inquiries made about the alleged stained Mule referred to in last week's issue, reveal the fact that the bird was sent home to its owner, Mr. Thompson, junr. Mr. Ramsden was overheard to say that in view of the happenings at the last (1907) Palace Show, he had had quite enough of disqualifications, and as the judge refused to disqualify, he (after mentioning the matter to the C.B.U. representative), washed his hands of the affair. We learn, we may say, that this identical bird has, so rich is its colour, been looked on with suspicion and tested at several Scottish shows during the past season, but without the slightest result.

Influenza a Visitor.

Colds seem to have laid a hold upon several prominent workers at the show, for we hear Mrs. Ramsden is still confined to the house, and that Messrs. Laskey, Couzens, and one or two others are "in the grip."

Rule 17.

An astonishing feature of the show was the number of small exhibitors—that is, the people entering a single bird or so, and not strictly fanciers. As Mr. Ramsden pointed out, if Rule 17 of the C.B.U. had been altered to debar non-affiliated exhibitors, the Palace Show would have been badly hit.

These people see the preliminary announcements of the show, and having a bird they think a "beauty," take steps to enter it. Thus they help to make the show pay, to provide prize-money for the fully-fledged exhibitors, and in addition they become initiated into the Fancy, and make good members for their local cage-bird societies, and welcome additions to the ranks. It certainly would be a pity were they not allowed to enter their birds, for if told they were "barred," the chances are they would take no further steps in the matter, and thus be lost to the Fancy

Seven inch, and over.

It would have been a grand treat for us Yorkshiremen had there been a class made at the Crystal Palace for the 7in. and over Yorkshire show birds we are hearing about, writes Mr. T. Ogden (of Messrs. Ogden Bros., Bradford), as we have never seen such birds. Then we could have reported on them and given a much better opinion on the matter of length. I for one would have been pleased to have given a trifle to start a subscription for the class to stand, so as to be able to pay good prizes to induce those who have them to show these birds. Sorry I did not think of this suggestion sooner.

Trouble Among the Belgians.

In our last issue we referred to Captain Philp entering the same birds to compete in two different Belgian classes. We believe duplication of entries is allowed at many Scottish shows, but is contrary to custom at the Palace, and a protest was lodged by Mr. Baker, of Barnstaple, against Capt. Philp taking two prizes with the same bird in different classes. A curious feature, we understand, is that the Captain made a mistake in tying on his cage labels, but the judge, Mr. Robson, ignored the labels and allowed the birds affected by the mistake to compete in their proper classes, but without acquainting the show manager of the facts. What will be the outcome we cannot say at the time of going to press. Fanciers present said that if an exhibitor put old bird class labels on young birds, he ought to pay the penalty.

A Fine Record.

We have just received your wire to say we have won 1st in CAGE BIRDS' Competition at the Crystal Palace Show, which was a very pleasant surprise, write Messrs. Amblers (Bradford). We thank you very much for the news, and may say we think our clear yellow has been the most successful Yorkshire of the year. (It is acknowledged the best seen for years). He has won eight 1sts and four 2nds—12 times out. So you see he has never been below 2nd. He was also four times winner of the special for best Yorkshire in Show. We wish CAGE BIRDS even more success in the future than in the past.

A Probable Change.

We understand it is a matter for consideration whether certain of the exhibits shall not be kept back at the Palace until the morning after the close of the show. It seems that the workers handle the repacking of the birds quicker than the railway lines serving the Palace can deal with them, and thus cases cannot be got away by these suburban lines in time to catch the night mails (although cleared from the Palace in plenty of time), but have to lie at the London main-line termini waiting for the morning expresses. It certainly seems as though it would be to the best interests of the birds to rest comfortably in the show until the early morning, rather than be in their boxes at a railway station through the night

A Hand-reared Winner.

We must thank you for your prompt reply giving result of Palace Show. We were delighted to find our Bullfinch received fourth prize, and may say that he is hand-reared—we hand-reared him with two hens, making a total of three. He is, as stated in catalogue, 2½ years old. The reason we mention he was hand-reared is because it seems the opinion that such do not turn out fit to win in such a good class as that at the Palace Show, and it may enable others to try and do the same. We have CAGE BIRDS to thank, and especially Mr. Weston, for being able to win with Bullie, as we gained all our information from Mr. Weston and CAGE BIRDS. HAYNES AND GARDNER.

Potter's Bar.

Measure for Measure.

I have followed with very much interest the controversy which has been passing through CAGE BIRDS anent the standard length of the Yorkshire Canary, and in the light of recent developments it would appear we have all been working in the dark. According to a contemporary journal Mr. J. Bailey (of Bailey and Swanger), is reported to have stated at the Crystal Palace, that birds in Yorkshire are measured from the "crown of the head to the tip of the tail," and this has apparently created an impression that this is the universal method adopted of measuring Yorkshires in the north. I hardly think, however, that this can be so, and that the genial "Jimmie" was merely expressing his personal opinion in the matter. I am forced to this belief in view of the fact that Mr. T. Ogden (of Ogden Bros., Bradford) in the course of a letter on the subject published in last week's CAGE BIRDS said "our way of measuring them (Yorkshires) is getting the bird in one hand, with the thumb on the back of its head, so as to get its head straight out, put it between two jars for the beak and tail to just touch, then measure the distance between the jars." It will thus be seen that a 6½in. bird in Mr. Bailey's hands would become a 7in. bird by the Ogden style of measuring. Hence the probability is had the birds passed at Plymouth for over-length been measured by the Sandy Lane method they would have been included amongst the prize winners. Surely this, Sir, is a matter that calls for immediate attention on the part of the powers that be, and the sooner a rule is passed as to the way in which birds should be measured, whether from the crown of the head or tip of the beak, the better will it be for judges and Fancy generally. Unless some such rule be adopted it would appear to be so much waste of time to argue about the length of a bird. JOHN B. WATERMAN.

THE YORKSHIRE UNION.

A meeting of the Council was held at the Market Tavern, Bradford, on February 15th. Mr. H. W. Battye, president, occupied the chair. The minutes of the previous meeting were passed as read. Regarding novice medals, it was agreed that in cases where two persons in partnership had won one they should be allowed to purchase another at cost price, one guinea. No alteration in design or value could be permitted, and in no section could a winner of more than one prize have the whole consolidated in one. Prizes will be presented exactly as offered and won. The Council nominated nearly fifty judges for the next series of open winter shows. Their names, with their inclusive charges, will be submitted to each society for final selection of exact number required. It was decided to join with the Yorkshire Canary Club and the Cinnamon-Marked Yorkshire Canary Club in their meeting on March 7th, at the Market Tavern, and there make the presentation of the Union prizes to the respective winners. A sub-committee consisting of Messrs. W. Blakey, E. W. Johnson, T. Ogden and H. Simonett, was appointed to work with the above mentioned societies in making the necessary arrangements. The secretary was instructed to obtain specifications and designs for novice and other medals from A. Uttley, C. E. Clark and J. E. Hudson, in addition to those already supplied by Fattorini and Sons. The selection of said medals was left in the hands of the Emergency Committee. All societies wishing to hold an Open First Feather show this year are requested to make application in time for the first meeting of the new Council, when the dates will be arranged by ballot. During the meeting the secretary announced the present financial condition of the Union which showed that the first year's working was likely to result in a profit of between £17 and £18.

SOUTHERN YORKSHIRE C.C.

This season's competitions were brought to a close at the Palace show, and the results are as follows: Champion trophies, Mr. J. Hawes, 76; Mr. H. Knight, 67; Mr. A. E. Pattrick, 61; Mr. W. J. Webb, 60; Mr. J. W. Rennie, 59; and Mr. R. L. Crisp, 58 points. Messrs. Ramsden and Easterlings' specials (silver cup and teapot), Messrs. Mabey and Knight, tie with 98 points; Mr. Webb third (silver medal) with 79 points. Mr. Easterling's cup, most points in S.Y.C.C. classes at Southend, Battersea, Horticultural Hall, and Wimbledon: Mr. R. L. Crisp, with 51 points; Mr. Broomes' teapot, Mr. W. J. Webb, 45 points; Mr. Gladwin's special (first year champion), Mr. J. Hawes; Mr. Ramsden's tea service, Mr. Knight, 93 points. Diplomas (best cock and hen), Plymouth: Messrs. Hawes and Mabey; Battersea: Messrs. Mabey and Hawes; Hastings: Messrs. Rennie and Hawes; Horticultural Hall: Messrs. Pattrick and Hawes; Crystal Palace: Messrs. Parrott and Crisp; best fourths, Plymouth: Mr. C. W. Mabey; Battersea, Mr. Pattrick; Hastings, Mr. Warr; Horticultural Hall, Mr. Crisp; Palace, Mr. J. W. Rennie; best vhc: Plymouth, Mr. Mabey; Battersea, Mr. R. L. Crisp; Hastings, Mr. J. W. Rennie; Horticultural Hall, Mr. R. L. Crisp; Crystal Palace, Mr. R. L. Crisp. No specials were awarded at Cardiff. Novice competitions. Southend: Teapot, Mr. W. S. Bennett, 18 points; medal, Mr. Carson, 17 points; diplomas, Messrs. Moss and Withers. Bournemouth: Teapot, Mr. J. Carson, 24 points; medal, Mr. J. Dobson, 21 points; diplomas, Messrs. Rorke and Withers: Horticultural Hall: Teapot, Mr. J. Dobson, 20 points; medal, Mr. Edwards, 19 points; diplomas, Messrs. Moss and Dobson: Wimbledon: Teapot, Mr. Withers, 20 points; medal, Mr. Rorke, 18 points; diplomas, Messrs. Rorke and Withers. Palace: Teapot, Mr. T. W. Adams, 16 points; medal, Mr. F. Cross, 15 points; diplomas, Messrs. Adams and Cross. Llanelly: void. Most points, ladies: Mrs. F. Smith, Mrs. Vopend, Crocker and Miss Price. Should any member find the above points differ from their counting, I shall be glad if they will communicate with me at once. It is desired that those members who have not paid the current year's subscriptions, will do so at once to enable the annual general meeting to be held at an early date; also any donations to the special prize fund will be thankfully received. Our present year being practically closed, I shall be pleased to hear from any fancier desirous of joining the club. Owing to a good many novices going up, there will be a good opportunity for novices to annex some of the valuable prizes presented by the club.—J. W. RENNIE, Hon. Sec.

ILLUSTRATED IDEAS

Under this heading we shall illustrate weekly some ideas useful to the bird-keeper. Readers are invited to send us particulars of any novel and practical appliance of use in our hobby, either in cage, bird-room or aviary, with a rough sketch of same where possible. Every "Illustrated Idea" used in this column will entitle the sender thereof to a postal order for two shillings and sixpence.

No. 181.

THE EASY REMOVAL OF SAND-TRAYS.

Sent by W. Higgins, 54, North Road, Brighton.

Enclosed is a sketch of a very simple but useful and cheap idea, which I have fitted to my cages. It consists of a wedge-shaped piece of wood, tacked to the sides of the cage, about one-eighth of an inch above the sand tray. It prevents the seed husks and sand from getting thrown beneath the tray, which makes the latter hard to pull out, and tends to frighten the birds. The wood should be about one inch wide and about half-inch thick. The sketches show the wood fitted to the cage, and a section of the wood. W. HIGGINS.

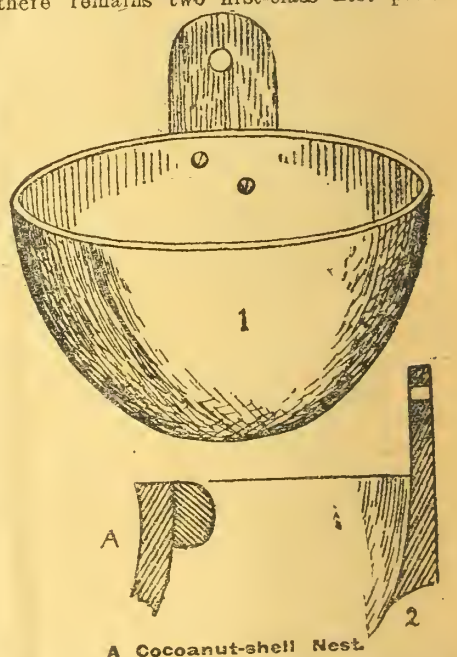
No. 182.

COCOANUT-SHELL NEST PANS.

Sent by Wm. Paull, 64, Tenby Street, Cardiff.

Procure an ordinary cocoa-nut and cut it across with a tenon saw, in the manner shown in Figure 1. Remove the nut, and there remains two first-class nest pans.



A Cocoanut-shell Nest.

For hanging them, fit a strip of wood to each, as in Figs. 1 and 2 (the latter being a sectional view through shell and wood hanger. Drill two screw-holes in the shell, and screw fast to the strip of wood. A rim of leather or wood (see "A") may be fitted and glued round the top of each to give a firmer grip for the birds, who often take to this form of pan in preference to earthenware. W. PAULL.

THE SHOWS.

PRESTON O.S.

The annual February members' show was held in the Scientific Society's Rooms, Fishergate, on Feb. 15th. The room is an ideal one for a members' or a young bird show, and the large, side windows, so lofty, give plenty of light, which is a great necessity and acquisition to a cage bird show. A big classification was made, but the lateness of the season, and the show being on the heels of the Palace show must be among the reasons for several members not filling the classes provided for them. The Norwich, both champion and novice, contained some of the best birds in the kingdom. A few were caught a bit off condition, and so had to stand back a peg or two, but that may be accounted for by the work they have recently been doing on the show bench. Yorkshires did not turn up quite as expected, but there were several smart birds on view. Mules and hybrids, too, were very good. British birds did not turn up so well, and members in this and the foreign sections have gone to sleep surely. There is now plenty of room for some good foreign bird exhibitors. Mr. Heathcote made his debut as secretary fnr a show, and he is a likely gentleman to make things go, when he has grasped the situation fairly. Messrs. Leeming Bros., young and energetic, lent a willing hand to carry out the show arrangements, and matters were in apple-pie order. The Preston O.S. have made these rooms their headquarters. Mr. Heathcote, being secretary of the Scientific Society also, will be able the better to carry out the secretarial duties of the Preston O.S. Mr. Chas. Houlton judged.

PARTICK AND DISTRICT C.B.C.

The Partick and Dis. C.B.C. held their pair show of Crests, Norwich, Border Fancy, Yorkshire and A.O.V., in the Jolners' Hall, on 13th Feb. There was a good turn-out of Norwich and Borders. Of the former there were 23 pairs, which constitutes a record for this club. Mr. C. Campbell judged and seemed to give general satisfaction. Mr. Henderson, the new Secretary, is all that a society could wish for and acted like an old hand, instead of a new one.

CREST OR C.B. (5): 1, spl, and spl. for best pair in hall, Crest hen, a topper and fine Crestbred cock; 2, 4, Hendry; 3, Hamilton. NOR. (23): 1, spl, Shirriden, yellow hen, good round head, splendid quality of feather and buff cock, nice wings and tail; 2, 3, 6, Graham, second yellow cock, and buff hen, cock, good hold chest, nice wing carriage and good type all over, hen very good; third yellow hen, buff cock; 4, Gow; 5, Shirriden. BORDER FANCY (13): good class; 1, spl, Whitelaw, buff cock and yellow hen, perfect carriage, nicely modelled; 2, 3, 4, Walker; 5, Henderson; 6, Graham. YORKS. (3): 1, spl, 2, McRobbie; 3, Webster. A.O.V. CAN. PAIRS (5): 1, spl, 3, Hamilton; 2, 4, Brown.—AND. WILSON

SOUTH LONDON COL. AND F.A.

A successful pair show was held at the club's headquarters on February 13. Mr. R. Brownlie judged, and his awards gave every satisfaction. Fifty-two pairs were entered for competition, this being a record for the old Association. Mr. S. Harriss won the medal for the best pair in the show with a pair of Norwich Greens, well staged. Mr. G. Munday pressed hard with some well-matched pairs. Mr. H. J. Horton won special for next best birds in show, with a well-matched pair for Crest and Crestbred breeding, and Mr. H. Palmer won special for best pair for muling or Hybrid breeding. Owing to the large number of entries of Norwich pairs the hon. secretary deemed it advisable to call the committee together, seeing that six prizes or cards are allowed in one class for points for points cup, and the following awards were allowed for this class:—Two third prizes, two fourth prizes, two vhc's, two hc's, and two c's.

NORWICH (25): 1, spl, 3, 4, Harriss; 2, ex. 3, ex. 4, Munday; vhc, c, Kearney; ex. vhc, Hollands; hc, ex. c, Biss; ex. hc, Males. CRESTS (7): 1 spl, 2, 4, vhc, Horton; 3, c, Johnson; hc, Johnson; hc, Bizley. YORKS. (4): 1; Biss; 2, 3, 4, Males. MULING (9): 1, spl, Palmer; 2, 4, Johnson; 3, Richardson; vhc, Horton; hc, Bizley; c, Males. HYBRIDS (4): 1, 2, White; 3, Johnson; absent, Munday. NOVICE (3): 1, 2, 3, Palmer. Owing to extra prizes given the hon. secretary cannot report on points gained. The same will be considered by committee, which meets on February 26, for revision of points and other business.—G. A. JEFFERYS, Hon. Secretary and Treasurer.

CLAPHAM AND DIS. C.B.A.

Few societies can boast of greater success than this. It is hardly nine months old and yet has had a successful young bird show, an excellent autumn members' show, and on February 15th a most successful show of pairs matched for breeding, and a section devoted to non-cage-moulted exhibits. Upwards of seventy pairs were staged in the Masonic room of the club's headquarters, the Avondale Hall, Landor-rd., Clapham. The way new members are joining bids fair to make the society one of the largest and strongest of its kind in existence, it being now nearly 100 strong. We think the cause of its success is the excellent list of officers it is so fortunate in possessing. The present show was judged by the club's chairman, Mr. W. H. Vale, and some of the classes gave him plenty of work, being well filled with a lot of first-rate exhibits. The chief winners were Messrs. Maxwell, Askew and Hathaway, who showed some splendid pairs for both British and Canary Hybrids; Baker and Gooch in Norwich pairs; Honeysett with Border Fancies, while some very fine pairs of Yorkshires were shown by Messrs. Askew, Wall, Lucas, Cutting and Yeoman. British were well patronised by Messrs. Clark, Brighty, Emms, Sandy, Hathaway and Francis. Catalogues with awards were on sale shortly after judging was over. The secretary was well supported by a hard-working committee in Messrs. A. C. Askew, F. Clark, C. Cutting, P. Gillet, E. Hathaway, T. A. Wade, and H. Yeoman.

LIVERPOOL B.B.A.

The annual pair show was held on February 13, in Oldham Hall. It proved to be one of the best held by the Association within recent years. The Norwich Greens mustered in good number. The judge, Mr. J. W. Metcalf, placed the cards, giving every satisfaction. The principal winners were:—YORKS, CLEAR, Thompson; NOR., Thompson and McMillan; YORKS GREENS, F. Hanley, T. Royden, and J. Royden; NOR. GREENS, R. Davies, H. I. Isaac, and F. E. Haukes. The silver medal given by Mr. Isaac for the best pair in the show was won by R. Davies, with a clinking pair of Norwich Greens.—A. THOMPSON, Secretary.

LAISTERDYKE B.F.A.

A members' show was held on February 13, though not a great many birds were staged. The quality was above the average. Mr. R. Sutcliffe judged, to everybody's satisfaction. CL. SOUTH-WEST LONDON C.B.S.

The Society held their annual show of pairs for Canary and hybrid breeding on February 15 at the Plough Hotel, Clapham Junction, and it proved the largest and best this Society has ever had for pairs. I believe that up to the present this is the third best and largest pair show held in London this year (confined to members only). There were 95 exhibits in nine classes. All were put down in the pink of condition, and were a credit to their owners, as well as a credit to the Society. The Champion Norwich Class was not well represented in number, but what was lacking in that respect was made up in the quality of the exhibits. Mr. J. Robson judged. CLASS 1.—1, 2, 3, Harris, Lilley taking other cards. CHAMPION YORKS. (15).—1, spl, and hc, Mabey; 2, 3, 4, and c, Holbrook; vhc, Broome. CREST (8).—Lilley took the cards. AMATEUR and NOVICE NOR.—1, vhc, J. Graham; 2, 3, 4, Burgess; c, Palmer; hc, Slade. YORKS.—Grand class, some fine specimens, and very severe competition—1, 2, and c, Peck; 3, Slade; vhc, J. Graham; 3, McLaughlin; hc, Ralph. CREST.—1, 2, hc, and c, Slade; 3, 4, vhc, Palmer. CLASS 7.—1, Slade; 2, Pocock; 3, Eddoll. HYBRID PAIRS.—Good and strong competition—1, Palmer; 2, 3, vhc, c, H. S. Graham; 4, hc, McLaughlin. SELL.—1, 4, Peck; 2, vhc, Mabey; 3, hc, Slade; c, J. Graham. Mr. Broome kindly gave a very nice special for best pair in show, and this was won by Mr. Mabey. Prize money and specials were paid out.—LILLEY, Sec.

QUEEN'S PARK.

On February 15th the Queen's Park C.B.A. held its annual pair show in the Emmanuel Hall, Harrow-rd., W. Entries came up about the same as last year, but the quality was the best we have ever seen staged by the members of this flourishing association, and afforded good evidence of the progress that is being made in the district. The Norwich both in the champion and amatcur classes were of capital type, and the majority of them of most excellent quality. Yorkshires were very strong, but many of the exhibitors made the mistake of thinking one good bird in a cage could carry the pair; others made the fatal error of showing two birds as a pair which possessed the same fault. The amateurs were very strong in this section, and actually beat the champions for the special. The birds were very nicely staged, and all the arrangements ably carried out under the direction of Messrs. Birch and Lewis, the hard-working secretaries. Mr. C. A. Honse judged.

NOR. CHAMPIONS (11): 1, 3, vhc, spl, Battison, the leaders excelled in head points, and thus landed on top; 2, hc, Lethbridge, rattling good Yellow cock, but let down by his mate not being chubby enough; c, Roberts. AMATEURS (7): 1, 2, 3, vhc, spl, Churchard, a very nice team, good in type and substance, the winners excelling in quality and compactness of feather; hc, c, Lawrence. NOVICE (1): 1, Woodford. CRESTS (2): 1, 2, Munro, nice quality birds of good shape. YORKS. CHAMPIONS (7): 1, vhc, hc, Hawes, long shapely buff variegated cock, and a slashing yellow hen of wonderful style, win on head points; 2, 3, c, Easterling, 2nd very smart, shapely, stylish pair, but both on the small side; 3rd good feather and style, but stout. AMATEUR (11): 1, 2, 3, vhc, hc, spl, Rogers, a rattling good team, the leaders were very fine in feather, and possessed grand shape and style; the best hen of the lot was in the vhc pair, but her mate was not half swellish enough for such a smart young damsel; c, Lewis. NOVICE (16): 1, 2, 3, hc, spl, Menhennett, a team to be proud of, the cocks in the three winning pairs being sons of the old boy in the last, the leaders were a beautiful ticked buff cock of rare shape and style, and a very long, slim variegated yellow hen; vhc, c, Monger; vhc, Cremer; hc, Brick. NOVICE (7): 1, spl, Brewster, grand quality pair of nice shape and style; 2, vhc, c, Rowe, long, slim yellow cock, and a smart buff hen, had to take second place by reason of the hen being flat in skull. This fault was rather prevalent throughout the section. Breeders should watch this failing, it spoils many a good bird, and is difficult to eradicate once firmly set in a strain. CINNAMON, CHAMPION (4): 1, 2, 3, vhc, spl, Bassett, leaders nice even pair of sound colour and good feather. AMATEUR (2): 1, 2, Wiles, very nice quality and colour. MULING GOLDFINCH-CANARY (7): 1, Coniber, large, rich-coloured Goldie, and a nice-coloured, fine-feathered Norwich hen; 2, Creamer; hc, Birch. NOVICE (7): 1, spl, Brewster, Goldie; 3, Thorpe, big well-marked Goldfinch, and a stout robust Cinnamon Green hen; vhc, Munro; hc, Wiles; c, Woodford. GREENFINCH-CANARY (2): 1, Bassett; 2, Harris. LINNET-CANARY (4): 1, spl, best muling pair, 2, Coniber, two well-marked, nice-coloured Linnets, with a Norwich, and a Yorkshire hen of good quality; 3, Harris; vhc, Wiles. A.O.V. (9): 1, Thorpe, very nice Greenfinch, and a big well-marked Bullie hen; 2, 3, Wiles, two useful pairs, Linnet-Bullie, and Goldfinch-Bullie; vhc, Monger; hc, Woodford; c, Bassett. SELL. CREST (1): 1, Munro. A.O.V. (3): 1, spl, 3, Birch; 2, Roberts.

GRIMSBY ORNITHOLOGISTS SOCIETY.

This Society held its monthly meeting of members at Slatter's Rooms, Freeman Street, Grimsby, on February 13, Mr. Stubbs presiding, when there was a good attendance of fanciers. There was a table show of Norwich breeding and hybrid pairs, 30 pairs being staged. Messrs. Cartwright and Harding judged the Champion classes, Mr. Stubbs the Amateurs classes, and Mr. George Dowie the Hybrid pairs. The birds staged were of good type, and it is to be hoped their owners will be successful in breeding:—CHAMPION CLASSES.—Yell. Ck. and Buff Hen: 1, Robinson; 2 and vhc, Moore, sen.; 3 and r, Stubbs. Buff Ck. and Yell. Hen: 1 and 2, Moore, sen.; 3 and r, Stubbs; vhc and hc, Robinson. AMATEUR CLASSES.—Yell. Cock and Buff Hen: 1 and 2, Harding; 3 and r, Moore, jun.; vhc and hc, Cartwright; c and spl, Cotterill. Buff Ck. and Yell. Hen: 1 and 2, Moore, jun.; 3, Harding; vhc and hc, Cartwright; r, c, and spl Cotterill. HYB. PAIRS.—1 and spl, Harding; 2, vhc, and r, Way; 3, Moore, jun. Mr. Cotterill won the two specials for amateurs. The Society will hold its next monthly meeting at Hall of Science, Freeman Street, Grimsby, on March 10, when there will be a table show for British birds.

GLOUCESTER C.B.S.

The members held their annual matched pair show on February 13, at headquarters, the Rain Hotel, and are to be congratulated upon the grand display of Norwich Plainheads which graced the benches. We thought it one of the best—if not absolutely the best—matched pair show we ever saw in the Cathedral City. It reflected great credit upon the members. The exhibits were nicely arranged in single tiers, and totalled nearly 50 entries. Mr. J. Houghton, the indefatigable hon. secretary, had everything in thorough order, and all passed off without a hitch. The awards were made by Mr. J. H. Payne.

YELLOW COCK AND BUFF HEN: 1, vhc, Stephenson, marked cock, rare head and neck, nice shape, feather and quality, a shade long, but matched up to a very short cobby hen, nice round chest, short flights and tail, neat head; 2, c, Wadley, well shaped cock, nice quality and level colour, good chest; hen, rare shape, nice head and neck, good flights and tail; 3, hc, Gwilliam, unflighted variegated cock of exceptional size and shape, good colour and quality, nice head and neck, with a rare shaped and good quality hen; 4, Houghton, nice quality, good feathered cock, neat head; hen, a gem for colour, shape and quality, took special for best hen. BUFF COCK AND YELL. HEN: 1, 2, Gwilliam, ticked cock, grand shape, feather and quality, nice head, flights and tail, matched to a grand shaped clear, nice chest, feather and quality; 2, clear cock of exceptional feather and quality; 2, clear cock of exceptional feather and full of quality, very shapely with good wings and tail; hen, grizzled on back, nice head, neck, and quality; 3, Stephenson, good shaped, nice feathered, clear cock, matched to a shapely hen well up in colour, nicely feathered, good short wings and tail; 4, hc, Houghton, nice clear cock, good size and shape, well up in colour, matched to a marked hen of good shape and feather; vhc, c, Wasley. The two following classes were confined to novices:—YELL. COCK AND BUFF HEN: 1, spl, Hiam, unflighted cock, nice shape, good colour and feather, neat wings and tail; hen clear, good size and shape, and well up in colour; 2, 3, Hadley, cock, nice shape and colour, well matched to a nice feathered and shapely hen; 3, good shape hen, good shape and feather; 4, Herbert, nice quality marked cock, good shape, neat hen of good quality and feather; vhc, Jennings; hc, c, Townsend. BUFF COCK AND YELL. HEN: 1, Herbert, cock, hot colour, nice shape and quality, clear hen, good in shape, colour and feather; 2, 3, vhc, Hiam, cock, good shape and feather, nice flights and tail hen marked eyes, shoulder and wings, nice feather and quality; 3, neck ticked cock, good feather and colour, well matched to a nice, shapely, short flighted, and neat tailed hen with a good head and neck; 4, Hadley, nice shaped cock; hen good shape and feather, rare head. A.O.V. CAN.: 1, 2, 3, Gwilliam, all Borders; 1, nice feathered yellow cock and shapely Buff hen, good carriage and action; 2, Buff cock, nice shape and feather, and neat hen; 3, good feathered Greens. HYBRID BREEDING PAIRS: 1, Wasley, nice Goldfinch, good blaze tannings and buttons, with a lovely lesser Redpole hen, beautiful feather; 2, Stephenson, Goldfinch cock and a good yellow Norwich hen of good shape, size, and feather.

GREEN CANARY ASSOCIATION.

The annual exhibition of the above association took place on Feb. 14 and 15. The Alexandra Hall, Islington Square, provided a well lighted room of good space and free from draughts. Entries came up exceedingly well, totalling 444 exhibits ,thus creating a record, and over 100 more birds were staged than on any previous occasion. As was to be expected, this being the most important show connected with this association, the creme de la creme was in evidence in great force. All the "top sawyers" met to do battle, and fierce was the fight in almost every class, so even were many of the specimens on view. One could easily have chosen two sets of winners in most of the classes, and many birds one saw standing cardless were really high-class specimens. The Yorkshires especially have made rapid strides, the feather, type and length being close on the heels of the ordinary Yorkshires for beautiful symmetry. The Norwich have also greatly improved, but not in such bulk as their slimmer brethren; they lack somewhat the finish. In the Yorkshire section pride of place must be given to the yellows, as they beat the buffs both in quality and style, to a certain degree. The buff Norwich struck one as being better than the yellows and a few stormers were to be seen. The Toronto medal for best green in the show, went to the self yellow, shown by Messrs. Gill and Pickup. This exhibit borders near to the ideal, and although a shade light in legs, is a most marvellous specimen and full of character. Hydes' special went to Mr. V. H. Deacon, his foul buff Norwich answering to the call. Best novice Yorkie was shown by Mr. J. Gore, a fine lengthy yellow Self doing the trick. Second best went to Mr. T. Wilson's foul yellow, a bird of good length and A1 colour. Best novice Norwich was shown by Mr. W. Hales, second best by Mr. J. W. Lewis. President is Mr. G. R. Johnson. Chairman, Mr J. W. Metcalfe, and a better one to fill this important office it would be most difficult to find. Vice-chairman, Mr. F. Handley, makes a capital understudy. Treasurer, Mr. J. H. Isaacs; Assist.-Sec., Mr. T. Wilson, and auditors, Messrs. Moss and Lawson are a quartette of useful officials. The committee of management consists of Messrs. Walker, Irwin, Hillman, Doughty, Barratt, Abbott and Davies. All are well-known as enthusiastic fanciers, and are to be complimented on the efforts they put forth. Mr. S. Hadwin, the worthy secretary, is the right man in the right place, one who knows the correct working of a show and is most courteous and obliging. Much of the success of both the show and the association is certainly due to his untiring energies. The staging of exhibits had been well thought out. Every bird could be seen at a glance. The management throughout was par excellence. Judging was over in good time, the cards were displayed promptly, and everything went off smoothly and well. Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) judged the Yorkshire and Norwich greens, and Mr. C. Houlton (St. Helens) the remainder.

Mr. J. C. Barnes' Classes.

YORKS. SELF YELL. (16): 1, vhc, spl, Gill and Pickup, rare length, straight as a rush, delightful depth of colour, of correct shade, smooth as glass, an eye opener; 2, Clayton, another gem, close on heels of winner, good enough to win at most shows easily; 3, Vernon, capital colour and feather, nice length and stand; hc, Tempest; c, Deacon. BUFF (12): 1, hc, Benson, fine long drawn bird, excelling in colour, stands finely, A1 wing carriage, a beauty; 2, c, Rowlands, slim, upstanding, good in quality and colour; 3, Carswell, similar to second, very little separates them; vhc, Hellewell. Mr. Houlton's Classes.

Yorkshires came up fairly strong, and the members are to be congratulated upon possessing, besides Greens, Yorkshires of the clear, ticked, etc., persuasions, worthy of the name, some very high-class birds being shown. Norwich likewise contained some very smart birds, and though fewer in numbers, the quality was good. Borders were a very smart lot, and interest is growing in this proud little chappie. The winning buff green Border hen is a gem all over, and it was considered by many to be equal to being the best green Canary in the show. It won well in its own class here. The A.O.V. contained some good Belgian, Scotch Fancy, Cinnamon and crest-bred birds. Hybrids and British turned out very nice, which shows that the members are alive to grand species, as well as greens. The gift class was headed by a very smart yellow Yorkshire, which should have sold well. Mr. Deacon's foul buff green, Norwich type, won Hyde's special. A record show throughout—about 100 more than at any previous club show—it speaks volumes for the loyal enthusiasm of the members. There was a magnificent list of donations for special prizes, given practically by the members in addition to many article specials given by friends.

YORKS. YELL. CK. RUGBY AND DIS. C.B.S.

This newly-formed society is making steady progress. Mr. T. Hunter, J.P., C.C., has consented to fill the post of president, Messrs. F. Merttens and C. J. Newman are vice-presidents, and there are now 30 members. The first table show was held on February 11th. Five classes were provided, and that for Norwich Plainheads filled remarkably well. Mr. H. Dickens, who came from Pailton to judge, had no light task in placing the cards owing to the mixed character of the exhibits. For the future it is intended to provide more classes in the Norwich section. In addition to acting as hon. judge, Mr. Dickens showed and described, for the benefit of novices, six pairs of Canaries matched for breeding. A special prize for the best British bird went to Mr. W. H. Bond.

OTLEY O.S.

This society held a 12-mile radius show on February 15th, in the large concert room at the Queen's Head Hotel, Otley. There was a very large entry, some noted birds being staged, including Palace winners and two white Blackbirds, the property of Mr. F. Myers (Ycadon). The secretary is Mr. Inman. Mr. Isaac Thomas, of British bird fame, judged.

YORKS. CL., ETC. YELL.: 1, J. Robinson, eyes and wing marked, good colour, grand type, Palace winner; 2, Galling, long, raking bird, true Yorkie winner of several firsts this year; 3, 4, Myers, former beautiful young bird; vhc, Bona; hc, Robinson; c, W. Dawson. BUFF: 1, Robinson, fine Salmon colour, grand quality and type; 2, Iveson, head ticked, sweet exhibit, should be heard of later; 3, Myers, grand type in lovely condition, a beauty; 4, Bona, natural colour, some thought should have been higher. CL. ETC. YELL. HEN: 1, Galling, stands like a soldier, full of nerve; 2, Long, grand, leggy hen, sweet head, wings and tail, should win next year; 3, vhc, Laughey, four-pointed beauty, should win in keenest company; 4, Robinson; hc, Thornton; c, Myers. BUFF: 1, Galling, thigh ticked, grand back, long flights and knows how to carry them, a little lady; 2, Long, clear, nice shapely hen; 3, Robinson, nice quality, nice to pair with a big, leggy cock; 4, Thornton; vhc, Myers. CINN. MKD. CK.: 1, Thornton, long raking bird, well over seven inches, would just suit the Southern fanciers; 2, Iveson, marked head and wings, stands on good legs, extra fine wing carriage, grand stock bird. HEN: 1, 3, Iveson, first buff, feathered like a Java, typical little lady and knows it too; third, foul marked yellow, another good shaped hen, well staged; 2, Galling, ticked on wing, grand head and tail, good type of a hen; 4, Myers, nice wings and tail, wants a good tubbing. A.O.V. CAN.: 1, Laughey, Yorks. green, great credit to its owner, straight as a rush, real gem; 2, Galling, ticked Norwich, red hot colour, well-known winner; 3, W. Dawson, self cinn, lovely quality and type, good bird; 4, Robinson; vhc, Iveson. BRIT.: 1, Lamb, Siskin, grand cap and markings, good colour; 2, Bona, Linnet, nicely pencilled, good colour, some thought should have won; 3, Iveson, Greenfinch, of the first water, beautifully coloured Finch; 4, c, Myers, two white Blackbirds, have won at Palace, but must have been cleaner then than now; vhc, Holmes; hc, Lamb.

GT. HARWOOD AND DIS. C.B.S.

The annual meeting of the Great Harwood and Dist. C.B.S., was held on February 10th. The members' first feather show was fixed for June 27th, and the open show for October 9th and 10th. The judges for both shows will be chosen later. I was afterwards elected secretary. All correspondence in connection with the society must now therefore be addressed to me at 68, Edge End-road, Gt. Harwood, nr. Blackburn.—GEO. WADDINGTON, Sec.

LANCASHIRE CANARY ASSOCIATION.

Having been appointed scrutineer for the election of officers for season 1908-9 for the above society, I herewith submit to the members, through your kind permission, the gentlemen who have attained the highest votes for the respective officers:—President, J. Nadin (Rochdale); vice-presidents (6), R. Barrass (Rochdale), J. Garner (Hazel Grove), F. Steeple (Oldham), E. Lowe (Oldham), W. Mills (Oldham), and F. J. Green (Surrey); treasurer, W. Hardy; committee (9), H. F. Howarth, B. Lord, J. Butterworth, W. Mills, J. Oldham, E. Lowe, J. Law, J. Mills, J. Swalwell, and J. W. Crossley. Several of these received the same number of votes, and five tied for the last four positions. Auditors (2), R. R. Gaskell and F. Horsman. Judges (members) (6), R. Barrass, J. Garner, W. Hardy, J. Nadin, W. Mills and E. Lowe; (Open) (6), C. A. House, J. Robson, R. Barrass, J. Bexson, J. Garner, and T. Heath.—A. ACKROYD.

PENDLETON AND SALFORD O.S.

There will be a special summoned meeting on Feb. 24th, at 8 p.m., when the proposed alterations of rules will be put forward for the members' approval, also to fix dates for lectures to be given by well-known fanciers, and night shows. It is also intended to have judging competitions for members, and a ramble in the country in the summer. Any fancier will be welcomed at the society's meetings, which are held in the Chapel-street Congregational Hall, opposite Salford Station, every 2nd and 4th Monday in each month. Entry fee 1s., subscription 4s. Below is a list of officers for 1908:—President, Councillor Hampson; Chairman, G. W. F. Lythgoe, Esq.; Committee, Messrs. Aspinall, McCann, Turner, Clayton, Fish, J. W. Ashton, Holland, Stocker, and Cleaver; Auditors, Messrs. Clayton and Stringer; Treasurer, Mr. Sam Cook; Assist. Secretary, Mr. G. Wilkinson; Hon. Secretary, W. Jackson, 11, Caton-street, Tamworth-street, Old Trafford. Dates for first feather and open shows, June 27th and December 11th and 12th, respectively.—W. JACKSON.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

A meeting was held on February 1st, Mr. John Farrer in the chair. After half an hour's discussion in respect to members' subscriptions, it was decided that they be 5/-, with 1/- entrance fee. The auditors, Messrs. W. F. Swan and J. Farrer, gave their report, which was carried, and the best thanks of the members was given to them for their services. We are left with a balance due to the treasurer of £3 6s. 5d. Messrs. G. Davidson, J. Bell, A. Walker, J. Taylor, J. Peacock and J. Jackson, were elected members. C. E. Thompson, Esq., J.P., was elected President, Messrs. C. Grimshaw, W. Hall, G. Bell, J. Cobb, and Dr. O'Neal, Vice-Presidents, Mr. John Farrer Chairman, and Mr. George Clark Vice-Chairman; Committee, Messrs. W. F. Swan, A. Elliott, H. Gordon, W. Reid, Dr. O'Neal, C. Waters, W. Maddison, H. Fenwick, and G. Davidson; Trustees, Messrs. W. Ogleby and R. Armstrong; Treasurer, Mr. J. Riseborough; Secretary, F. W. Gordon; Assistant Secretary, Mr. John Copeland.—F. GORDON, Sec., 17, Kayll-rd., Sunderland.

NEWTOWN ST. BOSWELLS O.S.

A meeting was held in the Baillie Memorial Hall on Feb. 14th, to hear from th esecretary the financial report for the year ending 31st Jan. The statement showed that the society had in hand the sum of £8 at this date. The work for the coming year was commenced, and November 7 was fixed as the date for the show this year.—ROE. ROBERTSON, Hon. Sec.

DARLINGTON C.B.S.

Adjourned general meeting was held on February 5th, when Mr. R. Todd presided over a large attendance of members. The new rules proposed at last meeting were adopted, and also the list of table shows, debates, etc. The Secretary presented the annual balance-sheet, showing a very satisfactory balance of £8 4s. 4d., the income being £76 2s. 4d. and the expenditure £67 18s. Officers for year:—Mr. R. Todd chairman; Mr. H. C. Carter treasurer; assistant secretary, Mr. P. M. Carter; secretary E. Brunskill; auditors, Messrs. J. G. Stephenson and W. Underwood. It was decided to hold a "smoker" and supper on February 14th, at 7 p.m. All fanciers invited. Several new members were accepted.—E. BRUNSKILL, Hon. Secretary.

WATFORD AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

We held the annual general meeting on Feb. 12, when a record number of members attended. The election of officers took place as follows:—President, Lord Hyde; Chairman, Mr. R. J. Pretty; Vice-Chair., Mr. J. Goodall; Auditors, Messrs. Pickering and H. B. Withers; Committee, Messrs. Frost, Shirley, R. J. Withers, Field, Swain, Tucker, Bailey, Fern, Scott, Sear, Buckingham, and R. J. Watts. Delegate to C.B.U., Mr. R. J. Watts. A letter was read from Mr. R. J. Watts resigning his position as joint secretary with Mr. W. Quantrell, owing to business pressure. His resignation was accepted with regret. Mr. W. Quantrell was unanimously elected Hon. Secretary. The society has had a very successful season. A show of pairs matched for breeding will be held on Feb. 22, at the Friendly Societies' Hall, when Mr. C. A. House will judge. A vote of thanks to the chair closed the meeting.

TORBAY O.S. (PAIGNTON).

Messrs. T. H. Veale and E. Parnell gave a lesson in Canary washing before the members at Newman's Rooms on February 11th, Mr. J. Webber presiding. At the outset Mr. Veale read an article on the subject, after which he handled and tubbed his Canary with lightning dexterity. Mr. E. Parnell followed with a bird that needed a bath badly. Evidently Mr. Parnell had searched Paignton for a dirty specimen to thoroughly teach the members how to wash under adverse circumstances. Several members for the first time also tubbed some birds, common ones being provided for the occasion, and it was gratifying to see the way they did it, scarcely a feather being displaced. The drying process took a long time. Several questions were put to the performers, which were ably answered. An important part of the evening's proceedings was the presentation of a pair of pipes in case to the late hon. sec., Mr. C. Parnell. Mr. J. Webber, in a few well chosen words, handed the pipes to Mr. Parnell as a gift from the committee by way of expressing their appreciation of the harmonious manner in which all had worked together. In replying, Mr. Parnell expressed his surprise at receiving anything, at the same time he was pleased with the spirit that prompted the committee, and he should always remember the kindness shown to him that evening. Several new members were then elected, and a pleasant evening closed with votes of thanks to Messrs. Veale, Parnell, and the secretary, Mr. J. N. Jeffery, for having arranged such an enjoyable meeting.—J. N. JEFFERY, Sec.

CRESTED CANARY CLUB.

The result of the voting for president of the above from those elected on the committee is as follows: Mr. R. L. Crisp, 7; Mr. R. Rhodes, 5; Mr. T. Heath, 4; and three others one each. As Mr. Crisp mentioned at the outset that in his opinion the best interests of the club would be served by frequent changes in that position, he on that ground did not offer himself for re-election. Mr. Rhodes therefore becomes President for 1908. Owing to resignations, Messrs. W. Bowyer and H. Horton are added to the committee, and Mr. Thomas to the list of judges.—JOHN TYSON, Hon. Sec.

GATESHEAD AND DIS. C.B.S.

The balance-sheet was read at annual meeting, and showed a balance of £26 10s. 11d., with assets (stands, etc.) valued at £5 12s., also challenge cup. It was agreed to pay members' prize money at 12s. per class—1st, 6s.; 2nd, 4s.; 3rd, 2s.—thus leaving a balance of £10 0s. 11d. to carry forward. This was considered very satisfactory, and proved an all-round record for the society. Messrs. J. Brown and A. Lister, auditors, gave their report, and said that everything had been audited and found correct, and in the best of order. Mr. Fenwick (Houghton-le-Spring), Mr. G. E. Robson (Gateshead), and Mr. Rule (Gateshead) were elected members. The following officials were elected: President, The Mayor, Alderman Gillies; vice-presidents (all re-elected), J. Brown, Esq., W. J. Taylor, Esq., Jas. Joicey, Esq., F. T. Lattimar, Esq., R. Brewis, Esq., W. Clark, Esq., J. Kirkpatrick, Esq., and J. D. Philipson, Esq.; chairman, Mr. T. Almond; vice-chairman, R. Lowery; secretary and treasurer, T. Taylor, 68, Edward-street; assist.-secretary, G. E. Robson; C.B.U. representative, A. Brown; committee, Messrs. Lister, Mather, Grieve, Johnson, Hayes, Buck, Longstaff, Hodgson, Kirkpatrick, E. Wright, Reed, J. Moore; auditors, Messrs. A. Lis-Wright, Reed, J. Moore; auditors, Messrs. Vardy, Heath, Bennett, and Parker Robinson were elected to officiate as judges at our next show. The show date was fixed for same date as last year, namely, December 11th and 12th. The next meeting will take place on February 26th, when fanciers wishing to become members will receive a hearty welcome into the ranks of "the Palace of the North."—THOS. TAYLOR, Hon. Secretary and Treasurer.

DULWICH ORNITHOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

At a special committee meeting, held on February 12th at headquarters, the following were elected members: Messrs. G. W. Saunders (Sutton), P. G. Sprules, Foster, Edwards, Butler, Taylor, Jenner, House (all of Dulwich), G. Warley (Tulse Hill), E. Lewis (Peckham), F. Bisley (Rotherhithe), bringing the total up to nearly 60 members. A strong hope was expressed that a century may be enrolled before the book of rules is printed, so that names and addresses might appear therein. It was decided to register the society. Mr. W. Goodwin, hon treasurer, proposed that a challenge cup be presented by the society at the annual show for most points gained by a member (to be won three times, not necessarily in succession). With his usual generosity Mr. Goodwin opened the list with the handsome sum of three guineas; Rogers and Mazzoni, two guineas; Messrs. Wall, Kent and Wilmot also promised to contribute. The fund is now open; if it exceeds 10 guineas the surplus will go to purchase a cup for the novice section. Mr. Rogers promised a cup, value two guineas, for best bird at young bird show; Mr. F. Gain, gold medal for best bird shown by a novice; and Mr. Wilmot, a cup (to be allotted). The above are in addition to many already promised. Messrs. Butler, Peacock, and Bussey promised specials, value one guinea each (for annual show), and Messrs. Gain, Pierson, Hodder, Sprules, etc., have also signified their intention of contributing. It was arranged to have a judging competition in pairs matched for breeding on February 27th at headquarters. Entrance fee, 6d. per cage, the whole being returned in prizes to successful pairs. Mr. Goodwin offers a gold medal for most entries, and a silver medal for best pair. Messrs. Rogers, Woolhouse, and Wall also offered medals for the various classes and competitors in judging. Taking all things into consideration this new society has made a most brilliant start, and it is receiving great encouragement on all sides. The club room is lent free for small shows, lectures, concerts, meetings, etc., and the list of specials for the various shows breaks all previous records. We again respectfully point out that no entrance fee is charged to those joining prior to 31st March. The subscription is only 3s. per annum. Mr. G. F. Woolhouse offers a gold medal to member making most new members before annual show. Any further particulars may be had on application.—ROGERS and MAZZONI, Hon. Secs.

BRISTOL C.B.S.

The annual meeting was held on February 10th, when there was a good attendance. The annual balance-sheet was read, and received hearty approval. Seeing the society has only been in existence a little over 12 months, and can boast of four silver cups, and a balance in hand of 50s., it goes to prove the society is receiving the support it rightly deserves. Mr. Brown, of Norwich fame, has kindly consented to give a lecture on our next meeting night (March 1st) upon pairing, and feeding of young; all fanciers are invited. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year, viz.: President, Major Gibbs, M.P.; vice-presidents, Messrs. Teagle, Stinchcombe, Gale, Crocker, Stone and White; hon. solicitor, Mr. W. F. Cook; hon. auctioneer, Mr. W. E. Parker; chairman, Mr. J. Munro; vice-chairman, Mr. C. E. Brown; secretary, Mr. Manley, 2, Locklenze-road, Horfield; assist.-secretary, Mr. C. P. Telling; treasurer, Mr. J. Tristem; committee, Messrs. Brown, Bull, Buckland, Burgess, Fowler, Hoyle, Keegan, Martin, Parsons, Taylor, Tilley, and Newman. The annual exhibition will be held on October 28th and 29th.—W. H. MANLEY, Hon. Sec.

READING AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Seventh annual meeting held on February 5th at Palmer Hall, West-street, Reading, when there was a large attendance of members. The officers were elected for the ensuing year:—President, The Right Hon. George William Palmer; vice-presidents, C. E. Keyser, Esq., M.A., J.P., Leonard Sutton, Esq., Albert Wheatley, Esq., M.R.C.V.S., W. J. Foster, Esq., F.R.C.S., Alfred Palmer, Esq., J.P., W. Howard Palmer, Esq., Rufus D. Isaacs, Esq., K.C., M.P., and S. B. Stevens, Esq.; hon. treasurer, Mr. Chas. J. Howlett; hon. auditors, Mr. G. H. Acton and Mr. W. H. Pyke; secretary, Mr. G. A. Charles, "Homeville," 4, Talfourd-avenue, Earley, Reading; managing committee, Mr. J. Brooker (chairman), Messrs. E. Fulbrook, Fraser, T. Yates, J. Lawrence, Hopgood, J. North, J. Mead, G. Packwood, and Wm. Vince. It was decided to hold a show on November 18th next, limiting entries to a 30-miles radius of Reading, as last year. Judge, Mr. J. Robson. Show will again be held at Palmer Hall. Messrs. Vince (Caversham), Oliver (Basingstoke), Dearlove (Henley), and Lewin (Oxford) were elected new members. Arrangements were made to give a washing display in March for the benefit of new members.—G. A. CHARLES, Secretary.

Have you given the notice respecting CAGE BIRDS' ANNUAL for 1908 your attention?

PRACTICAL HANDBOOKS FOR BIRD LOVERS.

"AVIARIES, BIRD ROOMS and CAGES," their Construction and Management.

By H. NORMAN. Copiously illustrated with both Photographs and Sketches, Bound in Cloth and Gilt, 2/3 Post Free. This volume, the latest of "Cage Birds" publications, is absolutely unique in its design. The information given in it is on sound practical lines, and all fanciers whether large or small will find it most helpful in the housing and management of their feathered pets.

"HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL."

By C. A. HOUSE. Post Free, 1/2, Cloth Bound, 2/2. (Fourth Edition of "The British Canary"). This thoroughly practical book, the latest edition of which has been re-written by the Author. Superbly illustrated by the Champion Canary Artist, Mr. H. NORMAN. EVERY BIRD DEPICTED IS A VERITABLE MODEL, and shows the breeder what to aim for. Some idea of the popularity of this Practical Manual may be gathered from the fact that under the title of "The British Canary," it has passed its third Edition entering upon a Fourth Edition of 5,000 copies under the new title of "HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL." Mr. HOUSE has thoroughly revised and brought this work up-to-date and incorporated a chapter on the "Roller or Singing Canary."

"CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS."

By CLAUDE ST. JOHN. Post Free, 7d.; Cloth bound, 1/2.
An exceptionally helpful, intensely practical and instructive handbook for beginners and tyros at canary breeding. It is profusely illustrated and contains innumerable hints helpful to all young bird keepers. In this handbook the reader is taken from the pairing up of the stock to the placing of the young birds on the show bench. It is equally applicable to the fancier with one or a dozen pairs.

"THE STANDARD WORK."

"YORKSHIRE CANARIES: How to Breed Manage and Exhibit."

Price, Post Free, 1/2, Cloth bound 2/2.
By H. W. BATTYE, President of the Yorkshire Union, and deals fully with the Yorkshire Canary and its sub-varieties, should be in the hands of every breeder. It gives the fullest instruction upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, Exhibiting, and how to treat both in health and disease. Illustrated by Messrs. H. Norman and A. J. Simpson. Among its most useful contents will be found a chapter on "Dont's." This of itself is worth the price charged.

"THE HYGIENE OF BIRD-KEEPING."

By Dr. CRESWELL, M.D. Post Free, 1/1.

By R. H. CLARKE, M.D., M.A. Post Free, 7d.
A very useful booklet on this subject, which should be found in every bird-lover's library. Dr. Clarke has given the subject of this book very special study.

By Mr. J. H. PAYNE. 1d.; Post Free, 1½d.
A Lecture reprinted from "Cage Birds," delivered by this leading judge and expert before the London and Provincial Ornithological Society, and pronounced by all experts to be a most valuable pamphlet.

F. CARL, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

By J. W. METCALFE.

ERRATUM.—In the last instalment the lines commencing at line 14 should read: Do the clear Yorkshire Fanciers go to the Cinnamon mark for their colour? I say No; they go to the Cinnamon for their quality of feather. Do the Norwich fanciers go to the Cinnamon for their colour? They introduce heavy green-marked Norwich.

Be sure and use an egg cabinet, else you will get your eggs mixed up, which will cause no end of trouble. I am a great believer in taking the eggs away until the third day. I then well dust the nest before putting the three eggs back. In the event of one's coming home late at night, I should advise him to put the eggs back on the morning on which the hen lays her fourth egg. It does not take much to make a hen forsake her nest, and if you disturb her at night you are encouraging her to do so. That is why I like the morning best. I found she hatched her young at the same time.

With reference to letting the cock stay with the hen and helping to feed, it has always been my method of running one cock with two hens, and letting the hens bring up their own young. I have been very successful in this way. I have had bad feeders, and when I have run the cock back it has been the same. They would not feed. I have then resorted to hand feeding.

There are several ways of hand feeding, but the best and cleanest I have found has been with an ordinary glass syringe and "Life-belt" food. I brought up nineteen last year by hand feeding, and was well repaid for my trouble.

When the hen is sitting I never clean the cage out, without the droppings are all in one place, and then I take it out when I put a bit of green stuff in. It takes very little to upset a hen, so molest her as little as possible. When the young are hatched, I give the hen the ordinary egg food and plenty of crushed hemp, and on the second day I commence giving green stuff, just a bit at first, increasing it every day.

When the young leave the nest, I put them in a Yorkshire or nursery cage in front, and give them bread and milk. The hen will feed them, and they will gradually come to the milk sop. They will spoil a lot of this at first, but when they commence to eat it, I take them from the mother and put them in an ordinary breeding cage and feed them practically on bread and milk until they are six weeks old, gradually bringing them on to weak egg-food and crushed hemp.

I think the loss of young birds after leaving the nest is mainly through egg-food being too strong. Good milk sop is just as nourishing as egg-food, and there is no danger of inflammation setting in from its use.

Ready for the Show Bench.

When these youngsters are about seven weeks old, no doubt you will think they are fit for the nest feather shows. Now, scores of good birds have caught a cold at these shows, and have never looked up after; so my advice is, never put them out until they have moulted. One first prize at an old show is worth twenty at a young show. One of the main points in a show bird is steadiness, so as soon as they leave the mother, hang a show cage in front of the stock cage. They will soon run in and out, and steady themselves while they are young. It is hard work steading them later on: a lesson when they are young saves hours of labour.

Should the youngsters commence plucking one another, watch for the principal offender, and put it in a cage by itself. The damage generally comes from one vicious bird. As the birds get older you will have an idea or two as to which look like becoming show specimens. Cage these off in twos to moult. You will want to look after them a bit more than the ordinary stock. Let the cages where the young are be absolutely clean, because they readily ferret in all corners, and dirt brings on all stomach complaints.

Presuming you have finished breeding and have had a fair season, I would not advise anyone breeding after the first of August, because in this month, which generally is very hot, the hens will commence to cast their feathers, which means death to any birds in the nest. It is advisable to break them up in August, so as to give all the stock birds a chance to recoup their strength.

Throw all the old birds together in the big flight I previously mentioned. Naturally, the cocks will chase the hens at first, but they will soon get tired and settle down. Give them a month in the flight, and then if there are any of the old birds you think are fit for exhibiting again, bring them out and cage off separately, to finish their moult.

The moulting is the most critical period of a bird's life. Never mind how good a bird may be in show properties, without a good moult it is useless. How many times have you heard the saying, "Where is the bird that was winning last year? At home; it's had a bad moult?"

You cannot pay too much attention to them. Give them a bath every morning if possible. I know nothing better than water for bringing them through. Give a good supply of linseed during the moult and should they not take to it, give some linseed meal in the egg-food. They will soon eat it then.

Some fanciers believe in covering the birds up during the moult; this is alright with birds that are on colour-food, but I do not advise it with Greens. When there is plenty of light, they will knock about and soon get rid of the old feathers, and when they are half moulted they are too weak to fly about much.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

Further Preparations for Exhibiting.

After the moulting season, you want to look carefully over your stock and pick out the most likely birds to make show specimens. If possible, cage off single or two young birds together. It is not advisable to put two old cocks together, although two old hens will agree. Get the young birds perfectly steady. A good idea is to put up a small stage that will hold six show cages, and then you can go over them like the judge will do. This will teach them their business when they come in front of a judge at the first show. How many birds are put down, from what I call stage fright. A judge will not look twice at a wild exhibit.

For getting a bird into show condition, I should advise good mixed seeds without hemp or groats twice a week. As a soft food once a week, get a new-laid egg, hard boiled, well mix with bread-crumbs, and put on this two tablespoonfuls of cream. Add a little maw seed, mix thoroughly and give a teaspoonful heaped up to each bird. Once a week give some good tenpenny ale instead of water. This recipe I got from one of our most successful exhibitors of Yorkshires, and I have found it has good effects. Let each bird have a free supply of baths except on the day you give the ale. Water will tighten a bird up quicker than anything I know of.

When your birds are in good trim, and you think them fit to send out, I should advise you to call in one or two older fanciers who know this variety, and ask them their opinion of your show birds. Two heads are better than one, but be sure and get someone who knows his business.

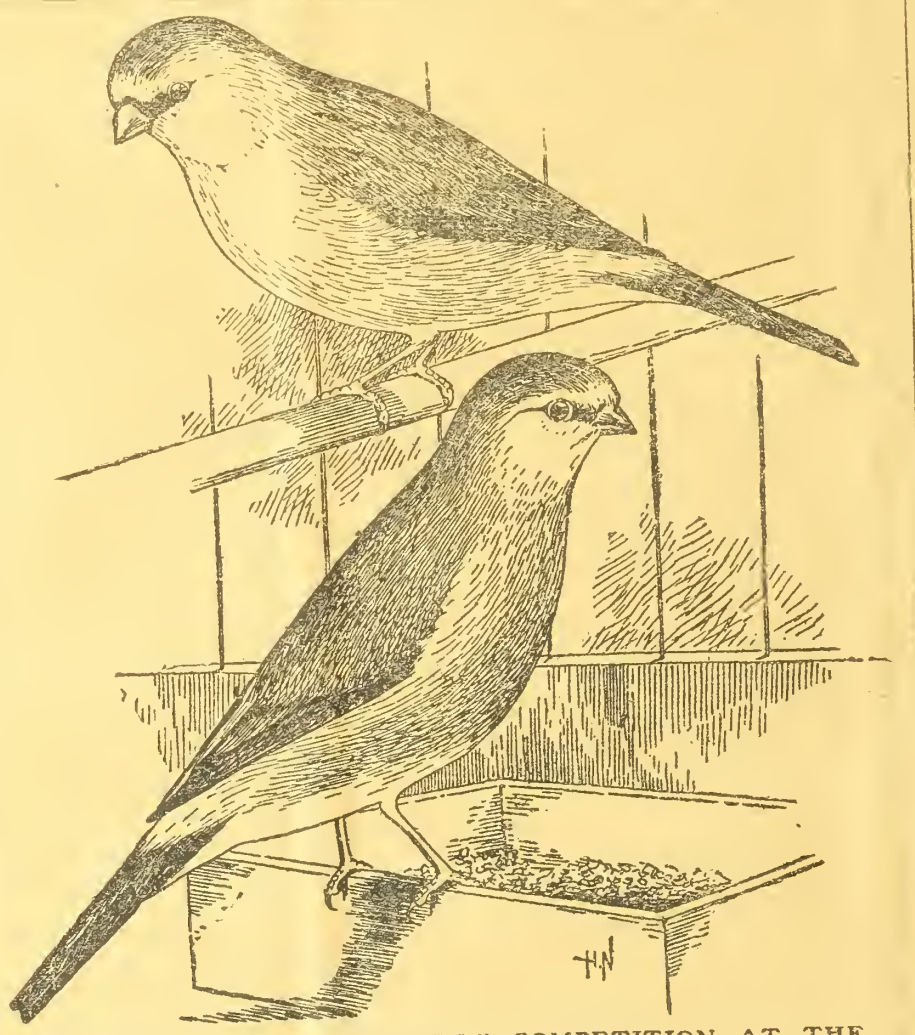
If you are not successful at your first attempt, don't be disheartened; look over the winners and see where your birds fail, and if you think there is not much difference, try again at the next show. Your birds might suit this judge.

Always see that you stage your birds properly. Let your cages be nice and bright, and perches scrupulously clean. This catches many a judge's eye, as nothing looks worse than a good specimen in a dirty cage.

When your birds come back from a show, never mind how well they look, give them some good egg-food, with a pinch of cayenne in it, and also some special mixed seed in the bottom of the cage. A bath is essential next morning, and just see how they enjoy it after being penned up two or three days. After the third show I should advise washing them. This should be done in the ordinary way; only, if possible, wash them eight days before the show. By then they will have got back all the green lustre which you may think you have washed off.

One point I should like every exhibitor to follow, and that is, try beforehand to find out what each judge goes in for as regards size, etc., by asking each exhibitor, especially the older ones. You will save a lot of trouble, and it will prevent you sending out for nothing.

This article I have written for the benefit of the novices, and should they derive any small benefit from it, it will more than repay me for the trouble I have taken over it.



WINNERS OF "CAGE BIRDS" COMPETITION AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE SHOW.

Upper Figure: Canary-Bullfinch, (Fourth Prize), Mr. G. LAWRENCE, Coventry.
Lower Figure: Linnet-Bullfinch, (Third Prize), Mr. C. J. WARD, Uttoxeter.

THE YOUNG NATURALIST.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given each week for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be children under sixteen years of age, and must state from where stories are taken.
Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners up.

*The Sheep Destroying Kea.

The Mountain Parrot or Kea is one of the worst of the New Zealand sheep farmers' small enemies. These birds which are nocturnal in their habits, appear to live entirely on flesh when circumstances allow. They are said to acquire the taste for meat by picking the sheeps' heads which are thrown aside, leaving the bones clean. Then, in default of such supplies, they proceed to kill a sheep for themselves. A number of them band together and attack the same one tearing the wool from about the loins. The sheep attacked in this manner will run away from the rest, and the Keas pursue it and resume the attack till the sheep drops exhausted. The Keas then begin to eat the flesh from the still living animal. (Copied from an old number of Household Words). Sent by James Shepherd, age 14, 11, Buckley Brook St., Rochdale.

*The Mischievous Magpie.

The Magpie is well known for its mischievous and often ill-natured tricks, as well as for its clever mimicry. One which had its home near a little country village in the Midlands was the terror of the neighbours. He was so bold that he showed no fear of human beings and would even attack them. None of the servants in the district would go near him without a broom or some such weapon to drive him off; and as for the schoolboys whose path to school lay past his home, they would go a long distance out of their way by another road to avoid him. Woe betide the unhappy boy whose legs came within the range of the bird's sharp beak. Close by was a toll-gate. One of the favourite pranks of the bird was to perch on the top of the gate and cry "Gate! gate!" as loudly as he could. But when the old keeper came hurrying out to collect the toll, all he saw was the Magpie, as it flew off with a hoarse mocking chuckle.—Taken from "Chatterbox." Sent by Master Walter Mullins, age 15, Alexandra Villa, Balby-road, Doncaster.

A Saucy Jay.

My grandmother has a Jay, and its name is Jacob. He is a very saucy fellow, and is about 3 years old. He can say almost anything; he imitates dogs, cats, fowls and ferrets. He gets out of his cage into the yard, and hops about the yard and is not afraid of anyone. He talks to himself, and sometimes so fast that one cannot understand what he says. He mocks the children and calls them by their names. We feed him on kernels of nuts, on bread, cheese, acorns, and scraps from the table. One day my grandmother was greatly surprised by what she thought was the crying of some kittens; she searched and could not find any, but after a while to her great amusement she found it was Jacob mocking some kittens we had had. Another time she heard what she thought to be someone in the back yard saying "Coming to school, Jackie?" On going out to see who it was she found it was Jacob repeating the question quite distinctly. He must have heard the neighbour's children calling to each other. I have two uncles; when Jacob sees them come in the yard he will call them by their names. —Sent by Mary Tucker, Aldbourne, Wilts. Age 10 years.

The Spangled Starling.

The Starling is a very common British bird and can be seen almost everywhere, including our fields, gardens and lanes. It is one of those birds that visit our gardens after insects and worms, as it is an insectivorous bird. One day I saw a Starling on a sheep's back, and I at once saw that it was after the insects that infested the sheep. The nest of the Starling may be found in trees or in any old buildings. It is composed mainly of straw and contains from four to six eggs. A pair of Starlings are almost alike in appearance, but the male is much brighter than his mate.—ALBERT GILL (aged 14 years), 20, Drumgold-street, Douglas, Isle of Man.

The Novices' Notebook.

This page will consist of topical hints, addressed chiefly to beginners, concerning every branch of the hobby of bird-keeping, and the notes will be contributed from time to time by various leading experts.

A Hint About Cages.

We were recently asked for some remedy to prevent birds biting the wooden parts of their cages. Whether the birds in question were Canaries or British or foreign birds did not appear. It did, however, seem as though the querist wished he could have some kind of nauseous substance with which to paint the woodwork. Such a plan, even if it were feasible, is scarcely to be recommended. We have known Canaries to pick away quite a considerable portion of the woodwork of their cages. This, of course, is an unusual occurrence, and is generally found to occur with birds caged singly for singing, and during the spring months is the time when the birds are busiest at this destructive work.

The inference from this seems quite obvious. It is a healthy activity which prompts them to work off their superfluous energy in some way, and if the bird discovers that constant worrying at one particular spot will enable it to remove a minute particle of wood occasionally, it will do it, and constant picking wears a wooden cage just as surely as constant dripping wears a stone, as a certain proverb tells us.

If a cube of cuttlefish or a lump of sugar were stuck in the wires of such a bird's cage it would almost certainly form a greater attraction than the cage itself, and the bird would gradually consume these substances to its own benefit, and the material saving of its domicile. Most of the Finch tribe are also occasionally addicted to the habit, and can usually have their attention diverted in the same innocent way.

With foreign birds of the Parrot tribe it is different. To be eternally whittling away at something when not too deeply immersed in sober meditation seems to be their natural attribute. They should be kept supplied with soft deal chips to cut up whenever their energies are sufficiently excited. Yet another way to get over the difficulty, of which we have had practical experience, is to make wooden cages with an overlay of the metal punched bars, which almost every cage-maker supplies now, around the top of the wood bottom where the wires are inserted, and using punched bars around the middle in place of wooden crossbars. This is quite easily done, as there is no difficulty in punching an additional hole where required in the bars with a fine steel punch, and thus enabling the bar overlays to be nailed down flat on to the edge of the wooden sides. These, of course, must be nailed in position before the wood is bored for the wires, and then the wood is bored through the holes in the bar and ensures the boring being correct to match the bars.

A Word about Aviaries.

We often come across novices with a single year's experience in breeding, and also fanciers in a small way, but with rather more practical knowledge, who are desirous of fitting up a suitable place for breeding with a larger stock of birds. The scheme may either consist of converting some space at present in use into a kind of aviary, or of utilising some space that is as yet unoccupied. Very often this decision is the indirect means of confirming them in the Fancy, as it were, for the success they meet with in this method of breeding frequently affords just that encouragement, together with a fair amount of success, which is necessary to induce them to start in the more difficult line of bird-breeding, with a stronger determination than ever to surmount and overcome obstacles. For it is a fact that in this style of breeding it almost invariably happens that one meets with a maximum of success for a minimum of expense and trouble. It is true that one usually has to almost entirely forego the ordinary control over the colour, markings, and typical points of the birds bred, which it is at once the privilege and pleasure of the more advanced breeder to exercise over his stock. But at this period of a fancier's career that point is not of vital importance. The great consideration over all others at this time is to meet with success and to breed birds, and this, it must be admitted, is the well-nigh invariable result.

Some Control Possible.

We said one must be prepared to "almost" entirely forego control over the type of the birds bred, when starting with such an improvised aviary and breeding with the birds flying loose in small groups. In this we used the word "almost" advisedly, for even in this class of breeding one may still adhere to the main, general principles of control by restricting any particular point to the one sex. Thus, for example, one may make up a group of birds consisting of a clear yellow cock and a lightly ticked, or wing, or eye, marked yellow cock, but let the tick or mark be on the small side, and add five or six buff hens, for which the following would make a good selection, viz., one clear bird bred from double yellows, or with a fair amount of marked blood in her veins; two lightly ticked; one wing or eye marked, with small but good shaped mark, or marks, and not bearing the same marks as the cock. For instance, if you are using a cock marked on one wing, then this hen should have both wings clear, but may be marked on one or both eyes; and if the cock is marked on one or both eyes, the hen should be lightly marked on one or both wings, but the eyes, and head altogether including the beak must be clear. To complete the group of five a green marked may be added, and if six hens are required, the sixth should be either a self or a broken green. The group might also be formed in the same manner, but with the colour transposed, having the buff on the cocks' side and the yellow on the hens', the markings remaining the same. Quality should be neglected on neither side, but type and feather should figure as strongly as possible on the hens' side, which may with advantage be of a medium size. The cocks, if yellows, should be of the large size, and of good shape and typical throughout. Given these elementary conditions, it is quite possible to produce some really good birds in this way.

Dominant Dark Blood.

To the inexperienced novice who perhaps is captivated with the chaste charms of clear birds, such a group as the one just described may appear to possess an excessive and unnecessary amount of dark blood. But this is decidedly not the case. Of course, one must not expect such a group to produce nearly all clear young. But there should be a very fair proportion of clears—from a third to a fourth part of the whole product, probably—ticked and variegated will preponderate, with a few broken greens, and probably a small proportion of self greens, and the bare chance of a decent marked bird turning up occasionally.

What will be of much greater value to the breeder will be the fact that his stock is well charged with natural colour for future breeding. Where the inexperienced breeder frequently goes wrong in mating up his stock to produce clear birds is to get too far away from the green blood in a mistaken desire to breed the highest possible percentage of clears. In doing this he is forgetful of the fact that he cannot go on breeding from clear birds year after year without the serious loss of natural colour in his stock, neither can he ever hope to satisfactorily supply the want of natural colour by artificial agents. If colour is not bred in the birds naturally, it is not there to be fed up and intensified by any kind of food whatever, and consequently colour-feeding loses more than half its value when practised on birds bred in this way. The remedy should be obvious, and the moral patent to all. Even if your aim is to breed clear birds, always keep a fairly strong current of green blood running through your stock. This is the real fountain-head of natural colour, and the fancier who tries to eliminate it from his birds will have to remain content with a humble position in the Fancy, even though his skill in the use of colour foods is second to none. Of course, the nearer one gets to and stands by the green blood the larger the proportion of marked and variegated birds produced. But this should be no detriment at all, and in any case the richness and depth of colour which will be found in the clears so produced will more than compensate one for the presence of a goodly number of heavily marked birds among the stock. And, after all, a marked or variegated bird has a charm and a beauty which even the most enthusiastic advocate of the clears will not deny.

A Simple Breeding Room.

I have almost unconsciously drifted away from the improvising of bird-rooms. To hark back I may first describe one such room which I can still recall vividly before my mind's eye. It was my very first introduction to the breeding of fancy Canaries, as I then fondly thought them, just as my first introduction to cage-bird keeping is recalled by an incident when a poor misguided passer domesticus desecrated the holy Sabbath day by rising early and making a grimy descent of our kitchen chimney. He was forthwith consigned to durance vile after I had besought its life with many pleadings, and obtained the necessary permission to retain for my own property what I, in my blissful ignorance, deemed to be a "pearl of great price." What if it did leave a grimy, nauseous smear wherever it touched, face, or hands, or what-not? It mattered nothing. Ah, me! What little pleasures are apt to make the days bright, and leave a legacy of joyous recollections in the mind, in the spring of life, when the impressions are sunny and stored up as evergreens for future remembrance!

But again, this is not the primitive breeding-room. That is another story—another Sabbath story, too. It was on one bright spring Sunday that I was taken by relatives to visit a friend who had a craze for live stock hobbies, which was as varied as it was persistent. The latter it certainly was, for a hobby of some kind was never absent, but it was rarely that the same hobby lasted long.

He was but a poor working-man and occupied a humble little cottage wherein one would have thought it impossible to find space for a bird-room. But there were no little chicks of the genus Homo to take up the little space there was, and in a tiny little room upstairs, which might have been meant for a box-room, we found the birds. Such a galaxy of feathered beauties they appeared in my eyes, and the room seemed alive with them. As a matter of fact, there might not have been more than a dozen all told, but they were flying loose, and the small room appeared smaller still by having natural bushes nailed against the walls from which the leaves had long since departed. Now the only preparation this room had had was the whitewashing of the walls; a layer of shingly sand had been put down to a depth of at least an inch all over the floor; bushes had been nailed upon the walls here and there; a nest basket firmly fixed in the centre of each bush; the food had been put down in shallow pans, or boxes, on the floor, and water in the same rough and ready fashion; and the birds had been turned in. When you went into the room you had each one to put the door slightly ajar, to see that no bird was ready to escape, and then pop through, like a "jack" coming out of his box, to prevent the birds popping over your head. There was not so much as a slight covering of some material to hang over the outside of the door behind which one could have stood whilst dodging into the room—a simple contrivance which would have been a vast convenience. But everything in and about this room was of the most primitive description, and yet the result in breeding would have filled many an expert's heart with envy.

MAKES BIRD BREEDING EASY.

This "BREEDING ROOM REGISTER & BIRD KEEPER'S ACCOUNT BOOK' (copyright) offers in a handy form a means of keeping—

- The complete pedigree and description of every bird in one's room.
- A full record of the season's breeding experiences.
- An account of every young bird reared, and how it was disposed of.
- A register of one's doings at the shows (the most complete and useful yet devised).
- A cash account for the year.
- A profit and loss account of the season's proceedings, and a balance sheet showing how much one has invested in the hobby.

A series of Registers will thus furnish a concise record of the career of a fancier as a breeder and an exhibitor from year to year, or over any number of years.

Many useful Emergency and other Hints will also be found in its pages.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

THE proposed amalgamated social and prize distribution of the four large societies of Bradford has now been definitely agreed upon, and will take place in the large room at their headquarters, the Market Tavern, Godwin Street, Bradford, on Saturday, March 7th, to commence at 6 p.m. A strong committee, composed of four from each of the Societies interested has been formed, to proceed at once with the musical arrangements. The affair promises to be quite a "red-letter day" in the annals of Yorkshire birdy circles, and it is hoped that this event will be the forerunner of many similar functions.

ON Saturday next, at the headquarters of the Bradford West C. B. A., Mr. H. J. Chittenden will give a lecture on that practically new department, so far as Bradford and District is concerned, "British Birds," and the "Westers" extend a hearty invitation to all fanciers and friends to be present, and particularly those who are interested in this branch of the Fancy. Mr. Chittenden has a lifelong experience of British, Mules and Hybrids, and also possesses a fund of useful knowledge in regard to the wild seeds and plants that can be advantageously used for conditioning, etc., and will doubtless give an enjoyable and interesting lecture.

THE Yorkshire Union delegates met on Saturday last and put in a good evening's work, the principal items being nomination of officers, alterations in rules, new rules, etc., all of which are to go on to the voting papers which are to be sent to each individual member of the Union. According to rule, the vice-president of one year moves up to the position of president the following year; therefore the principal office to be voted upon is that of vice-president, and for this there are six nominations, viz., Messrs. Halliday, Johnson, Sunderland, Armstrong, Wellock, and Clarkson.

NEXT in importance, and, so far as work is concerned, probably the most important, is the position of secretary, for which post four nominations are put forward, the aspirants for "hard labour" being Messrs. O. Mitchell, H. Townend, H. Hill, and S. Dean. For trustees and auditors there are also four "runners," two of each being required.

ALL members should exercise their voting powers in this important election of officers, as upon their discretion rests the success or otherwise of that now important body, "The Yorkshire Union." The proposed alterations of rules, etc., open up most important questions, and should be voted upon very warily—weigh up the advantages and disadvantages of each amendment very carefully, and not only from a personal point of view, but from the standpoint of the societies and the Fancy in general.

OUR ESSAY COMPETITION.

The judges of the essays sent in for our recent competition are giving them their careful consideration, but so heavy and onerous is their task that we cannot promise to publish the full results for another week or two. Competitors can rest assured, however, that we will do this, and so relieve their anxiety, at the earliest possible moment.

Chapter VII.: Diseases and their Treatment.

Of birds it may be said—Diseases many, cures few or none. Great as are undoubtedly the natural difficulties of bird-keeping, I know of nothing more deadly than the English climate. Nothing hinders an aviculturist half as much as dying—I mean, of course, the dying of his birds. You will always find lots of people ready to give advice on bird ailments, particularly on how to avoid them, and you will find the most dogmatic of these the people who have been singularly unlucky, or people who know nothing about the matter. Of nostrums offered to cure birds, I often feel inclined to say what an old farmer did anent phosphates. "A mahn as putts muck on his land," he pitifully observed, "knows what he be dealin' in; but what they guanies and phosphates be made of the Lord only knows."

Pneumonia; and avoiding it.

Take, for instance, pneumonia, that fatal scourge of all Foreign birds. They tell you that it is in the air, that you should avoid chills and draughts; but how the mischief are you going to do so in a big aviary? You can't wrap up each bird in flannel and put him on the hob! Some people say, "Warm the air of the bird-room." I tried to once with a lamp, and it made a smell that nothing could live in. I gave it up after the first hour. Others say, "Avoid the night air." But how can you? What are you going to do from 6.30 p.m. to 6.30 a.m. What other sort of air is there available?

I will defy anyone to avoid chills in this climate. With every care, how can you guard against the sudden fall in the temperature that occurs after a storm that comes on at the close of a stewing day? Still you must remember that, though it is impossible to fully carry out such orders, you can do a good deal towards it; and preventive measures are the great thing, for it is better to avoid pneumonia altogether, or to get off with a slight touch of it, than to make a sensational recovery. There is no doubt that a certain make of bird has the best chance of escaping this fell disorder—a strong, wiry, light-hearted bird, what Mrs. Poyser, if speaking of a boy, would have described as "stocky."

The best way to avoid pneumonia is to steer clear of draughts. Very tender birds can stand an amount of cold that would surprise a novice; but the strongest bird, even a Rosy Cockatoo, will succumb to draught. Of pneumonia itself, when it has once set in, I must say as King Solomon did of something else: "For this there is no cure." You may try all sorts of remedies—a heated greenhouse, a cage before the fire, or even placed on top of the oven, if the domestic powers that be are favourable, but the end will be the same. For a few hours the struggle will last, according to the strength of the patient, and you may be able to say to all tender enquiries what an old fellow once said to me anent his dying wife: "Thank you kindly, sir, she ebbs and flows." It will be the same with your poor little patient; he will ebb and flow for a few hours, but eventually, like the celebrated Barkis, "he will go out with the tide."

Having done all we can to avoid draughts, let us next see what we can do for water; for the drinking-water in some cages, especially "Import cages," is liable to contain entozoic organisms, and if a bird does not look out he will get some of them into his anatomy, and unpleasant consequences to himself will ensue. I have seen the eyes of poor little finches literally closed up with inflammation.

The disease is specially rife in newly-imported Pekin Robins. I have lost as many as eighteen out of twenty from this fell disease. The best—indeed, the only remedy I know of,—is to isolate the birds and to wash the eyes with mild carbolic or Condy's fluid, and to give the birds Proud's roup powder in their drinking-water. But in the majority of cases the remedy is very doubtful. If any sore-eyed birds were sent me, I would pack them back at once, no matter how cheap they were offered.

In acclimatising birds, you must remember that you often have a very risky task before you. There are, it is true, a few birds which, although they have been over for years, have never "ailed owt"; but you can count such on the fingers of one hand. There is another class, and that by far the largest—that is, birds which have a slight ailment once or twice and get over it, and some day, apparently for no extra reason, get a heavy dose and die of it. Another class is the third—those who die within a week or so of reaching their new home.

In Class 1 there is some unknown element at work. In the second the power of resistence is great, and can be renewed from time to time by judicious nursing. In the third class the state is that of complete and hopeless collapse. They are as good as dead when you get them. It is merely a question of time. Of many a purchase it might be truly said, as I once saw inscribed on the grave of a little child,

"I was so very quickly done for,
I wonder what I was begun for."

Next in danger to diseases come the remedies. Let a beginner remember in dealing with castor oil, carbonate of magnesia, spirit of menderus ergot, and the like, that they are not castor sugar, nor the bird a glass bottle; and therefore in using them (if at all), which I should hesitate to do, use "sweet reasonableness," and do not ladle them into a bird with a spoon. If you do, the saying of Mr. John Fisher, journeyman carpenter, anent the bust of Voltaire in the Cambridge Library, will be verified. He remarked, "Kinder sickly like, ain't he? Certainly looks kinder sickly like." So will your poor dicky after you have done with him.

The golden rule in doctoring birds is to begin at once. As soon as you notice anything wrong (and a trained eye will do it in a moment) catch up the patient and cage him. Brandy, pace the teetotalers, I believe to be one of the most effectual and safe remedies that can be employed, and I have saved many a bird's life by a judicious application of a "wee drap," and so, as the French say, when they wish to do honour to some special saint who has helped them, "je lui devais une fameuse chandelle."

"French Moult."

"French moult" comes, I take it, under the catalogue of diseases. It is a most annoying and disgusting thing, at any rate. I have found it generally, though not invariably, in Parrakeets. In a large aviary of Budgerigars there will usually in a season be hatched two or three youngsters that seem an unconscionable time in the nest. If you take them out, you will discover the reason: They can't fly, and they know it. The flights consist of nothing but little nest feathers, and the tails are likewise. Some dealers describe such birds euphemistically as "a bit rough." The poor beginner buys them because they are cheap, hoping that under his tender and fostering care matters will improve—but they won't. These birds never make anything, and remain cripples to the very end. It is better and kinder in every way to drown them at the start, and then they won't annoy you or be a misery to themselves. I fear I am preaching here what I do not always practise. I once bought some Bourkes Parrakeets so afflicted, and (but tell it not in Gath) I gave £6 for a pair, fondly hoping that they would moult out all right. The cock did, but the hen didn't, and she remained a miserable little cripple, like Wordsworth's Little Jim,

"Till death released her from her pain,
And then she went away."

What else could she do, by the way?

I believe in the case of my Bourkes, that they had been taken from the nest too young. They were evidently quite babies, in their nest feathers, so perhaps they did not get something they required to make feathers. It was a costly experiment for me, and I tell the tale so that others may take warning.

The Housing and Keeping of Foreign Birds in Captivity.

By WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

Genus: Carpodacus

Of this fine genus I shall only mention one in passing, viz., the Common Rose Finch. The British Museum Catalogue gives twenty-six species, all of them very fine birds, but space compels me to pass them by; there must be some limit to the scope of this chapter—to deal even with a fourth of the Fringilliformes in this series is an utter impossibility.

The Common Rose Finch (Carpodacus erythrinus.)—Jerdon states that this fine species is a cold-weather visitant throughout the greater part of India, more rare towards the South, common in Central and Northern India, and in the Himalayas, chiefly at the foot of the hills and in the valleys; it extends into Assam and Arekan. "Habitat: Northern Europe and Siberia to Kamtschatka, wintering in the South of these localities, especially in India and the Burmese Peninsula. Accidental in Western Europe." (British Museum Catalogue, Vol. XII). It appears, according to various accounts, to frequent groves, gardens, and jungles, feeding on various seeds and grain, and also flower-buds and young leaves, and I should say, judging by their demeanour in captivity, on insects also.

The description of this beautiful species is altogether too lengthy to give in full. It must suffice to say that the upper surface is brown, mottled with darker, and with a more or less intense wash of crimson over the whole (varying according to locality, Indian specimens are usually the brightest); the under surface is rich crimson merging into rose-colour on the abdomen. It would be perfectly correct to describe some specimens as rose-colour, there being very little crimson about them. The above is the summer plumage.

The Red-Breasted Bullfinch (Pyrrhula erythaca.)—This species has the whole of the upper surface (except the rump, which is pure white), whole of the head and neck, ashy-grey; wings and tail, glossy black; the under surface, commencing with the breast, is orange-scarlet, merging into pale ashy-grey on the abdomen; ventral region, white; beak, black; leg and feet, greyish. Total length, 6 inches; tail, 2⅛ inches.

Habitat: Himalayas.

The Brown Bullfinch (Pyrrhula nipalensis.)—The male has upper surface mouse-brown, washed with purplish on the lower back, and a band of white across the rump, wings and tail, glossy back, a white band across the wings and the outer webs of the last tertiaries crimson; under surface, pale ashy-brown, merging into white on the ventral region; beak, horn-colour, with a greenish tinge of a black tip; legs and feet, brownish-flesh. Total, 6½ inches; tail 2⅞ inches.

The female is similar to the male, but is a trifle smaller and has the small tertiary yellow, which is red in the male.

Habitat: Himalayas.

The Orange Bullfinch (Pyrrhula aurantiaca.)—Adult male: With the exception of the face, wings, and tail, which are purplish-black, and the rump and upper and under tail coverts, white; the whole of the plumage of this handsome bird is ruddy orange; beak, black; legs and feet, brownish flesh-colour. Total length, 5½ inches; tail, 2⅜ inches.

Female: The whole of the upper surface ash-grey, tinged with orange on the back; the under surface similar to the male, but not so brilliant in hue. In the winter they are mostly brown mottled with darker, and merely tinged with crimson. Total length, 5½ inches; tail, 2¼ inches. The female differs from the male; she is olive-brown above, striated with darker brown; the wing and tail feathers are dark-brown, edged and tipped with high olive; the under surface is whitish, with the fore neck and breast buff, and sides and flanks dusky: the whole of the under surface is more or less striated with dusky. Total length, 5¼ inches; tail, 2 inches. Habitat: Himalayas. On more than one occasion I think Messrs. Finn, Harper, and others have liberated a number of these species in various parts of this country—some were shot, and others soon disappeared.

The Crossbills I shall pass without notice, and the only remaining genus I can note among the Fringillinæ is Pyrrhula, and this only very briefly.

The Red-Headed Bullfinch (Pyrrhula erythrocephala.)—This beautiful species is found throughout the Himalayas, it feeds on the ground, and also on berry-bearing bushes, and perches high on the tops of trees. In shape it is similar to the English Bullfinch, but the tail is slightly longer and more forked.

The male has the head dull crimson, a narrow band of black added with whitish passes round the mandibles; the upper surface is a ruddy grey, with the rump pure white, with the tail and most of the wing feathers glossy black; the under surface is dull crimson, lightly tinged with orange, merging into greyish fawn on the lower abdomen; ventral region, white; beak, black; legs and feet, brownish-flesh. Total length, 5½ inches; tail 2⅜ inches.

The female has the upper surface browner than the male, and her head and neck dull olive yellow, the under surface being pale brown.

There are three other species that may be mentioned in passing, which are found in Siberia and Japan, and which only differ from one another in the intensity of the blue, grey, or ashen body plumage, viz., griseiventris, kurilensis, and rosacea; these have the characteristic glossy black head, tail, and wings of our English species (and the sexes differ to the same extent as P.pyrrhula), all three have the ear-coverts, hinder cheeks and throat, palish scarlet; rosacea, however, has practically the whole of the under surface, pale rose-colour.

Diet for this genus in captivity is Canary, rape, hemp, oats, and sunflower seed, the quantity of hemp to be only a small proportion of the whole; also buds, young and blighty foliage and fresh green food ad lib. If they are hatched a fresh supply of tender green food, such as they favour, is a sine qua non in the rearing of the young.

THE STANDARD LENGTH OF THE YORKSHIRE CANARY.

I am strongly in favour of the Standard Length, viz., 6¾in. being adhered to. In my opinion Judges should judge as near to the standard length as possible. Of course should there be a bird shown in any class which is over the standard length but which has corresponding points to the one which is standard length, then I say that the "Big Good Un" should take the premier honour, as such birds are far more difficult to get, with their smart, graceful attitude, than birds of the smaller size. I think it would be a very backward step in the fancy to alter the present standard.

Geo. Hy. Barnwell (Harrogate).

I am in favour of keeping as near the standard length as possible, without the birds being caught by the judges to be measured. In my humble opinion, if it is a hard and fast rule (length 6¾in.) it would mean that all the birds will have to be caught, and this would mean that some of the birds would return home minus flights and tail feathers, which would make it seven weeks before they could be shown again. But if I had some of these over-length birds, good in all other properties, I should not hesitate in putting them on the show bench. There is nothing to beat a "little-'un," only a good "big-'un." Get an over-length bird and an under-length bird (one has as much right in the class as the other), and ask a judge, or an exhibitor, or a pure novice, which is the better bird, and he will say, the former. If then we breed one of these birds to a 100 of the smaller ones, we don't want to envy another fancier because he has the thing we have all been trying for, and when he comes off with the highest honours, say his bird is over-length (I have heard the remark passed many a time). If the standard is made fast (6¾in.), our shows will suffer to a certain extent. If 15 birds are in a class, and are measured, how many of them are going to measure 6¾in? I say, let us go on the old way, keep to the standard as near as we can, and if a fancier puts one of these over-length birds down, good in all other essential properties, good luck to him. He has the best wishes of—

A. E. Patrick (Southend-on-Sea).

The Cage Bird Fancy in 1907.

Lecture before the members and friends of the City and Suburban A.C.B., on January 27th.

By GEORGE GARDNER.

"The Lessons of 1907, as they apply to the Cage Bird Fancy," was the title of a lecture delivered by Mr. Geo. Gardner before a large meeting of the members of the City and Suburban Association of Canary Breeders, held at their Headquarters on January 27th. Mr. A. C. Burn presided, and briefly introduced "G.G." as an old friend of the Association, an esteemed and respected judge of cage birds, and one who for many years had given freely of his practical experience for the benefit of the Fancy.

Cages: an Important Advance.

Mr. Gardner, in the course of an address lasting some three-quarters of an hour, said the lessons of 1907, as they occurred to him, were headed by what he considered to be a most important item of interest to the cage bird Fancy. He referred to the widespread increase of knowledge in the matter of suitable cages and how to make them. Mr. Gardner said he alluded to this point first, not only on account of its importance, but also because a respected member of the City and Suburban Association was now playing a prominent part in the task of disseminating information and instruction upon the matter. The importance of fanciers possessing suitable and comfortable cages in which to keep their birds, could not be over-estimated. There was a time when this matter did not receive one tithe of the attention which was now happily bestowed upon it. Any old, rough sugar box, with its crevices and its harbours for that enemy and tyrant of the birds, red mite, did duty at one time as a bird cage. All this was changed, and the idea now was to obtain cages with the most closely fitting joints and the least possible harbour for red-mite.

Cages were constructed now with a view to shielding birds from danger of draught. They were made cosy, easy for cleaning, cheerful, and healthy. At the beginning of the year Mr. Gardner had noticed a paper by a gentleman named Waterman, who gave some hints on the Canary cult. Mr. Waterman spoke of the bird-room in relation to its airiness, cosiness, and equitable temperature. He was opposed in the main to artificial heat, but recommended the selection of a room, if possible, where the conditions would practically ensure that the temperature should not go below 38 degrees.

How that was to be achieved, Mr. Gardner did not pretend to say, but it was a thoughtful idea, and this, together with the greatly increased interest in the provision of suitable cages, drove home to his mind the lesson that we in the cage bird Fancy were on the upward plane, and that there was a deeper and a more humane and refined spirit of interest awakening, which it was gratifying to observe and record.

The British Bird Fancy.

In the next place, he had noted the extraordinary increase in the number of fanciers of British birds, and consequently in the number of British birds kept in captivity.

There was a time when it was considered the most cruel of all practices to keep wild birds in cages. That might be true in reference to just a few varieties; but the idea generally was being dispelled. Look, he said, at the vast number and variety of hard-billed birds now kept in cages; so kept, indeed, as to enable them to retain health and lovely plumage. It had been said that the full beauty of the plumage of wild birds could only be attained in their wild state; but anybody who had visited the round of shows in 1907 must have been struck with the health, vivacity, and beautiful plumage of many of the Goldfinches, Chaffinches, Greenfinches, Linnets, etc., that were shown.

The increase in the varieties of hard-bills seen on exhibition had been large; and also that of softbills. Then, could not they learn something from the care and thought bestowed upon British birds in reference to the artistic staging and caging of them? This was one of the great things in the cage bird Fancy. It was the study of effect in the matter of cages in which wild birds were exhibited. One would almost conclude, at times, that the exhibitors were either artists in oil or water colours, or adepts in upholstery. It was hinted by the more suspicious that in some cases this cage decoration was done for the purposes of identification, and of unduly influencing judges. Mr. Gardner said he did not believe it. Judges had too much grit to be caught either by chaff or paint. It was, he thought, a lesson to all, coming from the experiences of 1907, that there was a deepening regard —might he say love?—for the beautiful wild birds they kept and exhibited, and it betokened a desire to see that they were happy and were kept for something else besides gain. It was a lesson of much moment, and one which touched the highest moral fibres of the Fancy, and made play upon the most sensitive strings of humanity.

The Objective and the Subjective Sides.

Another lesson was the great increase in the number of ladies and gentlemen who were willing to make sacrifices for the sake of their hobby and the scientific lessons it could teach. Look, said the speaker, at the vast advances which Mule and Hybrid breeding had made during the past few years. It had been well sustained and accentuated in 1907. At one time of day, the whole Muling world seemed to rest on a sleep! Whether the light Goldy-Canary Mules of those days were bred by a sleep was another matter. But a Sleep was practically a Mule god in those old days which some of them could remember.

Time was when Mule breeders could almost be counted on the fingers of one hand, and the number of light Goldfinch-Canary Mules was correspondingly small. Now, the number of Mule breeders and the light Mules bred — he did not say clear Mules—were as plentiful as blackberries in autumn. Not only so, but they had some large and most magnificent Goldfinch-Canary Mules. They had light Linnet-Canary and Greenfinch-Canary Mules of great beauty and size.

Then there was the Canary-Bully,—not the Bully-Canary, if they pleased. It was a mistake, Mr. Gardner thought, to put together the cock Bullfinch and hen Canary; the reverse was the better plan. Men, however, seemed determined to go forward, and these was no knowing where they would get to.

Look, too, he continued, at the still growing increase in the number of Hybrids produced. The rage for hen Bullfinches was most noticeable. Mr. Gardner said this taught him that that branch of the cage bird Fancy which engaged in Mule and Hybrid breeding was possessed of patience and had before it a high ideal.

The Yorkshire Canary Down South.

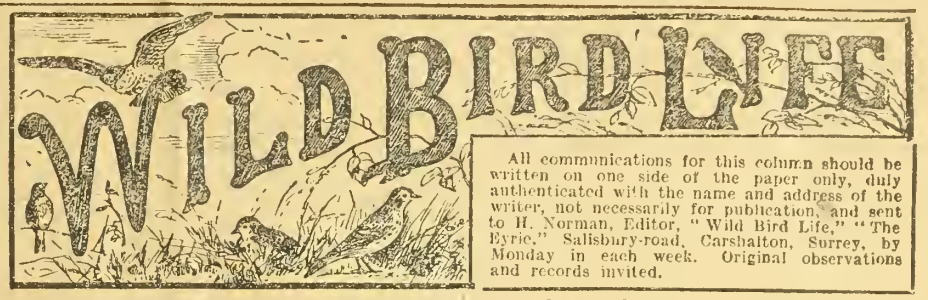
Mr. Gardner then drew attention to the great increase in the popularity of the Yorkshire Canary in the south of England. Interest had recently been awakened in its welfare. At this point of the address, two or three well-known fanciers showed themselves well on the alert, but the lecturer intimated that it would be outside his province that night to enter on the field of controversy. He proceeded therefore, as a well-known Fancier afterwards put it, to "walk amongst burning cinders and not scorch his feet." The speaker said there was much controversy about the rage for size in the Yorkshire Canary. One ardent spirit had said they had got them to 8 inches (laughter); he might have gone to a foot. But while he did not desire to enter on the field of controversy in that address, he might, in the light of what happened to the Norwich Canary advise "caution."

The Border Fancy Canary.

Next, he had noticed the great increase in the ranks of fanciers taking up the Border Fancy in the south. He was glad of this, for this beautiful little bird, with its jaunty carriage and lovely feathering, was well worth a prominent place in the Canary world. There had been a great growth of scientific interest in the study of cage bird life, in which the artist had played no inconsiderable part. They had been asked to pick off the correct head of a bird from an incorrect body, and stick it on a correct body that was "wrong in its head." They had been asked to show how they could substitute the good points on one sketch for the bad points on another, until they made a perfect bird. All this was evidence of a growth of interest and intelligence.

Mr. Gardner touched briefly on the founding of the Cage Bird Union and other interesting matters, and concluded by saying that the last lesson of 1907 which was impressed upon his mind was that of his own imperfections.

After a few questions had been put and answered, a vote of thanks to Mr. Gardner for his lecture was moved from the chair and carried unanimously.



All communications for this column should be written on one side of the paper only, duly authenticated with the name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication, and sent to H. The Tuneful Skylark. Tits as Executioners.

Spring is coming. If we had no other sign, the singing of Thrushes alone would be sufficient to tell us that the members of the bird-world are fast approaching the season of love-making and song. At the very faintest streak of light in the east the speckled songsters commence to "hail the opening morn"; and more or less throughout the day until quite an hour after sundown, do these grand songsters "discourse sweet music." But they are not alone. The Blackbird has added his careless, fluty notes to the chorus, and the incessant singing of the Skylark is now of daily occurrence. This latter bird cannot remain long silent now, no matter what the weather is; he must be on the wing, and doing. How wonderfully his song has improved within the last few days! It is now a full-throated melody, with all the trills and shakes of the accomplished singer. His soarings are high, and the music well sustained. Nor does he choose his time, as he did a while ago; in sunshine, in rain, in wind, in frosty weather, he ascends, and with head to wind, always head to wind, excepting upon very calm days, when he makes wide sweeping circles, he sings to his lady love. But it is not all music and love making. Occasionally there are fierce fights between the cock birds, and very determined fights they are. There is no mutual cessation; one has to cry "enough," and be driven off before these battles are finished. Although soft-billed birds are so quiet when in captivity, so easily trained and so confiding, they are much more given to the fighting of serious battles than the Finches and Buntings. Possibly their mode of feeding makes them gross and more inclined to be quarrelsome than the seed-eating birds. Whatever it is, we see it in almost every species. Even the beautiful Nightingale is not exempt, but will wage dreadful war against a full-voiced rival. This is why one seldom hears more than one Nightingale in a copse or spinney. Look at the tiny Tit. What more murderous villain exists in bird-land? Not even the much-hated Hoodie can out-do him in deeds of blood. He is a murderer and a cannibal, and constitutes himself chief executioner to every ailing or wounded bird, no matter the size or species. I once had an extraordinary instance of this blood-thirstiness in a Tit. It was in this way. I caught one to make a picture of, keeping him for several days upon a liberal allowance of meal-worms, as he would not deign to look at other food. Deciding to let him go one morning, I found he looked seedy and unhappy. He had his liberty in the garden, where it was thought he would soon pick up. One of the visiting Tits soon found him, and made straight for the corner where he was. Interference alone saved him; but only for a time, for although he was placed under some wire netting, the healthy bird tried persistently to get at him, and eventually succeeded, although constantly driven away. Other Tits were in the garden at the time, and the doomed one belonged to the same flock; but the little murderer had noticed the ailing bird, and although repeatedly driven away, he returned, and patiently sat on the fence awaiting his opportunity. It is astonishing how quickly a Tit will brain a companion. I saw this occur once while a cage door was being opened to interfere. The bird placed his foot on the neck of his victim, and with two or three lightning like pecks, split the skull, devouring the brains before our eyes. These habits of the Tits are not confined to birds in captivity. The same methods are used in regard to ailing or wounded birds when at liberty. We have many an instance in Nature of the same kind, especially among animals, that is as far as the doing to death of the wounded one is concerned.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

Gliding Flight.

In the art of "gliding" flight no bird can equal the Albatross. This is seen best in a strong wind. He will circle round and round, up and down wind, and ascend and descend, simply by inclining th body upwards or downwards. No wonder the bird can remain upon the wing for hours, and even days, for in such flight there can be no expenditure of force.

A Converted Sportsman.

In an article by Pattersen, the naturalist, we get a glimpse of the early efforts of a nature lover to follow his hobby. How he obtained his first gun is interesting reading. His parents objected, so the weapon had to be stored at a friend's. He says the finest bird he ever shot was an Avocet and he says he is sorry for it to this day. "The poor little thing had as much right to live as I have." Eventually the gun was thrown overboard altogether, "the sight of a poor maimed Thrush I had wounded, struggling to its nest with the blood dripping from its body, made me loathe the fowling piece." Many sportsmen are at least nature lovers, but few pause to think of the pain and destruction they are causing by indiscriminately shooting at every living creature.

A Bittern Caught near Leeds.

It is reported that a lad living at Bishop Monkton recently caught a fine specimen of the bittern—a bird rarely seen in England writes Mr. A. Hutchinson (Leeds). It is a bird which greatly resembles the Heron and is very handsome.

A Note on Albinism.

Albinism among birds is known all over the world, but it does not always mean that the bird will be pure white. In many cases plumage takes a yellow tint, and instance of which we had quite recently at the Crystal Palace Show in the first prize bird, which was a Bunting with white yellow plumage. One is inclined to think that the brown cinnamon coloured birds are closely akin to the albinos. The pink eyes and the clear legs and feet point that way, and it is more than possible that this peculiarity of plumage is transmitted from birds to young, or it may occasionally skip a generation or so, in proof of which, I know of a certain farm in a rather remote spot in Kent, where a race of pied or albino birds has existed for the last thirty years. A good specimen was obtained as recently as last season. Blackbirds appear to be most subject to albinism in this country, but in America rare feathered Robins are fairly plentiful and are the most numerous.

The Green Woodpecker.

A big Green Woodpecker in a cage, with his crimson crown, greenish plumage, and quick eye is an interesting object, although somewhat ungainly and cumbersome. But see him in the open, he is then as active as a Tit. It is astonishing to see his activity, how quickly he places the tree trunk between himself and the observer, he is up and down the tree, among the branches and round the other side in a flash. It is not often one gets a real good look at him. Once we were hidden by the brake and heather, upon a hot summer's day in a Surrey wood. We noticed the big green bird come hurtling by. He settled at the foot of a fine oak, and commenced to ascend, giving a tap with his strong beak here and there. At one place he stopped for some time hammering away lustily, evidently finding something to his liking. As is well known these birds collect insects by means of their long prehensile tongue with which they can easily reach any small insects hiding in the nooks and crevices of the bark.

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor for the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—Three Words a Penny up to eighteen words, MINIMUM Fourpence. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Fourpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1-, 1/6 according to size.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

MATTHEWS, LINNET KING.

Exhibitors, mule breeders, contest singers, hybridders.—I am patronised by all the leading Fanciers in the world, and if you want the finest and largest British obtainable at workingmen's prices place your orders with me. I have the largest aviaries, and the largest stock of British birds than any man in England. Contradiction d tied. Every Fancier who has seen other stocks say the same, and every Fancier has a cordial invitation to see for himself, as I keep every variety, and nothing but the best. I don't say I have what I have not, as you will never be more pleased if you place you orders in my hands for the best team of British. Remember, when purchasing from me you are buying from one who thoroughly understands what you require, and all kinds sent on seven days' approval at my own risk. I have the largest and finest stock of Linnets ever heard or seen; impossible to get the same class of British at this price. I have over 700 selected Linnet on hand, a nice lot with nut-brown back, well-pencilled, correct type, 1s. 6d. and 2s. each. Also a few special Giants, pick of the season, at 3s. and 3s. 6d., impossible to get better. Also a fine lot for muling, Giants with blood red breast, nut brown backs, blue beaks, 2s. 6d. each; bargains; guaranteed sure mulers. All in full song. I have over 100 fierce singing Linnets; been trained since Christmas under my old noted Cheshire Champion, which can be heard singing his grand notes, at 2s. each. Also a few special fierce moulted Linnets, 3s. 6d. and 4s. 6d. each. I guarantee you a song at any time with these special trained birds; impossible to get the same class of songsters at the price. Remember, I sold Mr. Chick his champion singing Linnet three weeks ago, after him keeping for 40 years at Pontypool, Monmouthshire; and I have a few of the same left at advertised prices. Goldfinches, Peartree Finches, a few specially picked for showing, large deep blazes, buttoned, etc., 5s. each; for muling, large massive, 4s. each; also live house moulted Finches, bred mules last season, at 6s. 6d. each. One bred mules for two years, grand bird, only 8s. Tinsel guarantee has bred Mules; bargains. Giant large yellow Greenfinches, like yellow Canaries, 1s. and 1s. 6d. each; these are gems for muling and showing. Special cock Bramblefinches, a few special show specimens, correct markings and size, 2s. each; two specials 2s. 6d. each. Over 200 in stock. Also a few well-paired, ready for mule-breeding, Linnet and Norwich Canary hen, 4s. Also a few well paired cock Goldfinch and Canary, 6s. 6d., and a few pairs bred mules last season, 8s. 6d. pair; Canary and Goldfinch, 7s. 6d., Redpoll and Siskin 3s. 6d., Siskin and Redpoll 5s., Green finch and Bullfinch, 3s. 6d., Twite and Redpoll 2s. 6d., Linnet and Greenfinch 2s. 6d., a hand reared Hawfinch, field plumage, 6s. Also a few Snowbuntings, Wagtails, Meadow Pipits, Woodlarks, Wrens, etc., or any kind of British you require. State your wants. Lifetime experience, and I guarantee you satisfaction. All on seven days' approval. So beware of worthless imitators, as you will see copy me. See your back numbers of CAGE BIRDS for proof, so send at once to Matthews, Bird Specialist, 41, George Street, Hyde, Cheshire.

CROWLE, DONCASTER.

SILK'S CHAMPION NORWICH.

More winners produced from this strain than any other. Birds sold by me have won at most of the all-England shows in keenest competition, and a great number were bred from stock pairs supplied by me. Some of the champion exhibitors owe their success on the show bench to this wonderful strain; procurable only from me. I can supply the champions and give satisfaction, and I will place the novice and amateur on the same footing by giving him exactly the same high-class Norwich at moderate prices. My pairs at 40/6 have no equal, and cannot be bought elsewhere at double; in fact, every bird I send out is double value. Why be disappointed with unreliable strains? Pairs properly matched by an expert and breeder. Special attention given to see that the cock and the hen have the necessary points to breed really high-class specimens. All orders have my personal attention, and fanciers can rely upon getting exactly what they require at moderate prices. Giant stock pairs, 20/6 to 40/6; Yellow cocks and hens, 12/6 to 25/6; ditto Buff, 10/6 to 22/6; approval to any part of the British Isles. A few choice Crests, Crestbreds and Yorkshires. Cream of the fancy reasonable.—A. E. Silk, Whitstable.

Hartz cocks, 5/6 and 6/-, two 10/6; hens, 1/10, two 3/6; Just a few testimonials picked from hundreds. These have come from birds I have sent hundreds of miles from Preston. Mrs. Downs, Chelmsford Road, Dublin, writes, Oct. 30th, 1907—"Thanks for the beautiful Roller. He arrived safely about 11 today, none the worse for the journey. He is a beautiful colour, and has a lovely voice. I like him well; he is singing over my head this moment. I want a nice cage for him; send on price of one." Mr. Glenny, Bachelors' Walk, Dublin, Oct., 1907—"Sir, am pleased with Roller, which arrived safe. He is singing continually night and day since he arrived. Scores of testimonials like this. If above not proof enough, send for catalogue and scores more testimonials. Mr. J. Patterson, Cork, Ireland—"Sir, I think it only right you should know that the Roller you sent me won the All Ireland Roller Singing Contest, held here November 6th and 9th." Mr. McConquodall, Greenock, Scotland—"Sir, received Roller and box cage safe; he was singing half an hour after I got him. He is the best songster I ever had. The cage is most suitable." Mr. H. Brooks, Wakefield, Yorks.—Sir, the Hartz Roller to hand. He is a splendid bird and sang under three minutes after caged. He sings in the gaslight; first thing in the morning. I have given twice as much for German Rollers not half as good as this from you." Proper singing Roller box cages, 1/6; enamelled inside and out, inlaid fronts, sand drawers; bunties 2/- each; approval with any; established 1879.

Thousands of testimonials have been published by me in CAGE BIRDS from satisfied customers. I guarantee strictly honourable trading and satisfaction to all.—Varney, sole proprietor and importer of this remarkable Roller Canary. Twenty years advertiser.—Varney, Stratford, London.—St. Mary Abbey, Mill Hill, December 1st, 1901. Received the Hummel; it sings beautifully indeed. It sings sweetly, and oh, so softly, all day, and I cannot imagine any bird with a more lovely voice; he begins, even these dark mornings, at 7.30, under his serge cover, and sings till 6 o'clock. Although his song is so lovely, it is beautifully sweet, he has no shrill notes, and I am able to read through it. Miss F. Blockett. December 1st., Southfelt, Poynton, Cheshire Received the Hummel, and am more than delighted with such superior song. W. Glover, to Varney, the largest importer of Rollers in London. January 8th, 1908. Sumner-place, Billinghurst, Sussex. Please send 12 good Hummel Rollers. I have six of your Hummel Rollers; all perfect Rollers. J. Leyland. January 16th, Sumner-place, Billinghurst, Sussex. I enclose cheque for the 12 Hummel Rollers. Am very pleased with them.—Mr. J. Leyland. Oulton Lodge, Aylsham, Warwick, Sept. 20th, 1908.—Mr. Bapha wishes another Hummel Schoolmaster as supplied by Mr. Varney a few months ago. Feb. 24th.—Mr. Bapha has received the Hummel which is again quite satisfactory. Feb. 22, 1908. 20, Bailey Street, Barnsley. Hummel arrived safe. I am more than delighted with such superior song. 7, Brosington. Feb. 22, 1908. Snow Hill, Skelton, Staffordshire. The Rollers to hand all safe and satisfactory.—Geo. Gratton. Feb. 20, 1908., 20, Gladstone Street, Kilworth. Hummel to hand; what a beautiful song; so superior to all other Rollers imported in this district.—W. Pebury. Feb. 20, 1908. 5, Millfield Road, Blengome. I enclose 20/- for another Hummel. I am so delighted with the last one; it is one of the best birds ever heard in this district, and I have seen a few.—The Hon. A. Stevenson. Feb. 22, 1908.—Canaries to hand in pink of condition. I have had birds from all over the kingdom, but never received such value.—J. Smith. HARTZ!

HARTZ!

HARTZ!

BEST value money can purchase, Hence at each and every price I assert they are the Cheapest in England.

Specimen opinions only (Thousands open for inspection.)

3, Alma Street, off Clarence Street, Chester Road Manchester. Feb. 4, 1908.—Pleased to say that the bird arrived safe, and the man that brought it said it was singing in his van. I am very pleased with it.—W. Mace to W. Rudd.

Worthy of your long reputation.

92, Sydney Street, Burton-on-Trent. Feb. 10, 1908. —I have much pleasure in saying the above has turned out very satisfactory, and worthy of your long reputation.—J. Taylor to W. Rudd.

Everybody round our place comes to listen.

Rhosymedre. Feb. 5, 1908.—Birds arrived safely; I must say they are a pair of beauties. The cock bird is like a little organ. He sings at 5 in the morning until we go to bed at night. He is a champion. Anyone wanting a bird I shall recommend to you Everybody comes to hear him. It is all the talk around our place. "Listen to that bird singing so grandly."—H. Jones to W. Rudd.

HARTZ MOUNTAIN ROLLERS.

Cocks, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards. Hens, same strain, 3/6 & 5/- each, Pairs, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-. Extra Special Cocks, 30/- and 40/-. Singing Hartz Cocks, 5/9 each, Extra selected, with better notes, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6. Hens, 2/- and 2/6 each. Pairs, 9/6, Matched for Breeding good Songsters.

You may have seen Advertisements of Hartz Mountain Rollers with all kinds of what may be termed "fancy" names, although such are absolute nonsense and positively meaningless, and I question if the people who use them ever were in Germany in their lives, or have any special knowledge of Canaries at all. If you require special strains, the very best known in Germany, I can supply them.

N.B.—Persons not liking much noise and wanting low and sweet singing birds, can be supplied by mentioning the fact with order.

W. RUDD, THE Bird Specialist, NORWICH.

ROEHL'S ROLLERS.

Herewith I append a list of my celebrated Gluck winning strain at the late Palace Show: 1st, 2nd, ex-3rd, 4th, ex-4th, vhc, hc, and c. These birds all came from the same strain, thus proving their superiority over any other strain in England. If you doubt it, read what an exhibitor states in last week's issue. I have still a few birds of this celebrated strain for sale. Also good stock birds from 15s. to 30s. Well bred hens from 5s. Write for my new illustrated catalogue in which is quoted everything appertaining to the Roller fancy. Sole agent for Queck's tutor organ, specially tuned for me. Nothing better in the market. A few splendid piping Bullfinches, piping two tunes correctly, price from £3 10s.—C. Roehl, 400, Edgware-road, W.

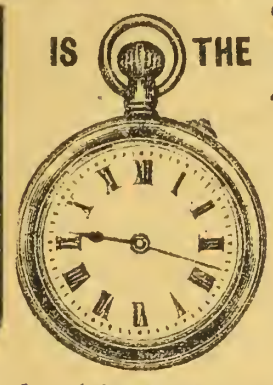
THIS IS THE To Purchase CANARIES.



Whether you require an odd Bird to make up your stock, or a spare hen or two, in case of accident, breeding pairs, or an entire outfit, for you are now neither too late nor too soon; besides, from me you can have every variety that is bred, except London Fancies, or the little wasters called straight Belgians, now being sold by the unscrupulous as Hartz Rollers, Border Fancies, &c. I do not touch this rubbish, which is sold in the Continental Markets as the lowest priced and commonest canary that is bred.

I am, below, giving you a few only of this month's unsolicited Testimonials. I know it is all very well to say only a few when it might mean all, for have I not seen statements where hundreds have been received in a week? Why, I have even read where thousands have been received in one week. But, what about anyone sending out Thousands of Consignments in a week? I confess I never did. But, bar 2d. green linnets, etc., I am prepared for any sum to challenge any two advertisers to prove the number of consignments of Canaries in any one week by Railway Books. Also to produce (any two firms combined) as many Testimonials during this month of February, 1908, bearing the official Post Mark from February 1st to February 24th, as the Editor now holds of mine of the aforesaid dates, none of which have ever been published nor do they include any of those published in this journal to-day or on any other date. It has been estimated, not by me, but by those qualified to know, that I have published more Testimonials than any person or firm in Europe during the past 20 years, either in Live Stock, Proprietary Articles or anything else you can mention. One thing I can myself vouch for is, that I have received Hundreds of Thousands, and can honestly say I never solicited a single one or even angled for such. If you who read this, will only give me the opportunity, I will endeavour to the utmost of my ability, to give you the same good value and satisfaction that I have given the previous hundreds of thousands. I take the only road I ever knew to thorough success. I am in a position to supply all I offer because I possess them and not offer that which I have not, just to try and be like someone else; nor do I advertise in a bogus name and purchase in another. I should be sorry indeed to allow myself to be addressed by any other than my own name. No, I cannot offer such inducements, nor can I write you yards of "cant" about brother to this or fourth cousin to that. I can tell you briefly all I know about many of the best birds I possess. For the rest I say, have on approval and judge for yourselves whether such are what you want and worth your money.

Impossible to get better for money.

Ivy Cottage, Barn Lake, near Neyland, Pem. Feb. 2, 1908.—Just a line to thank you for the beautiful yellow variegated hen you sent me. I am delighted with it, and think it impossible to get better for the money. Everyone that has seen it is full of praise for your straightforward way of dealing.—A. G. Harris to W. Rudd.

2, Lamb's Court, James Street, Dublin. Jan. 11, 1908.—I have received the Yorkshire cock safe and sound. I am very pleased with same.—J. McDonnell to W. Rudd.

A bona fide working man's opinion.

2, Lawn Cottages, Union Road, Lincoln. Feb. 23, 1908.—Cage arrived safely, for which I am very much obliged. It is just what I wanted. It came rather as a surprise, too, as I did not expect it until Saturday. This shows the advantage of dealing with a man whom one can trust. I am only a labourer, but I should never hesitate about giving you an order at any time. I am not able to spend many shillings, but what I have spent with you has always been returned in first class value. —J. A. Miller to W. Rudd.

Beyond expectations for money.

Brownstoun, Curragh Camp, Ireland. Feb. 22, 1908.—Just a line to let you know the pair of Yorkshires are alright. They are a lovely pair and I must thank you for your prompt attention to my small order. It won't be the last. They are far beyond my expectations.—J. German to W. Rudd.

Can confidently recommend to all who want their money's worth.

Bennett's Buildings, Chickenley, Dewsbury. Feb. 11, 1908.—The two birds I ordered from you have arrived safely, and I am highly satisfied. I wish to thank you for promptness in which you have despatched them. I can confidently recommend you to anyone who wants their money's worth.—C. Barstow to W. Rudd.

How do you do it?

16, Walter Street, Dennistoun, Glasgow. Feb. 2, 1908.—Yellow cock arrived safe. Many thanks for your choice of bird for my hen; how do you do it?—E. Barron to W. Rudd.

(By giving strict attention to requirements of each client, and knowing what I am about, and having the birds in my possession to select from. —W. R.)

20 per cent. better than can be obtained in London.

Cloudesley Square, London. Feb. 12, 1908.—Bird arrived safely, 20 per cent. better than can be obtained in London for same price.—E. W. to W. Rudd.

Smart work.

Mill Street, St. Osyth, Essex. Feb. 24, 1908.—I received bird safe, and am very pleased with him. Far better bird than I expected for the price. Thanks for such prompt attention. I sent my order last post Monday, and received bird on Wednesday. I call this smart work, and it shows what a business man you are.—G. Simmit to W. Rudd.

Your method of conducting business cannot be too widely known.

Police Station, Cowdenbeath. Feb. 11, 1908.—The Bullfinch arrived safe on the above date, and I have to thank you for prompt attention. I shall never lose an opportunity of commending you to other fanciers, as the specimen you have sent me is well worth the money. Your method of conducting business cannot be too widely known.—J. Mitchell to W. Rudd.

Would not believe until shown.

6, Jenkins Row, Deri, via Cardiff. Feb. 13, 1908. —I received box of articles for cage and bird keeping. Thanks for your straightforwardness. There was a person in my house one night showing me a few catalogues from some more specialists, and he had birds from them as well. I went and saw them. He thought there were no such birds worth the money to be had, but when I told him what I gave you for my birds and cage he was almost dumbfounded at the price and good quality. He would not believe me until I showed him your catalogue. I am so pleased with your dealing that I am giving you another order, and it won't be the last; I shall recommend your name for good stuff and quality to everybody as far as I possibly can. —D. Evans to W. Rudd.

The manner you deal with strangers.

18, Moon Street, South Shields. Feb. 12, 1908.— Just a line to let you know the Border Hen I received alright, and am very pleased with it, and the manner you deal with strangers. Will give you another order soon.—W. Davies to W. Rudd.

Worth a great deal of praise.

4, North Gardens, Brighton. Feb. 19, 1908.—I am pleased to say that the birds arrived quite safe this afternoon, and permit me to congratulate you on such a speedy delivery, as I think it is worth a great deal of praise. I am very pleased with the birds, and hope to meet with success with and I hope to get you a few customers by them.— R. Pearce to W. Rudd.

Statements you make no exaggeration whatever.

Bucknall, Staffs. Feb. 7, 1908.—Bird arrived safe in the pink of condition. I am exceedingly pleased with it. Quite sure I could not have had better value for the investment I made. Statements you make bear no exaggeration whatever.—G. W. Lawton to W. Rudd.

Better Birds than I have ever before seen at the price.

Fulford Barracks, Preston. Feb. 24, 1908.—I now take it as a pleasure to thank you very much for the pair of birds you sent; I am more than delighted with them. They being better birds than I have ever before seen at the price. Kindly send one tin of Eggertine, at 2s. 6d. Enclosed find P.O. —C. G. E. to W. Rudd.

Another Scot highly pleased.

18, Queen Margaret Drive, Kelvinside, Glasgow. Feb. 24, 1908.—Received birds in splendid condition, and I am highly pleased with them. Many thanks for prompt attention.—D. McIntosh to W. Rudd.
